A couple of concrete-and-steel silos, flanked by a red barn, are dominant features of the Barrett farm landscape. The barn floor is concrete, and steel stanchions and fixtures have been installed. Close by is the manure spreader, which every other day makes a trip to the fields with its load of manure. Seven or eight loads to the acre is usually applied, and Mr. Barrett figures at this rate to cover the entire farm every two years. At this rate, along with clover on every acre, it will not be hard to agree with him that he is mighty close to a solution of the soil fertility problem. But Mr. Barrett doesn't stop here. Fifty feet away from the barn is a cement tank, into which every particle of liquid manure is carried by gravity, later pumped into a tank wagon and distributed over the fields.

Mr. Barrett has never bought a pound of nitrogen for fertilizing purposes, and doesn't expect to. However, he has a high regard for ground phosphate rock, and plans to use it quite extensely in future as a source of phosphoric acid. He can buy this delivered at his farm for about $6 a ton, and with his land filled with humus, as it is, it is a cheap and effective substitute for acid phosphate.

A concrete-and-steel building by the barn contains the engine room and the milk and separator room, the latter fly-proof concrete-floored, and a model of cleanliness. The eight-horsepower engine is already used to cut feed, fill the silos, and run the separator, and Mr. Barrett is now arranging to put in a complete system of electric lights and waterworks.

Cows are milked night and morning, and the contribution of each to the farm income is a matter of daily record. Each cow's milk is weighed as it goes to the milk room, and the amount put opposite her name. Later this is transferred to a large permanent record of the entire herd, on which is also carried a record of the amount of grain and roughage consumed daily by each animal, and the gross and net profits of each.

"Loafing doesn't go here," said Mr. Barrett, and this is the only way we have of catching those that are guilty. I am trying to so imbue these Jerseys with the principles of profit-making that one of them would be ashamed to come up with a deficit, and I think we've nearly succeeded."

From the look of all-pervading prosperity, we agreed.—Progressive Farmer.

Minnesota Traveling Man In Bad Shape

In an affidavit executed before a Notary in St. Paul, a traveling man swears to the following: Had a scrofulous ulcer about two by three inches in size on the right side of neck over the jugular vein—a dangerous place. Was treated by many doctors, but no benefit. Allan's Ulcerine Salve cured the ulcer in six months.

This salve is one of the oldest remedies in America and since 1869 it has been known as the only salve powerful enough to cure chronic ulcers and old sores of long standing.

Allan's Ulcerine Salve acts by drawing out the poisons and healing the sore from the bottom up. It is so powerful that it heals new cuts and sores in one third the time that common salves and liniments take. And it heals burns and scalds without a scar. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co., and other leading druggists.

PEABODY COLLEGE FOR TEACHERS

An event of epoch-making significance in the educational world will be the opening on June 25, of George Peabody College for Teachers in this city. Peabody is the first teachers' college for the entire South. Leading educators the country over are interested in its successful launching and as the opening is in a summer session, when teachers in institutions for higher education are not engaged in their regular work, many of the most prominent school men of the country, men who could not have been brought here through any salary consideration, are coming to Peabody to teach during the summer session. The result will be the assembling in Nashville of a group of educators such as has never before been brought together in the South. This faculty will offer to the teachers of the South more than 200 courses, covering every phase of educational work, and the whole adapted to the peculiar educational needs of the South.

George Peabody College for Teachers as an institution is itself one of the most interesting of recent developments in the educational field. It is organized in its school of education for giving in a complete and extensive way the higher training for teachers in courses of undergraduate and graduate rank, such as are not provided anywhere else in the South; in its school of country life for adapting education for the improvement of conditions in the home, on the farm, for the betterment of child life through the country schools, and for the entire readjustment of rural life; and in the school of applied arts for adapting the student to his vocation.

George Peabody College for Teachers, it is stated by the men in charge, does not duplicate the work of either the state normal schools or the state agricultural colleges, and is not in competition or conflict with any of them. The work in the school of education, it is stated, is above that done by the normal schools, from which its students must be largely drawn. The work in the department of rural life is designed primarily for men and women who expect to devote their lives to teaching in the country and to other rural life leaders, such as country ministers, officials of farmers' co-operative organizations, and farm demonstrators.

The school of applied arts co-ordinates with the department of education in much the same way. Its purpose, as stated by the teachers in charge, is the training of teachers and supervisors who will be able to see that the girls in the schools of the South have opportunity to get the best start for improving the home through cooking and sewing and home decoration, and that girls in the schools shall have equality of advantage in learning how to adapt themselves to the household in which they shall engage, by means of courses presented to them in wood work, iron work, carpentry and the

AMERICAN HIGHWAY ASSOCIATION

Appointments of ambassadors by President Wilson have made necessary a special election by the Directors of the American Highway Association, which is the clearing house for the road movement of the United States, and have resulted in the naming of two new directors. When Walter H. Page was appointed as ambassador to Great Britain, he wrote to the directors of the Association, stating that owing to the fact that he would be out of the country, he would be unable to continue his duties as a director of the Association. He desired to be relieved of the actual work of aiding in the direction of the road movement until such time as he returned to the United States, although still deeply interested in the work of the Association, being one of its founders.

The appointment of Mr. Page thus created a vacancy which has just been filled by the election of Richard H. Edmonds, editor and owner of the Manufacturers' Record. Mr. Edmonds has played a large part in the development of the South and will add to the representation of that section on the Board of the American Association.

Owing to the recent death of Alfred Noble, regarded by many as the most renowned engineer of his time, another vacancy on the Board was created, and was filled by the election of Gen. Clifford L. Anderson, one of the most prominent lawyers in the South, who came into touch with the road movement by being for 17 years a member of the Board of Commissioners of Fulton county, Georgia, in which Atlanta is situated. The election of General Anderson not only adds a new figure to the national road movement, but is a recognition of Atlanta, where the next American Road Congress, under the auspices of the American Highway Association and the American Automobile Association, is to be held in November.

The chairmanship of the membership committee of the American Highway Association, which was made vacant by the appointment of Thomas Nelson Page as ambassador to Italy, still remains to be filled, but action is to be taken at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Association to be held June 15th. Not long ago, Fairfax Harrison, president of the Southern Railway, was elected to succeed the late W. W. Finley, his predecessor as president of the railroad.

The officers of the Association are now as follows: Logan Waller Page, Director, U. S. Office of Public Roads, President; Fairfax Harrison, President Southern Railway Company, Vice President; I. S. Pennybacker, Executive Assistant; Lee McClung, Former Treasurer United States, Treasurer; James S. Harlan, Chairman Interstate Commerce Commission, Chairman of the Board of Directors; Leonard Tufts, of Pinehurst, N. C., Chairman of the Executive Committee; Charles P. Light, former State Highway Commissioner of West Virginia, Field Secretary.

MOUNTAIN CREEK NEWS

PRETTY GIRLS HAVE PRETTY PICNIC PARTY.

With Major C. A. Gunn as "the only man" in the crowd, the young ladies mentioned below enjoyed a pretty picnic party as the guests of Miss Mary Ellen Glenn. Fishing in Chestnut Creek, singing pretty pretty religious hymns, and watching bad boys bat balls occupied the time until lunch hour, and then there was a good time wrestling with the contents of the baskets.

These were the young ladies referred to:

Misses Mary Ellen Glenn, Annie Pearl Glenn, Myrtle Holland, Pearl Culver, Thaddie Mae Hicks, Ice Belle Cobern, Inez, Pearl and Florie Harris, Agnes and Ruth Sims, Mary G. Hudson, Inez Hudson, Inez Gentry and Marie Maddox. Mesdames Thadd Kicker and Sam Hudson.

Miss Glenn is teaching for the summer months a select school at Cooper. The school had a good attendance on the first opening day, and has increased materially.

BAD NEGRO CAUGHT

George Lewis, a notorious negro highwayman, was caught at Verbena Saturday last, beating his way on a freight train. The negro had robbed a store in Montgomery on Friday before, and was making good his escape when captured. Sheriff Jones had been notified to be on the lookout for the black, and when the train on which the negro was riding arrived at Verbena, he left the train and was captured by Mr. Charlie Gulledge in Deramus' store; the Sheriffs office was informed of the capture, and Deputy Smitherman proceeded to Verbena and brought the prisoner to Clanton, where he was lodged in jail on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, and beating his way on train.

When captured Lewis was heavily armed with two ugly-looking revolvers, one a .45 Colt's and the oteer a .38 Smith & Wesson.

The negro is said to be implicated in a numbes of crimes. His trial will come up at the July term of County Court, on the first Monday.

TRIBUTE TO MARVIN H. WILSON

Now and then there falls on sleep, in the quiet rank of the profession, a nobleman of nature, who if his virtues were blazoned in publicity, would rank with the famous of his time.

Such a man was Dr. Marvin H. Wilson, who died Sunday morning, May 17, 1914. The circle of his intimate friends was small, but within that circle, who knew him for his worth, he had won a place which is his forever, and he lives in the loving memory of his loyal friends. Few men have been better loved in life, and few more genuinely lamented in his untimely death.

He ris emembered in tenderness and his absence is felt as a daily and distressing void. Briefly, in this narrow space, let us say that he was the soul of honor, the embodiment of generosity, the essence of kindness, and the incarnation of loyal faith. He abhorred shame; he detested fraud, and he scorned the devious subterfuges of the charlatan.

He was gallant in spirit, chivalrous in conduct, would have been fair in dealing with his dearest foe. What more can be said of any man than these words which we sadly and truly speak of him. He was my schoolmate in his boyhood and my comrade in his latter days and as the sod closes over his kindly face, I realize in more than passing sorrow that I have lost a golden-hearted friend.

FORMER OFFICIAL IS SHORT $5,994

EXAMINER FINDS THAT EX-COLLECTOR OWES WASHINGTON COUNTY CONSIDERABLE.

STATE CAPITAL HAPPENINGS

Doings in and Around the State House Chronicled for Our Readers.

—Montgomery.

W. S. Pugh, former tax collector of Washington county, is short in his accounts to the amount of $5,994, according to a report filed with Governor O'Neal by J. T. Gorman, examiner of public accounts.

Mr. Gorman has turned his report over to Chief Examiner Charles E. McCall and unless Collector Pugh makes a settlement within ten days the matter will be turned over to the solicitor of the Washington circuit court for action. All of the shortages are due to Washington county.

Examiner Gorman's report covers the years 1909, 1910, 1911 and 1912. In his report the examiner declares that Tax Collector Pugh owes the county for general taxes $5,035 and for special taxes $452. Interest on these sums amounts to $610.15, bringing the total amount due the county up to $5,994.05. The collector overpaid school tax to the extent of $103, which was deucted from the amount due the county.

Three ex-Sheriffs Short.

Discrepancies amounting to $2,890 were discovered in the county accounts of J. F. Powers, F. S. Cazalas and J. S. Drago, three former sheriffs of Mobile county, by J. T. Gorman, examiner of public accounts, who submitted a report of his examinations to Governor O'Neal. The charges against the three former sheriffs arose because they collected fees fur summoning defendants' witnesses. In an opinion handed down by the Attorney General, such collections were declared illegal.

County accounts of the following officials were correct, according to the report of the examiner: Price Williams, probate judge; T. T. Palmer, sheriff; J. B. Crane, clerk of the city court; F. W. Herman, clerk of the inferior court; P. B. Dorlon, tax collector; E. D. Laurendine, tax assessor; George S. Stone, treasurer, and the members of the Mobile county board of revenue.

Reports of his examination of the State accounts of these officials were filed recently by Examiner Gorman.

Pope Case Again.

For the fifth time the case of Ervin Pope, negro, is before the Supreme Court. It was submitted and the court's decision will probably be announced before July 1.

Pope's case is considered the most remarkable in the criminal annals of the State. He has been convicted and sentenced to hang five times for the murder of J. B. McClurkin, a prominent farmer of Calhoun county, who lived near Oxford. The case has been before the Supreme Court and has been reversed four times. Seven different days have been set for the hanging.

The killing of McClurkin occurred on the night of April 19, 1909. McClurkin was a miller by trade, and on that night was awakened about midnight by the noise of someone robbing his gotton gin. He got up, saddled his mule, and followed the robber's wagon tracks.

The following morning his body was found horribly mutilated in a cotton patch near the town of Oxford. He had been knocked on the head with a heavy club and his skull crushed with a large stone, which was found near the body.

The principal witness against Pope was a negro named John Body, in front of whose home the killing occurred. Body swore that on the night of the murder he was awakened by screams and blows, and that he heard a voice cry out, "Ervin, Ervin."

Delegates to Labor Conference.

The four delegates to the annual meeting of the International Association of Factory Inspectors and Labor Commissioners appointed by Governor O'Neal are from Birmingham and are Isadore Shapiro, George Huddleston, W. L. Harrison and Asa Faulkner. The meeting was held in Nashville June 8-12. Governor O'Neal appointed these delegates at the request of Governor B. W. Hooper of Tennessee. The association discussed labor conditions in factories of the United States.

Insurance on the Increase.

One of the State's most lucrative sources of revenues that is ever increasing is the insurance department whose gross receipts for the fiscal year ending December 31, 1913, were $369,112.36, according to figures compiled by Secretary of State Cyrus B. Brown for his annual report. The operating expenses for the same period were $12,718.02, leaving net receipts of $356,404.33. This is an increase of approximately $14,000 over the preceding year.

Relief for Treasury Suggested.

A way to tide the state over in its present financial difficulties has been suggested in the event that the Legislature is convened in special session by Governor O'Neal.

It is claimed that the Legislature could authorize the immediate issuance and sale of $300,000 worth of bonds which were authorized during the Jelks administration, but which bonds have never been issued or marketed. These bonds, it is said, would find ready purchasers. The Legislature also could authorize the governor to borrow and pay interest on $300,000. He is now limited to $100,000.

This combined would make over a half million dollars available and would be sufficient to relieve the tension until revenues begin coming in during the fall.

Malone Director Regional Bank.

George H. Malone, cashier of the First National Bank of Dothan, was selected by the Alabama Bankers' association as Alabama director of the Federal reserve bank at Atlanta.

Mr. Malone's election followed a long and spirited contest, which continued throughout the day. At the morning session of the bank representatives a resolution was passed prohibiting a director or officer of one of the larger banks from representing Alabama in the Federal directorship. The resolution also provided that only a representative of a bank in group 3 class, which represents a capitalization not exceeding $60,000, was eligible as a director of the Federal reserve bank. Mr. Malone's closest opponent for the directorship of the Federal reserve bank was McLane Tilton of Pell City. W. H. Merrill of Eufaula was also nominated for the office.

Will Discuss Judiciary Reform.

One of the most important questions which will come before the State Bar Association when it meets here on July 10, will be the subject of judicial reform, which has been agitated in Alabama for the past three years.

The judicial reform commission, which was appointed by the governor three years ago, will turn over to the bar association all data in its possession and the members of the bar are expected to take some action on the various recommendations and suggestions. It is more than probable that the bar association will compile the various data into the form of a report to be presented before the Legislature, with the recommendation that favorable action be taken by the State's law-makers.

The judicial commission was appointed by the governor shortly after he assumed office as chief executive. Judge John Pelham, associate member of the court of appeals, was made chairman of the commission.

Judge Pelham has collected considerable data which will be of aid to the bar association and Legislature in providing a system of judicial reform, and he will turn all these papers over to the bar association.

Water Power Law May Change.

At the next meeting of the Legislature an attempt, it is said, will be made to recast the Alabama laws relating to water power companies. One of the principal complaints seems to be against a provision which exempts these companies for ten years from making use of their franchises. It is argued that if a railroad fails to build within six months to two years after securing its right-of-way the same is forfeited, and that there should be no discrimination in favor of dydro-electric companies.

The exemption to water power companies, it is claimed, makes it possible for th emto monopolize the water power sites of the State and it is asserted that this is now being done. After such a company acquires a site it should be required to start activities within a reasonable time, it is maintained.

Employ More Field Secretaries.

Owing to the growth of Sunday school work in Alabama, which has resulted in Alabama being the strongest Sunday school State in the South, the Alabama Sunday School Association has employed two additional State field secretaries, Miss Freda Bose of Mobile and Miss Minnie Allgood of Dadeville.

The convention key word for 1914-15 of the Alabama Sunday School Association is "helping every Sunday school."

State Sells Cement Shares.

State Treasurer John Purifoy sold at public auction June 6, 500 shares of the Markley Coal Company of Mobile and the Mobile Portland Cement Company to secure an indebtedness of $140,000 which the former company owes the State for certain coal lands purchased in Jefferson and Tuscaloosa counties. The Markley Coal Company purchased the lands from the State and gave as security a mortgage on 500 shares of stock, valued at $500,000. The company defaulted in the payment of the property.

Lets Contracts for Road Work.

Contracts for the construction of several miles of State aid roads in Macon county near Tuskegee were let by the State highway department to the Nixon-Smith Construction Company, the contracts totaling $6,542. The company will improve seven miles of the road from Tuskegee to Montgomery and will construct several additional miles of new roads. This work will be done on the main line of the trunk highway running between Montgomery and Atlanta. Work will begin at once.

COTTON CROP IS O.K. DROUTH HURT CORN

FALL OATS MAKE GOOD CROP, WHILE SPRING PLANTING PROVES FAILURE.

FRUITS NOT UP TO STANDARD

Good Rains Late in Week Cause Spirit of Optimism to Rule Among Farmers

Montgomery. — Warm and dry weather of the past few weeks has injured the growth of corn, but has not affected the cotton crop, according to Reuben F. Kolb, State commissioner of Agriculture, who made a statement of conditions as deducted from reports received at his office.

Commissioner Kolb said the drouth had allowed cotton plants to send their roots deep into the ground in search of moisture, thus giving them more strength to withstand the drouth later than they would have had had May been a rainy month. He estimated that the cotton acreage this year is about the same as last, except in the seven or eight counties rated as Alabama's boll weevil section.

Rains of the past week gave increased hope for a good corn crop, and Commissioner Kolb said the opportunity is still open to make a fine crop. Dallas reported the first cotton bloom.

Commissioner Kolb's review follows:

"The crops in Alabama of all kinds are in a rather peculiar condition at the present time. In nearly all portions of the State the drouth has been extreme, lasting from four to six weeks, thereby severely injuring the fruit and vegetable crops, both of which are quite an item in Alabama, as several hundred carloads of vegetables are shipped out to Northern markets during the month of June. Peaches also have been injured to the extent that they have not attained their full growth, and while the crop in numbers will be plentiful, in size it will be a practical disappointment. The oats crop that was planted in the fall made a good yield, and, in some instances, extraordinary yields, while those that were planted in the Spring are an absolute failure.

"The farmers of the State have been making rapid strides in preparing their lands for crops, consequently the extreme drouth has not injured the cotton crop to any appreciable extent, but to the contrary, it has allowed the young plants to strike their roots deep into the earth in search of moisture, and consequently it will be in better shape to withstand the drouth later on when it begins to fruit than if it had an abundance of rain during the month of May. The acreage planted in cotton is estimated to be about the same as last year, although we must take into consideration the less acreage that was planted in the boll weevil district, which now comprises seven or eight counties of the State.

"The corn crop has been at a practical standstill on account of the extreme drouth for several weeks, but now since we have had showers it has taken on new life and the opportunity is still open to make a fine crop.

"Peas and other legumes, including the alfalfa crop, have also suffered from the extreme drouth, but as rains have been rather general over the State, we can confidently expect an average crop of peas, hay, etc. The acreage in corn has been increased to some extent by the advent of the boll weevil in certain counties of the State. This will also mean a larger hog crop as well as the growing of cattle. The farmers readily assimilate the various plans that are being taught them, not only by the bulletins issued from this department, but from the college at Auburn, as well as by the expert agriculturists that are being paid jointly by the department and the Federal government.

"Upon the whole the outlook, while not flattering, is reasonably satisfactory."

IRON OUTPUT SHOWS INCREASE.

Substantial Increase Shown in May Over April.

Birmingham. — Authoritative figures given out as to the pig iron production in Alaabma during May give the agregate at 152,055 tons just 9,070 tons more than was manufactured in April.

The production so far this year in labama has reached 748,917 tons, as ollows:

DENTISTS CONVENE IN SELMA

About Two Hundred Dentists From All Over the State Present.

Selma.—The annual convention of the Alabama State Dental Association convened here June 8 and continued in session until the afternoon of June 10. About 200 dentists from all parts of the state were in attendance. The visiting delegates were royally entertained by the local pharmacists. Much business of interest to the association was transacted.

GOOD ROADS DAYS.

Probate Judges, Mayors and Others Will Unite for Success.

Birmingham.—Probate judge after probate judge is writing to the headquarters of the Alabama Good Roads Association stating that their counties will observe Good Roads Days on August 14-15.

Hon. Theodore Pruden, chairman of the board of revenue of Barbour county, writes: "The board of revenue of Barbour county have taken up the question of observing Good Roads Days and took such action as we thought necessary to make the same a success. We hope for good results."

Judge W. B. Lindsey, of Choctaw county, writes: "A resolution to observe Good Roads Days was passed at the June term of the county commissioners. We will observe these days in Choctaw county.

Judge M. F. Brooks, of Escambia county, writes: "Escambia county commissioners have passed a resolution to ouserve Good Roads Days. Good Roads Days were observed last year in this county and the results were very satisfactory."

Judge J. F. Kelton, of Blount county, writes: "Blount county has observed Good Roads Days for the past two years with splendid results. We will observe Good Roads this year."

Judge L. C. Hudgins, of Pickens county, writes: "Our county will observe Good Roads Days this year and we are looking forward to the event with a great deal of pleasure and good results."

FARMERS TO HOLD CONVENTION

Meeting Will Be Held in Birmingham August 19, 20 and 21.

Birmingham.—Plans have been completed for the annual convention of the Alabama Farmers Co-operative and Educational Union, which will be held in Birmingham on August 19, 20 and 21. It is announced by Secretary T. J. Kennedy, of the Alabama Farmers Union, that the list of speakers would include some of the distinguished leaders in the union.

It is expected that fully 1,000 delegates and visitors will attend the annual convention this year, as the union is in a very flourishing and prosperous condition. National President C. S. Barrett, of Georgia; National Secretary Davis and President Rhodes of the Tennessee union, will be among the speakers.

REPUBS. TO PUT OUT TICKET

Conventions for Nominations Called to Meet in Birmingham July 22.

Birmingham.—At the meeting of the state republican executive committee held at the city hall, a call was issued for a state convention of the republican party of Alabama to be held in Birmingham on Wednesday, July 22.

The "bars were put down" and every qualified voter who is "dissatisfied with present political conditions in Alabama" was invited to take part in the nomination of a state ticket to oppose the democratic nominees in the general election next November.

STATE BRIEFS.

New oil mill at Guntersville is at work.

New ice plant at Uniontown is nearly ready.

A blind tiger was caught with the goods at York.

Plans are ready for the new Baptist Church at Cullman.

Clover and alfalfa fields in Tallapoosa are looking well.

Five business houses are under construction in Uniontown.

Boll weevils are not expected to injure the crop much until August.

Deputy Sheriff Millinder shot Wyrth Smoot while arresting him.

The Gulf States Steel plant at Gadsden is installing electrical machinery.

Marshall county is building a macadamized road from Guntersville to the river and placing an iron bridge.

Butler county has harvested a fine oat crop, one-third larger than last year's. Perry county has also harvested a big one.

Perry county is in earnest with regard to cattle tick eradication. Fifteen public and private vats have been built and twenty are under construction.

The grand jury, just adjourned, in Mobile indicted millionaire Joel M. Foster on the charge of white slavery Delilah Bradley, of Pemberton, N. J. was the yictim.

The oat crop of Blount is nearly double that of last year and promises well.

Articles of incorporation of the Hill's Creek Mining Company were filed in the office of Cyrus B. Brown, secretary of state. The new company will be located in Bibb county. Its capital stock is $25.000, of which $6,100 is paid in.

Alabama's prosperity is demonstrated by accumulated capital. Twelve new state banks will open their doors within the next five or six weeks.

Alabama pig iron will get lower rates to competitive points beyond the Ohio gateway, enabling the metal to re-enter a large consuming territory.

That Alabama's commercial and industrial business is expanding is shown by the report of the Demurrage Association for the first five months of the year, the number of cars handled being 363,710 as compared with 349,134 in the same period of 1913.

INVESTIGATION OF NEW HAVEN ENDS

COMMISSIONER McCHORD ANNOUNCES INQUIRY WILL BE DISCONTINUED.

RECORDS FALSE SAYS BROWN

Examiner for I. C. C. Testifies Concerning Inspection of Files of the Road.

Washington. — Investigation into the financial affairs of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, which the interstate commerce commission has been conducting several weeks, virtually was concluded, Commissioner McChord announcing the inquiry would be discontinued for the present.

It is believed no important testimony in regard to the New Haven's financial affairs remains to be taken and that the witnesses already heard have furnished the commission with enough material on which to frame its report to the Senate, called for by the Norris resolution directing the inquiry.

David E. Brown, an examiner for the commission, testified that his inspection of the New England Navigation Company's records failed to disclose the purchase of the Worcester, Nashua and Rochester road by the New Haven, althrough J. P. Morgan & Co.'s books showed such a sale was made through the Morgan firm. Mr. Brown said that if the books of the Morgan company were correct, the records of the navigation company must be false.

After testifying that a dividend on the 109,948 shares of Boston & Maine stock held by John L. Billard was turned over to the New England Navigation company by Mr. Billard, but entered on its books as interest on notes of the New England Investment and Security Company, Mr. Brown said:

"I made the accusation to the general auditor of the company that it was a falsification of records. It was by deduction that I came to the conclusion, but I subsequently found the file of the treasurer which verified my conclusion, and I showed him that file."

L. S. Miller, president of the New Yorf, Westchester and Boston railways, testified as to transactions leading to the acquisition of the Westchester road. He said the road was an asset in that it helped relieve the New Haven's passenger traffic entering New York.

John A. Garver, attorney for William Rockefeller, stated that Mr. Rockefeller's physicain was of the opinion that it would be dangerous for his patient in his present condition of health to come to Washington to testify.

GOVERNOR OFFERS TO RESIGN.

Arkansas Governor Aroused By Alleged Veiled Attack.

Little Rock, Ark. — Aroused by the alleged veiled attack which United States Senator Clarke made upon him at the Democratic convention at Pine Bluff this week, Gov. Charles W. Hays issued a written statement in which he offers to resign as governor if Senator Clarke will retire from the Senator's office.

"There is need for a change in the primary law," Senator Clarke said in his speech. "We must prevent State officers from stealing ballots. I would rather live under a Republican administration than that of a man who stole his election."

The Senator's remarks were generally understood as an attack upon Governor Hays, whose nomination at a special primary a year ago was contested by his opponent in the primary, former Congressman Stephen Brundidge. Mr. Brundidge lost out in his contest before the State central committee.

"The same State central committee which declared me elected also dismissed Judge Kirby's contest against Senator Clarke in the recent Senatorial promary," reads the Governor's statement. "If my election was stolen so was Senator Clarke's. If he really believes that both were stolen, I will join him in resigning that the offices may be restored to the people who can then bestow them upon men free from the taint of wrong-doing."

Gabriel Ferrier Dead.

Paris. — Gabriel Ferrier, one of the best-known French painters, died. He was 67 years old.

Two Killed; Two Hurt in Cyclone.

Sanborn, Ia. — Two are dead, one missing and two injured, in a cyclone which struck this vicinity. Property damage is estimated at $150,000, practically all of the east end of the town having been leveled by the wind. Two elevators, the city water tower, the electric light plant and a lumber yard were swept away by the storm. It was not known that any fatalities had resulted from the storm until the bodies of Mrs. Fink and Yetuma, a lad of 16 years, were found in their ruined residences.

Forget-Me-Not.

"Ah, yes, there are still true and loyal souls in this sad world," murmured the solemn individual in the tortoise-shell glasses. "I used to know a dear girl—it was ten long years ago—and not a year has passed since that she hasn't written me a birthday letter. Always what she writes is about the same: 'Dear Alfred, I can't ever forget, not if I live to be a hundred, this day of all the days in the year. Let me once again wish you long life and happiness with all my heart,' etc."

"Very sweet of the girl," said the stout young man with the amazing waistcoat, "very sweet of her, indeed."

"Very," replied the solemn individual; "only, you see, she writes that dashed letter to me on a different day every year."

Getting Round It.

Lincoln Steffens, in a recent address at Cooper union in New York, said:

"The wife of a child labor millionaire once asked him in some little disgust:

"'George, suppose you'd been born in the days when everybody had to live by the sweat of his or her brow. What would you do then?'

"'I'd open a stand,' George answered, 'for the sale of hanker-chiefs.'"

The great trouble with most people is that they seem to think they are just as good as we are.

WHAT FLAG DAY REALLY MEANS

GLORY'S BANNER, FREEDOM'S FIRE, SHE'S FLOWER

CELEBRATING FLAG DAY

BATTLE SCARRED FLAGS

IT IS now 138 years since the United States of America was composed of 13 states, the greater number of which had a population of little more than that of the average city of today. Those 13 states have grown and multiplied until there are now 48 states, with a population of nearly 100,000,000 of the most virile and strongest race of men on earth. It has been demonstrated many times in the past century that the struggles of the patriots of 1776 were not in vain. The words "United States of America" are an inspiration and a help to the oppressed of all lands. The Union gleams out through the world as a gigantic monument of freedom, and the lowly and persecuted of all nations have their eyes turned toward America with the hope that some day they may reach the promised land.

The American flag is the oldest flag among the nations of today. It antedates even the present emblems of the ancient empires of China and Japan. The Star-Spangled Banner has a history unlike the flag of any other people. It is older than the present flag of Great Britain, which dates from 1801; it is older than the German empire standard of 1870; older than that of France—1794—or that of Spain—1785.

The first legislative action of which there is any record concerning the design and adoption of a national flag was taken in a resolution of congress at Philadelphia on June 14, 1775, but it was not until October or November of that year that a committee of three—Benjamin Franklin, John Adams and Roger Sherman—met in the old city of Cambridge and entered upon their duties. After long deliberation, this committee adopted a design consisting of the king's colors—the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew—with 13 parallel horizontal stripes, alternate red and white. A most strange and unfortunate selection it would seem.

The flag was unfurled for the first time over the camp of the Continental army at Cambridge, on the 2nd day of January, 1776. When the ensign was first displayed at Cambridge, the British regulars assumed it was intended as an indication of submission by the 13 states to the king, whose speech had just been sent to the Americans. The comment of the British Register of 1776 on the new standard is interesting: "The rebels burned the king's speech and changed the flag from a plain banner to one bearing 13 stripes, as a symbol of the number and union of colonies."

Isabelle Worrell Ball is the woman who made the American flag her life's study. She is the daughter of a veteran of the Revolutionary war and the founder of Flag day, which is now observed all over the country. Her father was Capt. James P. Worrell, who served through the Civil war, and she numbers among her relatives many of the heroes of both wars. Many years ago Mrs. Ball became convinced that the real history of our flag was unknown. She determined to unravel the tangled skein, and give to posterity the true history and evolution of the American flag.

"It was suggested by early writers that George Washington's coat of arms was the model for our flag of today," said Mrs. Ball. "These statements are supported only by tradition and legend, as all my search has proved that Washington was not egotistical enough to present his coat of arms to the nation as a model for its flag. I have delved into history as far as it is possible to go. I have examined many manuscripts, and have separated tradition and legend from facts, and it is my belief that Washington never thought of his coat of arms as a model for the flag. In fact, there is grave doubt that Washington had anything to do with the designing of the flag at all.

"A sentence from one of Washington's own letters seems to me to clinch this statement. Sir Isaac Heard, an eminent writer of the early days, wrote to Washington concerning his coat of arms, which appears upon the doorway and mantels of the old Washington manor house in England. To this inquiry Washington replied on May 2, 1792:

"'This is a subject to which I confess I have paid very little attention. The arms inclosed in your letter are the same that are used by the family here.' As will be seen, this was a letter written a decade after the close of the Revolutionary war, and nearly two decades after the adoption of the Stars and Stripes by the congress of the United States. If Washington, at that late date, had paid little attention to his coat of arms, he certainly paid less in his younger days, and especially at a time when he was surrounded by enemies, malignantly persecuted by them, and was naturally deeply engrossed in the army and the preservation of the new-born nation. I do not find in all of Washington's writings a single allusion by him of any of his contemporaries that his coat of arms was used as a model for the flag.

"The evolution of the flag was gradual and undoubtedly grew out of the desire of the people who had come to this country to get away from the tyranny of Old World monarchs. Of course, the first flag in this country was the red and yellow flag of old Spain, brought over by Columbus. The Cabots, with other discoverers of England, planted the cross of St. George up around Newfoundland. Pedro Reinal, for the Portuguese, planted the five-spotted blue flag of that then great maritime nation. Henry Hudson, coming here for the Dutch, brought the yellow, white and blue flag, under which he sailed up the Hudson river. This flag was the flag of the Dutch East India company. These may be considered the four discovery flags.

"England dominated the country, and the English colors were really the last as well as among the first to dominate the destinies of the evolving nation. The cross of St. George, with the added cross of St. Andrew, and later on with the cross of St. Patrick, was the very last flag to be supplanted by the Stars and Stripes.

"The people of America, with growing contempt for Old World flags, fabricated many of their own. Some of these were very odd, and without exception, all of them were very ugly. This was true until 1620, when the Mayflower carried the St. George's cross, but those stern old Puritans protested against the use of the cross upon the flag, believing it to be sacrilegious, and in every way they could, used other devices and designs, only to bring down upon themselves the wrath of the king's officers in the colonies. The first evidence of this was when a Mr. Endicott, mutinying against the cross, concluded to cut off one end of it. Roger Williams, for some reason, probably just to get a whack at one whom he disliked, complained of this. The king's officers took it up, and after a long discussion, decided that Mr. Endicott had been guilty of lese majeste, although that term was not known in those days. He was deposed from office and a penalty imposed that he should not hold office again for one year, thus putting an end to the flying of any flag other than that bearing the St. George cross.

"For a long time a plain red flag was carried by an organization called the Sons of Liberty. Following this was a blue flag with three crescents, another with two, and still another with one. Washington himself in 1775 suggested a white flag with a pine tree, and this is only another proof that the story of Washington's coat of arms was false. About 1775 a striped green and yellow flag was carried by one of the militia companies. In January, 1775, the first red and white-striped flag was adopted. This was known as the Cambridge flag, and consisted of 13 alternate red and white stripes, with the king's colors then consisting of St. Andrew's and St. George's crosses on a blue field.

"Later a Colonel Gadsen proposed to congress our first naval flag. This was a great big yellow flag, with a snake coiled up in the center. It hung over the head of the speaker for some years and then went out of existence. Following this came flags of red and blue stripes, and red and white stripes, each without a field, and each with snakes in them. These were pine tree flags galore. There were flags with badgers, flags with anchors; in fact, any old thing except a St. George's cross seemed acceptable to the colonists struggling for light in the darkness. In 1776 the Rhode Island colony adopted a flag of 13 white stars on a blue field. This is the very first time stars appeared in the flag.

"From the date of the Declaration of Independence and for a year or more afterward the colonies used almost everything that flag in the heavens or swims in the water or grows on land as a symbol for their flag. Finally, one bright day in June, with no father and no mother, Old Glory was born. There is not a word or record of any kind to show who designed the flag who presented the resolution, or how it ever got into the congress of the United States. The fact is simply recorded as follows:

"'Resolved, That the flag of the 13 United States be 13 stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be 13 stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation.'

"So far as the vote is recorded in congress it was unanimous, and that is how the flag was born.

"About this time the great seal of the United States came into existence. On July 4, 1776, Benjamin Franklin, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson were appointed a committee to prepare devices for a great seal of the nation. This committee reported on August 10 of the same year and recommended a design to consist of a rose of red and white for England, a thistle for Scotland, a heart for Ireland, a fleur-de-lis for France, an imperial eagle in black for Germany, and a Belgian lion for Holland, the idea being to commemorate the countries from which the states had been peopled. In addition, it was intended to have three escutcheons linked together by a chain, and each of these chains was to bear the initial of each of the 13 independent states. Then there was to be a Goddess of Liberty in corselet and armor, with spear and cap and a shield of the states, with a goddess of justice bearing a sword in her right hand and in her left a balance. In the corner provision was made for the eagle of Providence in a triangle, with the motto, 'E Pluribus Unum.' On the other side of this unique seal was Pharaoh in an open chariot, with a cross and sword, passing through the divided waters of the Red sea in pursuit of the Israelites. Moses was there, and the pillar of fire, with the motto, 'Rebellion to tyrants is obedience to God.' This design was not adopted.

"In March, 1779, another committee was appointed, and the report they made for a great seal was worse than the first. On June 13, 1782, however, a William Barty of Philadelphia proposed practically the present coat of arms, which was finally adopted after being modified by another committee."

The story of John Paul Jones is intimately associated with the story of our first flag. The same congress that created the first flag appointed John Paul Jones to command the Continental ship of war Ranger at the same time. When the flag was prepared and the Ranger was about to go forth on her lonely adventure the naval committee made the commander the first official present of the flag of the United States.

The achievements of the Ranger are a matter of the most stirring events of our history. All the world knows how, in 1777, Jones made such gallant use of the Ranger and kept the shores of England and Scotland in constant terror.

The first military incident connected with the new flag occurred on August 2, 1777, when Lieutenants Bird and Grant invested Fort Stanwix. The garrison was without a flag when the enemy appeared, but the patriots soon supplied one very much on the pattern just adopted by the Continental congress. Shirts were cut up to form white stripes, bits of scarlet cloth were joined for the red, and the blue ground for the stars was composed of a cloth cloak belonging to Capt. Abraham Swartout, who was then in the fort. Before sunset this curious mosaic standard, as precious to the beleaguered garrison as the most beautiful wrought flag of silk and needlework was floating over one of the bastions. The siege was raised on August 22, but it is not known what became of the improvised flag.

In his statement to Governor Trumbull, August 31, 1777, of the occurrences at Fort Stanwix, Colonel Willett mentions as one of the results of his sally from the fort that he captured and brought off five of the enemy's colors, the whole of which, on his return to the fort, were displayed on the flagstaff under the impromptu Continental flag.

TWO ADDITIONAL FIELD SECRETARIES EMPLOYED

Owing to the growth of Sunday School work in Alabama, which has resulted in Alabama being the strongest state in the South, the Alabama Sunday School Association has employed two additional State Field Secretaries, Miss Freda Bose, of Mobile, and Miss Minnie Allgood of Dadeville. Miss Bose has had large experience in the Teacher Training work and in the "Teen-Age" work in Mobile, especially in city Sunday Schools. Miss Allgood has had an equally extensive experience in organization and in Teacher Training work, especially among the country Sunday Schools. Miss Bose begins work at once, and Miss Allgood will begin September 1. The services of these workers will be furnished free of charge to the County and District Sunday School Associations of Alabama by the State Association, All expenses being met by the State Association.

The Convention key-word for 1914-15, of the Alabama Sunday School Association is "Helping Every Sunday School" and the purpose of employing additional Field Secretaries is to enable the Association to give definite practical help and instructions in the modern Sunday school methods to a larger number of Sunday Schools in Alabama than ever before.

CLANTON PRESS

Probate Office

PUBLISHED IN THE INTEREST OF CHILTON COUNTY AND HER PEOPLE

VOL. 5. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY JUNE 18, 1914. NO. 10.

Barbecue and Highway Meet Huge Success

The barbecue given at Clanton Friday last in the interest of the Birmingham-to-Montgomery highway was a great success in every particular.

People began to pour into Clanton early in the morning, coming from the six counties through which the proposed highway will pass, and by noon between three and four thousand citizens had gathered to partake of the barbecue and boost the highway. About forty automobiles came from Montgomery, bringing 250 good roads enthusiasts; and a number came in cars from immediate points along the route. Owing to the long drive, only a few came in cars from Birmingham, most of Jefferson's delegation coming by rail.

Never, perhaps, in the history of Alabama has there been a more enthusiastic gathering for the promotion of good roads than the meeting held here last Friday.

The monster crowd was a most representative one, including farmers, bankers, merchants, professional men and citizens of all classes, and their great interest in this movement was emphasized by their strict attention and liberal applause given the several speakers.

All the speakers urged upon the people the importance of prompt and decisive action, and made clear to their hearers the necessity of hearty co-operation.

The meeting was called to order shortly after eleven o'clock by President Keller, the exercises taking place on the grounds of the Masonic hall.

The welcome address in behalf of the town was made by Mayor Matthews, who, in his pleasing manner, assured the visitors that the keys of the town were in their possession, and that Clanton was indeed proud to have such a representative gathering as their guests.

Judge E. B. Deason was next introduced, and in his happy style, delivered the welcome addcess in behalf of Chilton county. The judge in the course of his remarks urged the necessity of improved highways and the many advantages to be derived therefrom. His remarks were well received and frequently applauded.

Many prominent men were among the speakers, including Gov. O'Neal, Ray Rushton, W. S. Keller, Frank W. Lull of Wetumpka, Judge R. L. Faucett of Autauga, Hugh McGeever of Birmingham, Miss Alma Rittenberry of Birmingham, and John Craft of Mobile.

Gov. O'Neal was the principal speaker of the day, and was introduced by Mr. Keller, as Alabama's good roads Governor. The Governor delivered a splendid address, saying that the sentiment for bonds to construct roads had been crystallized and the time for action was now at hand. He urged upon his hearers the necessity of building good roads for the future development of the state.

"This great trunk road connects two of our greatest cities and is passing through one of the richest sections of the state, will be selected during my administration," the Governor said.

Governor O'Neal urged the construction of trunk highways

the state and said he would ask the next Legislaure to change the present law so that the money now being spent for state aid roads should be spent for the construction of permanent trunk highways.

"The money that the state has spent in the past on state aid roads has been well spent and the state aid roads have served their purpose. These roads were constructed in order to show the people how to build highways and to instill in them a spirit of enthusiasm which would lead to the construction of other highways in their counties. "The Governor stated that it requires an expert to build roads just as it does to build a bridge over a river. "More money has been wasted because of ignorance in constructing good roads than almost any other enterprise," said the Governor.

Ray Rushton of Montgomery made a strong and convincing argument which deeply impressed the large assemblage.

Frank W. Lull, Judge R. L. Faucett, Hugh McGeever, Capt. John Craft, all made ringing addresses, in which they urged immediate action in constructing the B. and M. highway.

Miss Alma Rittenberry of Birmingham was one of the speakers. Miss Rittenberry spoke in the interest of the Andrew Jackson highway and expressed the belief that the Birmingham and Montgomery highway will be an important link in the Jackson highway.

After the speaking was concluded the vast assemblage proceeded to the grove nearby, where six large tables heavily laden with various kinds of elegantly prepared barbecued meats, and the sumptuous repast was enjoyed by all present. A brass band from Montgomery discoursed sweet music during intervals in the program.

Clanton did itself proud on this occasion; almost all the stores closed their doors for the day and the crowded streets had the appearance of a holiday. Everything passed off without a mishap; the citizens of Clanton took care of the great crowds in a manner that was highly creditable. To entertain three or four thousnd people is no small undertaking, but Clanton was equal to the occasion and everyone present had a good time and were unstinted in their praises of the hospitality of the people of Chilton county.

HON. R. E. BOWDON TO DR. MATTHEWS

REGRETS INABILITY TO ATTEND BARBECUE

Keystone, Ala., June 11, 1914.

Hon. E. A. Matthews,
Clanton, Ala.,

Dear Dr. Matthews:

It is with sincere regret that I will be deprived of the pleasure of being with you on Thursday at Clanton as I had anticipated. Owing to [illegible] morrow, I will appreciate your kindness in reading this letter.

We have contracted for the building of our State Aid Highway from the Jefferson county line to the Chilton county line, through Shelby. Said contract to be completed by August 1st, with a penalty of of $25 per day for each day thereafter until the road is completed. The contractors have executed a bond in the sum of $200,000 for the performance of their contract. I inspected the road aforesaid on yesterday, and it is my opinion that same will be completed by July 15th instead of August 1st. I am delighted with the grade of road we are building, and I believe that it is equal to the best road that has ever been built in Alabama.

We have also contracted for the building of a road from the St. Clair county line to the Bibb county line, via Vincent, Harpersville, Wilsonville, Columbiana, Shelby Springs, Montevallo, Wilton and Briarfield. Said contract is to be completed by January 1st, 1914. There are at present about three hundred miles in the construction of the foregoing road, and the work is being pushed with as much rapidity as possible. Our extreme grade will not exceed five per cent; both of the foregoing roads will aggregate about seventy miles in length. After the completion of the two main trunk lines aforesaid, it is the intention of our Board to build the next most important road leading thereinto.

When we first undertook the building of roads in Shelby, county, we were severely criticised by those uninformed, and those not in sympathy with progressive ideas, and not familiar with the benefits in a general way to be derived from road building. Our Board being composed peculiarly of a set of men not expecting to offer for public office in the future, possessed sufficient nerve to go ahead and build roads on a basis that is economical and in a way that will not only benefit the citizenship of Shelby county and enhance the value of property thereof, but in additon roads so built will be a benefit to the traveling public in a general way. The approximate total cost of the roads contracted to be built will aggregate about $200,000. We are using cast iron pipe for drainage, and the very best quality of phert to be had, and I believe when completed will compare with any road existing in the South.

It is my sincere hope that the Board of Revenue of your county will seriously consider the matter and discharge what appears to me to be their duty in following our footsteps in their county as hereinabove outlined.

Again expressing my regret on account of my inability to be with you on the occasion hereinbefore referred to, and assuring you of my appreciation of your kind invitation, to be your guest, I remain,

Yours very truly,
R. E. Bowdon.

TERRIFIC ELECTRIC STORM AT THORSBY

During the severe electric storm that passed over Thorsby about 6:30 Friday, p.m. June 12, residence of Mr. and Mrs. S. Norton was struck by lightning and in spite of [illegible] and Mrs. Norton lost about all their clothing, except what they had on, besides toilet articles, in fact nearly everything on the upper floor, as they were fighting the fire until driven out by the flames.

Mr. and Mrs. Norton and their guest, Miss Elizabeth Hooper, Matron of Thorsby Institute, were seated at the supper table when the bolt struck the chimney only a few feet from them. Judging by the destruction it caused in an instant, it was no feeble charge, and it is little less than a miracle that they were not all killed or injured.

Mr and Mrs. Norton and Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Schive, who lived directly across the street from the Norton home, wish to express their gratitude for the splendid service rendered by neighbors and friends in saving furniture at the Norton House, and the house itself at the Schive' home.

During the same storm a barn of Widow Collins at the Cross Roads school house, was struck by lightning, and consumed by the fire which followed, together with a horse, a cow and a pig.

On Sunday afternoon during another electric storm, lightning struck the new store of J. R. Parnell and Son, entering the building by way of long distance telephone wires. The fire was outed before it had gained much headway.

TWO PRETTY HOME WEDDINGS AT THORSBY

GERALD-MASTIN

In a quiet home wedding, participated in only by the families of the contracting parties, and a few of their intimate friends, Mr. Lawrence F. Gerald, son of Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald, and junior member of the law firm of Smith and Gerald, of Clanton, and Miss Ella Mastin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Mastin, were married at the residence of the bride's parents at Thorsby, at 8:00 p.m., on Wednesday evening, Rev. S. H. Herbert officiating at the ceremony.

The bride wore a white satin gown, her veil was fastened with lilies of the valley, and she carried a boquet of bride's roses. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Philip Horn, wearing pink satin gown with lace trimmings, carrying sweet peas. Mr. Guy Gerald, a brother of the groom, was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald left on an evening train for an extended trip in the West, and on their return will reside in Clanton.

HORN-ANDERSON

A very pretty wedding was celebrated at 5:00 p.m. on Wednesday, June 10, at the home of the bride's parents, when Mr. Ivy Horn, son of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] and Miss Lillie Anderson, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Anderson, were united in marriage by the Rev. E. W. [illegible]

A course dinner was served on the lawn, which was lighted with Japanese lanterns.

Mr. and Mrs. Horn left on an evening train. They will return soon and make their future home in Thorsby.

MENTAL STATUS OF PROGRESSIVE PARTY

With the indirect suggestion that Colonel Roosevelt is the progressive party, dominating its moves, purposes and ideas, The Philadelphia Public Ledger says:

"The sarcastic Mr. Mann said in the House that the progressives 'do not know what their sentiments are until the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. Murdock) goes over to New York and asks Colonel Roosevelt what the gentlemen from Kansas thinks.' Of course, the progressives are abundantly capable of thinking, and probably they rather enjoy the exercise. But if they indulged themselves at all they might think something different from what Mr. Roosevelt was thinking at the moment, and this would involve a heart-breaking collision."

The impression almost universally held ever since the launching of the progressive party and up to the present time is that Colonel Roosevelt is IT. The party grew out of a grouch keenly entertained by him because he failed to get the presidental nomination at Chicago. That he was shamefully and shamelessly flim-flammed according to the latest, and most improved methods of political jugglery is widely admitted; but that does not alter the fact that organization as such was founded on the grievance of one man who has since been suspected of entertaining a distinctly get-even motive.

Not only have we seen no real evidences that the progressive party acts or thinks without consultation with and approval of the Colonel, but we have never yet seen any clear-cut, definite idea of what the progressive party even believes on matters of public policy over and beyond that represented by the old familiar slogan, "Turn the rascals out!"

It seems that a large percentage of the so-called progressives entertain varied degrees of the new doctrine, according to what the Colonel sets forth as the principles to be adopted and pursued. Then there are lots of progressive adherents who apparently have no definite views of governmental needs and policies over and beyond the possibilities of the pie counter. Some few so-called progressives have expressed themselves in favor of changes toward more aggressive methods of filling public offices, but others unconsciously betray the idea that the main purpose of the new party and principles is to have the privilege of getting their feet in the patronage trough during feed time.

Not even have we seen any well [illegible] governmental [illegible] not [illegible] by the founder [illegible] of the [illegible] party [illegible] and [illegible] claim that the [illegible]

CLANTON GETS THE COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL

For the past several days there has been a strong and friendly rivalry between Clanton and Jemison as to which would secure the location for the County High School, but on last Thursday the High School Commission decided in favor of Clanton. We think the decision is just and fair to the entire citizenship of the county. Any public institution should be so located as to serve the best interests of the greatest number, and this principle alone governed the Commission in deciding upon Clanton. Besides being centrally located, Clanton has the following advantages over any other place:

It has the most extensive telephone system, the greatest number of rural routes, the focus of most of the county's roads, the most convenient railroad schedule, and b having the court house, with all the county's records, the interest of the entire county is centered here. Moreover, the buildings can be equipped with lights, water and sewerage.

These facts put Clanton in close touch with, and easily accessible to the people. Should a pupil become ill, the fact could be made known to the parent over the telephone or rural route; should the illness become aggravated to where a visit from the parent becomes necessary, then Clanton's proximity to all parts of the county, her many good roads, and her convenient railroad schedules, argued for her.

Now that the location has been made, the plans completed, and the money subscribed, let everyone put his shoulder to the wheel and have everything ready for the opening of the school by January 1st. All who have taken a part in the erection of this school should feel a patriotic pride in his efforts. As Superintendent Feagin said while here the other day, "The schools get three thousand dollars a year for maintenance, and this sum will never be any less," so it ill becomes any man to withhold his hearty indorsement to everything that has been done for the school.

The Commission selected the Gowan site on the east side of town for the locution of the school.

A meeting was held at the court house Monday night, at which time a Building Committee was selected, composed of the following named gentlemen: Judge E. B. Deason, Chairman; Prof. J. J. Pickens, Secretary; W. H. Sartor, Treasurer; E. M. Pinckard and W. L. Popwell. The duties of this committee are to select the architect and have general supervision of the erection of the building.

At the meeting held Monday night the Finance Committee was instructed to begin at once the collection of the subscriptions, as the funds must be on deposit in the local banks not later than June 30, 1914.

EUBANKS-FRASER

A little surprise wedding took place at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Robert Aldridge, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, June 14th, 1914, when Mr. John Herman Eubanks and Miss Ella Nora Fraser were happily united in holy bonds of matrimony. Mr. Eubanks is the son of Mrs. John M. Robinson of Clanton, and is quite a promising young man. His friends are numbered by those who know him. Miss Fraser is the daughter of Rev. THE [illegible] CLARION

SYNOPSIS.

John Valiant, a rich society favorite, suddenly discovers that the Valiant corporation, which his father founded and which was the principal source of his wealth, had failed. He voluntarily turns over his private fortune to the receiver for the corporation. His entire remaining possessions consist of an old motor car, a white bull dog and Damory court, a neglected estate in Virginia. On the way to Damory court he meets Shirley Dandridge, an auburn-haired beauty, and decides that he is going to like Virginia immensely. Shirley's mother, Mrs. Dandridge, and Major Bristow exchange reminiscences during which it is revealed that the major, Valiant's father, and a man named Sassoon were rivals for the hand of Mrs. Dandridge in her youth. Sassoon and Valiant fought a duel on her account in which the former was killed. Valiant finds Damory court overgrown with weeds and creepers and decides to rehabilitate the place. Valiant saves Shirley from the bite of a snake, which bites him. Knowing the deadliness of the bite, Shirley sucks the poison from the wound and saves his life. Valiant learns for the first time that his father left Virginia on account of a duel in which Doctor Southall and Major Bristow acted as his father's seconds. Valiant and Shirley become good friends. Mrs. Dandridge faints when she meets Valiant for the first time. Valiant discovers that he has a fortune in old walnut trees. The yearly tournament, a survival of the jousting of feudal times, is held at Damory court. At the last moment Valiant takes the place of one of the knights, who is sick, and enters the lists. He wins and chooses Shirley Dandridge as queen of beauty to the dismay of Katherine Fargo, a former sweetheart, who is visiting in Virginia. The tournament ball at Damory court draws the elite of the countryside. Shirley is crowned by Valiant as queen of love and beauty. Valiant tells Shirley of his love and they become engaged. Katherine Fargo, determining not to give up Valiant without a struggle, points out to Shirley how terrible it would be for the woman who caused the duel to meet Valiant, who looks so much like his father. Shirley, uncertain, but feeling that her mother was in love with the victim of Valiant's pistol, breaks the engagement. Greef King, a liberated convict whom Major Bristow had sent to prison, makes threats against his prosecutor. Valiant pleads with Shirley, but fails to persuade her to change her decision. Major Bristow is fatally wounded by Greef King, but before dying he confesses to Mrs. Dandridge that he had kept a letter Valiant had written to her after the duel.

In the little haircloth trunk back in her room lay an old scrap-book. It held a few leaves torn from letters and many newspaper clippings. From these she had known of his work, his marriage, the great commercial success for which his name had stood—the name that from the day of his going, she had so seldom taken upon her lips. Some of them had dealt with his habits and idiosynerasies, hints of an altered personality, and a softness or loneliness that had set him apart and made him, in a way, a stranger to those who should have known him best. Thus her mind had come to hold a double image: The grave man these shadowed forth, and the man she had loved, whose youthful face was in the locket she wore always on her breast. It was this face that was printed on her heart, and when John Valiant had stood before her on the porch at Rosewood, it had seemed to have risen, instinct, from that old grave.

He had not kept silence! He had written! It pealed through her brain like a muffled bell. But Beauty Valiant was gone with her youth; in the room near by lay that old companion who would never speak to her again, the lifelong friend—who had really failed her thirty years ago! . . . and in a tin box a mile away lay a letter. . . .

"He won't rouse again," the doctor had said, but a little later, as he and Valiant sat beside the couch, the major opened his eyes suddenly.

"Shirley," he whispered. "Where's Shirley?"

She was sitting on the porch just outside the open window, and when she entered, tears were on her face. The doctor drew back silently; but when Valiant would have done so, the major called him nearer.

"No," he panted; "I like to see you two together." His voice was very weak and tired.

As she leaned and touched his hand, he smiled whimsically. "It's curious," he said, "but I can't get it out of my head that Mr. Rogers Valiant and Judith that I [illegible] color. The deep lines about his mouth smoothed miraculously out.

"Judith," he whispered, "—you—sure you told me the truth a while ago, when you said—you said—"

"Yes, yes," Shirley answered, putting her young arm under him, thinking only to soothe the anxiety that seemed vaguely to thread some vague hallucination.

He smiled again. "It makes it easier," he said. He looked at Valiant, his mind seeming to slip farther and farther away. "Beauty," he gasped, "you didn't go away after all, did you! I dreamed it—I reckon. It'll be—all right with you both."

He sighed peacefully, and his eyes turned to Shirley's and closed. "I'm—so glad," he muttered, "so glad I—didn't really do it, Judith. It would have—been the—only—low-down thing—I—ever did."

The doctor went swiftly to the door and beckoned to Jereboam. "Come in now, Jerry," he said in a low voice, "quickly."

The old negro fell on his knees by the couch. "Mars' Monty!" he cried. "Is you' gwine away en leabe ol' Jerry? Is yo'? Mars'!"

The cracked but loving voice struck across the void of the failing sense. For a last time the major opened his misting eyes.

"Jerry, you—black scoundrel!" he whispered, and Shirley felt his head grow heavier on her arm, "I reckon it's—about time—to me going—home!"

CHAPTER XXXII.

Renunciation.

The grim posse that gathered in haste that afternoon did not ride far. Its work had been singularly well done. It brought back to Damory court, however, a white bulldog whose broken leg made his would-be joyful bark trail into a sad whimper as his owner took him into welcoming arms.

Next day the major was carried to his final rest in the myrtled shadow of St. Andrew's. At the service the old church was crowded to its doors. Valiant occupied a humble place at one side—the others, he knew, were older friends than he. The light of the late afternoon came dimly in through the stained-glass windows and seemed to clothe with subtle colors the voice of the rector as he read the solemn service. The responses came brokenly, and their were tears on many faces.

Valiant could see the side-face of the doctor, its saturnine grimness strangely moved, and beyond him, Shirley and her mother. Many glanced at them, for the major's will had been opened that morning and few there had been surprised to learn that, save for a life-annuity for old Jereboam, he had left everything he possessed to Shirley. Miss Mattie Sue was beside them, and between, wan with weeping, sat Rickey Snyder. Shirley's arm lay shelteringly about the small shoulders as if it would stay the passion of grief that from time to time shook them.

The evening before had been further darkened by the child's disappearance and Miss Mattie Sue had sat through half the night in tearful anxiety. It was Valiant who had solved the riddle. In her first wild compunction, Rickey had gasped out the story of her meeting with Greef King, his threat and her own terrorized silence, and when he heard of this he had guessed her whereabouts. He had found her at the Dome, in the deserted cabin from which on a snowy night six years ago, Shirley had rescued her. She had fled there in her shabbiest dress, her toys and trinkets left behind, taking with her only a string of blue glass beads that had been Shirley's last Christmas present.

"Let me stay!" she had wailed. "I'm not fit to live down there! It's all my fault that it happened. I was a coward. I ought to stay here in Hell's-Half-Acre forever and ever!" Valiant had carried her back in his arms down the mountain—she had been too spent to walk.

He thought of this now as he saw that arm about the child in that protective, almost motherly gesture. It made his own heartache more unbearable. Such a little time ago he had felt that arm about him!

He leaned his hot head against the cool plastered wall, trying to keep his mind on the solemn reading. But Shirley's voice and laugh seemed to be running eerily through the chanting lines, and her face shut out pulpit and lectern. It swept over him suddenly that each succeeding hour spelled but make the situation more impossible for them both. He had come [illegible] she entered the church, and thought her even paler than in the dress, the blueish shadows deeper under her eyes. Those delicate charms were an eclipse.

And it was in this way [illegible]

It came to him with a pang of [illegible]

life, to a future empty of her? How could he do that? When he had parted from her in the rain he had felt a frenzy of obstinacy. It had seemed so clear that the barrier must in the end yield before their love. He had never thought of surrender. Now he told himself that flight was all that was left him. She—her happiness—nothing else mattered. Damory court and its future—the plans he had made—the Valiant name—in that clarifying instant he knew that all these, from that May day on the Red road, had clung about her. She had been the inspiration of all.

"Lead, kindly Light, amid the encircling gloom—"

The voices of the unvested choir rose clearly and some one at his side was whispering that this had been the major's favorite hymn. But he scarcely heard.

When the service was ended the people filled the big yard while the last reverent words were spoken at the grave. Valiant, standing with the rest, saw Shirley, with her mother and the doctor, pass out of the gate. She was not looking toward him. A mist was before his eyes as they drove away, and the vision of her remained wavering and indistinct—a pale blurred face under shining hair.

He realized after a time that the yard was empty and the sexton was locking the church door. He went slowly to the gate, and just outside some one spoke to him. It was Chisholm Lusk. They had not met since the night of the ball. Even in his own preoccupation, Valiant noted that Lusk's face seemed to have lost its exuberant youthfulness. It was worn as if with sleeplessness, and had a look of suffering that touched him. And all at once, while they stood looking at each other, Valiant knew what the other had waited to say.

"I won't beat about the bush," said Lusk, stammering. "I've got to ask you something. I reckon you've guessed that I—that Shirley—"

Valiant touched the young fellow's arm. "Yes," he said, "I think I know."

"It's no new thing, with me," said the other hoarsely. "It's been three years. The night of the ball, I thought perhaps that—I don't mean to ask what you might have a right to resent—but I must find out. Is there any reason why I shouldn't try my luck?"

Valiant shook his head. "No," he said heavily, "there is no reason."

The boyish look sprang back to Lusk's face. He drew a long breath. "Why, then I will," he said. "I—I'm sorry if I hurt you. Heaven knows I didn't want to!"

He grasped the other's hand with a man's heartiness and went up the road with a swinging stride; and Valiant stood watching him go, with his hands tight-clenched at his side.

AN APPEAL TO WOME

By One Who, From Her Past Experience, is Capable of Giving Sound Advice.

Bud, Ky.—"I want to urge all wo women," says Mrs. Lizzie B. Barber of this place, "to give Cardui, the woman's tonic, a fair trial, for I believe it will do for them what it has done for me.

I was a sufferer for 12 years, with such pains I could scarcely walk or stand on my feet. I had headache, dizziness and fainting spells.

After many treatments failed to help me, my husband persuaded me to give Cardui, the woman's tonic, a trial, and I did so. Now I feel like a new woman. I am well of all those troubles, and can do all my housework, with pleasure.

When I commenced taking Cardui, I was not able to sit up. Now I am enjoying good health and do all of my work.

I shall keep Cardui in my home all the time. There is not any medicine that equals it for women."

We, also, urge you to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, for your trouble. It has helped so many thousands of women in the past half century that we feel sure it will help you, too.

Prepared from perfectly harmless, vegetable ingredients, Cardui is the remedy for you to use. It can do you nothing but good.

Why Not Armor for Every Bullet?

An ingenious New York doctor has invented a bichloride of mercury tablet in which the antidote is combined with the poison, so that a person may swallow corrosive sublimate, intentionally or accidentally, with immunity. It's a capital idea, and ought to be applied to poisons generally, and possibly Maxim might find some way of applying the principle to firearms. An automatic, self-resisting bullet, or something of that sort, would be of much greater utility than his silencer.

EYE STRAIN

Relieved by Quitting Coffee.

Many cases of defective vision are caused by the habitual use of coffee.

It is said that in Arabia where coffee is used in large quantities, many lose their eyesight at about fifty. Tea contains the same drug, caffeine, as coffee.

A N. J. woman writes to the Postum concerning eye trouble and coffee. She says:

"My son was for years troubled with his eyes. He tried several kinds of glasses without relief. The optician said there was a defect in his eye which was hard to reach.

"He used to drink coffee, as we all did, and finally quit it and began to use Postum. That was three years ago and he has not had to wear glasses and has had no trouble with his eyes since.

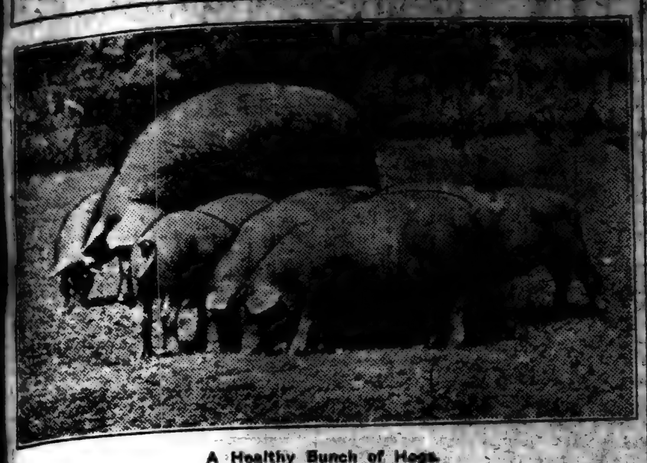
"I was always fond of tea and coffee and finally became so nervous I could hardly sit still long enough to eat a meal. My heart was in such a condition I thought I might die at any time.

"Medicine did not give me relief and I was almost desperate when about this time we decided to quit coffee and use Postum, and have used it ever since. I am in perfect health. No trouble now with my heart and never felt better in my life.

"Postum has been a great blessing to us all, particularly to my wife and myself."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum now comes in two forms:



Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c per package.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c per tin.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

EXTENSIVE EPIDEMIC OF HOG CHOLERA

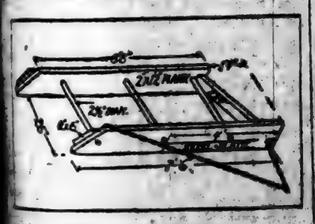
A Healthy Bunch of Hogs.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The country is passing through the third serious epidemic of hog cholera of the past 30 years, according to the department of agriculture. The first period reached its climax in 1886 to 1887, when the loss amounted to about 134 per 1,000 head in one year. The second outbreak developed in 1894, and reached its climax in 1896 to 1897, when losses amounted to 144 per 1,000 head. The present extensive epidemic of hog cholera began to be serious in 1911; during the ten prior years the loss of swine ranged from 45 to 58 per 1,000 per year; in 1911 it jumped to 89, then to 110 in 1918, and to 119 last year, about 90 per cent of which may be attributed to cholera. It has thoroughly ravaged the heart of the hog-producing belt during the year just past. In the state of Iowa alone, losses amounted to nearly 1,800,000 swine, over a fourth of the entire number in the state. In many counties over half were lost, and in some townships over nine-tenths.

The losses of swine from disease are estimated by the department at 219 to every 1,000 hogs in the country, which exceeds last year's heavy loss of 110 per 1,000, and the average yearly loss in the preceding ten years of 54.9 per 1,000. Probably more than 90 per cent of the loss was from cholera. The percentage of loss applied to the estimated number of hogs on January 1 indicates a total loss of 7,095,000 head, which, at $10.40, the value per head on January 1, indicates a loss of $73,000,000. The average weight of a hog on the farm is about 150 pounds, therefore more than one billion pounds of hog meat were destroyed by disease, mostly cholera.

A billion pounds live weight produce nearly 800,000,000 pounds of dressed meat and lard. This amount would be sufficient to furnish every family of the United States (average four and a half persons) about 40 pounds. If there had been no such loss, probably increasing scarcity of meat would have been largely prevented.



The losses of swine from disease are usually heaviest in southern states and lightest in northern states. Estimates of losses have been kept for 30 years. The states showing the heaviest average yearly loss in these 30 years are, in their order, Arkansas, 119 per 1,000; Louisiana, 110; Florida, 109; the states showing the lightest losses are Maine, 19; Wyoming, 19; New Hampshire, 22. In Georgia the average is 94, in Alabama and Mississippi, each 92; in Texas, 66; whereas, in New York the average is 26, in Michigan, 34; in Minnesota, 46; in North Dakota, 31, and in Washington and Oregon, 26.

The epidemic has abated somewhat in the past year, as compared with the preceding year, in most southern states, but has increased greatly in the northern states. Thus, in Florida the loss has decreased from 170 per 1,000 in 1912 to 150 in 1913; in Georgia, from 165 to 90; in Alabama, from 110 to 100; in Mississippi, from 154 to 104; in Kentucky, from 95 to 90; in Missouri, from 175 to 90; whereas in Iowa the loss has increased from 160 per 1,000 in 1912 to 255 per 1,000 in 1913; in Minnesota, from 55 to 214; in Nebraska, from 110 to 175; in South Dakota, from 38 to 230, and in North Dakota, from 20 to 75. The tendency of the three epidemics appears to have been, in a general way, to move as a wave from South and East to North and West.

CONSTRUCTION OF ROAD DRAG

Detailed Instructions and Illustration Given for Making Implement to Improve Highways.

Select a good yellow pine, ash, or oak plank 2 inches thick, 12 inches wide, and 14 feet long. Cut this in two at an angle so that one edge of each piece is 7 feet and 6 inches long and the other edge is 6 feet and 6 inches long. Spike to the back and along the center of each of these planks a 2 by 6-inch piece, which reinforces the plank. Bore the holes for the cross stakes about 26 inches apart and 4 inches from each end with a Plan of Road Drag.

1½-inch auger, using care to keep the auger perpendicular to the plank. The 2 by 4-inch brace at the front end should start from the middle of the rear plank and drop to the bottom part of the front plank. The blade, which is generally made of stock cutting steel, should be given the proper cutting slope by placing a wedge-shaped strip between it and the plank. The end of the chain is fastened to a cross stake and the other passes through a hole in the plank and is held in position by a pin.

EYESORE ON ORCHARD TREES

Webs Filled With Caterpillars Should Be Cut Out and Burned With Kerosene.

(By E. VAN BENTHUYSEN.)

There is no greater eyesore in country surroundings than the silken webs filled with dark-colored, white-haired caterpillars which abound on the trees of orchard and lawn.

These should not be confounded with the tent caterpillar, which abounds in early summer. They are the larvae of a moth which flies at night, and varies in color from pure white to white thickly studded with brown spots.

The moths emerge in May or June from pupae which have passed the winter under loose soil and rubbish at the foot of the tree.

The eggs are placed in clusters near the tips of the branches. On hatching the process of web-building and eating begins, and soon a large silken web is formed.

Cut the nests and burn with kerosene, or spray with arsenate of lead, sufficient force to penetrate the

OBSTIPATION IN THE HORSE

Many Thousands of Dollars Lost to Farmers From Cause That Might Be Easily Prevented.

(By GEORGE H. GLOVER, Colorado Agricultural College.)

Judging by the number of cases of fatal obstruction to the bowels in horses that come to the notice of the veterinarians of the Colorado Agricultural college, there must be many thousands of dollars lost to farmers every year from this cause. And this is a condition that might easily be prevented.

In the winter time the roughage is dry and succulence must be provided. A horse with good teeth and fed alfalfa, timothy, bluestem, or other well-cured hays, combined with grain and plenty of water, will seldom be affected with impacted intestines; but a ration of straw, or bleached alkalfa stems picked up in the fields, combined with a low vitality, cold, poor teeth, and only snow or otherwise a limited amount of water, will furnish conditions which make fatal obstruction of the bowels possible.

The poorer the feed the more an animal must eat, and a ration of straw or poor quality of hay, does not furnish sufficient nutriment to make it possible for a horse to eat enough to support life. He eats inordinate quantities of this highly indigestible food which produces distention, atony and finally paralysis of the bowels.

Most of these cases cannot be treated successfully but prevention is easy. After all, it does not pay to keep animals unless one knows how and is willing to care for them from the day they are born.

SPRAY TO PREVENT DISEASE

Rot of Tomatoes May Be Avoided If Bordeaux Is Used—Disorder Encouraged by Weather.

This disease often attacks plants that are not sprayed. It is first noticeable as small, black or brown spots on the leaves and stems of the plants, occurring first on the lower and older leaves; but with favorable weather it spreads rapidly till the plant is defoliated, and the spots on the stems have coalesced into irregular blackish patches.

If a piece of fruit with these spots be examined under a high-power microscope, innumerable small, angular-shaped bodies may be seen.

HOW WOMEN AVOID OPERATIONS

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"My left side pained me so for several years that I expected to have to undergo an operation, but the first bottle I took of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of the pains in my side and I continued its use until I became regular and free from pains. I had asked several doctors if there was anything I could take to help me and they said there was nothing that they knew of. I am thankful for such a good medicine and will always give it the highest praise."—Mrs. C. H. GRIFFITH, 7306 Madison Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

Hanover, Pa.—"I suffered from female trouble and the pains were so bad at times that I could not sit down. The doctor advised a severe operation but my husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I experienced great relief in a short time. Now I feel like a new person and can do a hard day's work and not mind it. What joy and happiness it is to be well once more. I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Compound."—Mrs. ADA WILT, 196 Stock St., Hanover, Pa.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

BAD TETTER ON HANDS

R. F. D. No. 1, Crits, Va.—"I had tetter on my hands so badly that I could hardly do anything. It would begin to come in clear white blisters, then they would burst and peel off all over and crack and bleed. My hands were so sore and itched so badly I could not rest day or night. I could not put them in water nor do my regular work.

"I tried medicine and several different kinds of cream on them but they got worse instead of better. Nothing did me any good until I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. And now my hands are perfectly well and all right." (Signed) Miss Ellen Tudor, Nov. 19, 1913.

SCORED ONE ON HIS RIVAL

Brown Had Overlooked Leap Year and Jones Was Quick to Mark the Point.

Irving Fletcher, the well-known advertising expert, said at an advertising men's dinner at Delmonico's in New York:

"A good advertisement never lies. It never deceives. For it can only pay by making life patrons, not transient ones.

"A good advertisement never lies, but it states its case as strongly as possible, and it avails itself of every point, however slight. There it is like young Jones.

"Young Jones proposed at Lakewood to a pretty girl, but she said uncertainly, swinging her slim foot in and out of her slashed skirt:

"'I like you, Mr. Jones. But, then, I like Mr. Brown, too. And Mr. Brown is so devoted. He says he thinks of me 365 days in the year.'

"'Huh!' snorted young Jones, contemptuously. 'He wants a day off every four years, does he? Well, I hope you're not taken in by any such one-horse devotion as that.'"

IT MAKES SICK SKINS WELL

No matter how long you have been tortured and disfigured by itching, burning, raw or scaly skin humors, just put a little of that soothing, antiseptic resinol ointment on the sores and the suffering stops right there! Healing begins that very minute, and in almost every case your skin gets well so quickly you feel ashamed of the money you threw away on tedious, useless treatments.

Resinol ointment and resinol soap clear away pimples, blackheads, and dandruff; great for sunburn and insect bites. Sold by all druggists.—Adv.

Skimpy.

A contribution to the American Magazine tells the following story:

"A clerk in one of the great jewelry stores on Fifth avenue in New York city exhibited to a rich and weary customer a lady's handbag, five inches square, made of platinum and fairly well covered on one side only with diamonds. The price was $9,000. The fact that one side only was covered with diamonds troubled the customer. Turning the handbag around and around, and looking at it from all sides over and over, he finally said, 'Very pretty—really. But I don't like one side without diamonds. Honestly, the thing looks skimpy—rather skimpy.' At an additional expense of $7,000 this difficulty was removed."

A Real Need.

A Frenchman named Delamoy has invented an apparatus whereby you can wind your clock by opening and shutting a door, the winding machine doing its work by the action of the door.

What is really needed, however, is an invention that, attached to a door, will get rid of people inside of the room. No known method has yet been invented to accomplish this purpose. Yet is there anything which would promote greater efficiency and comfort and give more lasting satisfaction?—Life.

Parson Had to Protest.

Towards the end of a long life old Mr. Barleycorn, a well-known brewer in a quiet old town, joined the church, so with a view to their eternal welfare he made it a custom for his workmen and draymen to turn up on Sunday morning at the brewery, all dressed in their best smocks and top hats, when he would march along with them to church. This had been going on for some time, when one day the parson met him, and, after stopping to chat, mentioned at parting, "Oh, by the way, Mr. B., I do wish you would cease bringing your men to my church; they snore so that I can't hear myself preach."

The Source of Uric Acid

Eating too much is a common habit that does a lot of harm. Meat, especially, forms uric acid and the constant filtering of acid-laden blood weakens the kidneys. Uric acid causes rheumatic and nervous trouble, weakens the eyes, forms gravel and leads to dropsy and Bright's disease. Kidney weakness gives early warnings, however, such as backache and urinary disorders and can be stopped by prompt treatment.

Use Doan's Kidney Pills, the best recommended and most widely used kidney remedy.

An Alabama Case

"In 1911, I had kidney and rheumatic trouble," says Mrs. W. D. Gossett, of 317 S. Jackson St., Mobile, Ala. "The pains in my back, hips and limbs kept getting worse until I was confined to my room for a month at a time. I was as helpless as a child. My limbs drew up so that I couldn't get them down again. My joints were so stiff I couldn't move them. Soon after I used Doan's Kidney Pills, I picked up and before long, they cured me."

Several of our old subscribers, as well as new ones, have taken advantage of the remarkable clubbing offer we are making, whereby you get the Press, Holland's Magazine and Farm & Ranch, all three from now till January 1st, for the small price of Seventy-five Cents. This offer has never been equaled by any other weekly newspaper in Alabama, and only lasts a short while longer. Get busy!

While there is so much said about the City Beautiful idea and clean-up crusades in different towns, wouldn't it be well for our citizens to begin this clean-up movement in Clanton? Old tin cans and weeds around your premises are fine breeding places for flies and mosquitoes, and in a good many cases are the direct causes of fever. Let's keep our premises in good condition and thus aid in preventing the spread of this dreaded disease.

Behold the fisherman at this season of the year. He riseth up easly and disturbeth the entire family; mighty are his preprations. He goeth forth with great hope and much "bait", but when the day is far spent he returneth, smelling of strong drink and the truth is not in him. Yea, verily, he knoweth not the meaning of the word as he telleth of the big fish he caught, but it, "got away". —Prattville Progress.

The State High School Commission has given the Jefferson County High School to Tarrant City and Boyles, two prosperous and adjoining towns. The citizens of that community propose to erect a building costing not less than $50,000, and will ask the Board of Revenue to appropriate $15,000 of this amount. These people realize fully what a county high school means—it is not merely an institution which will affect those only who live within a three or four-mile radius of where it is located, but it is a COUNTY institution, and proves a great blessing to every poor boy and girl who are seeking the great advantages it offers. The county high school is to the county what the University, Auburn or any other State school is to Alabama. Hence the citizens of Tarrant and Boyles consider it nothing but fair and proper that the tax-payers of the county should help bear the burden of erecting the building, and it is believed the board will act promptly in appropriating the $15,000 asked for.

The man who cannot see the benefits arising from a local newspaper is about as much value to a town as a delinquent tax list.—Selected.

BAPTIST ENCAMPMENT AT PELHAM

Early Monday morning the Alabama preachers, ladies of the Woman's Missionary society, college boys and visitors up here on the mountain were ready to begin the second week of the work for them to do in connection with the three week's session of the Baptist encampment.

Dr. Sampey, Dr. Carver and Dr. Hendricks were all back from their Sunddy engagements in Birmingham and Montgomery, and participated in the early service. They were fresh and rested after the arduous lectures delivered the past week here on the mountain top, and each of the teachers were welcomed back by the teachers in a glad-to-see-you manuer.

Work—real work—reading hard passages and then minutely explaining the meaning as the lecturer understood to be the proper interpretation, was commenced by Dr. Sampey at nine o'clock. The doctor's lectures are principally on the old testament, dealing with the modes and procedure of worship when real Christianity was struggling for recognition.

The preachers are certainly being made familiar with some matters that in the past has, to a certain extent, caused them hours of study.

A young Baptist minister told a joke on himself at Pelham to a number of porch resters. He said in substance: "When growing up, and at the age of seventeen, I begged my old mother to educate me for the ministry. After much persuation on my part, the old lady consented. So I 'took the course,' got my license and 'hit the road' for home.

"Being a licensed preacher, but never having preached, I got the home pastor to let me 'try my voice' in his pulpit. The old pastor consented, and after his regular sermon the next Sunday the feeble old man announced that the Rev. Heinrie Thomas would occupy his pulpit on next Sunday morning. Well, they came from far and near, even some who had not heard a sermon for years came in out of the woods to hear me.

"The hour for the event arrived. The church was jammed; the choir sang, I read a chapter and selected my text, 'Why should 'ye have idol,' and did this before the congregation resumed their seats. I commenced, tore through the air with my highly pitched voice, pointed—in gestures—with my arms and hands, in each direction, north, south, east and west, as fast as in my judgment, was best. I glanced over to where my poor old mother was in tears; this put new life into me, so after reaching home I said, mother, what was there in my sermon that moved you to tears? 'Why, my son, I was only thinking that if I had another son and he wanted to study for the ministry and thought that he would preach no better than you have, I would take him down to the pond and drown him.'"

To Young Men

Next to health, youth is the most wonderful possession of men and women. Men of millions would cheerfully write their checks for their entire fortune and give a due bill to boot, to once again be the "bare-foot boy with cheek of tan."

Ponce de Leon braved the ravages of disease, the terrors of unexplored jungles, the danger of starvation, in his search for the fountain of eternal youth.

Millionaires are endowing colleges, scientists are devoting days and nights to research, to preserve health and youth.

There does not live a man of mature years who is without regret for one or more lost opportunities; who does not say to himself, "If I could only go back!"

Youth is slipping away, day by day. The preparatory period is growing shorter. The physical and mental youth is settling into the weak, ineffectual man; or, the mediocre, ordinary man; or the aggressive, creative man.

WHICH ARE YOU?

You are going to be the man that you are the youth, only more so. Your weakness, your negative qualities, your strength will be accentuated in mature years. "As the twig is bent," etc.

The L. & N. writes of these things because the times demand thoughtful men, clean men, creative men, reliable men.

The L. & N. operates in thirteen productive Southern States. The present welfare of the system which, comparatively, is insignificant, depends on the clean, thoughtful, reliable, creative men of the present.

But we are looking to and writing of the great, the mysterious future.

We urge on the youth of the nation the necessity for clean living, right thinking, activity in well doing, that they may be prepared to successfully meet the problems of their day.

The L. & N. has suffered, just as many other [illegible] have suffered, at the hands of thoughtless [illegible], selfish men, prejudiced men. A greater addition [illegible] have been made to the sum of human happiness [illegible] spirit of cheerful good-will and appreciation [illegible]

Children's Day exercises will be held at the Methodist church on the fourth Sunday night in this month. An interesting program has been arranged, and all those who attend are assured of a pleasant evening.

Senator Thomas A. Curry and daughter, Miss Roberta returned Sunday from a two week's trip to New York, Washington, Richmond and other points in the East. The Senator reports a delightful journey. The trip from Norfolk to New York was made aboard the palatial ship Princess Anne, of the Old Dominion Line. While enroute to New York heavy seas were encountered and the Senator, in relating his experience during a "squall" says he couldn't help thinking how much more pleasant a cruise on the placid Coosa would be.

TWO FAST GAMES

In two beautiful games on the local grounds last Friday, Clanton and Robinson Springs divided a double-header, the first game resulting in a victory for Clanton by a score of 3 to 1; the visitors took the second 6 to 4. Both games were fast and snappy and were replete with brilliant ahd sensational plays on both sides.

In the first game Will Wilson went into the box for the home team, his opponent being Henry Zeigler. Zeigler, however, was no match for Wilson, for with his bewildering speed and quick breaking curve he held the hard-hitting visitors completely in the hollow of his hand, and but for an error would have scored a shut out. He struck out 14 men.

In the second game Albert Pyron pitched the entire game for Clanton, the visitors using three twirlers. The game was marked by heavy hitting, and good fielding, the features being a long drive to deep centre by Terry, which had all the ear-marks of a home run. Heard, by a wonderful throw, caught the runner at the plate, retiring the side. Another feature was the catch of a high fowl down the third base line by Terry, after a hard sprint.

BURGLARS ENTER POTTS' STORE

The store of J. M. Potts Grocery Co. was burglarized some time during Friday night last. The burglars gained an entrance by breaking through a window in the rear of the building. Mr. Potts is unable to ascertain the amount of the loot the miscreants carried off but three or four sacks of flour and a quantity of canned goods were missing. This is the second time within the last few weeks this store has been broken into. The guilty parties have not yet been apprehended.

PLEASED HIS ENGLISH HOSTS

Well-Known French Writer Made Distinct Hit at Dinner Given In His Honor at London.

M. Anatole France was recently entertained at a dinner in London given by a member of distinguished English writers, with Lord Redesdale in the chair.

Nor were ladies absent, for among the company were Mme. Sarah Grand, Mrs. Humphry Ward, Countess Arnim, Miss Marie Corelli, and the Ranee of Sarawak. Lord Redesdale defined the novel as the champagne of prose literature, and M. Anatole France, with the keen perception of the Parisian, explained in a phrase the spirit of the novel and the secret of its popularity: "The novel is in its nature intimate, cordial and homely, and the English mind is homely, intimate and cordial."

Another happy and witty touch was his reference to himself as a Frenchman "weak enough to write," a philosopher and poet having declared that "silence alone is great." With courtly compliments to "English genius," the guest of the evening charmed all his hearers and concluded his speech with the fine aspiration: "Our task is no longer to conquer the world, but to pacify it. Let us labor together for the peace of the world."

County Should Help Build the House.

Jefferson is to have a high school and it is to be located on a street car line, close to the city. The land company has made a splendid offer at Tarrant City and has given ten acres of land that is immensely valuable. There has long been an urgent need for a county high school.

The Board of Revenue will be asked to help build the house. It should respond as liberally as the funds of the county will permit. Really the committee asks but $15,000 and that is surely little enough for the county to pay for a permanent improvement and a public benefit.

Tax-payers often complain that they pay their tax money and see no benefit except schools and roads. Really the public buildings should be counted in, because they enhance and maintain the value of all real estate.

A handsome high school building at Tarrant City gives permanency to values near it and adds to the value of all real estate between its location and the court house. The Board of Revenue is doing nobly on public roads; let it be equally as earnest and progressive towards the schools. Roads and school houses are things the tax-payers can see and they approve them.—Birmingham Ledger.

Jumps on Rusty Sidewalk Nail.

While working on a well-digging machine a Minnesota man jumped upon a rusty sidewalk spike. The nail drove part of his black woolen sock far up into his foot. He removed as much of the sock as he could, put on Allen's Ulcerine Salve, and kept right on with his work. The salve drew out parts of the sock and all the poisons and in a week his foot was healed up.

This salve is one of the oldest remedies in America and since 1869 it has been known as the only salve powerful enough to cure chronic ulcers and old sores of long standing.

Allan's Ulcerine Salve acts by drawing out the poisons and healing the sore from the bottom up. It is so powerful that it heals new cuts and sores in one third the time that common salves and liniments take. And it heals burns and scalds without a scar. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co., and other leading druggists.

COTTON IMPROVES FOLLOWING RAINS

NEARLY EVERY SECTION OF THE STATE REPORTS RAINS DURING PAST WEEK

OFFSETS DROUTH OF MAY

Condition of Crop Generally Is About the Same as Reported a Week Ago.

Montgomery. — A general improvement in crop conditions, occasioned by showers over the State, was noted in Alabama during the week just passed. The reports show that good, seasonable rains fell in nearly every section and brought out the crop considerably, doing much to overcome the drouth that deteriorated the cotton crop during May.

Reports from unbroken drouths come from only a very few sections. In nearly all of these cases the principal damage by lack of rain was done the corn crop and vegetables and fruits, cotton being only slightly affected. Advantage has been taken of the dry spells by the farmers to hoe and chop their cotton and the fields are all reported clean. Deep and regular plowing has also done much toward coping with the dry conditions.

The condition of the crop generally is about the same as reported a week ago, it being in a healthy condition, above the average for the time of year, and thriving under local and general showers that have fallen. Good rains brought on a healthier condition during the week and many counties are reporting an exceptionally fine crop at present as a result. Baldwin, Chambers, Dallas and DeKalb counties had splendid rains during the week and other sections were also favored to a great extent.

Corn and truck fields are suffering for a lack of rai nin Barbour, Colbert, Cleburne and Dallas counties. Although rains have fallen in some of these counties during the week, the drought had already badly withered the corn and the plant has suffered much from dry conditions.

Quite a lot of diversification is reported and much fruit is being produced in the State along with other products that will feed the farmer despite the boll weevil.

Blossoms are reported seen in many of the fields now, but when compared in number with boll weevils they are far outnumbered by the little pest. Much worry over the weevil is reported in Baldwin and in Hale counties. In the latter county the correspondent reports weevils "by the millions." However, it is somewhat too early to estimate the extent of the damage to be done this year.

STATE'S DRUGGISTS MEET.

State Pharmaceutical Association Is Held at Anniston.

Anniston. — The State board of pharmaceutical examiners held their annual meeting in Anniston on June 15, at which time, several applicants for license appeared before the board. W. P. Thomason of Guntersville is chairma nof the board, the other members being E. P. Galt, Selma, secretary; W. E. Bingham, Tuscaloosa; W. E. Lewis, Tuskegee and Sam Williams of Troy. About thirty were examined.

The State convention of the Alabama Pharmaceutical Association, convened here for a two days' session on June 17, with about 200 delegates in attendance.

The public sessions were held in the circuit court room of the county court house. President S. L. Toomer of Selma called the delegates to order, and after prayer by Rev. J. L. Wikle, mayor of Anniston.

The program for the entertainment was unusually varied, including a barbecue at the lake, Anniston's playground; baseball in the afternoon, bowling, dancing and boating; a smoker for the gentlemen and a special program for the ladies at the New Noble theatre.

WEEVIL IN PICKENS COUNTY

Extreme Warm Weather of Past Few Weeks Favorable to Cotton.

Carrollton. — The extreme warm weather of the past few weeks has been favorable to the cotton plant, which is looking well and growing rapidly. The boll weevil has already made its appearance in several sections of the county, which is having its effect on the trade over this section.

COFFEY IS FOUND GUILTY.

Murderer of George Burgess Given 40 Years in the Penitentiary.

Gadsden. — Omer Coffey, who killed George Burgess, a prominent Attalla hardware dealer last November, was found guilty of murder in the second degree, and sentenced to serve 40 years in the penitentiary. This is the second time Coffey has been tried. At the first trial the jury failed to agree on a verdict.

LAUDS SMITH-LEVER BILL.

Duncan Says It Is the Greatest Measure Ever Passed by Congress.

Auburn. — "The greatest measure ever passed by Congress." This is what L. N. Duncan, head of the extension work at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, says of the Smith-Lever bill, which should eventually result in the expenditure of more than $300,000 a year by the State and Federal governments for agricultural extension work among the farmers of Alabama.

"The magnitude of the Smith-Lever bill and its importance to the farmers of this State is hard to estimate," says Professor Duncan. "I consider the bill the greatest piece of constructive legislation ever passed by Congress. It is a magnificent thing, a wonderful thing for the farmers of this state and of the South. The South and Alabama receives a large share of the funds appropriated for the agricultural extension work. Every county in the State should ultimately receive benefits accruing from its passage."

The Smith-Lever bill which recently passed both Houses, after two years of discussion and was ratified by the president, provides for co-operative agricultural extension work between the agricultural State colleges in the several States benefited by the act, and the United States department of agriculture. The purpose of the bill is to diffuse useful and practical information on subjects relating to agriculture and home economics among the farmers of the State, and to encourage the application of the same. Should the Alabama Legislature decide to lend its aid, the Alabama Polytechnic Institute will be the fountainhead for the diffusion of this knowledge.

The bill provides for the permanent appropriation from the funds of the United States treasury of the sum of $480,000 for each year, $10,000 of which shall by action of its Legislature assent to the provisions of the bill. The bill provides further for an additional appropriation of $600,000 for the fiscal year following that in which the first appropriation becomes available. For each year thereafter for seven years, the government appropriates a sum exceeding by $500,000 the sum appropriated for each preceding year, until the total appropriation reaches $4,100,000. This sum is in addition to the permanent and continuous appropriation of $480,000. At the end of the seven years the total appropriation stands at this figure.

However, there is one string attached to the appropriation. A provision in the bill requires, for the additional appropriation, the co-operation of the State Legislature. This provision of the act provides that no payments gradually increases from year to any State except the unconditional $10,000, until the State Legislature has appropriated an equal sum to that given by the Federal government.

Educational Commission Takes Up Vanderbilt Controversy.

Birmingham—The recently created educational commission of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, met here June 17 in answer to a call for the meeting sent out by Bishop Warren A. Candler.

The Vanderbilt University matter was one of the most important taken up. It was predicted that the commission would authhorize the turning back to the eight conferences originally deeding the University over to the general church.

Garden City, Ala., has organized a flourishing commercial club, with 75 members.

Contracts have been awarded by the City of Mobile, Ala., for the erection of three school buildings to cost a total of $104,975.

The past week witnessed the best of the college finish of the year 1914. With scarcely an exception all the institutions of higher learning in the state had larger enrollments than in any previous year.

SUGGESTED ROAD SYSTEM APPROVED

HIGHWAY ADVOCATES ENDORSE O'NEAL'S PLAN TO LIKE TRUNK HIGHWAYS.

STATE CAPITAL HAPPENINGS

Doings in and Around the State House Chronicled for Our Readers.

—Montgomery.

Governor O'Neal's statement at Clanton that he will suggest to the next Legislature that the funds now expended for State-wide road work be spent in construction of trunk highways, has met with a favorable reception among good roads officials. Under the plan of the governor, the State will spend the money that has been appropriated for State-aid roads for the construction of a system of trunk highways that will connect the leading cities of the State.

By the new system it is believed that within a few years the leading cities of the State will be connected by modern highways which will be constructed through the aid and co-operation of the State. The connecting roads and lateral roads will follow the construction of the trunk highways.

Last summer W. S. Keller, State highwsy engineer, made a tour of the State in an automobile for the purpose of mapping out a system for State trunk highways. This system will be presented to the next Legislature for approval. This summer Mr. Keller may make another trip over the State, going over roads different from those traversed last year.

Try J. G. Oakley in August.

James G. Oakley's next trial on a charge of embezzlement probably will be held at Columbiana next August, according to J. T. Leeper, of Columbiana, attorney for Oakley, who was in Montgomery.

"Mr. Oakley's case is set for the August term of the Shelby Circuit Court, but I do not know what action the solicitor will take in the matter.

"Mr. Oakley was indicted three times, but all the indictments covered practically the same charge. At his trial in Columbiana several months ago Mr. Oakley was acquitted and the remaining indictments cover practically the same charge as the one upon which he was tried," said Mr. Leeper.

It is probable that the attorneys for Oakley will plead "former jeopardy" at the next trial although Mr. Leeper declined to discuss his plans.

Cain Will Qualify July First.

McDuff Cain, recently appointed United States marshal for the Middle district of Alabama, has received his commission and will qualify for office about July 1, he announced at the Federal building.

The fiscal year of the government closes June 30 and Mr. Cain will leave the office in charge of the present marshal, Ben W. Walker, until the year's work has been wound up.

Mr. Cain was appointed several days ago, but would not announce when he would qualify for office until his commission arrived.

He will succeed Mr. Walker, a Republican, who has held the office several years.

After Delinquent Motorists.

Citations to automobile owners who have failed to pay their license taxes for the year 1914 have been issued by the State Motor Vehicle Department and the licenses are being rapidly paid, according to a statement of Thomas Bradford, chief clerk of the department.

During the last few days the owners have been paying up promptly in order to escape criminal prosecution. Those who fail to pay up within the next few days will be vigorously prosecuted. Governor O'Neal recently instructed the solicitors of the various judicial circuits to prosecute those who have failed to pay their license.

Combine to Fight Cotton Destroyer.

Farm demonstration agents of Alabama are concentrating their efforts toward fighting the boll weevil and a determined battle against the pest is being waged in Southwest Alabama, according to reports received at the office of Capt. R. F. Kolb, commissioner of agriculture.

Capt. J. C. Cheney, chief clerk of the department, has gone to Southwest Alabama to make a personal inspection of the damages resulting from the coming of the boll weevil.

Freight Rates Taken Up June 22.

Members of the State railroad commission went into executive session June 22 to take up the question of [illegible]

Throughout all of Lamar B. Farley, president of the New Farley National Bank of Montgomery, the state of Alabama has borrowed $1,000,000 at the lowest rate of interest ever paid for a temporary loan in the history of the state. This rate is 4¼ per cent and the loan was made with a single New York bank. By arranging the loan it is likely that there will be no extra session of the Alabama legislature.

Announcement of the arrangement of the loan was made by the governor after he had conferred with Mr. Farley. Both Mr. Farley and the governor issued statements in which they declared that the state has been enabled to borrow money at the lowest rate of interest ever paid for temporary loans in the history of the state.

All warrants involved in the transaction will be made payable through the New Farley bank of Montgomery. The loan was arranged by Mr. Farley who recently went to New York.

"I found in the East that Alabama's credit is good and that the state can get more than $1,000,000, if it needs it," said Mr. Farley. "I had no difficulty in consummating such an arrangement as was desired by the governor when I placed the matter before the bank in question."

"It gives me great pleasure," said the governor, "to assure those who seem skeptical as to the state's ability to meet its obligations that every obligation of the state will be met in the future as they have been promptly paid in the past."

Pardon Granted "Pick" Roden.

Governor O'Neal granted a full pardon to "Pick" Roden of Marshall county, who has been convicted several times on a charge of violating the prohibition law and who was recently paroled by the governor. Roden was serving a three-year sentence on a charge of attempting to bribe an official in a liquor law violation case.

When Roden appeared before the State Board of Pardons he presented a petition signed by more than 1,000 citizens of Marshall county. In this petition the request was made that Roden be granted a full pardon for the alleged offenses committed by him in the past.

According to those who signed the petition, Roden has been persecuted in many instances. The claim was made that Roden has already been punished sufficiently and that he should be given a full and complete pardon with a restoration of his civil rights.

Others who received executive clemencyency were Charles Riley, Mobile county; M. S. Sharp, Bullock county; Will Kirkwood, Winston county, and W. M. McCutcheon, Morgan county. Riley was serving three years on a charge of grand larceny. Sharp was serving two years on a bigamy charge; Kirkwood was serving four years on a manslaughter charge.

Spicer Verdict Found Erroneous.

Because a mass of irrelevant testimony was admitted at the trial, the supreme court granted a new trial to Sam Spicer, a prominent Covington county planter, who was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment last year for the murder of his wife. In reversing and remanding the judgment of the lower court, Associate Justice Mayfield delivered a voluminous opinion declaring the trial court allowed too much latitude to the state in proving every detail connected with Spicer's procuring of insurance on his wife's life and collecting same and in proving Spicer's relations with other women and in admitting many other details erroneously.

Technical Shortage of $1,406.

H. M. Craig, Superintendant of Education of Lawrence County, is short in his accounts to the extent of $1,406, according to a report filed with Governor O'Neal by Charles L. Townes, Examiner of Public Accounts. For the purpose of settling the matter Dave Almon, of Morgan County, called on the Governor, but no action was taken.

The superintendant is charged with paying his teachers for one year out of the money allotted for another year and such a payment is illegal.

Pension Examiners For Wilcox Named.

Dr. R. H. Kilpatrick and N. S. Jones, of Camden, were appointed as members of the Board of Pension Examiners of Wilcox county. The appointments were made by Governor O'Neal.

Moore Heads First District School.

J. L. Moore, former superintendent of schools at Cullman, was appointed president of the First District Agricultural school at Evergreen. He succeeds R. L. Reaves who was not an applicant for reappointment. Professor Moore will, it was stated, nominate his faculty at an early date and it will be put before the board of trustees for approval. Professor Moore's salary was fixed at $1,500 a year. He was selected as president by the state agricultural school board.

BLAMES 'LOBBY' FOR DEPRESSION

WILSON DECLARES INTERESTS BEHIND EFFORT TO FORCE EARLY ADJOURNMENT.

CREATES MILD SENSATION

Wilson Makes Public Letters From Business Firms Urging Halt in Trust Action.

Washington. — President Wilson came out with a flat declaration that, despite what he characterized as a deliberate campaign by certain interests to secure adjournment of Congress and postponement of the administration's trust legislation program, he would use every influence at his command to get the pending bills through the Senate at this session.

Choosing his words carefully, the president disclosed his belief that organized distribution of circular letters and telegrams among business men, members of Congress and other public officials, calling for an adjournment of Congress, a halt in the trust bills, an increase in freight rates for the railroads, and a "rest for business" was responsible for what he recently described as a "psychological depression."

In support of that view, the White House made public copies of letters and telegrams brought in by friends of the administration. One letter was circulated by the Simmons Hardware Company of St. Louis, under date of June 9. Just prior to that date, President Wilson had offered to E. C. Simmons, president of that company, a place on the Federal reserve board, just before the President expressed his views on trust programme, it was announced that Mr. Simmons had declined the appointment and that Charles S. Hamlin of Boston would be nominated in his stead.

White House officials emphatically denied that the Simmons letter had to do with the declination of the appointment.

The president's declaration and the publication of the letters created a mild sensation approaching that which followed the president's denunciation of the "insidious lobbying" which, he said, was threatening the tariff bill last year. Senators and Representatives discussed the situation, but no action was taken.

One of the letters made public purported to have been sent out by the Pictorial Review Company of New York, and was signed by W. P. Ahnelt, president, under date of May 1. It accompanied a prepared letter protesting against trust legislation, praying for a freight rate increase and suggesting an adjournment of Congress, with the further suggestion that the recipient mail copies to the members of Congress, the interstate commerce commission and other officials in Washington. The letter signed by Ahnelt says that "prosperity has been lost somewhere in this country, owing to the mischievous activities of the politicians," and that the draft of an enclosed letter "embraces the views of a majority of the thinking business people of our section."

VIOLENT STORM VISITS PARIS.

Loss of Life and Enormous Damage to Property Is Result.

Paris. — A thunderstorm of phenomenal violence raged over Paris for three hours. It caused loss of life and enormous damage to property. The rain flooded the streets and caused the bursting of sewers. In the central fashionable quarter of the city a street caved in, engulfing several pedestrians.

The number of victims is not known, owing to the danger of approaching the immense pits resulting from the collapse of sidewalks and roadways. The police estimate the victims at seven at least.

The most serious cave-in occurred at the junction of the Rue La Boetie and the Faubourg Saint Honore. When the storm was at its height 560 square feet of the roadway sank, carrying with it a number of persons who had taken shelter under the awning of a cafe. Water spurted from the broken mains, and, added to the torrents from the skies, converted the whole district into a veritable river. Gas mains, telephone wires and electrical supplies were broken off. The quarter was immediately isolated and large detachments of police were hastily summoned, but for a long time nothing could be done owing to the darkness. President Poincare sent a number of his military household to the scene, and troops were ordered to aid the police and firemen in their efforts at rescue.

About the same time a large section of the roadway in the Place Saint Augustin suddenly collapsed, a passing [illegible] were injured. Eye-witnesses [illegible] heard roaring from the [illegible]

VOLCANO ERUPTS IN CALIFORNIA

Mount Lassen, Near Redding, Belches Forth and Huge Rocks Are Thrown Great Distances.

ONE MAN IS KILLED

Two Are Reported Missing and Two Temporarily Insane, Following Saturday's Eruptions.

Redding, Cal.—Mount Lassen finally erupted with volcanic fire and one man is reported killed, one injured and two driven temporarily insane as a result of the terrific outburst from the crater which had been latent for many years.

Rocks Thrown 2,000 Feet in Air.

The man killed was Lansing Gray, a lumber man of Volta, Cal., who, with a party of friends, ventured near the crater just before the fourth eruption and were overwhelmed by a sudden explosion that sent a mass of rocks, ashes and thick smoke 2,000 feet into the air.

STEVENSON IS DEAD

Former Vice President of United States Dies in Chicago.

Chicago.—Adlai E. Stevenson, vice president of the United States through the second Cleveland administration, died at a hospital here after an illness of several months. His three children were at his bedside.

Adlai Ewing Stevenson had a long and honorable public career. He was vice president from 1893 to 1897 under President Grover Cleveland. In 1900 he again was nominated by the Democratic party for vice president, and ran with William J. Bryan, the party's candidate for president, but was defeated. He served as a member of the Forty-fourth and Forty-fifth congresses. From 1885 to 1889 he served as first assistant postmaster general under President Cleveland.

FAMOUS FLAGS.

Exhibited in the National Museum in Washington.

Washington.—The national museum here had on exhibition its collection of American flags showing the development of the Stars and Stripes through the different historical periods down to the present day. The collection is a feature of the museum's historical exhibit. It includes the original "Star Spangled Banner," which waved over Fort McHenry during the bombardment of September 13-14, 1814, and the ensign said to have been flown on the Bonhomme Richard, by Admiral John Paul Jones. Flags carried in the Mexican war of 1846-47, in the Civil war and in the Spanish-American war also form part of the collection.

COMMISSION APPOINTED.

To Study Social Conditions of Jews in Palestine.

New York.—The appointment of a commission to take a social survey of conditions among the Jews in Palestine, was announced by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of the Free Synagogue of this city. The commission will visit Jerusalem in September, and its findings will be published upon its return to America. It is expected that the information will enable Jewish communities in Europe and this country to understand present day needs of the Jews of Palestine and to render the Jews such help as necessary.

London, England.—Walter Hines Page, the American ambassador, addressing the Royal Institution, on some aspects of American Democracy, combatted the view that Democracy is in danger of becoming plutocracy, or surrendering political power to the organized rich.

Substitute Bill Reported.

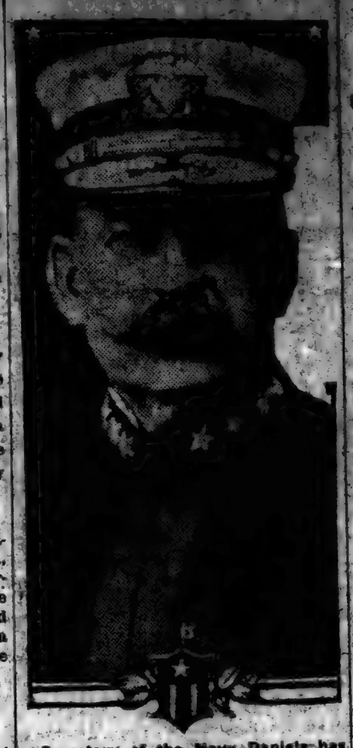
Washington.—The senate interstate commerce committee reported its federal trade commission bill, as a substitute for the trade commission bill recently passed by the house.

Missionaries Reported Safe.

New York.—The Christian Missionary Alliance received information through the state department at Washington that all of the dozen missionaries who were in that part of China recently overrun by the brigand, White Wolf, were safe.

Missing Balloon Found.

Portland, Ore.—Capt. John Berry, pilot of the missing balloon Million Population club, and his aid, George T. Morrison, walked into Oregon City at 1:45 a. m. Saturday.



German Airship Wrecked.

Diedenhofen, Germany.—Another of the Zeppelin airships of the German army, the "Z-1," was badly wrecked near here. While trying to effect an emergency landing the air cruiser broke at right angles behind the rear gondola. A lieutenant was injured.

REAR ADMIRAL FLETCHER

Secretary of the Navy Daniels has announced that Admiral Fletcher will be placed in command of the Atlantic fleet. This is the command to which all naval officers aspire.

PROHIBITION BILL UP

NATIONAL PROHIBITION WILL BE VOTED ON BY CONGRESS BEFORE IT ADJOURNS.

Enemies Hope to Defeat Amendment by Forcing an Early Vote.

Washington.—Nation wide prohibition will be voted on by the house within four or five weeks, according to predictions made at the capital after the rules committee had postponed until July 1 action on a special rule to provide for immediate consideration of the proposed Hobson amendment. Members of the committee declared they would consider favorably report the Cantrell rule resolution in July.

The committees action followed a day of stormy conferences without reference to political division. It generally was conceded that opponents of the Hobson amendment were forcing the issue, confident the measure could not poll the two-thirds vote necessary for passage. Representative Hobson himself does not favor action at this time, though he said a vote would be taken the second week in July.

LOOKS LIKE WAR

Strained Relations Between Greece and Turkey Near Breaking Point.

Athens, Greece.—A warning to Turkey which fell little short of a formal declaration of hostilities was uttered by Premier Venizelos of Greece in the chamber of deputies. He was speaking on the treatment of Greek subjects in Turkey.

The premier's attitude showed that the tension between Greece and Turkey was near the breaking point, and that the danger of war was imminent.

M. Venizelos, who obviously found difficulty in retraining his language when he spoke of the way in which the Turks had treated his fellow countrymen, said:

"I do not wish to allow to escape me words which cannot be recalled, but I should fail in my duty if I did not inform the chamber of deputies that the situation has become grave—even very grave. If a stop is not put to these conditions, the Hellenic government will be forced not to content itself with joining in the lamentations of unhappy refugees."

West Point Graduates.

West Point, N. Y.—June week at the United States military academy closed with the graduation of the first class. One hundred and seven new officers of the army received their diplomas and listened to a brief address by Secretary of War Garrison.

Texas Sues Oil Company.

Austin, Tex.—The Pierce Oil Corporation of Virginia was denied the right to carry on business in this state when the state supreme court denied their petition for a mandamus to compel F. C. Weinert, secretary of state to issue them a permit.

Vice President in Maine.

Orono, Maine.—Vice President Thomas R. Marshall addressed a class of 120 members at the commencement exercises of the University of Maine.

Water Rates Reduced.

Chillicothe, Ohio.—Veterans of the Mexican war of 1846-48, in session here, were granted reduced water rates by the city council. The veterans, who are to be guests of the city for a week, will be charged [illegible] while in the city.

MEDIATORS SIGN FIRST PROTOCOL

Provides For The Establishment of a Government Which The United States Will Recognize.

HUERTA'S SUCCESSOR NEXT

Rebel Delegates Are on Their Way to the Peace Conference at Niagara.

Niagara Falls, Ont.—Delegates from the United States and the Huerta government formally affixed their signatures in the presence of the mediating representatives of Argentine, Brazil and Chile, to the first protocol of the series through which it is hoped to restore peace in Mexico. The agreement as to the manner of transferring executive power from Huerta to the new provisional government stood the acid test of reduction to writing it provides that:

Provisional Government.

A government is to be constituted in Mexico of a character to be later provided, which shall be recognized by the United States on (date to be fixed) and which from that day forward shall exercise public functions until there shall be inaugurated a constitutional president. All parties now are concentrating on the second part of the peace plan which relates to the name of the provisional president and possibly will include his cabinet of four.

As to Constitutionalist Mediators.

The question of Constitutionalist representation here is still an open one. The mediators say they will not officially admit the Carranza delegates unless they agree to an armistice. It is not doubted though that some way may be found for the Constitutionalists to participate in the peace parleys after they arrive.

Cabinet Members Pleased.

Washington.—The Washington government was so optimistic over the prospects for the success of the Mexican mediation that cabinet members fairly radiated jubilation when they left the white house after a conference with the president.

BALLOONS ENCOUNTER STORM

Apprehension Is Felt for Occupants of Balloons in National Race.

Portland, Oregon.—Anxiety prevails here regarding the safety of three of four balloons which started from here in the first national balloon race ever held in the Northwest. Shortly after their departure the aircraft were caught in a terrific wind, thunder and lightning storm. Definite knowledge of the storm's treatment of the balloons is confined to a single case.

The Uncle Sam, piloted by Captain Honeywell of St. Louis, and carrying as a passenger Dr. W. E. Stewart, was driven to earth near Oregon City. Honeywell and Stewart were not injured.

PROBE "CANTALOUPE TRUST"

Government Wants to Know If There Is Such a Thing in Chicago.

Chicago.—The existence of "a cantaloupe trust" is to be investigated by the government. This became known when numerous commission merchants were subpoenaed to testify before the federal grand jury regarding alleged close control of the juicy Western cantaloupe crop. The grand jury's inquiry will deal with the operations of the Western cantaloupe exchange. Before the exchange was organized, in 1911, cantaloupes usually sold at $1.75 a case, federal investigators say. Since then the price has advanced to $3. It is alleged that when a sufficient number of melons to supply the market was shipped the remainder were allowed to perish on the vine.

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD

Personal Friend of President Wilson Mentioned for Governor of Board.

Washington.—Thomas B. Jones, a Chicago lawyer, former member of the Princeton university trustees and a personal friend of President Wilson, has practically been selected for governor of the federal reserve board. It was said unofficially that his nomination would go to the senate within a few days.

Repeal Bill Carries.

Washington.—Only President Wilson's signature is necessary to repeal the clause of the Panama canal act exempting American coastwise shipping from tolls. The long and bitter fight in congress came to an end Friday, when the house, after a brief debate and without the formality of a conference, accepted by a vote of 216 to 71 the senate amendments specifically reserving all rights the United States may have under the Hay Pauncefote treaty or otherwise.

HEAT WAVE SWEEPS COUNTRY

FROM ALL SECTIONS COME REPORTS OF HIGH TEMPERATURE AND SUFFERING.

Thermometers in the Southland Climbed Steadily to Highest Point This Season.

Washington.—Intense heat that caused suffering in densely populated districts continued throughout that part of the country between the Missouri valley and the Allegheny mountains. Chicago's temperature rose from 92 Monday to 96 Tuesday, while in Springfield, Ill., the mercury soared to 100. Other points throughout the middle West sweltered under similar conditions, Memphis having an official temperature of 96, Nashville 98 and Louisville 96. At Wytheville, in southwest Virginia, the record June temperature of 93 was equaled.

Atlantic coast cities escaped the heat wave because of cooling winds.

The weather bureau predicted warm weather in the middle West with rising temperatures along the Atlantic coast.

MAY BE RECORD YEAR

2,900 Immigrants Arrive at American Ports Each Week.

Washington.—Immigrants arrived at American ports at the rate of more than 2,900 every week day during the first ten months of the fiscal year of 1914, and indications are that by June 3, when the fiscal year ends, the greatest number of immigrants ever admitted during any year will have entered. Statistics of the bureau of immigration for April and the ten months ending with April, show 119,885 were admitted in April and the total for ten months was 1,038,956. Should May and June arrivals equal the number admitted during these months in previous years, the 1914 total would be approximately 1,351,000 immigrants. The greatest number arriving in one year heretofore was 1,285,349 in 1907.

PLEAD FOR SURRENDER

Starving Women Beg Commander to End Suffering.

On Board U. S. S. California, Mazatlan.—Moved by the plea of scores of starving women, who besought him to end the sufferings of the populace by surrendering the city, the military governor of Mazatlan issued an order permitting all non-combatants who so desired to vacate their dwellings.

Upholds Georgia Law.

Washington.—In upholding the legality of the Georgia headlight law, the Supreme court affirmed the decision of the Georgia court of appeals in a case brought by the Atlantic Coast Line. Under the state law every locomotive on a passenger or freight train must show at night an electric headlight.

Panama Dispute Settled.

Bogota, Columbia.—The Columbian congress in special session ratified the treaty with the United States, by which Colombia is to receive $25,000,000 and certain concessions in the settlement of the long standing dispute between the two countries.

Government Gets Bids.

NATION'S CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Washington Explorer Finds Strange Cave Men

WASHINGTON.—Caves hewn in the solid rocks of sugarloaf mountains, sometimes to the depth of 150 feet, large enough to hold from 1,500 to 2,000 people. Men who think nothing of running 40 and 50 miles a day without taking a drink of water.

People who never set eyes on fruits or vegetables.

Towns of 5,000 to 6,000 inhabitants, in which there is not a building, the people living in holes in the earth.

A land of no shadows between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m.

A nation in which women are never seen.

These are some of the wonders described by Frank Edward Johnson, the explorer and lecturer and contributing editor of the National Geographic Magazine, who arrived in Washington after an absence of almost two years, spent among the troglodyte tribes of southern Tunisia. Mr. Johnson gave out his first interview since his return to the United States, after reporting to the National Geographic society in Washington.

While in Tunisia Mr. Johnson conducted extensive researches among the buried Roman cities, and traced the old Roman highways, which have been hidden for centuries by the shifting sands of the Sahara. He succeeded in following for 300 miles the route of the road that was built from Carthage to Leptis Magna and to Alexandria nearly two thousand years ago.

"On the trip just concluded," said Mr. Johnson, "I came into a more intimate contact with the innermost lives of the peoples of the extreme southern Tunisia than ever before, and I had an unequaled opportunity to study them at closer range than any foreigner has ever enjoyed. There are probably more than one hundred thousand of these people in a section hitherto supposed to be almost uninhabitable. They are pursuing an exceedingly primitive life.

"All the troglodyte strongholds are difficult of approach. Their warriors could see the enemy approaching for many miles, unless they came by night, and then the zigzag path that led up to the great walls, worn smooth by centuries of hard use, with a surface like polished marble, was too dangerous, for a stumble meant sudden death on the rocks hundreds of feet below. It is difficult even for the mountain goats born and bred there."

Capital Folk Scramble for Rent-Free Houses

THERE'S a scramble on among several hundred Washingtonians for rent free houses during the summer months in the city's most exclusive residential districts. Few people outside the capital realize that there are in this city scores of beautiful and costly homes which are turned over to caretakers, sometimes without rent, and with coal, gas and electric light bills paid. On some occasions, even, caretakers are paid a nominal sum to live in the houses.

Now is the season when these caretakers are the busiest. Those who have had these positions in the past are the most active and they besiege almost daily the various real estate offices in the city. For this business is one of the hardest for real estate men to look after. In the first place they must be able to judge character "on the jump" and be able to pick men and women who would be capable and honest. Then after selecting the names of applicants the agents have to investigate their standing and trustworthiness. In the selection of the tenants widows almost always have first choice. A good widow with children is always regarded as the best caretaker.

While the occupation of caretaker grew up originally when Washingtonians left the city for the summer it has extended to another branch now—that of furnished houses for sale or rent. For instance, if a public official who has lived here several years suddenly becomes a "lame duck" and moves "back to the farm" his Washington home is for sale. Often it is difficult to sell the place immediately or even to rent it. As a result a caretaker is selected. This party is given possession of the house, but is required to keep it in tip-top condition and to show it to prospective buyers.

Uncle Sam Needs Rifle Ranges for Civilians

WITH the probability that citizen soldiery may be called to national service, the national board for promotion of rifle practise of the war department has issued a statement explaining the need of rifle ranges for practise, which has been made possible by the present congress in providing for the free distribution of rifles and ammunition to civilian rifle clubs and school cadets.

"Again we are faced with the possibility of sending untrained youths from their homes to the battlefield," the statement says. "Recruits can be taught to march, drill, and take care of themselves in the field in a comparatively short period, but such is not the case with the care and effective use of the service arm. A long step in the right direction was taken by the present congress when it enacted a law, through a paragraph in the army appropriation bill, authority for the war department to issue rifles and ammunition free to certain civilians.

"It is a fundamental principle of national defense that citizens should be trained in the use of the service arm. Rifle instruction is the keynote of national defense of Switzerland. If we were to train our citizens in the same proportion as that small republic, we would have about 2,000,000 trained civilian expert riflemen.

"A serious handicap to the proper development of this movement is the lack of rifle ranges. With the growth of cities and the increasing value of land generally rifle ranges have been swept away. Therefore, unless the issue of rifles and ammunition is followed by the construction of ranges where civilians can practise such issue will not accomplish the results desired by the government."

Varied Lot of Plants Grown by the Government

IN CONNECTION with its investigations, the Smithsonian institution undertook some years ago the collecting of a series of duplicate dried herbarium specimens, but many examples of living plants were secured.

The problem of the care of these living plants while under observation was solved through the co-operation of the department of agriculture, which assigned special greenhouse No. 7, adjacent to Fourteenth and B streets northwest, for housing them. Today a veritable desert flourishes in it, filled with all kinds of strange desert plants, especially obtained from North and South America, of which there are [illegible] the establishment of two thousand

SOME BREAD AND BUTTER ISSUES

The cost of the State government of Texas for the year ending August 31, 1914, will be $3,686,367.36. In 1900 it was $2,500,985. On page 10 in June 5th issue of FARM AND RANCH Mr. E. G. Senter, a prominent lawyer and former State Senator, begins a series of 10 articles showing why this enormous increase in the cost of government and how it may be reduced. These articles are not the ravings of a chronic kicker or a sort of continued villification by a disappointed office-seeker. They attack no administration, party or faction. Neither do they smack the least bit of iconoclasm. They are the earnest judgment of a man of affairs actuated by the highest motives of patriotism. They are a clean-cut economic analysis and discussion of such evils as the multiplicity of offices and boards, the inefficiency of the legislature, the ignoble fee-grabbing system, and our technicality-clogged courts. And for every costly evil laid bare a reasonable, simple remedy is outlined.

"FARM AND RANCH has laid but one injunction upon me," says Mr. Senter, "in the compiliation of these articles—to tell the truth without fear or favor. That I shall obey to the best of my ability."

There are 10 articles and one will be on page 10 each issue for 10 consecutive weeks.

CLANTON PRESS

PUBLISHED IN THE INTEREST OF CHILTON COUNTY AND HER PEOPLE

VOL. 5. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY JUNE 25, 1914 NO. 11.

CRAFT APPRECIATIVE

Jhdge E. B. Deason is in receipt of the following communication from Hon. John Craft, President of the Alabama Good Roads Association, expressing his appreciation of the people of Clanton and Chilton county for their hospitality and enthusiasm at the recent good roads meet:

Mobile, Ala., June 16, 1914.

Judge E. B. Deason,
Clanton, Ala.

My dear Judge:—

I returned home safe and want to take this opportunity to extend my congratulations to you and through you to the citizens of Clanton for the splendid magnificent good roads enthusiasm and the bountiful barbecue that was served by the good people of Clanton, and to you personally for your untiring efforts in making the entertainment and meeting a success. Kindly express through the press to your people and the Board my appreciation. I little thought a few years ago when a few of us helped organize this meeting at the Morris Hotel that we would have a highway from Birmingham to Montgomery.

I hope you will carry out the suggestion to have the people observe Aug. 14 and 15 as good roads days. Have them bring their teams and those that won't work can contribute money, so you can do good work and improve the highways. This would be a great opportunity to have the roads improved by working up patriotism. I therefore urge that you take this up with your commissioners, the press and the citizens along the route in the other counties to observe the third annual good roads days.

I am enclosing you a map of the proposed national highway of 50,000 miles which the National Highway Association is working for, and of which I am a member. I forgot to state at the meeting the other day this feature of my wotk, and the great possibilities of having the national government to eventuallly accept this route that will come through Clanton. Therefore it behooves you all to take a great interest, and I believe no city has a greater opportunity of being on the National Highway, and the great crop of tourists that travel by automobile, investors and home seekers are a great advantage to any country, and it would be especially advantageous to Clanton and Chilton county. I am sending you this map and it was through my efforts I had Clanton put on the map.

Yours very truly,
John Craft, President.

STAY ON THE FARM

AND BE YOUR OWN BOSS.

There is one thing we should like to urge very strongly in this issue Mr. Farmer Boy, and that is that you stay on the farm where you can be your own boss instead of going to the city to be somebody's clerk or hired man—that is unless you have some marked and definite talent for some particular work.

It is true, of course, that the farmer does not now get all the profit he ought to get—nor all he is going to get—but it is also true that the workingman in the country fares better than the [illegible] man in town. Read all you can, study all you can, and prepare yourself to be a good farmer—a unusually wide-awake progressive farmer—and you will have chances out of ten [illegible] than if you should go to town.

As we see it, the [illegible] is coming. The [illegible] world is turned [illegible] building up the [illegible] ernment itself which was once interested in protecting manufacturer, developing manufactures, and building up the towns, is beginning to see that the source of all prosperity is the farm. But the one best sign is that the farmers themselves are getting aroused and studying their privileges and rights Already the awakning and organization of the farmers have resulted in untold good, and you ought to resolve that there shall be a farmer's organization in your community as long as you live. If you are over 16 years of age, join the Farmer's Union or whatever other organization is nearest you, and take an active part in it. Speak to your father about it.

Another thing which insures better times for the farmer is this: For a hundred years until very recently we have had to compete with cheap-land farmers in the West. That is to say, any farmer could go out West and stake out a "homestead," and sell his crops without allowance for land values, because his land cost him nothing or practically nothing. But all that is past. The cheap lands of the West have gone, and now when the Western farmer sells his crops he must add $5 to $10 per acre as an allowance for rent or for interest on land values. And because of this fact crops cannot be sold as cheaply as formerly.

Then, too, city populations have increased faster than country populations the whole world over, and it is becoming more and more difficult for city people to get enough meat and food stuffs, There are several million more people in the United States than there were five years ago, while there are several million fewer meat animals. This is an indication that farm products must go higher, especially livestock.

One of the greatest of the world's students of rural problems declared recently that in the future labor on the farm is going to be better paid than labor in the towns, and we believe he is right. Stick to the farm.—Progressive Farmer.

WORK PROGRESSING RAPIDLY

WATER-WORKS SYSTEM TO BE IN OPERATION BY SEPTEMBER 1ST.

The work of installing Clanton's waterworks and sewerage system goes steadily on. The water mains have all been laid, and the work of putting in the sewers has commenced. The large tank in the northern part of the city has been erected, and the construction of the power house and the boring of the well to furnish the water supply will be next in order, the engine and boiler for the power house and the drilling machinery for the well having arrived some days ago.

The J. B. McCrary Co., of Atlanta, who have the contract for installing the system, are exerting every effort to push the work to a rapid and successful conclusion. A large force of laborers are busily engaged in different parts of town and it is expected that everything will be in working order by at least September 1st.

PROF. PICKENS' POSITION ON HIGH SCHOOL

MAKES IT CLEAR THAT HE IS NOT SEEKING PRINCIPALSHIP.

Clanton, Ala., June 22, 1914.

Editor of the Press:—

Dear sir: Through the columns of your paper I want to say to the school interests of the county that our High School now seems a reality and will open Jan. 1, 1915. Possibly, my active interest in the matter has made many believe that the dominant thing with me was a position, but such was not the case. My contentions were that such a school was necessary to protect the tax payers of the county and at the same time to give our home boys the same treatment that was given to those of other counties. My stand was taken to correct those evils, and I do not think that I have ever made a statement concerning the matter that I was not able to verify by facts and statistics. I am exceedingly sorrowful that some men got beside themselves so far as to say that in asking the county to assist that that was something unheardof in any other county. Those people will have to read the three Birmingham papers of last week where those papers are calling upon the county to give to the place securing the location the sum of $25,000 with which to construct a building. Now, as the fight is all over, I want it distinctly understood that I am not nor will not be an applicant for the place. I trust that every citizen of the county will get behind the institution and make it one of the best in the State. I will state as a member of the building committee that the building in going to be one of the very best.

Yours very truly,
J. J. Pickens.

AUTO TRIP TO COOSA

On Sunday morning last Messrs. P. O. Barett and Enbriam Smith, accompanied by two young ladies, left Clanton to attend an all-day singing in Coosa county. Mr. Hardy Hurtt drove them in Mr. G. O. Foshee's five passenger Everette car. Everything went lovely and the crowd had a good time till Knight's ferry was reached on the return trip. But, alas and alack! here is where the trouble started. In getting the car off the "flat," after crossing the river, the boat slid from under the machine, and the rear part of the car was buried in the water and mud. The boys worked like Trojans to extricate the car from its plight, but the harder they labored the deeper in the mud it got, until finally about twelve o'clock at night they gave up the ghost. Another car was 'phoned for from Clanton and the crowd reached home shortly before four o'clock Monday morning a tired and weary lot.

"Pete" says the next time he goes to an all-day singing in Coosa he will remain at home.

FIRE DESTROYS RESIDENCE NEAR CLANTON

Tuesday morning about six o'clock, the residence of Mr. Peter Prim, about two miles southwest of Clanton, was discovered to be on fire. Mr. Prim was away from home at the time, but soon a number of neighbors living nearby arrived and worked valiantly to save the building, but the flames had gained such headway that all efforts were fruitless, and in a short time the residence was burned to ashes. Only a part of the household goods were saved, including kitchen furniture. The origin of the fire is not known, but it is supposed to have been from a defective flue. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

WORLD'S CREATEST PUBLICITY EXPERT

There seems to be no doubt that Colonel Roosevelt is getting ready to run for president again. This is indicated by two things: First, the Colonel is getting restive out of high official position, in which alone he enjoys a field of activities and opportunities that enables him to revel in the limelight of publicity every day in the week and every hour in the day.

There is no other American in or out of public life who possesses a more ravenous appetite for publicity than the Colonel. He literally gorged himself with it for years. It was manit with him. Ever since he left high official position, offering large opportunities to satisfy this craving, he has been restive and dissatisfied to get back. It is a necessary food with him.

Secondly, the Colonel has resumed his favorite task of criticising disparagingly the administration that's in and its record. The other day he attacked democratic principles and policies as represented and pursued by the Wilson administration, declared the tariff question had been badly handled, as shown by the fact that the cost of living had not been reduced, and charged that no progress had been made toward solving the trust problem.

The Colonel's attttude is not unnatural or unusual for a man whose idea of getting high office is to denounce the other party or its incumbent. That has come to be a custom with office seekers. They devote most of their time and efforts to the abuse of the other fellow, and have little to promise in the way of achievement.

In this connection, however, the question arises what the Colonel ever did toward regulating the tariff or the trusts during his eight years in the White House? He has never shown any knowledge of or interest in the tariff, and his attitude towards the trusts has been one of friendly sympathy. The trust magnates are now active leaders in the movement to get him back in the White House.

The public may look for a lively campaign when the Colonel gets back from Europe and again throws his hat in the ring. He has just simply got to have publicity poured through a funnel to the extent of slopping over, and public office is the only means whereby he can be satisfied.—Birmingham Ledger.

DEATH OF MR. ERNEST MAHAN

On Wednesday night of last week, at his home in Clanton, occurred the death of Mr. Ernest Mahan, after a lingering illness of six weeks with typhoid fever.

About three weeks ago it was thought that Mr. Mahan's condition was improving, and he was on the road to recovery. However, he suffered a relapse, and his already undermined constitution was unato withstand further the attacks of the disease upon his system, and on Wednesday night he passed into everlasting sleep.

In the death of Mr. Mahan Clanton loses one of its best known and most highly respected young men. He was of a jovial and kindly disposition, possessing many noble traits of character, and was held in high esteem by a large concourse of friends, who will hear with profound sorrow and regret, the news of his demise.

The deceased was happily united in marriage to Miss Knowlton Marcus in January last, who, together with his father, Mr. H. M. Mahan, and four brothers survive him. He was twenty-six years old.

The funeral services were conducted on Thursday afternoon and interment took place in Clanton cemetery, the Woodmen of the World, of which order Mr. Mahan was an ardent and loyal member, attending in a body to pay their last tribute of respect.

The Press, together with a host of sorrowing friends, join in extending its heartfelt sympathy to the bereft widow, and other relatives in their hour of sorrow.

palm trees, and it also contains many lime trees. I have sent Mr. Ed Wagoner a number of post card views of the island, and if anyone wishes to see them, they may do so by calling at his barber shop in Clanton. I took the views myself.

We have great sport down here fishing and going out in small sailboats. When we first came to Lobos Island we went in swimming from the side of the ship, but we didn't do it any more; we decided sharks and men were not made to play in the same hole of water. While we were swimming on one side of the ship the rest of the crew were catching sharks on the other. One was caught that measured 10 1-2 feet in length, another 7 3-4 feet. We caught one today eight feet long, and got another on the same hook that we caught the ten and a half foot one on, but he broke the hook and got away.

FOURTH OF JULY PICNIC

AT BRUCE'S GROVE.

The glorious Fourth will be celebrated at Bruce's grove, one and one half miles north of Clanton, with a basket picnic and dance. Baseball games and various other amusements will insure all who attend an enjoyable day. A large dancing pavilion has been erected on the grounds and a string band has been employed to dispense sweet strains for the occasion. Ice cream and all kinds of soft drinks will be served. Come and bring your baskets well filled.

OBITUARY

Brother M. P. Robinson was born May 20, 1848; died Feb. 13, 1914. He joined the Missionary Baptist church when young and was for many years a deacon, and always stood for the church. He was a true and loyal member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. On the second Sunday in June, the memorial services were conducted at Union Grove by his pastor, Rev. W. S. Cox. He was a good husband and father, and loved his church and Odd Fellowship. Brother Robinson is gone but not forgotten.

The VALIANTS of VIRGINIA

SYNOPSIS.

John Valiant, a rich society favorite, suddenly discovers that the Valiant corporation, which his father founded and which was the principal source of his wealth, had failed. He voluntarily turns over his private fortune to the receiver for the corporation. His entire remaining possessions consist of an old motor car, a white bull dog and Damory court, a neglected estate in Virginia. On the way to Damory court he meets Shirley Dandridge, an auburn-haired beauty, and decides that he is going to like Virginia immensely. Shirley's mother, Mrs. Dandridge, and Major Bristow exchange reminiscences during which it is revealed that the major, Valiant's father, and a man named Sassoon were rivals for the hand of Mrs. Dandridge in her youth. Sassoon and Valiant fought a duel on her account in which the former was killed. Valiant finds Damory court overgrown with weeds and creepers and decides to rehabilitate the place. Valiant saves Shirley from the bite of a snake, which bites him. Knowing the deadliness of the bite, Shirley sucks the poison from the wound and saves his life. Valiant learns for the first time that his father left Virginia on account of a duel in which Doctor Southall and Major Bristow acted as his father's seconds. Valiant and Shirley become good friends. Mrs. Dandridge faints when she meets Valiant for the first time. Valiant discovers that he has a fortune in old walnut trees. The yearly tournament, a survival of the jousting of feudal times, is held at Damory court. At the last moment Valiant takes the place of one of the knights, who is sick, and enters the lists. He wins and chooses Shirley Dandridge as queen of beauty to the dismay of Katherine Fargo, a former sweetheart, who is visiting in Virginia. The tournament ball at Damory court draws the elite of the countryside. Shirley is crowned by Valiant as queen of beauty. Valiant tells Shirley of his love and they become engaged. Katherine Fargo determining not to give up Valiant without a struggle, points out to Shirley how terrible it would be for the woman who caused the duel to meet Valiant, who looks so much like his father. Shirley, uncertain, but feeling that her mother was in love with the victim of Valiant's pistol, breaks the engagement. Major Bristow is fatally wounded by Great King, a liberated convict, who he had sent to prison, but before dying Bristow confesses to Mrs. Dandridge that he had kept a letter Valiant had written to her after the duel. Valiant decides to leave Damory court and writes Shirley that he will love her always.

With unsteady fingers she unwrapped the oiled-silk, broke the letter's seal, and read:

"Dearest:

"Before you read this, you will no doubt have heard the thing that has happened this sunshiny morning. Sassoon—poor Sassoon! I can say that with all my heart—is dead. What this fact will mean to you, God help me! I cannot guess. For I have never been certain, Judith, of your heart. Sometimes I have thought you loved me—me only—as I love you. Last night when I saw you wearing my cape jessamines at the ball, I was almost sure of it. But when you made me promise, whatever happened, not to lift my hand against him, then I doubted. Was it because you feared for him? Would to God at this moment I knew this was not true! For whatever the fact, I must love you, darling, you and no other, as long as I live!"

When she had read thus far, she closed the letter, and pressing a hand against her heart as if to still its throbbing, locked the written pages in a drawer of her bureau. She went downstairs and made Ranston bring her chair to its accustomed place under the rose-arbor, and sat there through the falling twilight.

She and Shirley talked but little at dinner, and what she said seemed to come winging from old memories—her own girlhood, its routes and picnics and harum-scarum pleasures. And there were long gaps in which she sat silent, playing with her napkin, the light color coming and going in her delicate cheek, lost in revery. It was not till the hall-clock struck her usual hour that she rose to go to her room.

"Don't send Emmaline," she said. "I shan't want her." She kissed Shirley good night. "Maybe after a while you will sing for me; you haven't played your harp for ever so long."

In the subdued candle-light Mrs. Dandridge locked the door of her room. She opened a closet, and from the very bottom of a small haircloth trunk, lifted and shook out from its many tissue wrappings a faded gown of rose-colored silk, with pointed bodice and old-fashioned puff-sleeves. She spread this on the bed and laid with it a pair of yellowed satin slippers and a little straw basket that held a spray of what had once been cape jessamine.

In the flickering light she undressed and rearranged her hair, catching its silvery curling meshes in a low soft coil. Looking almost furtively about her, she put on the rose-colored gown, and pinned the withered flower-spray on its breast. She lighted more candles—in the wall-brackets and on the dressing-table—and the reading-lamp on the desk. Standing before her mirror then, she gazed long at the reflection—the poor faded rose-tint against the pale ivory of her slender neck, and the white hair. A little quiver ran over her lips.

"Whatever the fact," she whispered, "... you and no other as long as I live."

She unlocked the [illegible] drawer, took out the letter, and [illegible] her eyes [illegible]

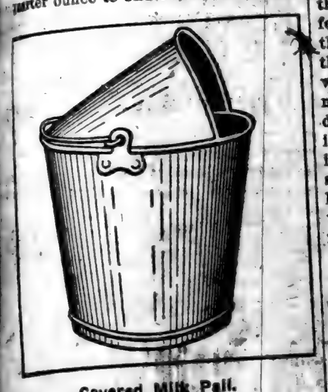
HOW TO MAKE GOOD BUTTER ON THE FARM



Tank for Cold Water.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Keep good cows that will produce from 200 to 300 pounds or more of butter fat annually, and feed them liberally, is the advice contained in Farmers's Bulletin 541 of the United States department of agriculture, on farm butter making. Keep the cows comfortable and clean when in the stable. This is conducive to best production.

Use clear pure water for washing the butter. It should not be more than 3° colder or warmer than the buttermilk. Use amount of water equal to that of buttermilk. In barrel churn revolve 12 to 15 times in washing. Weigh the granular washed butter and salt at the rate of three-quarter ounce to one ounce per pound.

Covered Milk Pail.

Be sure the salt is well pulverized and sift it evently over the granular butter before any of the moisture is worked out.

Work the butter sufficiently to distribute salt without injuring grain or texture. Put it up in clean, neat, and attractive packages, and keep everything in and about the dairy clean and wholesome. Make earnest and constant efforts to obtain and retain profitable markets.

Cleanliness and attention to details are the two requisites in the manufacture of good butter. Bad flavors, lack of uniformity in color, and salt, unsuitable packages, and no uniformity in the style of the packages, are the main defects in farm butter. The bad flavors may be due to feeds or improper handling of the milk or cream before it is churned rather than to the subsequent treatment of the butter.

The importance of cleanliness can not be overemphasized in making butter. In our haste to accomplish the task we often sacrifice our better judgment. This is particularly true in handling milk and cream that is to be used in the manufacture of butter on farms. The bodies of the cows, utensils, conditions at the barn, milk room, and storage room, should all be clean.

There probably is no greater source of contamination to milk than that of dust, hairs, or manure falling from the body of the cow into the open milk pail during milking. The types of bacteria which are found associated with this filth are capable of producing very objectionable changes in the milk or its products. Their activity is greatly increased by the favorable conditions existing in warm milk.

Everything which tends to favor this accumulation of filth on the cow should be removed and the cow kept clean, particularly about the flanks and udder. This can be done very efficiently and easily by keeping the long hairs clipped from the flanks and wiping the udder with a moist cloth or sponge. The clipping of the flanks keeps the hairs short and does not favor the accumulation and retention of filth. The dirt that does gather can be quickly and easily removed with a currycomb and brush. The barn should be kept free from dirt.

The utensils should be of such material and construction that they can be easily cleaned. The interior should be smooth, with no crevices for dirt and milk to lodge. The surface should be tinned and the seams filled with solder. Tinware should be kept bright.

The following [illegible] which have contributed to the success of butter making is recommended: Rinse thoroughly in lukewarm water, wash thoroughly with the aid of some good cleansing powder in water as hot as the hand will bear. Then thoroughly rinse in hot water, expose to live steam from one to two minutes or to boiling water for five minutes in case the steam is not available. Expose, if possible, in bright sunlight from one to three hours.

The milk room should receive careful attention with respect to cleanliness. It should be clean, light, well ventilated and free from objectionable odors. The separator should be cleaned each time it is used and not allowed to stand with milk in it. Flushing the separator with warm water does not remove the slime and milk constituents from the sides of the bowl. This slime is a suitable food for bacteria, and as a result of their rapid growth the contents of the bowl becomes a starter for the warm, fresh milk of the subsequent milking. The types of bacteria which develop here are largely those found in the manure, filth, etc., which get into the milk at the barn. Not only should the separator and its parts be kept clean, but also all equipment with which milk comes in contact. The room where milk or cream is stored or held until churned should also be clean and dry and free from bad odors, such as those from decayed or decaying fruit or vegetables, as well as odors emanating from the kitchen when meat or vegetables are being cooked. All of these odors are absorbed by cream or butter and result in objectionable flavors. The damp, musty cellar is not a suitable storage room, but a light, cool, dry and sweet-smelling cellar is often very satisfactory. Whitewash, drainage and ventilation often make an objectionable cellar a desirable storage room.

The uniformity in the appearance and attractiveness of butter is greatly increased by the color. The most desired color is that produced in butter in June, when cows are having a large amount of green, succulent feed. Butter makers endeavor to maintain a uniform color throughout the year by the use of butter coloring. The amount of coloring varies with the season, but is usually at the rate of one to one and a half ounces to each 25 pounds of butter. The color should be added to the cream just after it has been put in the churn and before churning is begun.

The printing and packing of butter is the first and most important step in preparing it for market, and should be given careful attention.

An attractive and convenient package is an advertisement in itself, and will aid in the selling of the goods. Good butter in attractive packages can usually be profitably marketed. The packages now in use among farmers packing butter are crocks, paper boxes, parchment papers, cartons, dishes, buckets and pans. The use of some of these packages make attractiveness and convenience impossible. The most desirable and attractive forms of packages are the three, five and ten-pound crocks, and one or two pound prints wrapped in parchment paper.

The equipment for butter making should consist of a boiler, milk pails, hand and floor brushes, wash suit, milk strainer, cream separator, milk cans, floating dairy thermometer, cream-ripening vat, tank for cold water, cream strainer, cream strainer, barrel churn, butter worker, butter jallies, scales or spring balances, butter prints or parchment paper or other butter packages and butter delivery bob.

For Commissioner First District—C. B. Cox.

For Commissioner Second District—W. Y. Atchison.

We commend the above county ticket to the voters for their thoughtful consideration.

Each and every one is too well known to the people of this county to need any praise at our hands. They are men of recognized business ability, and will render a just and economical administration of the county affairs.

A. B. C. mediation—a blasted conference.

Let everybody pull for a safe and sane Fourth.

The Colonel stated before bidding the people of Great Britian adieu that under no circumstances would he be a candidate for Governor of New York. He did not say, however, that he would not be a candidate for the Presidency in 1916.

And now comes Geo. W. Perkins, the high priest and generalissimo of the corporate interests and right hand man of Roosevelt, and tells us that the Bull Moose party is not a one man affair. Bah! George, you know better than that.

Gratifying reports come from all parts of the state of the prospects of a big cotton and corn crop. The refreshing showers last week were pretty general, and gave sufficient moisture to insure a rapid growth. All growing crops in this county are in splendid condition and prospects were never brighter for a bountiful harvest.

Had he who gave utterance to the words, "The way of the transgressor is hard," resided in Jefferson county, Alabama, in this day and generation his time-honored expression would doubtless have been, "The way of the Coroner is hard".

Big, Busy, Bustling Birmingham is always after something. This time it is for the location of one of the two large universities to be established in the South by the Southern Methodist Church. Of course, as in the case of the Reserve Bank, Atlanta is to be her competitor, but the progressive, hustling citizens of Birmingham are determined to give Atlanta a run for her money.

Another instance of the inconsistency of the Bull Moose leaders was shown at the committee meeting in Birmingham Tuesday. After adopting a resolution stating that they did not desire to fuse with any other party, the committee turned right around on the heels of this action and adopted resolutions endorsing the candidacy of W. O. Mulkey, a democratic candidate for Congress from the Third District.

We are in receipt from Congressman Fred L. Blackmon of a copy of the 1913 Year Book of the department of Agriculture. Mr. Blackmon states that only a limited number of these books are alloted to each Congressman, a quantity not sufficient for general distribution, but he will be glad to mail any one a copy of the document on application so long as the supply lasts. The document contains more than 500 pages of valuable information of interest to the farmer.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found a list of the appointments of the Board of Registrars of Chilton county. We earnestly hope all voters who have not heretofore availed themselves of the opportunity of qualifying for citizenship and who believe in the principles of democracy, will meet the board at their appointments. The prospects of democratic success in November never looked brighter, but we should not be content with mere victory, let's roll up such a majority that the leaders of the Bull Moose party in this county, whose supreme desire is their lust for public office will be buried beneath the political sod so deep as to leave no doubt in the minds of the most skeptical that they are dead beyond all power of resurrection. See your neighbor and impress upon him the necessity of registration.

Money for Moving Crops.

It used to be that about this season of the year talk of tight money was heard in New York on account of the vast sum required for moving the crops. In August and September there was usually a great strain on the banks, but last year, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo relieved the situation by announcing a plan of lending government money to the banks in the agricultural districts for crop moving purposes. He said that he could easily lend $50,000,000 and that he stood ready to lend even more if the banks needed it.

The total amount loaned by the Secretary of the Treasury in 1913 was $37,386,000. It was distributed to 92 cities in 28 states. Mr. McAdoo renews his offer this year, but the Southern and Western banks have so much money available that little or no government money will be needed.

The country is producing bumper crops, and an enormous sum of money will be used in the crop moving months. It speaks well therefore for the sound financial condition of the farming sections that the banks have so much cash that they will not have to avail themselves of Uncle Sam's proferred aid. Such a condition puts a bright aspect on the business situation in general. Business improvement will continue, and with the record breaking crop money that will be put in circulation in the early fall prosperity will have a wonderful sweep.

The above, taken from the Age-Herald, shows that the Democratic party [illegible]

Making a Home.

The home is spiritual, but it arises through the vehicle of the physical. We may not be able to track it down to any one material aspect. Sleeping under one roof does not make a home; eating together does not make a home; gathering about a common lamp or a common fireplace does not; possibly even children in a nursery cannot make a home. We may eliminate one or another of these and still keep the spiritual thing that we prize. Sometimes we must eliminate, when the very multitude of its outward signs blur the real meaning—you cannot see the woods for the trees. But a proverb usually needs a supplementary gloss, and in this one it should be added that without trees there will be no woods. And so, in the case of the home, if in one extreme there is danger of submerging its significance in the mass of its physical expressions, there is at the other extreme the danger of dissipating significance through a paucity of physical expression.—Elizabeth Woodbridge, in the Atlantic.

Dictionary Defect.

A business concern, after running its own trade organ for some time, decided that it must have a printing department under its own supervision, because it found that "the ordinary printing office is not properly equipped to get out large quantities of special matter on short notice in an up-to-date manner and at an 'equinomical' cost." Soon after one partner turned to the other and inquired, "Do you spell 'e-q-u-e' or 'e-q-u-i' in 'equinomical'?" "I am not sure," said the other. "Look in the dictionary." After some search the first said with pained surprise, "Taint here." The second came to help him, but had no better success. Then they stared at each other in astonishment, till one exclaimed: "Well, what do you think of a man that would get up a big dictionary like that and not put in such a common word as 'equinomical'?"

Feeding Your Brain.

The great French Archbishop Monseigneur Dupanloup wrote understandingly about work: Let a woman have two hours a day of serious mental occupation, during which the faculties of her mind will regain their balance, all her powers will be systematised, her tired head will be rested, and her good sense and judgment will regain their empire. Her exaggerated state of feeling will be subdued, and peace will dwell in her agitated heart."

These are golden words. Maternal duties become overwhelmingly monotonous even when practised with that conscientiousness which alone can give them charm. The care of the home and those in it is a delightful privilege, but it cannot completely occupy the powers of the average woman who has brain and imagination.

SALEM WITCHES NOT BURNED

Popular Delusion Is Frequently Referred to by Writers Who Should Know Better.

Prof. George L. Burr has written a book on witchcraft in which he reminds people—and most of them need the reminder—that Massachusetts was not the only American colony that had witchcraft persecutions in the seventeenth century.

In New York there is an account of the trial as a witch of a woman from Setauket, L. I.; in New Hampshire there was a case tried at Great Island; in Pennsylvania one important case tried in Philadelphia, and there were also some cases in Virginia.

It is a curious thing people in general can never get over the delusion that people were burned for witchcraft at Salem. Every little while we see some newspaper or literary reference to the "burning of witches at Salem." Witches were hanged at Salem, but none was ever burned.

By the way, a distinguished legal authority has examined the evidence used in the witchcraft cases at Salem, and declared that it was conclusive—all of the accused had every opportunity to clear themselves, but they would not, and so carried their secrets to the grave. [illegible]

CITIZENS OF PUBLIC SPIRIT

Men and Women of Tennessee Village Completely Renovate Schoolhouse in One Day.

To make an old schoolhouse just as good as new in one day would seem an impossible undertaking, but that is what was accomplished recently in one of the rural towns of Tennessee. A band of teachers, pupils and normal school students undertook the task and presented themselves at the school at 8 o'clock in the morning, armed with shovels, hoes, axes, carpenter's tools, paint, whitewash and soap. They were also thoughtful enough to bring along a photographer, who took a before and after picture, which showed the surprising results of their work.

The building at 8 in the morning was in a disreputable condition. It was hardly possible to use it for school purposes. But the workers began operations and nailed on boards, painted the building, built a chimney, cleaned up the rubbish, washed the floor, renovated the entire interior, built a bookcase, tinted the walls and hung pictures. The school district supplied new desks and by 4 in the afternoon the old schoolhouse was completely transformed.

The entire cost of the renovation was $33, with which the following items were purchased: Twelve gallons of paint, five gallons linseed oil, four paint brushes, a half bushel of whitewash, $2 worth of weather-boarding and lathing, two pounds of nails, four window shades, material for calico curtains, four pictures, several books and an American flag.

The men and women workers declared that they had the best kind of a time working together. The people of the neighborhood furnished them with a picnic dinner at noon. It is planned to repeat the experiment in other parts of the state.

COTTON CROP IN FINE CONDITION

RAINS FALL IN EVERY SECTION OF NORTH ALABAMA AND CROPS IMPROVE.

HAY AND GRAIN DOING WELL

Corn Needs More Rain Yet—Other Grains Would Profit by More Precipitation

Birmingham. — Rains have fallen in every section of North Alabama within the last week and crops are on a boom. The waterfall has been too light in most places to allow the farmer to speak of it as a "season."

Cotton is in splendid condition. The dry period forced the plant to thrust its roots deep into the ground for moisture. When the rain came, it was ready to take a spurt in substantial growth and formation. The tendency of the weather to keep up a somewhat gloomy appearance for a few days proved beneficial, in that it allowed the moisture time to worm its way into the surface before being drawn up by hot sun.

Corn needs more rain yet. It needs a season—some real good downpours. The weather still has a rather damp feeling, and the farmers look for more rain this week. They say cotton would be greatly helped. Other grains and hay would profit by more precipitation.

Gardens were badly hurt by the drouth, but they have improved wonderfully since the showers. Gardeners and truck farmers are pretty well able to supply the demands. Vegetables, however will need more rain within a few days.

Some sections of the State have fair fruit crops, while other sections are reporting rather bad years. Northeast Alabama is claiming a fair crop, while Northwest Alabama reports that fruit in that section is practically a failure.

EMBEZZLEMENT IS CHARGED.

Treasurer of Cullman County Is Alleged to Have Made Away With County Funds.

Montgomery.—State accounts of J. D. Searcy, treasurer of Cullman county, against whom warrants have been issued charging embezzlement, were correct in the office of the governor. Searcy went to Birmingham and secured certified checks for $25,000 on a road bond issue of his county. He is alleged to have cashed two checks for $5000 and disappeared. The governor has not sent a state examiner to check over the books of the missing treasurer, and probably will not do so unless a request for such action is made. The alleged peculations were related wholly to county funds.

Birmingham. — Warrants charging embezzlement have been issued against J. D. Searcy, county treasurer of Cullman county, and R. M. Smith, and an injunction restraining the Jefferson County Savings bank from paying out any funds to the credit of Searcy, as treasurer of Cullman county, until further order of the chancery court, has been issued from the chancery court. The warrants were issued by Judge H. B. Abernethy on the affidavit of G. S. Leeth, one of Searcy's official bondsmen. Mr. Leeth also filed the petition for the injunction in the chancery court. The injunction was granted by Judge C. W. Ferguson of the city court, and made returnable to the chancery court. The bill for the injunction was filed by Attorneys Helley and Halley for the complainant.

In his complaint Leeth alleges that prior to June 10, 1914, the county commissioners of Cullman county sold $35,000 worth of bonds for road improvements through Otto Marx & Co., of Birmingham. On June 10, he alleges, Searcy came to Birmingham and Otto Marx & Co. paid him $25,000. He alleges that Searcy deposited the money in the Jefferson County Savings bank to the credit of J. D. Searcy as county treasurer of Cullman county.

NEW JAIL FOR JEFFERSON.

Prison Inspector Oates Has Talk With Board of Revenue.

Birmingham.—Following a conference behind closed doors between Dr. W. H. ANOTHER HIGHWAY TO CAPITAL.

Anniston-Montgomery Prize Via Sylacauga Is Under Consideration.

Sylacauga.—A movement has been started by some of the principal business and leading professional men of the town to put sylacauga in favor of a state highway from Anniston to Montgomery. This would put Anniston and points along the line of travel with this section. It is believed the Anniston [illegible]

TWO WARM RACES IN THING

Candidates in Contests for Long and Short Terms in Congress.

Montgomery. — Beginning the final week of the two campaigns for Congress in the Third district will be entered upon by the various candidates for the long term and short term in Congress. For the short term the candidates are J. J. Speight of Eufaula and W. O. Mulkey of Geneva. For the long term nomination the candidates are Thomas S. Frazer, Union Springs; Judge A. A. Evans, Clayton, and Henry B. Steagall of Ozark.

Because of the publicity recently given to the race for the short term by the Speight-Mulkey controversy that race has attracted much interest and will be watched closely by politicians in all parts of the State. In view of the circumstances surrounding this race, it is really a State question that will be settled by it. The action of the Third District Congressional committee in nominating Mr. Speight and the subsequent action of the State Democratic Executive committee in nullifying the action of the district committee will be carried to the Supreme Court for settlement, the Supreme Court in this instance being the vote of the people of the wire grass.

In the race for the long term nomination all three candidates seemed to be running close and it is hard to pick a winner. All three candidates have strong and powerful followings.

WOULD GIVE WARRIOR $75,000.

Report on Rivers and Harbors Bill Made.

Washington.—The Senate report on the rivers and harbors bill increased the House appropriations for the Black Warrior river for locks and dams from $500,000 to $750,000. The Senate also increased the appropriation for the Tennessee river from Chattanooga to Browp's Island from $150,000 to $250,000. The report made no change from Riverton to the mouth of the river, but from Brown's Island to Riverton it increased the House item from $120,000 to $250,000.

There was also an added sum of $150,000 for preliminary work in connection with the Muscles shoals.

This appropriation foreshadows, it is believed, the possibility of waterpower development at Muscle Shoals, which if finally decided upon will commit the government to one of the greatest waterpower projects in the world. For years the Muscle Shoals project has been before Congress. The possibilities there for great waterpower development are immense, and if the enterprise is pushed to a completion it will be the biggest developed power plant in the world, even greater than Niagara Falls.

Senator Bankhead also introduced a bill to restore to public domain Rock Island in the Coosa river, in St. Clair county. The island consists of about three acres and the Bankhead bill gives the government the right to overflow this land for navigation purposes.

TO HOLD BOND ELECTION.

Citizens Will Vote for or Against Civic Improvements on July 27.

Bay Minette.—A bond election was called by the town counil of this place at their meeting for July 27, at which time the citizens will vote on the matter of having water, sewerage and electric lights. The election was announced only after the council, through the advice of an expert consulting engineer had carefully investigated the matter of the improvements, and found that the town was able, at the consent of her property holders, to float bonds to install all three advantages.

STATE BRIEFS.

A census of school children will be made in July.

It was reported that Marbury is to have a new oil mill.

Thomasville is to have a water works system, work to start at once.

The Frisco has placed that order for 32,000 tons of rails with the Ensley mill.

CONDITION FINE FOR BUSINESS

Declare Business Men In Letters and Telegrams to President of United States.

THERE IS NO "DEPRESSION"

According to President's Advisers, They Say Business Is Improved. Future Is Bright.

Washington.—President Wilson, Secretary Tumulty and other white house officials are immensely pleased with a large number of letters and telegrams reaching them from business houses throughout the country direct contradicting the impression that has been spread forecast that business is suffering from depression and is likely to become worse if proposed trust legislation is not pigeon-holed and other alleged irritating causes disposed of. These communications are in response to the action of the president in making public certain circular letters directed to bring influence to bear on congress to sidetrack trust legislation.

If President Wilson's idea that depression is a "state of mind," is correct, then the letters indicated that the president, by his recent remarks, may have inaugurated a different "state of mind" in the business world. At any rate, the writers of the letters assert there is more noticeable improvement in the business world in the last few weeks than for months before and that the records of the great majority of business houses show better business for the past six months than for the six months before that.

MANY LIVES LOST

Two Hundred and Fifty Men Entombed in Mine.

Lethbridge, Alberta.—A mighty explosion entombed 250 miners employed in mine No. 20, of the Hillcrest Collieries, Limited. Of the fifty miners rescued, only fourteen were living.

Despite the efforts of two score mine experts laboring amid the poisoned gases and debris, hope of rescuing alive the 200 men yet in the mine was remote.

The effect of the disaster were:

Men in mine when explosion occurred, 600, of whom 350 escaped.

Number rescued, 50, of whom 36 died later.

At dusk a group of women stood at the mouth of the mine, which had been closed by the explosion, still hopeful that the cries for help that issued from the inner workings earlier in the day might be repeated. Later, however, many of the women dispersed, expressing the general feeling that the situation of those imprisoned was hopeless.

U. S. WILL NOT YIELD

Success of Peace Conference Seems Hopeless.

Niagara Falls, Ont.—Justice Lamar's memorandum to Emilio Rabasa, head of the Mexican mediation delegation, announcing that the United States must insist on the acceptance of its plan for the pacification of Mexico, is an ultimatum.

Unless the Huerta delegates yield, mediation will end. This is the firm determination of the United States as conveyed to the mediators. Ambassador Da Gama of Brazil and Minister Suarez of Chile, asked the American delegates if their position had changed in view of the Carranza-Villa split, and the reply was no.

Washington.—Hope that the wavering mediation program still might bring peace to Mexico was expressed by Argentina Minister Naon as he took the train for Niagara Falls, after a series of conferences with President Wilson and Secretary Bryan and Luis Cabrera of the Washington agency of the Constitutionalists.

Railroad Sues Wagon Driver.

Newark, N. J.—As the result of a collision between a team driven by F. V. Wilkinson and an Erie locomotive, the road sued Wilkinson for $100 damages because "divers slats" of the cowcatcher of the engine were broken, the paint on the locomotive was bruised and the track "strewn with litter."

Dyer of St. Louis Unseated.

Washington.—L. C. Dyer of St. Louis (Rep.), representing the Twelfth Missouri district, was unseated by the house by a vote of 147 to 82. His election was contested by Michael J. Gill (Dem.).

New York Democrats Silent.

New York.—The Democratic state conference in session in New York mustered only one vote for a proposition that the party place itself on record at the primaries as either for or against Tammany Hall.

Oldest Senator Celebrates.

Washington.—"Uncle Ike" Stephenson, the oldest senator, celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday by appearing in the senate chamber wearing a bright red carnation.

REBEL LEADERS RECONCILED

BREACH IS HEALED BETWEEN VILLA AND CARRANZA—DIFFERENCES ADJUSTED.

Campaign Against Huerta Will Be Continued With Villa as Chief of Army.

Saltillo, Mexico.—General Villa's resignation as commander of the Constitutionalist army of the central division has not been accepted and the threatened breach between General Villa and General Carranza has been averted, according to a statement from General Carranza's headquarters.

It was reiterated that representations of the strained relations between Generals Villa and Carranza had been greatly exaggerated, and that Villa would go immediately to Zacatecas to direct the assault on that town.

It was announced that five thousand men had left Torreon for Zacatecas and that 3,000 more would leave later.

El Paso, Texas.—Gen. Venustiano Carranza and Gen. Francisco Villa failed to deny that their relations had reached the breaking point. Neither did agents of the Constitutionalist leader or of his field commander attempt to give reasons for the ousting by Villa supporters of all Carranza appointees in the offices at Juarez.

URGES IMMEDIATE PASSAGE.

Bill to Prevent Combine of Big Electric Interests.

Washington.—Urged for immediate passage to curb a giant combination of electric interests, the bill for the development of water power in connection with the use of the public domain, one of the measures on the Democratic program for conservation legislation, was reported to the house Tuesday by the public lands committee.

The measure, the report explains, would preserve to the people ownership of all public lands available for hydro-electric purposes and provide for their leasing, and would inaugurate an era of activity and progress in the development of water power possibilities.

Atlanta Negro Loses Out.

Washington.—For the first time in more than twenty years, the office of recorder of deeds of the District of Columbia is to be administered by a white man. The resignation of Henry Lincoln Johnston, the Atlanta negro, who stepped down and out at the request of President Wilson, is effective July 1, following which Robert W. Dutton, a white man, will succeed temporarily to the duties of the office. Dutton has been deputy recorder several years.

Defends Income Tax Law.

Washington.—Representative Hull of Tennessee, author of the income tax act, in a statement Tuesday declared that after careful observation of the operation of the income tax law, he feels "no reasonable doubt as to its successful administration."

Federal Control of Railroads.

Washington. — Senator Newlands, chairman of the interstate commerce committee, Tuesday re-introduced his bill for the federal incorporation of railroads. He first introduced it in 1909. "The recent decision of the Supreme court in the Shreveport rate case and the proposed legislation for the regulation of the issuing of stocks and bonds show the trend is to place the entire jurisdiction over railroads under the federal government," he said.

Jones Favored for Governor.

Washington.—Thomas De Jones of Chicago, nominated Monday for the office of governor on the federal reserve board, was still in official circles on Tuesday, to be the president's choice for governor of the board.

PROLONG MEETING

Hope That Something Will Turn Up To Solve Complexities of The Situation.

MAY RECESS FOR A WEEK

In the Meanwhile They Will Search For a New President For Mexico.

Niagara Falls, Ont.—Instead of adjourning abruptly, as expected, the mediation proceedings will be prolonged perhaps for another week.

The change was brought about as a result of the visit of Minister Naon, of Argentine, to Washington, where he conferred with President Wilson and Secretary Bryan. Dr. Naon brought back a spirit of optimism and some new ideas which he imparted to Ambassador Da Gama, of Brazil, and Minister Suroza, of Chile.

The determination reached is to keep the meditation board from formal adjournment, though there may be a recess in another week or while the search is continued for persons eligible, according to the ideas set forth in the conference, for provisional president of Mexico.

Although no definite plan has been framed, all parties expressed a wish to make renewed effort to effect a compromise.

There is every reason to believe that the friction between Carranza and Villa and the report that General Huerta intends to retire in favor of Pedro Lascurian affected the mediators in their decision. The possibility of developments in Mexico in the immediate future, which might change the entire aspect of the problem here, also has been taken into consideration.

El Paso, Texas.—Gen. Venustiano Carranza has forwarded his reply to the two notes of June 2 and 5, sent him by the mediation commissioners at Niagara Falls, it was learned here. According to information here his reply to the A B C mediators was sent to Constitutionalist headquarters at Washington to be forwarded to Niagara Falls.

While thanking the mediators for their efforts, General Carranza made plain, according to word reaching here, that among the subjects he considered it impossible to discuss are the proposed armistice, military movements of the Constitutionalists, the agrarian question and the designation of a provisional president of Mexico.

WAR ON CORRUPT POLITICS

Bill Introduced in Senate to Eradicate the Machine.

Washington.—Senator Owen called upon his Democratic colleagues in the senate to remember the plank in the party platform calling for the "extirpation of corruption, fraud and machine rule in American politics," and offered four bills designed, he said, to bring about the needed reforms.

"If," he said, "the Democratic party leaves the country under the machine rule system, with the door open to fraudulent practices in nominating senators and congressmen, after its solemn promise to the people, it undoubtedly will receive severe condemnation.

"No senator would venture to say he thought it wise to permit corruption in our election machinery," said Senator Owen. "But," he continued, "no individual seems to feel charged with the responsibility of preparing the necessary measure and urging its passage. I propose, therefore, a resolution charging the committee on privileges and elections with this duty, in the hope that it may meet with sympathetic co-operation."

Theatrical Manager Loses His Life When He Enters Cage.

Chicago.—Emerson D. Dietrich, manager of a theatrical production presenting a troupe of trained lions, was killed and partly devoured by six lions when he entered the car in which they were caged.

While the keepers were recovering Dietrich's body a lion escaped from an adjoining cage and terrorized the residents of the thickly populated quarter in which the car stood.

Many New National Banks.

Washington.—In the period between November 1, 1913, and June 18, 1914, 105 national banks were authorized to begin business, the comptroller of the currency reported. Thirty of the new national banks were formed by the conversion of state banks. During the same period fifteen national banks were absorbed by other national banks, six were reorganized and forty-nine were absorbed by state banks. This leaves a net decrease of thirty-two national banks.

To Investigate Whitney Trust.

Washington.—A bill providing a plan for making loans temporarily from the postal savings funds was introduced in the house by Representative Sabath of Illinois. It provides for an investigation by the Interstate commerce commission of the Whitney Central trust and savings bank of New Orleans, now in the hands of receivers.

Senor Luis Cabrera, one of the Carranza junta in Washington, is considered one of the brainiest men connected with the constitutionalist cause. He was made a member of Carranza's provisional cabinet.

BIG UNIVERSITY FOR DALLAS

COMMISSION OF THE METHODIST CHURCH REACHES THIS DECISION.

University Board Passes Resolutions Severing Their Connection With the Methodist Church.

Birmingham, Ala.—Dallas, Texas, will get the Methodist university to be located west of the Mississippi river according to formal announcement of a special commission named at the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, recently held in Oklahoma City, which is in session here. The commission was empowered to handle the situation growing out of the break with Vanderbilt university.

The location of the school of theology and the university to be located east of the Mississippi has not been decided upon.

University Takes Action.

Nashville, Tenn.—That the general conference of the Southern Methodist church, meeting recently at Oklahoma City, have voluntarily terminated its relations with Vanderbilt university and voluntarily renounced all rights it had, or may have, directly or through any agencies to confirm the election of members of the board of trustees of the university, and that it is now the right and duty of the board of trustees to fill vacancies in its body without requesting or receiving the confirmation of the general conference or any of its agencies, is the sense of a resolution adopted at Tuesday's meeting of the board.

ASSESSMENT WILL BE MADE TO PAY SALARIES

No Funds Available to Pay Salaries of Members of Federal Reserve Board.

Washington.—Comptroller of the Treasury Downey decided that the federal reserve board, after it comes into existence, immediately must levy an assessment on member banks to defray the salaries of board members and employees. An appropriation of $100,000, much of which is still unexpended, was made for the use of the organization committee, which has set up the new banking system, but Mr. Downey held that money was set aside especially for organization and cannot be utilized after the system is regularly organized.

MUST SHOW VOTERS

Vague Promises Will Not Bring Republican Victory.

With Its Present "Standpat" Leadership the People Are Not to Be Blamed for Their Distrust of the Organization.

It strikes the Republic that the voter would like to know what ground there is for supposing that the Republican leopard will change its spots, if the people decide to return its leaders to power, as Senator Borah recently promised. The signs of any such turning toward an unwonted virtue are difficult to discern.

In congress the leadership of the party has not changed. James Mann heads the Republican forces in the house. He is the same Jim Mann who has trained with the regular Republican machine ever since the Fifty-fifth congress. He was faithful and true in the days of Cannonism; he stood pat when the leadership which Senator Borah says wrecked the party was actively engaged in managing it.

In the senate, Root, Lodge, Gallinger, Penrose, Smoot and all that is left of the old guard continue to head the party and the Republicans of Pennsylvania have nominated Penrose for another term. Gallinger has announced that he will be a candidate for re-election in New Hampshire. Joseph Foraker is asking Ohio Republicans to send him back to the senate after a prolonged vacation, and Uncle Joe Cannon has his hat in the ring.

There is a quartet—Penrose, Gallinger, Foraker and Cannon—who evidently believe that the Republican party of the future is the Republican party of its present leadership and also the Republican party of the past, which kept them in office to do the bidding of protected monopoly.

Is there any reason for accepting the rosy predictions of the senator from Idaho against the judgment of these old foxes of Republican politics?

Is there reason for thinking that Senator Borah's hope is more substantial than the recorded fact that Penrose is the Republican candidate for the senate in Pennsylvania?

If there is any such reason, the publisher accounts of the senator's speech fail to reveal them. All of the evidence available points to the conclusion that the Republican party today is the same organization it was in July, 1912, when it stood on its record, now repudiated by the reorganizers. The men who are professing an intention to reform the Republican party are the men who wish to see it in the saddle in Washington, and, making all due allowance for the sincerity of Senator Borah, they are to be judged by their evident motives.

Of course, having taken a sound thrashing, they promise to sin no more, but before they are believed by anybody they should bring forth fruits meet for repentance. Up to date their overt conduct gives no evidence of a change of heart.—St. Louis Republic.

Wilson His Own Cabinet.

Mr. Wilson has been his own foreign minister, as he has been his own cabinet. The Mexican policy is his policy. He must accept blame for whatever happens, and to him will be accorded the credit if he brings about peace without having forced his own country into war. He has put his impress upon the state department, as he has upon all the other departments of the government. He controls congress. He dominates Washington. He is the most masterful figure American politics has known—as determined as Jackson, but with the persuasion and tact that were foreign to Jackson's nature. He has done things. Among the men to whom the White House is a background there is no more interesting study, none with nature more perplexing, none whose future defies prediction. Time will deliver the verdict.—Century Magazine.

Failed to Back Criticism.

If there were any considerable number of Republicans and Progressives in the house of representatives who believed that the administration anti-trust bills would become disturbers of business and breeders of litigation these quondam prophets of evil showed a woeful lack of the courage of their convictions. The vote was practically unanimous on two of the measures, while the opposition to the third was composed of less than ten per cent of the total membership of the house. The critics of the measures were either dishonest in uttering their forebodings or dishonest in their voting—probably, in respect to both.

DIDN'T CLOSE THE WINDOW

Impulsive Man Had Not Sufficiently Reasoned Before He Undertook the Task.

It was a balmy day, but too many windows were open in some of the street cars. One man, who had a cold, was especially annoyed by an open window next to the seat in front of him on a westbound Euclid car. He leaned over and spoke to the man who was sitting by the open window.

"Excuse me, sir," he said, "but that open window is too much for the rest of us."

"I'm sorry," answered the other, "but I guess you'll have to stand it."

"I wish you would close it at once, sir!"

"Can't accommodate you."

"Do you mean to say that you refuse to close the window?"

"I sure do."

"If you don't close it, I will."

"I got a bet that you won't do anything of the kind."

"I ask you once more, sir, will you close that window?"

"No, sir, I will not. What are you going to do about it?"

"I'm going to come over to do it myself."

"I'd like to see you try it."

"Oh, you would, would you? Well, I'll show you."

That was the first move of the game. The objector went over and began tugging at the window, while the whole car watched his prowess. But the other man said:

"Well, why don't you shut it?"

"It—uh appears uh—to be stuck."

"It is stuck. I tried to close it before you came in. Now go back and sit down."

But the other fellow didn't. He got off the car.—Clevéland Plain Dealer.

WORSE THAN 'TALKY' BARBER

Jim's Sad Experience With Deaf and Dumb Wielder of the Keen Blade.

Here is one that was told by Prof. W. W. Daniels of the interstate commerce commission, in substantiation of the old saying that one may go farther and fare worse:

Some time ago a fellow-citizen rambled down the street looking as if his face had been run through a cornsheller. There were patches on his cheek, patches on his chin, and other jabs and scratches intervening. Down on the corner he met a friend.

"Holy Smoke!" exclaimed the friend, sizing up the lacerated party. "What have you been doing with yourself, Jim?"

"It happened this way," explained Jim. "I got good and tired of talking tonsorial artists, and hearing of a shop where there was a deaf and dumb barber, I started out to investigate.

"Did you find him?" wonderingly interposed the friend.

"Yes," was the sad rejoinder of Jim, "and this is what he did to me while trying to shave me and talk with his fingers at the same time."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Microphone Detector.

In France an ingenious application has been made of the microphone in order to detect firedamp in mines. This is the principle of the application:

If sound waves from two pipes of equal pitch impinge on microphones connected in series with a telephone, a clear note is heard; but if one of the pipes emits a slightly different note, beats will be heard in the telephone. Here is the application:

One pipe is placed in the mine, the other above ground, and they are blown simultaneously. If the air in the mine is charged with firedamp, it will produce a different note from that produced by clear air, owing to the difference of density, and in consequence a series of beats in the telephone gives warning of the presence of firedamp. The same apparatus is very sensitive to the presence of coal gas.—The Sunday Magazine.

Road to Promotion.

All employes look forward to the day when they will gain promotion—when their wages will be raised, and they will be given greater responsibilities and more authority.

Too many employes set the day of their promotion upon the basis of the time they have been with the institution. That is wrong basis. Time is eternal and it is cheap. There is an over-prediction of it.

To be worthy of promotion you must make good—do your work, fit for the next, so matter how humble. Some day you expect to be weighted with responsibility and clothed with authority to give orders. Regardless of the line of your employment, you must demonstrate that you have the strength to carry responsibility.

Before you are entitled to give orders, you must demonstrate your ability to take orders and to execute them.

CLANTON PRESS

PUBLISHED IN THE INTEREST OF CHILTON COUNTY AND HER PEOPLE

VOL 5. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY JULY 2, 1914 NO. 13.

POSTMASTER DUDLEY GETS INCREASE IN SALARY

Beginning the first of this month the salary of the Clanton Postmaster was increased from $1700 to $1900 a year. The salary of the Postmaster is based upon the receipts of the office, and this raise is but another indication of the wonderful growth of Clanton, not only of Clanton, but of all contigious territory. When Postmaster Dudley was appointed twelve years ago, the office occupied a very small space in a store building and only paid $65.00 per month, with no allowance for clerk hire. There was not a rural route in the county, and the patrons were put to a great inconvenience of going miles for their mail.

But what do we find today? The Clanton post office has been moved from its once obscure position to an up-to-date brick building, equipped with all modern conveniences, including electric lights etc., a building that would do credit to a town much larger than Clanton; the receipts of the office have almost quadrupled; eight rural carriers leave the office each morning, going in all directions, and carry the mail to more than twelve hundred families. The total length of the eight routes is about 200 miles, and if put together in one road would reach to the Gulf of Mexico.

The office now pays a salary of $1900, with $50 a month clerk hire and $30 additional for rent and lights.

This splendid service the patrons are now enjoying was commenced several years ago by Mr. Dudley and Hon. Syd Bowie (then Congressman) and has been continued by Dudley and Congressman F. L. Blackmon, until now there is possibly no county in Alabama that has a more excellent service of rural delivery.

During the incumbency of Postmaster Dudley a number of reforms have been inaugurated, which played their part in bringing the office up to its high point of proficiency.

Three of the rural carriers make their daily rounds in automobiles, and Mr. Dudley hopes before he goes out of office to see all carriers with cars, as well as other improvements carried out, thereby bringing the service up to the highest standard of excellence.

FARMERS UNION COUNTY CONVENTION

A trip to the Farmer's Union County Convention at Union Grove last Wednesday would have been time well spent for any farmer, Unionist or non-Unionist. Many great truths were forcibly and convincingly presented by Ex-President Morris, President Ford, Secretary Kennedy, Prof. Hapdy, Mr. Conway and others.

Ex-President Morris in his talk resembled one of the fearless champions of liberty and progress who fought for emancipation of the farming class years ago in Europe.

Why is it that we as individuals are so indifferent in the work that such men are carrying on in our interest? Unless we see a material benefit to be gained in a direct way, we usually keep very impassive and inactive toward the movement. Hardly anyone will deny that the better prices in selling and buying, obtained in the last few years, are due to a great extent to the activities of the Farmers Union and if it's members would stick closer to it and adhere to its principles, we would see much better results from its operation. There is no information or education so valuable to us as that which we get through the Union. It comes nearer in touch with our material life than any other knowledge we may acquire. But usually all good theories or plans to be carried through requires sacrifice. So long as we are not ready with means to back them up, we can not expect to accomplish much. It takes money to do business right in a co-operative organization as well as in anything else. There are some countries where the farmers supply themselves with practically everything they use down to manufacturing the material from which they build their houses. They had to raise funds to bring it up to that of course, but it is money well invested. It will take us some time to get that far, but we could do a few things without much delay to better conditions. We could start to regulating our crop system to better advantage, and it seems that we could make arrangements for fertilizer supplies on a cash basis. Nitrogen, for instance, for which we pay so much now, supplied direct should be much cheaper, especially after the Panama canal comes into general use. About four-fifths of the air is composed of nitrogen; it ought not to be so expensive.

Come to the meetings of your local to get information and give information. Let us try to make the meetings interesting and instructive.

"OPSKITS VIEWS ON THE HIGGINS HOUSE PARTY"

Ma was in the kitchen early er Thursday mornin, er cookin and er sweatin
Pa was down in the new ground field, bizzy plowin cotton and er frettin,
I wus er flyin er round, choppin wood and er milkin the cows
Out in the barnyard under the spreadin oak tree boughs.

When of a sudden we all herd the honk of an autymobeel horn
Pa sez now Joe, hurry up, yest kin sell some o that green corn,
'Twus no use to hurry me, fur I was anxious to hear and to see,
I took the corn, hurried to Mineral Springs and clum a tree.

Theer presently er around com the chauffeur (Mr. Higgins) a little man,
But hoopee! folks, he drive that kar to beat the ban.
Yes, twus a house party er sorts, the fust to arrive wus Mrs. Guy Higgins,
She furnished all the eatest together with pots, pans and cedar logging.

They jest kept comin, thur wus a nice old man (Grandpa Fuller)
From the tree top I soon found he proved a good puller.
Ha! ha! no sirree, they didn't forgit to bring Mrs. Brennin (or Grandma)
'Twus fun to watch her make them kids march to the tune of tra la.

Thur now, lest I, that's the name er beingin of the baby
Itmade my eyes blinkenty blink, to see such a sweet little lady.
How I gnarled and squinted, to see all them cityites,
They screamed, skipped up and down wus'n kites.

One tall girl (Izora) they called her Zodie Cat,
I knowed her fer she's jest lack her pap,
Thurs one er smilin all the time, 'tis Rilla,
Now, I knowed about sick, she lives in a great villa.

One little black eyed girl, they called her Willie Belle,
The pranks them cityites played on her won't do to tell.
Look, one has a kerchief tied er round her shoe, that's Pauline,
If she is somewhat stout, she aint the least bit mean.

Thur's one with brown hair and eyes, her name is Dalene,
She looks so fresh in muslin, lace and linene,
The youngest one in the crowd they called Kathleen,
She was the maroon, 'cause she was so spry and clean.

Among the second day comers, wus one they called Lilla Belle,
She was little and low, but down to the spring she'd go pell mell.
That pretty one from foreign parts, Miss Mary Will,
La me, the mockin birds is no whar compared to her trill.

They brung along some boys too, that plump one, Burton,
I herd them girls say, "don't you furget, he is uncertain."
Ha! ha! thurs a jolly fellow, no wonder, it's "City Hog,"
My me! did you ever see the beat, he kin hop wus'n a frog.

Thure one er spozein er round in Panama pants, Omer Herd,
Let me whisper to you, believe me, he is a gay bird.
Look yonder at that chap er struttin er round in knee tights,
Yes, I knowed him up to town, in the drug store, 'tis Hoke Piper.

When I clum the tree Friday night, thur wus Oliver Mullins,
Done come out to pose er round and see about the cullins.
On Saturday night my eyes seen some folks from Fluridy state,
They must er traveled in a mighty long and rapid rate.

I mus'n't fergit to tell you of the comin of "Aunt Sally,"
She came all the way from Birmingham to keep tally.
Them cityites didn't fergit to duck Uncle Fen Jones,
One little Miss also did pull him out in time to save his bones.

I tell you that house party made Mineral Springs ring,
Fer at night them cityites didn't fergit to sing.

AUBURN NEWS.

The new "Auburn" catalogue, that is being mailed out to the high school graduates is well illustrated and gives full information concerning the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. There are cuts of the different buildings and views of the campus, shops and laboratories.

Among the notable improvements has been the erection of the wireless telegraph station and the establishment of a course in wireless telegraphy in the department of electrical engineering. Another notable change has been the advance of fourteen units, or four years of high school work, as the requirement for admission to the freshmen class in the regular degree courses.

The enrollment of the past session was 820, from sixteen states and five foreign countries. In the college of engineering there were 201 students; college of agriculture 325; in Veterinary Medicine 69; Pharmacy 68; Architecture 38. President Thach states that the spirit of the work for the past year was the best in the history of the Polytechnic Institute.

PROSPERITY

Gamble Hardware Co. received a full car of stoves last week which makes two cars of stoves, not including a few local shipments, since October 3rd, last year. By carload buying there is a great saving in the cost, and the customers of this good firm receive the benefits. We are directed to say that they will sell stoves on time, due October 1st.

We understand from the manager, Mr. C. F. Jones, that they have received Thirty full Carloads of Merchandise since January 1st. This is evidence that Chilton county, the town of Clanton and Gamble Hardware Co., are in a prosperous condition.

MUSIC TEACHERS ARE ELECTED

On last Monday night, we, the Trustees of the City High school of this place met for the purpose of electing two music teachers for the next term. After considering all the applications on file the board unanimously elected Miss Carrie Mae Wilson of Birmingham, Ala., who comes highly recommended by the Sherwood Conservatory of Music, and Miss Flowers of Clanton, Ala. We feel sure in having secured these teachers we have secured two of the best music teachers that could be had for the money at our disposal, and feel sure that they will give entire satisfaction.

BELIEVE IN YOUR HOME TOWN

If you live in town you should believe in it. If you don't believe your own town or city a little better in most respects than any of its neighbors, you should move out. Like other places it has advantages that others have not, and your modesty should not prevent you from making that fact known whenever an opportunity presents itself. At home or abroad, whether pursuing pleasure or engaged in business, do not neglect to give those whom you come in contact with to understand that you live in a live town, populated by enterprising, wide-awake, go-ahead people, and one that is advancing instead of retrograding. If you can truthfully speak in commendation of the ability of your professional men, the square dealing methods of your merchants, the superiority of your churches, schools and public institutions, and industry, energy and sobriety of your citizens, let nothing prevent you from exercising that privilige. You should learn to believe if you don't already, that we have all these and in addition the best located town, the finest country surrounding it, with the most intelligent class of farmers to be found. If there are any draw backs it will not be necessary to mention them. The people of competing towns will relieve you of that task by attending to that part of it themselves. Strangers seeking locations are always greatly influenced in favor of any town whose citizens are enthusiastic in its praise. No city or town expects to attain prominence over its rivals unless its inhabitants appreciate the excellence and virtues of each other and will collectively spread abroad their faith in the present prosperity and future greatness of their locality. Talk is a cheap commodity, but when rightly utilized it can be made effective in many directions, and this is one of them.—Goodwater Enterprise.

ODD FELLOWS ORGANIZE AT THORSBY

On Wednesday night of last week Thorsby Lodge No. 588, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, was duly instituted by Dr. James Sharp of Birmingham, Special Deputy Grand Master, assisted by members of the order from Clanton and Union Grove. The new Lodge was organized with 26 members, nine by card and seventeen by initiation, with glowing prospects for a prosperous future.

TO THE COUNTY BOARDS OF EDUCATION

STATE OF ALABAMA,
DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

Montgomery, Ala., July 1, 1914

A number of communications have come to this office from teachers and superintendents asking whether attendance at summer training schools exempts a teacher from the duty of attendance at county institutes.

Inasmuch as the law places the responsibility of interpreting this provision of the statute upon the State Superintendent, you will pardon a word or two in this connection.

"It is made the duty of the State Superintendent of Education to cancel the certificate of any teacher who may fail to attend an institute for a period of not less than four days in each year, unless such teacher shall secure a written excuse signed by the county superintendent and approved by the chairman of the county board of education, or unless such teacher may convince the State Superintendent of Education that he has attended for a period of not less than three weeks during the current year some educational institution, during which time he was engaged in the work of professional training, either as a student or a teacher, or unless he is the holder of a life certificate.

Almost without exception the work done in the summer training schools in Alabama is projected and intended to prepare teachers to take the state examination, and therefore cannot in any sense be interpreted to relieve their students of institute attendance.

The state of Alabama is spending $6500 yearly upon their county institutes, and the duty of bringing to the state adequate returns for this expenditure rests upon you.

Some county and city boards of education, and I commend them for it, will not employ teachers who fail to attend their county institutes, even though they hold life certificates or have attended institutes in other counties.

When the institute law was enacted, it was presumed that the holders of life certificates had attained the degree of professional pride that would inspire them to attend the county institutes and therefore an exemption was made in their case. In a few instances, however, it appears that holders of life certificates have not shown quite the attitude toward our institutes that was expected, and I wish to urge that county and city boards of education consider the attitude of all applicants toward attending at county institutes before contracting with them, including the holders of life certificates.

This can in no sense be considered as a hardship, for our pro-

CROP CONDITIONS IN STATE BETTER

CORN, HOWEVER, FEELS EFFECT OF DROUTH, ACCORDING TO REPORT.

WEEVIL IS GAINING GROUND

Hopeful Sign to Note the Great Attention Being Paid to Diversification Methods.

Montgomery. — The latest weekly report of the State Department of agriculture and industries relative to crop conditions throughout the State sounds a most optimistic note. The department's report for the past week is based on numerous reports received from farm demonstrators in Alabama.

According to the agricultural department, the drouth has been general and, as a consequence, the crop has been rather seriously affected. However, it is expected that the corn crop will prove on the whole, most satisfactory.

"It is a hopeful sign to note that great attention is being paid to diversification methods and the progressive farmers in all portions of the State are vying with each other in varying their crops under the improved system which the national government and the State have inaugurated and which is being carried into such profitable effect," says the department's report.

Boll weevils are gradually entering new territory in Alabama and the fight between them and farmers in this State has already begun, if reports received from the department's demonstrators and collaborators be correct.

"The one stubborn and pervading foe to be met and grappled with is the boll weevil," said Commissioner Kolb. "Since our report a week ago its presence has been noted in several new counties and we have every evidence that the invasion is gradually but surely extending. It is animating to feel that the work of destruction being wrought by this pest is not being done without arousing its victims to every resource of resistance and prevention.

"We are constantly receiving letters from all sections of the weevil-infested zone upon lines of discovery and suggestion. This department has not officially endorsed any of the many remedies that have been proposed for fighting the weevil. It adheres to its orignal advice of picking and destroying the insects whenever and wherever found. At the same time we are not insensible to the fact that it is possible some better method than this may possibly exist and that it may hereafter be discovered."

TRY CHAMBERS SHERIFF JULY 22.

Impeachment Proceedings Will Begin on That Date.

Montgomery. — Impeachment proceeding against Sheriff John W. Lane of Chambers county, will begin the supreme court on July 22, according to an announcement of the court. Notice of the articles of impeachment were served on Sheriff Lane by Grady Noble, who returned to Montgomery from Chambers county.

Sheriff Lane is charged with corruption in office and with the commission of offenses involving moral turpitude. The proceedings have been brought by Attorney General Brickell at the request of the governor, who was informed of Sheriff Lane's conduct in office by a delegatoin from Chambers county.

BARBOUR WILL BUILD ROADS.

County Is to Have Nearly a Month of "Good Roads Days."

KEEP UP FIGHT TO SAVE POPE

Governor May Be Asked to Commute Sentence.

Anniston.—Still another chapter may be added to the famous case of Ervin Pope, who has been sentenced to hang on August 21 for the murder of J. R. McClurkin, the well-known Oxford miller and planter, as the attorneys or the negro are now considering an application to the supreme court to reopen the case, or else a petition to the governor to grant a commutation to life imprisonment.

Pope was sentenced to death five times by Calhoun county juries and the supreme court reversed these verdicts on four occasions, the fifth death sentence imposed by the Anniston City court was upheld by the higher tribunal and August 21 was set as the date for Pope's execution.

MULKEY'S MAJORITY OVER 1,300.

Practically Complete Returns Give Steagall 962 Majority.

Dothan. — W. O. Mulkey's majority over J. J. Speight in the election for Congressman for the short term from the Third district will probably exceed 1,500, and what at first looked like a close race, turns out to be an overwhelming victor for the wire-grass man. Practically complete returns give Mr. Mulkey the following majorities: Geneva county 722, Houston county 787, Dale 419, Henry 400, Coffee 38.

Speight's majorities are Barbour county 501, Lee 268, Bullock 48, Russell 40.

Practically complete returns give Henry B. Steagall the nomination for the long term as Congressman from the Third district by 962 majority over both his opponents.

BOOKS OF ALL FOUND CORRECT BY EXAMINER OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS.

STATE CAPITAL HAPPENINGS

Doings in and Around the State House Chronicled for Our Readers.

—Montgomery.

Officials of Pike County have kept their books and records correctly and conducted the affairs of their offices as directed by the law, according to the report of Examiner W. F. Wilkinson, filed with Governor O'Neal. Not a single complaint was registered against any of the officials or their systems of keeping records and handling of monies.

The officers and period of examination were: A. C. Edmondson, judge of probate, August 1, 1912, to April 1, 1914; W. A. McBryde, sheriff, July 1, 1913, to January 1, 1914; T. C. Spradley, tax assessor, 1911-12-13; V. A. Gibson, tax collector, 1911-12; Charlie Cox, clerk of the circuit and law courts, August 1, 1913, to August 1, 1914; Charles F. White, ex-superintendent of education, October 1, 1912, to October 1, 1913; Key Murphree, treasurer Troy Normal College, October 1, 1912, 1912 to June 24, 1914; and L. M. Bashinsky, county treasurer school fund, October 1, 1912, to October 1, 1913.

Appellate Courts' Special Session.

Immediately after the first term of the 1914 session had ended by statute, the supreme court called a special session and continued the consideration of cases appealed from lower courts.

The court of appeals ended its term at the same time, but before doing so transferred to the supreme court several cases under an agreement whereby the supreme court considers 60 and the court of appeals 40 per cent of all cases.

On the last day of the first session the supreme court handed down 50 opinions and 12 rulings on applications for rehearings. The court of appeals decided 15 appeals and made 13 rulings of applications for rehearings before ending its labors.

The supreme court's special term probably will continue two weeks or longer.

Paroled After Serving 20 Years.

Fifty years for stealing 50 cents. That is the sentence that a Hale county jury imposed on Frank Williams, a negro, who in 1894 robbed another negro of a half dollar. After serving more than 20 years of the 50-year sentence, Williams has been paroled by Governor O'Neal.

It was not the amount stolen, but the method used in obtaining the 50 cents that brought about Frank Williams undoing. He was charged with highway robbery, and although his misdeeds netted him only the paltry sum mentioned, he was sentenced to serve 50 years in the State penitentiary.

Negro's Hanging Held Up By Court.

The hanging of John Ragland, a negro, at Decatur, for uxoricide, has been held up pending the action of the supreme court on Ragland's application for rehearing. He was to have been hanged June 19, but the certificate was recalled when the petition for rehearing was filed.

Paid $1,864,036 in Taxes.

Citizens of Jefferson county paid the State $1,864,046.57 as taxes during the last fiscal year. P. B. Bowers, tax collector of Jefferson county, has closed his book for the year and made a final settlement with the State auditor.

Of the total collections, $734,161.19 was given to the general State fund; $132,489.89 to the soldiers and $397,496.79 to the schools. Mr. Bowers' commissions from State taxes were $14,841.35, while F. A. Hewitt, tax assessor last year, was paid $9,240.57 for making assessments.

Major Scott on Retired List.

Maj. D. M. Scott of Selma, one of the most prominent members of the Alabama National Guard, tendered his resignation to Adjt. Gen. Joseph B. Scully. He requests that he be placed on the retired list with the rank of major. He has served as major-quartermaster since April 17, 1907, and is one of the oldest officers in point of service in the National Guard. General Scully has complied with Major Scott's request and has issued an order placing him on the retired list.

Sheriff Sparks Resigns.

Governor O'Neal appointed John Lewis of Guntersville as sheriff of Marshall county to succeed J. E. Sparks, resigned. The appointment of the new sheriff was made suddenly and its announcement was made in connection with it.

No reason for the resignation of Sheriff Sparks was announced at the office of the governor.

The change is effective at once. Mr. Lewis, the new sheriff, was highly recommended to the governor by prominent citizens of Marshall county.

Former Sheriff Sparks resigned, but nothing was learned as to the reason. He was recently tried before the federal court of Gadsden on a white slave charge, but was acquitted. It is rumored that several of his bondsmen have recently removed their names from his official bond, but whether or not this action had anything to do with his resignation was not made public.

Commission Wins Against Auditor.

Salaries of members on the State tax commission must be charged to the general fund, and the special fund of $35,000 provided by the legislature for the carrying on of the commission's work need not be used in paying commissioners' salaries. This decision of the supreme court marked a victory for the commission and a loss for C. B. Smith, State auditor.

The commission wanted the special fund for operating expenses. State Auditor Smith contended that salaries should be taken from it. The commission, through Robert C Brickell, attorney general, asked the City counrt of Montgomery for a writ of mandamus and it was refused. They appealed, the case was made a preferred one, and three weeks from the date of the trial in the lower court the supreme court reversed and remanded the case.

Justices Sayre, Gardner and Somerville dissented.

Force of Fuller Bill Outlined.

Liquor may be shipped from another State into dry territory, if it is not for use in violation of any law, according to the Alabama supreme court's construction of the Webb law passed by Congress. It has dissolved an injunction granted by a Morgan county court because the Southern Express company showed that a shipment of liquor was not intended to be used in violation of the State law.

The test came up when the State obtained the injunction which prevented the express company from storing liquor in its warehouse at Decatur. The supreme court said the Webb law took away interstate protection of liquor, but did not intend to affect shipping when the goods were not to be used illegally.

In making the ruling the supreme court again declared the Carmichael and Fuller prohibition laws to be operative in counties where the vote of the people has not substituted the Parks local option and Smith regulation laws.

Failed to Return Property.

A threatened race riot in the vicinity of Laverne resulted in the loss of a batch of military property, according to former Captain W. H. Stoddard of Company I, First regiment, who was sued by the State in the City court for failure to deliver to his successor certain property of the State. The former official says the men failed to return guns and other property with which they were dispatched at the time of the trouble.

The State sued for $1000 damages and Judge Gunter took the case under consideration.

With the hearing of the case and the taking up of the motion docket by Judge Gunter the docket of the present session of the civil division of the City court was practically completed.

Widow May Get Pension.

If the wido wof an Alabama Confederate pensioner dies the pension which she is entitled to during her lifetime may be used in paying funeral and other expenses. This was the supreme court's ruling when it refused to reverse the judgment of the City court of Montgomery. John Purifoy, State treasurer, refused to pay a pension because it was endorsed after a widow's death. Charles B. Teasley, judge of probate of Montgomery county, requested a writ of mandamus and won. Treasurer Purifoy appealed the case. Only one pension can be collected after the widow's death, and the same provisions are operative as in the case of a Confederate soldier.

SENATE CONFIRMS RESERVE BOARD

TWO OUT OF THE FIVE MEMBERS OF THE BOARD ARE HELD UP.

WARBURG MAY WITHDRAW

Thomas D. Jones of Chicago Tells Committee of His Relations With Alleged Trusts.

Washington. — The nominations by President Wilson of three of the five members of the Federal reserve board —Charles S. Hamlin, W. P. G. Harding and A. C. Miller—were confirmed by the Senate.

The nominations of Paul M. Warburg of New York and Thomas D. Jones of Chicago, have not been acted upon by the banking and currency committee and probably will not be before the end of the week. It was stated that Mr. Warburg would ask the president to withdraw his nomination, but Acting Chairman Hitchcock of the banking committee telegraphed an invitation for him to appear and submit to the committee's questions. It was suggested, however, that Mr. Warburg probably would decline the invitation and that this would be followed by an announcement from the White House that the nomination had been withdrawn.

Mr. Hamlin, Mr. Miller and Mr. Harding take the oath of office within a few days and the work of setting in motion the new federal banking system can begin at once. The secretary of the treasury and the comptroller of the currency are ex-officio members of the board, which consists of seven members. The five will constitute a quorum to do practically all preliminary business.

Mr. Jones was before the committee for nearly four hours to tell about his relations with the International Harvester Company and the New Jersey Zinc Company, both so-called trusts. He was questioned at length by the members. No proposal was made to vote on a report to the Senate on his nomination, but is regarded as probable that if approval is given it will be a close vote.

Senator Hitchcock was authorized to give out information secured from Mr. Jones. His report in substance was.

Mr. Jones was asked about his relations to two large business enterprises, one of which was the International Harvester Company. Mr. Jones said he became a director of that company in April, 1909, purchasing one share to qualify, at the request of Cyrus H. McCormick, an old friend. He said he fully approved all the actions of the company since he became a director and believed that they were proper and within the law. Mr. Jones also announced he is in accord with the company's policy and said he had nothing to lose or gain by the decisions of the courts in the anti-trust suit in the Harvester case.

Prior to 1897, Mr. Jones told the committee he owned and was president of a zinc company at Mineral Point, Wis., capitalized at $400,000, which came to him and his brother in satisfaction of a debt. This company was taken over by the New Jersey Zinc Company, then capitalized at $4,000,000, and the Jones brothers were given $900,000 in stock of the New Jersey company for their $400,000 in the Wisconsin company. The New Jersey company acquired other properties and increased its captial to $10,000,000.

KILLS FOUR WITH AXE.

Crime Committed in Suburb of Chicago.

Chicago. — A family of four was wiped out by blows from an axe in their home in the German settlement at Blue Island, a suburb. The victims were Jacob Nesiesla, 72 years old, street sweeper; Mrs. Anna Nesiesla, wife of Jacob, 65; Mrs. Martha Mansfield, 24 years old, daughter of above; 2-year-old daughter of Mrs. Mansfield. Bloody finger prints on the axe handle were photographed, showing a thumb. Searches were instituted for Richard Mansfield, husband of Martha Mansfield, who is alleged to have deserted one year ago, and for Michael Cheppwinkle. The latter was compelled to vacate the Nesiesla house three weeks ago by the landlord in order to make way for the new tenants. He is said to have uttered threats against the landlord and Nesiesla. Mansfield has not been seen in Blue Island since he left his wife.

Twenty-nine persons have been murdered in the last three years in Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Iowa and Illinois by blows from axes.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Dark Parks and Bashful Moon, Lovers Spoon

ASHINGTON.—At times Harry will be found with his head in Minnie's lap, with Minnie smoothing his damp brow and fanning him. Again, Frank and Florence may be more ardent, or the night may be cooler, and he will have his strong arm pressed protectingly around her shoulders. In this arrangement Flo always rests her slightly tinted cheek on Frank's clean shirt just below the collar. Frank then has a blush coming to him when the boys ask him what happened to his shirt. Positions without number may be assumed by these spooning couples, some even preferring to walk along the shaded paths with their hands tightly clasped or their arms twined like ivy across each other's shoulders. A fortunate investigator has reported that he has discovered a couple, Sally, weighing nearly 310 and Archer, size, two and six-eighths, which invariably assumes the position of Sally-on-the-lap-of-Archer.

Taken as a whole this class of spooners is an interesting one for the curiously inclined. We have them, and the police have not rid us of them, so why not study them from a zoological or anthropological point of view? Specimens might even be secured and mounted. A new fad! Let's start it.

Oh yes, stranger, those wide, cool, open green squares and triangles known as the parks of Washington are inhabited. In broad daylight we see nurse and tiny children enjoying the protecting shade, but at night—ah at night—we do not see the denizens of the park, who are enjoying the protection of darkness. How do we know there is any one there? We fall over them.

Can any one venture into Lafayette square or Franklin park or Lincoln park or any dark place provided with benches these summer evenings without feeling the presence of these amorous mortals who sit close together for coolness and utter such gentle foolishness as "Uzzy-wuzzy umpume-tweet-tweet" for recreation? They are there and they are there to spoon. Be sure to "fall over them" for the results are most amusing.

It is hard to get a satisfying glimpse at some of them. Poor timid things, they fly far apart at the approach of a prowling squirrel and delude themselves into hoping that no one could ever guess that he had actually gotten so far as to put his arm around her. Others are more experienced, or more self-absorbed, and can be approached with safety by the investigator if he is careful not to chuckle aloud.

Says Capital Policemen Always Have Manners

"OF COURSE, Pittsburgh may need a school of manners for her policemen as she does for some of her millionaires. Washington policemen have their manners before they get on the force."

Maj. Richard Sylvester smiled grimly as he read the dispatch from the Smoky city reciting the frantic attempts being made to civilize the police. Director of Public Safety C. S. Stebbard, the report said, is going to have classes where young cops will learn to be kind to dumb drinkers and prudent automobilists.

"How about a course like that here?" was suggested to the major. "Teach policemen to cut out the rough work with burglars and thugs and always speak gently to second-story workers."

The major pondered the idea for a moment. Then he branched off.

"If we Washington policemen," said he, "were in the habit of maltreating citizens, this town would be in a furore inside of twenty-four hours. About every third person in Washington is a diplomatic attache or a public official.

"Can you imagine what would happen in this city if the police force developed the habit of clubbing military attaches and chiefs of government bureaus?"

The interviewer passed the buck.

"You see," continued the major, "policemen in Washington have civility preached them before they get on the force. I believe that Washington policemen have more tact than the police of any other city in the country. If they use too much force—get too free with their clubs—they quickly appear before the trial board."

When Little Boy Met the "Man of Importance"

A MAN of importance—you can always spot him by his "air"—was favoring the White House neighborhood with his stately tread when a small boy stopped him. He was such a tiny boy as to still be wearing white kilts and a shiny red belt, and he talked with a baby lisp. In his outstretched hand lay a dead sparrow.

"Make him go—" The child said it as imperatively as if the important man were his very own daddy—"I picked him up and he won't go—Make him fly—far."

To be requested to make an exceedingly dead bird fly is too much to ask of any man of importance.

"Throw that thing back in the street. How do you suppose I can make it fly?" said the "Man of Importance."

"Wine him up. Wif a key—"

Perhaps he was an unfortunate man whose overimportance had hindered him from an acquaintance with little children and wound-up toys, for he hastily flung the proposition aside and resumed his stately treading.

And perhaps—again—he would have been ashamed of himself if he had looked back and seen the tiny kid with the bird in his outstretched palm, and on his face the bewildered hurt at doubtless the first rebuff he had ever received in all the four years of his life.

It is not a particularly brilliant achievement to bring tears to a child's eyes even from a human point of view, but suppose—

Suppose it is really and practically true that—somewhere—the tears of the innocent are really counted against those who cause them to be shed!

Fishing for Pastime and an Incidental Income

FISHING is a pastime and an incidental income, or rather, outgo, with a large number of the people of Washington. Every traveler along the banks of the rocky reaches of the river above Washington has probably noted the signs "Bait for Sale," "Boats for Hire" and other signs put up for the benefit (perhaps) of prospective fishermen.

There is a little industry, though, in Georgetown to which the writer wishes to call attention. As the city cars outbound reach the intersection of Thirty-sixth and Prospect streets, at Thirty-sixth street and Prospect avenue, or, at any rate, the point where soft drink signs are posted all over the old Southworth cottage, nimble boys tempt passengers with masses of wriggling worms. These boys in piping tones are saying, "Fish worms," or "Fresh worms." They have their merchandise in a battered tin can and they hold it so that the squirming worms wriggles partly in the can and partly outside of it. The boy. He is displaying his wares and he wants to prove to you that the worms have plenty of wriggle in them. He has a handful in his hand and he pleads with you to buy them.

If you have enough of them to feed all the fish in the river it may be that the fish eat them for their worm meals, and that their appetite is pleased, there is no accounting for tastes.

Many fishermen pause at this point in the city's thriving trade and buy

IRELAND FEARS CIVIL WARFARE

The Members of Volunteers To The Nationalists' Organization Is Increasing Rapidly.

HOME RULE VOLUNTEERS

Are Poorly Equipped But They Are Looking to Irishmen in America for Aid.

London, England.—With every week of suspense in the settlement of the future government of Ireland the menace of the military preparations by the Ulster and the home rule volunteers increases. The present tendency among the volunteers of the South is to accept leadership by the Nationalist party which John Redmond offered them. Thus led, there would be a clear division of home rulers and anti-home rule men into hostile armed camps. The very dangers of a bitter civil war which such a prospect presents, furnishes the best safeguard for peace.

Increased in Numbers.

Dublin, Ireland.—Estimates of the number of the Irish Nationalist volunteers vary between 80,000, which is the Dublin Castle figure compiled by the police, and a quarter of a million, which is the estimate given in platform speeches. Careful inquiry shows that there are 50,000 in Leinster, which takes the lead, about 45,000 in Ulster (increasing rapidly), 35,000 in Munster and 25,000 in Connaught.

The great question which confronts the Nationalist volunteers is how far their American sympathizers are likely to come forward with funds for their arms and equipment.

THREE KILLED BY BOMB

Score of People Also Injured in New York Apartment.

New York.—Three men and a woman were killed when a dynamite bomb, said to be the most powerful ever used in this city, exploded in an apartment tenanted by Industrial Workers of the World. The upper part of the six story tenement house in which the bomb was being made, was wrecked.

A score of persons were seriously injured and much property damage was done in a wide radius from the scene of the explosion.

Fights U. S. Beef Trust.

London.—The corporation of the city of London is holding a private inquiry into the alleged control of the English meat supply by the big American beef companies. It was proposed at a recent meeting of the corporation that the development of these companies be clipped by placing a limit upon the number of stalls they may hold in the Smithfield market, but upon adverse report by a special committee, it was decided not to interfere.

Fight on Waterway Bill.

Washington.—Although congress is really interested in only two subjects, passage of anti-trust legislation by the senate and adjournment, a handful of Republican senators expect to inject a little life into the matter, of course proceedings of that body before the sessions end, and promise to make a particularly hard fight to prevent the passage of the river and harbor appropriation bill.

Presidential Election in Mexico.

Mexico City.—Elections for president, vice president, deputies and senators were held in parts of the republic controlled by Huerta. In Mexico City there was almost no voting and indifference was manifested everywhere. General Huerta appeared favored for the presidency, and General Blanquet, the war minister, for the vice presidency.

Reported Huerta Will Resign.

Washington.—Unofficial advices have reached Washington that Pedro Lascurisan, formerly secretary of state in Madero's cabinet, would be chosen to succeed General Huerta as president of Mexico, and that Huerta, resuming his former post as chief of staff of the army, would be dispatched to a foreign post, probably France.

Reports Huerta Alliance Reported.

Vera Cruz.—It is rumored here that an alliance between Provisional President Huerta and Emiliano Zapata, the revolutionary leader, will soon be formed. Most Mexicans regard such a combination as inconceivable because of the long enmity Zapata has borne Huerta, who, under Madero's rule has the hardest fight he ever had. But the report brought here appears to leave little doubt that Huerta has entered into negotiations with the Morelos chieftain.

JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN

Joseph Chamberlain, distinguished statesman of England, who died recently at his home in London, after a lingering illness. He was a member of the British parliament and a man of prominence in the affairs of his country.

MEXICAN REBELS WARNED

REFUSAL TO JOIN MEDIATION MIGHT CAUSE INTERVENTION BY UNCLE SAM.

Breach is Widening Between General Carranza and General Villa According to Reports.

Washington, D. C.—Carranza agents here have been told to picture the possibility which might follow intervention in Mexico by the United States. They have been reminded, it is said, of the dreams of thousands of Americans for one solid nation from the Canadian border to the Panama canal, and urged to appreciate how public opinion might force the American flag to wave for years at least over Mexico should it once be hoisted in the capital.

Reports continue to reach Washington of the widening of the breach between Villa and Carranza.

A B C Mediators Quit.

Niagara Falls, Ont.—An indefinite recess of mediation was decided on by Ambassador Da Gama of Brazil and Ministers Suarez and Naon of Chile and Argentina, respectively.

JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN DEAD

England's Leading Statesman Passes Away in London.

London.—Joseph Chamberlain, one of the most striking figures in British politics in the past generation, died at his London home. His death came as a surprise. He had been suffering with paralysis, yet the condition of his health was not known to be any worse than it had been for the past three years.

The cause of Mr. Chamberlain's death was officially announced as heart failure. Although he had been gradually sinking for several days, members of the family had decided his condition should not become publicly known.

DOCTOR ROJAS, MINISTER FROM VENEZUELA, DIES

President Attends Funeral Rites of Deceased Diplomat.

Washington.—Last tributes of respect to the memory of the late Dr. Pedro Ezekiel Rojas, minister of Venezuela, were paid by official Washington. President Wilson, members of his cabinet, the supreme court, the diplomatic corps, members of the congressional foreign relations committees and other officials attended funeral services at St. Matthew's church, after which the body, escorted by troops, was placed aboard the Dolphin and taken to Hampton Roads. There it was transferred to the battleship Kansas and conveyed to LaGuaira, Venezuela.

Naval Stores Suit Dismissed.

Savannah, Ga.—The dissolution suit brought by the government against the suspended American Naval Stores company, charging the company with being a monopoly in restraint of trade, was dismissed when a consider of dismissal was handed down by the court. It was signed Judge Sheppard, June 27. The petition of the government charged that the company and the dominant spirit, Joseph Abbott, controlled approximately [illegible]

TASK TO DEMOCRATS

Should Work to Correct Wasteful Expenditures.

Changes in the Present System of Making Appropriations Are Imperative and Cannot Be Undertaken Too Early.

In the matter of wasteful congressional expenditure the Democracy must do exactly as it did with the tariff and the currency. It built from the bottom up, on new and sound principles. It did not try to do what the Republicans had done, and simply do it a little milder or more reasonably; it took a new start. Our system of appropriating public money is called such by courtesy. We have had no system; there has been no co-ordination between the taxing and the spending end of the government. If a commercial corporation were run with as little attention to the relation between income and expenditure, it would be handed over to the sheriff within six months.

Here is a task of the first magnitude which can be vigorously prosecuted with no danger of "alarming the country" or disturbing business conditions." One paean of joy would go up from Key West to Seattle and from Fire Island to San Pedro if it were announced that the congressional leaders had set themselves actively to work out the problem of governmental economy. Nothing would more surely and more vitally assist in the recovery of business from the ill effects of the drought and the European period of hard times.

This is not partisan effusiveness. The Republic challenges contradiction of the statement that the administration leaders in congress have proven their ability to disregard selfish considerations in legislation. The tariff bill swept away favoritism to the sugar interests in Democratic Louisiana. Prophecies were freely made that Oscar Underwood's steel-making constituency would find ways to moderate the application of the Democratic principles to the metals tariff and that the Democratic senators from the wool states of the West would bring to nothing the efforts to reform the wool schedule, but they were proved false.—St. Louis Republic.

Valuation of Railroads.

The valuation of railroad lines is in progress, conducted either by public authority or by experts employed by the corporations themselves. The Lehigh Valley, for instance, has recently had its property appraised by an expert whose report is to the effect that its true valuation is $324,000,000. This works out at $278,898 per mile, exclusive of equipment. Such figures are revelations to those congressmen who talk glibly of reproducing railroads at half the current estimates of their capitalization. In a region similar to that served by the Lehigh Valley, railroad-building comes high. Cities and towns are traversed and local real estate values govern the cost of location. The modern line must be better built than was the railroad of 30 years ago, has heavier roadbed and rails, and crosses rivers and highways on bridges of steel or concrete. There is a four-mile stretch of railroad within a short distance of Boston to build which "spoiled the looks" of $1,000,000, long and deep rock cuts and overhead crossings playing their parts in piling up the total.—Boston Transcript.

The Single Term.

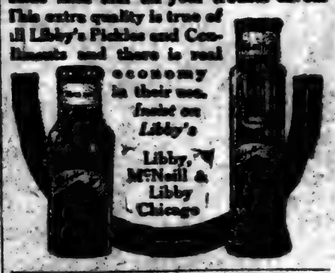
It takes time to amend the constitution of the United States. The amendment providing for a six-year presidential term with no re-election must be pushed with vigor if it is to be adopted before 1916.

Resolutions for such an amendment are pending in both houses of congress. It is doubtful, however, if either is in form for final passage. The prohibition must be made absolute. No man who has served six years in the presidency before the adoption of the amendment should be eligible to election afterward. This must be made so clear that it cannot be misconstrued.

Only in this way can the country get a chance to attend to its proper business, universal by Bull Moose bawling.

The amendment must be scrutinized with care before it is sent out to the states, but it must not be delayed. The first state election held after the coming session of congress should have a chance to pass upon this matter. There must be no loss of time and no lack of clearness in translating the anti-third term tradition into constitutional law.

The Last Man.



The last man on earth to talk about your business ever should be the man who was president in 1912.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"How are things going with the football team?" the father asked, pretending to be seeking information. "The Cornell football team!" the young man exclaimed with all the disgust that he could put into his tones; "it has been beaten by everything except the Colonial Dames!"

HIT THE SPOT.

Postum Knocked Out Coffee Ails

There's a good deal of satisfaction and comfort in hitting upon the right thing to rid one of the varied and constant ailments caused by coffee drinking.

"Ever since I can remember," writes an Ind. woman, "my father has been a lover of his coffee, but the continued use of it so affected his stomach that he could scarcely eat at times.

"Mother had coffee-headache and dizziness, and if I drank coffee for breakfast I would taste it all day and usually go to bed with a headache.

"One day father brought home a pkg. of Postum recommended by our grocer. Mother made it according to directions on the box and it just 'hit the spot.' It has a dark, seal-brown color, changing to golden brown when cream is added, and a snappy taste similar to mild, high-grade coffee, and we found that its continued use speedily put an end to all our coffee ills.

"That was at least ten years ago and Postum, ever from that day to this, been a standing order at father's grocery bill.

"When I married, my husband was a great coffee artiste, although he admitted that it hurt him. When I mentioned Postum he said he did not like the taste of it. I told him I could make it taste all right. He smiled and said, try it. The result was a success, he even began praising hot Postum.

The income tax gatherer is the least of the average newspaper man's worries.

Elsewhere in this paper will be found a call for a meeting of the County Democratic Executive Committee. There is important business to come before the meeting, and every member should make it his bnsiness to attend.

We are indebted to our good friend, Dr. J. E. Gowan, for a trip in his car last Sunday afternoon over the new state aid road, being constructed south of Clanton. Mr. W. H. Wynne of Dadeville, has the contract for building six miles of this highway, and the work is being rapidly pushed. The road has been graded and put in good shape to a point about three and one-half miles from town, and as soon as the dirt becomes firmly packed it will indeed be a dream to travel over.

The State Normal School at Jacksonville has just closed a very successful year. 446 teachers were enrolled from 47 counties. This school has been sending teachers into the rural districts for many years and it has accomplished a vast amount of good by this means. President C. W. Daugette manifests some pride in the fact that his alumni are holding some of the most important positions in the state, there being count yauperintendents, probate judges, circuit clerks, teachers in high school and public schools, lawyers, doctors and business men.

GOOD ROADS WORK

In view of the coming meeting of the Good Roads association in this city in October, it will be quite interesting to note the fact that nearly $150,000,000 was expended for road work in the United States during 1911, according to estimates made by Good Roads of New York City. Of this amount nearly $50,000,000 is shown by the figures in the annual review of good road building in the current issues of that period to have been expended [illegible]

From the information gathered during the past few months it is estimated that the amount which will be spent for road improvement during 1914 will exceed $250,000,000, and will be greater than that ever before spent in any one year.

Since the beginning of the movement for the improvement of roads through state aid, over two decades ago, state after state has embraced the principle, until there are now over 30 commonwealths in the nnion which have organized state highway departments, through which aid, either financial or otherwise, is extended to the towns or local units.—Montgomery Journal.

PLEASANT GROVE

Everything is moving along nicely in this part of Chilton. The farmers have just enjoyed a refreshing shower which made them feel the gratitude their Maker has toward them. Most everybody will soon have their crops laid by.

A picnic was enjoyed by a large crowd the Fourth in a beautiful little grove on the farm of J. G. Wright, the music being furnished by P. Turner and the Cofer band. We want to extend our congratulations to the boys for their good music

The forenoon was spent gliding around the grove, listening to the charming music and drinking cold drinks, furnished by J. P. Nix and H. R. Wright.

After the dinner was served a very interesting ball game was played between Pleasant Grove and Macedonia. The game closed with the score eight to six in favor of Pleasant Grove. We wish to congratulate the Pleasant Grove pitcher for his nice work done when the two giant batters, Gibson and Nix were called to the bat. We also wish to thank both teams for their good playing, although the Macedonia boys were a little surprised when H. Wright and T. Cooper made a two-base hit off the ex-champion pitcher, Langston, in the second ending; but that is all right, old Macedonia, you have some stiff little players that make us all enjoy playing.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

FOR STRENGTH AND GRACE

Proper Training of Boy's Muscles Is Something Worth Highest Degree of Consideration.

In the American Magazine Dr. Charles K. Taylor of Philadelphia writes an interesting and practically helpful article entitled "Your Boy and His Muscles," in which he gives suggestions as to proper exercises for young boys. Following is an extract from his article:

"First of all, when a child is in a poor condition of which the basic cause is some remediable physical defect there is little use in giving special exercises until the defect is removed. For instance, breathing exercises cannot be nearly as effective as they should be for a child suffering from large adenoids, nor can you expect good results when a child has some physical irritation inducing nervous effects of different kinds. Above all, you should always know the state of the child's heart. If the heart is good, and if there are no serious remediable defects to interfere with your obtaining good results, then you can take up the matter of special exercises with some degree of confidence.

"When you find just where your boy is lacking, whether in chest expansion, shoulder girth, arms, and so on, or perhaps in posture, if he is hollow-chested with shoulders bent forward, then you can take up the exercise suggested for the different needs. And right here is a word of caution, which will be repeated now and then. Never carry an exercise beyond the time when fatigue begins. Do not continue it to exhaustion; but when the boy begins to feel tired stop at once, if it is only after two or three motions!

"It interests the boy a great deal, too, to keep account of his physical measurements. If these are taken once a month his interest is kept up, and he is stimulated when he finds that he is actually gaining. Finally, do not carry on a special exercise after it is no longer necessary. What you desire is a good, all-around development, and when this is attained special work should cease and general exercise be carefully continued. It should be said, too, that such work can never be considered as a substitute for outdoor play. This latter is vitally necessary for all children. These exercises are to be used as adjuncts—to bring up to standard any set of muscles which are under-developed."

War Drums Ordered Out.

It was some time ago that, acting upon the recommendations embodied in a report by a military commission, the French government reached the conclusion that the drum was no longer a necessary article of military equipment. The report set forth that the drum was a serious encumbrance in marching; that rain impaired its usefulness; that its calls could not be distinguished in time of battle; that it consumed a period of five years to turn out an efficient drummer; and that by abandoning the use of the drum many thousands of youths and men would be released for active service.

Since the decision of the French government other European powers have followed its example in decreeing that the drum must go.

The history of the drum is both ancient and honorable. The Egyptians employed it, and the Greeks ascribed its invention to Bacchus. The Spanish conquerer Pizarro is said to have found drums in South American temples. The soldiers of Holland, we are told, did their fighting before the drummers set to beating. The first issue of New England money was for drums. [illegible]

The Fourth passed off very quietly in Clanton. There was no celebration here, and quite a number of our citizens spent the day at Bruce's grove, some were attracted to Thorsby, while others preferred the less strenuous mode of observing the day by remaining at home.

Mr. J. W. Reynolds of near Montevallo spent several days recently with relatives in Clanton.

Miss Ada Faircloth left last Friday for a visit to her home at De-Funiak Springs, Fla. She will be absent about a month.

Miss Marie Campbell of Montevallo is the attractive guest of Miss Rubye Gore.

Miss Ireule Jones of Birmingham is spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. W. W. Jones.

Miss Alice Davis entertained a few friends Wednesday evening of last week. Enjoyable games were indulged in, delicious refreshments served, and all present spent a most enjoyable evening.

Messrs. E. M. Pinckard, O. E. Latham, Sam Latham, Jos. P. Van-Derveer, Jr., and Drs. P.I. Hopkins and S. C. Matthews comprised a jolly party leaving last Saturday morning for Biloxi, Miss. They will spend several days fishing and enjoying the delightful breezes of the Mississippi Sound.

Mr. Roy Roper of Montgomery, came up Friday to spend the Fourth with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Roper.

Messrs. O. O., Will and Harry Roper attended the funeral of their brother, Mr. J. Thomas Roper, which sad event took place in Birmingham Friday.

Prof. J. J. Pickens, Mr. J. Hance Alred and Misses Ruby Downs and Grace Harris went out to Mineral Springs Sunday to spend a week enjoying the balmy breezes of that popular resort.

The Land of Broken Promises

A Stirring Story of the Mexican Revolution

By DANE COOLIDGE

Author of "THE FIGHTING FOOL," "HIDDEN WATERS," "THE TEXICAN," Etc.

Illustrations by DON J. LAVIN

(Copyright, 1914, by Frank A. Munsey.)

A story of border Mexico, vivid, intense, such as has never before been written, is this one of American adventurers into the land of manana. Texan, mining engineer, Spanish senor and senorita, peon, Indian, crowd its chapters with clear-cut word pictures of business, adventure and love, against a somber background of wretched armies marching and countermarching across a land racked by revolution and, without a savior.

CHAPTER I.

The slow-rolling winter's sun rose coldly, far to the south, riding up from behind the saw-toothed Sierras of Mexico to throw a silvery halo on Gadsden, the border city. A hundred miles of desert lay in its path—a waste of broken ridges, dry arroyos, and sandy plains—and then suddenly, as if by magic, the city rose gleaming in the sun.

It was a big city, for the West, and swarming with traffic and men. Its broad main street, lined with brick buildings and throbbing with automobiles, ran from the railroad straight to the south until, at a line, it stopped short and was lost in the desert.

That line which marked the sudden end of growth and progress was the border of the United States; the desert was Mexico. And the difference was not in the land, but in the government.

As the morning air grew warm and the hoar frost dripped down from the roofs the idlers of the town crept forth, leaving chill lodgings and stale saloons for the street corners and the sun.

Against the dead wall of a big store the Mexicans gathered in shivering groups, their blankets wrapped around their necks and their brown ankles bare to the wind. On another corner a bunch of cowboys stood clannishly aloof, eying the passing crowd for others of their kind.

In this dun stream which flowed under the morning sun there were mining men, with high-laced boots and bulging pockets; graybeards, with the gossip of the town in their cheeks; hoboes, still wearing their eastern caps and still rustling for a quarter to eat on; somber-eyed refugees and soldiers of fortune from Mexico—but idlers all, and each seeking his class and kind.

If any women passed that way they walked fast, looking neither to the right nor to the left; for they, too, being so few, missed their class and kind.

Gadsden had become a city of men, huge-limbed and powerful and with a questing look in their eyes; a city of adventurers gathered from the ends of the world. A common calamity had driven them from their mines and ranches and glutted the town with men, for the war was on in Mexico and from the farthermost corners of Sonora they still came, hot from some new scene of murder and pillage, to add to the general discontent.

As the day wore on the crowd on the bank corner, where the refugees made their stand, changed its complexion, grew big, and stretched far up the street. Men stood in shifting groups, talking, arguing, gazing moodily at those who passed.

Here were hawk-eyed Texas cattlemen, thinking of their scattered herds at Mahabi or El Tigre; mining men, with idle prospects and deserted mines as far south as the Rio Yaqui; mill men, ranchers and men of trades; all driven in from below the line and all chafing at the leash. While a hundred petty chiefs stood out against Madero and lived by ransom and loot, they must cool their heels in Gadsden and wait for the end to come.

Into this seething mass of the dispossessed, many of whom had lost a fortune by the war, there came two more, with their faces still drawn and red from hard riding through the cold. They stepped forth from the marble entrance of the big hotel and swung off down the street to see the town.

They walked slowly, gazing into the strange faces in the vague hope of finding some friend; and Gadsden, not to be outdone, looked them over curiously and wondered whence they had come.

The bunch of cowboys, still loitering on the corner, glanced casually at the smaller man, who sported a pair of puttees—and then at the big man's feet. Finding them encased in prospector's shoes they stared dumbly at his wind-burned face, and muttered among themselves.

He was tall, and broad across the shoulders, with far-seeing blue eyes and a mop of light hair; and he walked on his toes, stiff-legged, swaying from his hips like a man on horseback. The rumble of judgment rose up again as the racked head and thin, cracked voice obeyed.

"I'll bet he's a deputy sheriff."

"He has that look about him."

It is the boast of cowboys that they can tell another puncher at a glance, but they are not alone in this—there are other crafts that leave their mark and other men as shrewd. A group of mining men took one look at the smaller man, noting the candle-grease on his corduroys and the intelligence in his eyes; and to them the big man was no more than a laborer—or a shift-boss at most—and the little men was one of their kind. Every line in his mobile face spoke of intellect and decision, and as they walked it was he who did the talking while the big man only nodded and smiled.

They took a turn or two up the street, now drifting into some clamorous saloon, now standing at gaze on the sidewalk; and as the drinks began to work, the little man became more and more animated, the big man more and more amiable in his assent and silence.

Then they passed the crowd of refugees they stopped and listened, commenting on the various opinions by an exchange of knowing smiles. An old prospector, white-haired and tanned to a tropic brown, finally turned upon a presumptuous optimist and the little man nodded approvingly as he heard him express his views.

"You can say what you please," the prospector ended, "but I'm going to keep out of that country. I've knowed them Mexicans for thirty years now and I'm telling you they're sitting treacherous. It don't do no good to have your gun with you—they'll shoot you from behind a rock—and if they can't git you that way, they'll knife you in your sleep.

"I've noticed a big change in them paisanos since this war come on. Before Madero made his break they used to be scared of Americans—thought if they killed one of us the rest would cross the border and eat 'em up. What few times they did tackle a white man he generally give a good account of himself, too; and I've traveled them trails for years without hardly knowing what it was to be afraid of anybody; but I tell you it's entirely different over there now."

"Sure! That's right!" spoke up the little man, with spirit. "You're talking more sense than any man on the street. I guess I ought to know—I've been down there and through it all—and it's got so now that you can't trust any of 'em. My pardner and I came clear from the Sierra Madres, riding nights, and we come pretty near knowing—hey, Bud?"

"That's right," observed Bud, the big man, with a reminiscent grin, "I begin to think them fellers would get us, for a while!"

"Mining men?" inquired the old prospector politely.

"Working on a lease," said the little man briefly. "Owner got scared out and let us in on shares. But no more for muh—this will hold me for quite a while, I can tell you!"

"Here, too," agreed the big man, turning to go. "Arizona is good enough for me—come on, Phil!"

"Where to?" The little man drew back half resentfully, and then he changed his mind. "All right," he said, falling into step, "a gin fizz for mine!"

"Not on an empty stomach," admonished his pardner; "you might get lit up and tell somebody all you know. How about something to eat?"

"Good! But where 're you going?"

The big man was leading off down a side street, and once more they came to a halt.

"Jim's place—it's a lunch-counter," he explained laconically. "The hotel's all right, and maybe that was a breakfast we got, but I get hungry waiting that way. Gimme a lunch-counter, where I can wrop my legs around a stool and watch the cook turn 'em over. Come on—I been there before."

An expression of pitying tolerance came over the little man's face as he listened to this rhapsody on the quick lunch, but he drew away reluctantly.

"Aw, come on, Bud," he pleaded. "Have a little class! What's the use of winning a stake if you've got to eat at a dog-joint? And besides—say, that was a peach of a girl that waited on us this morning! Did you notice her hair? She was a pippin!"

The big man waggled his head resignedly and started on his way.

"All right, pardner," he observed; "if that's the deal she's probably looking for you. I'll meet you in the room."

"Aw, come on!" urged the other, but his heart was not in it, and he turned guilty away up the main street.

Left to himself, the big man went to his lunch-counter, where he ordered oysters, "A queen in the milk." Then he ordered a beefsteak, to make up for several he had missed, and asked the cook to fry it rare. He was just negotiating for a can of pears that had caught his eye—when an old man drew in and took the stool beside him, picking up the menu with trembling hand.

"Here," called Bud, coming to an instant conclusion, "give 'im his sandwich; I'll pay for it!"

"All right," answered the waiter, who was no other than Sunny Jim, the proprietor, and, whisking up a sandwich from the sideboard, he set it before the old man, who glanced at him in silence. For a fraction of a second he regarded the sandwich apathetically; then, with the aid of his coffee, he made away with it and slipped down off his stool.

"Say," observed the proprietor, as Bud was paying his bill, "do you know who that old-timer was?"

"What old-timer?" inquired Bud, who had forgotten his brusk benefaction.

"Why, that old feller that you treated to the sandwich."

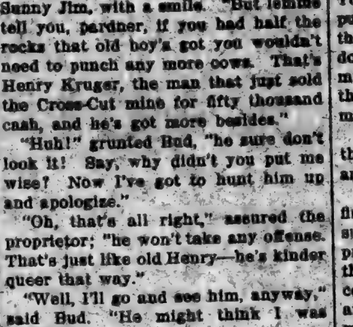
"Oh—him! Some old drunk around town?" hazarded Bud.

"Well, he's that, too," conceded Sunny Jim, with a smile. "But lemme tell you, pardner, if you had half the rocks that old boy's got you wouldn't need to punch any more cows. That's Henry Kruger, the man that just sold the Cross-Cut mine for fifty thousand cash, and he's got more besides."

"Huh!" grunted Bud, "he sure don't look it! Say, why didn't you put me wise? Now I've got to hunt him up and apologize."

"Oh, that's all right," assured the proprietor; "he won't take any offense. That's just like old Henry—he's kinder queer that way."

"Well, I'll go and see him, anyway," said Bud. "He might think I was butting in."



And then, going about his duty with philosophical calm, he ambled off, stiff-legged, down the street.

CHAPTER II.

It was not difficult to find Henry Kruger in Gadsden. The barkeepers, those efficient purveyors of information and drinks, knew him as they knew their thumbs, and a casual round of the saloons soon located him in the back room of the Waldorf.

"Say," began Bud, walking bluffly up to him, "the proprietor of that restaurant back there tells me I made a mistake when I insisted on paying for your meal. I just wanted to let you know—"

"Oh, that's all right, young man," returned Old Henry, looking up with a humorous smile; "we all of us make our mistakes. I knowed you didn't mean no offense and so I never took none. Fact is, I liked you all the better for it. This country is getting settled up with a class of people that never give a nickel to nobody. You paid for that meal like it was nothing, and never so much as looked at me. Sit down, sit down—I want to talk to you!"

They sat down by the stove and fell into a friendly conversation in which nothing more was said of the late inadvertence, but when Bud rose to go the old man beckoned him back.

"Hold on," he protested; "don't go off mad. I want to have a talk with you on business. You seem to be a pretty good young fellow—maybe we can make some dicker. What are you looking for in these parts?"

"Work," responded Bud. "some kind of a leasing proposition. I reckon. Me and my partner just came in from Mexico, over near the Chihuahua line, and we don't hardly know what we do want."

"That's it," returned Kruger significantly; "this job I've got calls for a man like that."

"Well, Phil's all right," spoke up Bud, with sudden warmth. "We been pardners for two years now and he never give nothing away yet! He talks, but he don't forget himself. And the way he can palaver them Mexicans is a wonder."

"Very likely, very likely," agreed Kruger, and then he sat a while in silence.

"We got a few thousand dollars with us, too," volunteered Bud at last. "I'm a good worker, if that's what you want—and Phil, he's a mining engineer."

"Um-m," grunted Kruger, tugging at his beard, but he did not come out with his proposal.

"I tell you," he said at last. "I'm not doing much talking about this proposition of mine. It's a big thing, and somebody might beat me to it. You know what I am, I guess. I've pulled off some of the biggest deals in this country for a poor man, and I don't make many mistakes—not about mineral, anyway. And when I tell you that this is rich—you're talking with a man that knows."

He fixed his shrewd, blue eyes on the young man's open countenance and waited for him to speak.

"That's right," he continued, as Bud finally nodded non-committally; "she's sure rich. I've had an eye on this proposition for years—just waiting for the right time to come. And now it's come! All I need is the man. It ain't a dangerous undertaking—leastwise I don't think it is—but I got to have somebody I can trust. I'm willing to pay you good wages, or I'll let you in on the deal—but you'll have to go down into Mexico."

"Nothin' doing!" responded Bud with instant decision. "If it's in Arizona I'll talk to you, but no more Mexico for me. I've got something pretty good down there myself, as far as that goes."

"What's the matter?" inquired Kruger, set back by the abrupt refusal; "scared?"

"Yes, I'm scared," admitted Bud, and he challenged the old man with his eyes.

"Must have had a little trouble, then?"

"Well, you might call it that," agreed Bud. "We been on the dodge for a month. A bunch of revoltosos tried to get our treasure, and when we skipped out on 'em they tried to get us."

"Well," continued Kruger, "this proposition of mine is different. You was over in the Sierra Madres, where the natives are bad. These Sonora Mexicans ain't like them Chihuahua fellers—they're Americanised. I'll tell you, if it wasn't that the people would know me I'd go down after this mine myself. The country's perfectly quiet. There's lots of Americans down there yet, and they don't even know there is a revolution. It ain't far from the railroad, you see, and that makes a lot of difference."

He lowered his voice to a confidential whisper as he revealed the approximate locality of his bonanza, but Bud remained unimpressed.

"Yes," he said, "we was near a railroad—the Northwestern—and seemed like them red-flaggers did nothing else but burn bridges and ditch supply trains. When they finally whipped 'em off the whole bunch took to the hills. That's where we got it again."

"Well," argued Kruger, "this railroad of ours is all right, and they run a train over it every day. The concentrator at Fortuna"—he lowered his voice again—"hasn't been shut down a day, and you'll be within fifteen miles of that town. No," he whispered; "I could get a hundred Americans to go in on this tomorrow, as far's the revolution's concerned. It ain't dangerous, but I want somebody I can trust."

"Nope," pronounced Bud, rising ponderously to his feet; "if it was this side the line I'd stay with you till the hair slipped on anything; but—"

"Well, let's talk it over again some time," urged Kruger, following him along out. "It ain't often I get took with a young feller the way I was with you, and I believe we can make it pay. Where are you staying in town?"

"Up at the Cochise," said Bud. "Come on with me and I'll meet his there."

They turned up the broad main street and passed through the polished stone portals of the Cochise, a hotel to specious in its interior and so richly appointed in the furnishings that one looking up there might easily imagine himself in New York.

Bud walked hastily across to the desk and left word for his partner, and then, looking around the lobby, he spied Kruger in a leather chair, reading a newspaper. Bud walked over and sat down in the vacant chair.

"Who was that old-timer you were talking to?" inquired Phil, as he sank down in the vacant chair. "Looks like the morning-after with him, don't it?"

"Um," grunted Bud; "reckon it is. Name's Kruger."

"What—the mining man?"

"That's right."

"Well," exclaimed Phil, "what in the world was he talking to you about?"

"Oh, some kind of a mining deal," grumbled Bud. "Wanted me to go down into Mexico!"

"What'd you tell him?" challenged the little man, sitting up suddenly in his chair. "Say, that old boy's got rocks!"

"He can keep 'em for all of me," observed Bud comfortably. "You know what I think about Mexico."

"Sure; but what was his proposition? What did he want you to do?"

"Search me! He was mighty mysterious about it. Said he wanted a man he could trust."

"Well, holy Moses, Bud!" cried Phil, "wake up! Didn't you get his proposition?"

"No, he wasn't talking about it. Said it was a good thing and he'd pay me well, or let me in on the deal; but when he hollered Mexico I quit. I've got a plenty."

"Yes, but—" the little man choked and could say no more. "Well, you're one jim dandy business man, Bud Hooker!" he burst out at last. "You'd let—"

"Well, what's the matter?" demanded Hooker defiantly. "Do you want to go back into Mexico? Nor me, neither! What you kicking about?"

"You might have led him on and got the scheme, anyway. Maybe there's a million in it. Come on, let's go over and talk to him. I'd take a chance, if it was good enough."

"Aw, don't be a fool, Phil," urged the cowboy plaintively. "We've got no call to hear his scheme unless we want to go in on it. Leave him alone and he'll do something for us on this side. Oh, cripes, what's the matter with you?"

He heaved himself reluctantly up out of his chair and moved over to where Kruger was sitting.

"Mr. Kruger," he said, as the old man turned to meet him, "I'll make you acquainted with Mr. De Lancey, my pardner. My name's Hooker."

"Glad to know you, Hooker," responded Kruger, shaking him by the hand. "How'do, Mr. De Lancey."

He gave Phil a rather crusty nod as he spoke, but De Lancey was dragging up another chair and failed to notice.

"Mr. Hooker was telling me about some proposition you had, to go down into Mexico," he began, drawing up closer while the old man watched him from under his eyebrows. "That's one tough country to do business in right now, but at the same time—"

"The country's perfectly quiet," put in Kruger—"perfectly quiet."

"Well, maybe so," qualified De Lancey; "but when it comes to getting in supplies—"

"Not a bit of trouble in the world," said the old man crabbedly. "Not a bit."

"Well," came back De Lancey, "what's the matter, then? What is the proposition, anyway?"

Henry Kruger blinked and eyed him intently.

"I've stated the proposition to Hooker," he said, "and he refused it. That's enough, ain't it?"

De Lancey laughed and turned away.

"Well, yes, I guess it is." Then, in passing, he said to Bud: "Go ahead and talk to him."

He walked away, lighting a cigarette and smiling good-naturedly, and the old-timer turned to Bud.

"That's a smart man you've got for a pardner," he remarked. "A smart man. You want to look out," he added, "or he'll get away with you."

"Nope,' said Bud. "You don't know him like I do. He's straight as a die."

"A man can be straight and still get away with you," observed the veteran shrewdly. "Yes, indeed." He paused to let this bit of wisdom sink in, and then he spoke again.

"You'd better quit—while you're lucky," he suggested. "You quit and come with me," he urged, "and if we strike it I'll make you a rich man. I don't need your pardner on this deal. I need just one man that can keep his head shut. Listen now; I'll tell you what it is.

"I know where there's a lost mine down in Mexico. If I'd tell you the name you'd know it in a minute, and it's free gold, too. Now there's a fellow that had that land located for ten years, but he couldn't find the lead. D'ye see? And when this second revolution came on he let it go—he neglected to pay his mining taxes and let it go back to the government. And now all I want is a quiet time to slip in and denounce that land and open up the lead. Here, look at this!"

He drew down with his pencil and inverted upon a hotel desk, from [illegible] upside down a [illegible]

"Throw out this adventure story in which the man who got shot 'fell backward with a groan.' 'He crumpled' is the only form permitted for victims of gunshot wounds."

"Here's a whole bale of MSS. in which the characters are not afflicted with dipsomania, neurosis or [the] worm. How can a healthy person be interesting?"

"One of our editors went color blind and bought that story with a brunette heroine in it. Our specifications always call for 'sunlit coronets,' or 'locks of burnished bronze' or 'a divine head covered with spun gold.' [It] must be 'azure pools' or the like. Did the salesman read about a black-haired heroine!"

"Out goes this yarn! It wasn't bad except that the heroine, when proposed to, acted like a human being. Our heroines have got to 'flee like frightened wild thing.'"

ITCHING, BURNING ECZEMA

R. F. D. No. 1, Box 15, Corapeake, N. C.—"My baby began with the eczema itching and burning. It broke out all over his head and face, legs and arms with little pimples. I did not sleep any in about four months. He cried and itched all night and day for four months until his head and face were matter all over. He was disfigured badly. His clothing would stick difficult to remove at times.

"I tried two treatments with no success at all and I had almost decided there was no cure for it. I was told by a friend that Cuticura Soap and Ointment would cure it. I washed the child with the Cuticura Soap in warm water two or three times a day, then anointed him all over with the Cuticura Ointment. He took a good change and slept night and day. I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment [for] months and he was cured completely." (Signed) Mrs. Arma Lee, May 24, 1914.

WILSON CONSULTS WITH BIG BUSINESS

Morgan And Other Leaders Of Industry Call At The White House.

REVIVAL OF BUSINESS

What the President Is Earnestly Seeking—Exchanges Ideas With Callers.

Washington.—For nearly an hour President Wilson discussed business conditions with J. P. Morgan at the end of a series of conferences which bring to the white house almost all the leaders in American industry and finance. It was one of the very important during the sixteen months of his administration that the president has received one of the men known as leaders of "big business."

Treasury Excludes Treasury Agents.

Washington.—The opinion prevailed in the United States treasury department that in future be excluded from the white house because of the exposure of certain methods in the course of the investigation by Henry Monroe, a former jail sentence and fine, refusing to disclose the amount of money paid to him by Miss Dolan of Lowell, Mass., for dresses seized by the customs officials on their arrival in Boston.

Williams Insists He's Right.

Athens.—George Fred Williams, the American minister to Greece, who recently made public a report of investigations in Albania, in which he announced the international control and declared the present regime in Albania, was in Athens, issued a new statement reiterating his former statement and emphasizing the danger menacing through the rapid advance of the Albanian rebels.

Senators Testify During Prayer.

Washington. — Senators Owen and Chilton were principal witnesses before a committee investigating charges of misuse of official franking privilege for the promotion of the Alaska gold mining project. Chilton testified he bought $10,000 in the mine when a friend told him the property was worth $60,000,000; Mr. Chilton said he owned $2,500 worth.

Clark Appointed Agent.

Washington.—W. A. Graham Clark has been appointed by Secretary Redfield as commercial agent of the department of commerce for the port of Miami, Fla. Mr. Clark, who has been connected with the department of commerce in examination and is regarded as an authority on questions of the cotton industry, will make his headquarters in Atlanta, Ga.

Battles With Train Robbers.

Pendleton, Ore.—George Gurdane, a deputy sheriff of Heppner, fought a single-handed battle with two robbers in the aisle of a train fifty miles east of here, killing one and wounding another. Gurdane missed death himself when a bullet struck a comb in the upper part of his pocket, slowed down by a pad at his heart.

Appeal for Fire Sufferers.

Boston.—Governor Walsh has appealed to President Wilson and the national government for $1,000,000 for the assistance of fire sufferers. He also sent telegrams to the governors of each of the mayors of all large cities urging the need of at least $1,000,000 would be required in the emergency.

Valuable Relics Returned.

Savannah, Ga.—Nearly one hundred fifty years after they were lost in the lodge room in Savannah, British soldiers, were returned to Solomon's Lodge, No. 1, F. and A. M., were returned and presented to the lodge by G. T. Parker, of Miami, Fla. They had been in possession of his family since the Revolutionary war.

REVIVAL OF BUSINESS

What the President Is Earnestly Seeking—Exchanges Ideas With Callers.

Washington.—For nearly an hour President Wilson discussed business conditions with J. P. Morgan at the end of a series of conferences which will bring to the white house men foremost in American industry and finance. It was one of the very few conferences during the sixteen months of his administration that the president has received one of the recognized leaders of "big business."

May Exclude Treasury Agents.

Paris.—The opinion prevailed here that United States treasury agents would in future be excluded from France because of the exposure of their methods in the course of an appeal by Henry Monroe, a banker, against a jail sentence and fine for refusing to disclose the amounts paid in France by Miss Dolan of Brookline, Mass., for dresses seized by the American customs officials on their arrival in Boston.

Williams Insists He's Right.

Athens.—George Fred Williams, the American minister to Greece, who recently made public a report of his investigations in Albania, in which he denounced the international commission of control and declared the present regime in Albania, was impractical, issued a new statement justifying his former statement and emphasizing the danger menacing Epirus through the rapid advance of the Albanian rebels.

Senators Testify During Probe.

Washington. — Senators Overman and Chilton were principal witnesses before a committee investigating the charges of misuse of official letter sheets for the promotion of a North Carolina gold mining project. Mr. Overman testified he bought $2,300 of stock in the mine when a treasury expert told him the property was worth $60,000,000; Mr. Chilton testified he owned $2,500 worth.

Clark Appointed Agent.

Washington.—W. A. Graham Clark has been appointed by Secretary Redfield as the commercial agent of the department of commerce for the Southern states. JOHN R. SILLIMAN

Consul Silliman has been ordered to return to Saltillo, Mexico, where he will be the personal representative of President Wilson in conferences with General Carranza, leader of the rebel forces.

SURPLUS IN U. S. TREASURY

THE FIRST YEAR OF THE WILSON ADMINISTRATION CLOSES WITH OVER $33,000,000

Payment of Income and Corporation Taxes on Last Day Turns a Deficit Into a Surplus.

Washington.—Treasury figures completed show the federal government went through its first fiscal year under the Wilson administration with its income exceeding ordinary expenses by $33,784,452.07. Nearly thirty-three and a half million dollars, pouring into the treasury the last day, brought the total receipts for the year up to $734,343,700.20, a million and a half above Secretary McAdoo's original estimate, and turned into a surplus what had promised the day before to be a substantial deficit.

Corporation and income tax payments furnished the stream of gold at the finish. From this source came $26,161,782.28 between the opening and closing of the treasury on the last day. Secretary McAdoo and other administration officials were pointing to the total figures as proof of their promises as to what would be accomplished under the new tariff.

Bluecoats Rescue Kitten.

A report was telephoned to the West One Hundred and Sixty-second street police station by Mrs. Emanuel Levy of 7 Hamilton place that some one had fallen into a culvert opposite her home. Patrolman Nicand and two other policemen were hurried to the place. When they looked into the sewer they saw a kitten swimming about in the water ten feet below the street level. It had fallen through a four-inch opening while chasing a ball. The patrolmen spent half an hour fishing for the kitten with a rake. When they finally got it to the sidewalk it ran between the patrolmen's legs and disappeared around the corner.—New York Times.

LAUGH ON OLD CAL CLAY

Jack London Makes a Comparison in Story That Has the Elements of Humor.

Jack London said in Vera Cruz, where he was sojourning as a war correspondent:

"Some of these young war correspondents whom I see about me are as ignorant of war correspondenceship as old Cal Clay was ignorant of astrology.

"I found old Cal Clay sitting in his shirt sleeves on his front stoop one day, puffing like mad on his pipe, and never getting a puff of smoke from it.

"As I drew near he struck three matches and held them to the bowl, he sucked and sucked till his cheeks seemed to meet inside; still never a puff of smoke.

"And burnt matches lay all round his chair. There must have been a boxful of them.

"'Why, Cal,' said I, 'what on earth are you doing?'

"'That chump of a Wash White's been tryin' to fool me, I expect,' said he, and he took another futile puff and put his pipe down in disgust. 'That chump Wash told me if I smoked a bit of glass I could see the spots on the sun.'"

RESINOL CURED AWFUL ITCHING IN ONE NIGHT

New York, April 26.—"The skin on my hand got red and rough. It itched and I began to scratch it. It itched so that sometimes I could not sleep all night. I was suffering very much. I used ——— salve and ———, but they did not seem to help me. This went on for six or seven months. Then I tried resinol ointment and resinol soap. I used them one night. In the morning, to my surprise, my hand was all well and the trouble has never returned. This is the absolute truth."—(Signed) Miss Celia Kleinman, 61 Columbia St.

Nothing we can say of resinol equals what others, such as Miss Kleinman, say of it. It does its work quickly, easily and at little cost. Resinol ointment and resinol soap are sold by all druggists.—Adv.

Travel-Talk Bores.

"Now is the season when all the world, just back from Europe, is bent on boring us with travel talk."

The speaker was Mayor Rockwell of Akron. He resumed:

"There are a number of ways to shut these travel bores up. A good way is the Coliseum one.

"The bore says to you, enthusiastically:

"'And in Rome I saw the Coliseum by moonlight. Um-m-m, wasn't it fine!'

"The Coliseum?' you answer, calmly. 'Which one?'

"Of course, there's only one Coliseum in Rome. But the bore isn't sure about it, and if there are two, he doesn't want to expose his ignorance. While he hems and haws and stutters, very red in the face, you easily make your escape from him."

The Pilgrim.

Alfred Noyes, the exponent of "paying poetry," told a good story at Princeton.

"One morning," he said, "my work was interrupted by a Westerner. He rushed in on me enthusiastically. He bruised my hand with the power of his cordial clasp. He made me sit down and write my name 50 times on a sheet of foolscap that he drew from his pocket—he wanted to distribute, he explained, my autograph among all his friends. He even urged me to write a poem for him—to dash a poem off while he looked on. This failing, he would not go till I had read him a half dozen selections from my works.

Mr. Noyes sighed.

"And all the time," he ended, "the duffer called me Noyes."

Unreasonable Appeal.

"Think of the poor people who have no roofs over their heads!"

"I'm willing to be sympathetic. But don't ask me to feel sorry for people who sleep out of doors this kind of weather."

Uniforms.

"You can't judge a man by his clothes!"

"Only in a general way. For instance, a statesman wears a high hat with a frock coat, while a ward politician wears one with a cutaway coat."

Nearsighted.

Mrs. Flatte—I don't believe our girl could see the dirt with even that.

SAYS GET BACK TO YOUTH

Advice of Physical Director to Tired Business Men About to Take Vacation Worth Heeding.

Business men about to start on their summer vacations are advised to read dime novels, smoke cornsilk cigarettes and act like "kids" again, by Dr. Louis R. Welsmiller, physical director of the West side Y. M. C. A. of New York. His prescription for the rejuvenation of business-worn members of the association has been posted all over the association's building. It reads:

"Forget your dignity, throw away your staidness, and be a kid again—a wholesome, fun-loving, boisterous, dime-novel reading kid—during your vacation. Many of you men, when youngsters, used to think it great fun to sneak out behind the barn, with a cigarette made of cornsilk and brown wrapping paper. It won't hurt you to try the same thing again. You won't be able to smoke enough to hurt yourself, and there's no danger of contracting the cornsilk habit.

"Dime novels make good summer reading. They are next to the Bible for vacation reading, but take the Bible along, of course. Many great men read Nick Carter, Jesse James and like writings for relaxation. Most of you men have come to New York and have made good. Help yourselves to make good again next winter by being a boy on your vacation."

The Same Thing.

Vincent Astor, at a dinner in New York, said of the French evening gowns that have caused so many shocked women to unite in protest:

"I heard a story about one of these gowns. A headstrong girl had purchased it in the Rue de la Paix without her mother's knowledge, and she insisted on wearing it, the evening it came home, at Armenonville for dinner and at the opera afterwards for the Russian ballet. Her mother, however, protested. But the girl, in her headstrong way, declared:

"'I'll wear that gown or nothing.'

"With a shrug and a faint smile, her mother answered:

"'Well, it comes to about the same thing.'"

A Stitch in Time

Colds, fevers, congestion and germ diseases are pretty sure to overwork the kidneys and leave them weak. In convalescence, in fact at any time when suspicion is aroused by a lame, aching back, rheumatic pains, headache, dizziness or disordered urine, the use of Doan's Kidney Pills is a stitch in time that may avoid serious kidney disease.

Doan's Kidney Pills command confidence, for no other remedy is so widely used, so freely recommended or so generally successful.

A Mississippi Case

George Magee, barber, Dale St., Columbia, Miss., says: "Kidney trouble about used me up and I kept getting worse steadily. The pains in the small of my back kept me from sleeping and I lost forty pounds in weight. My limbs swelled and the doctor said I couldn't live. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I used some and they helped me right away. Three boxes removed the pain and soreness and fixed me up in good shape. I have had little trouble since."

gressive and conscientious teachers are delighted to attend the institutes for their own counties and invariably state that the institute is worth while. Is it anything but right that those teachers who do not have enough interest and pride to voluntarily do so and a still smaller number who wish to shirk institute attendance, should have the strongest kind of stimulous applied, namely,—the inability to secure a contract unless they attend a county institute?

There is a considerable number of persons in the state who stand the state examinations from year to year for practice or in order to get rid of the requirements for lower grade certificates without any intention of teaching whatever, or at least until they have secured a first grade certificate. This has tended to increase the percentage of failures and to reflect somewhat upon the examination law.

One way to diminish this evil is to rigidly insist upon institute attendance upon all holders of state certificates, no matter if they are students in school and do not intend to teach for three or four years. If the certificate is worth anything to the holder of it, he should certainly appreciate it enough to attend his county institute.

Our best efforts have been exerted to make the institutes this year practical and helpful. Fewer and expert conductors have been chosen and a definite program has been arranged which emphasizes English, community organization, and manual and household arts. It is believed that we will have made progress both in the tone and character of these yearly sessions, provided the work is not discounted by laxity on the part of those who have the power to require attendance.

I wish to insist, therefore, as stoutly as I may, that every county superintendent and every institute conductor shall exercise the utmost rigidity in enforcing the law requiring institute attendance.

Sincerely yours,
WM. F. FEAGIN,
Supt. of Education.

MINNESOTA TRAVELING MAN IN BAD SHAPE.

In an affidavit executed before a Notary in St. Paul, a Minnesota traveling man swears to the following: Had a scrofulous ulcer about two by three inches in size on the right side of neck over the jugular vein—a dangerous place. Was treated by many doctors but no benefit. Allan's Ulcerine Salve cured the ulcer in six months.

This salve is one of the oldest remedies in America and since 1869 it has been known as the only salve powerful enough to cure chronic ulcers and old sores of long standing.

Allan's Ulcerine Salve acts by drawing out the poisons and healing the sore from the bottom up. It is so powerful that it heals new cuts and sores in one third the time that common salves and liniments take. And it heals burns and scalds without a scar. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co., and other leading druggists.

GOOD ROADS DAYS

Everything points to a successful observance of Good Roads Days, August 14-15. The presses of the state are widely advertising these days. President John Craft of the Alabama Good Roads Association has sent out a special appeal to the good roads advocates and the various county good roads associations urging them to observe these days. Governor O'Neal has issued a proclamation calling upon the probate judges and the road officials to work the roads. The Courts of County Commissioners and boards of Revenue in the various counties have passed resolutions endorsing these days and in many of the counties they have issued orders that every male citizen, who is subject to road duty, to work the roads on these days.

The Alabama Press Association, the Alabama Rural Letter Carriers' Association, and the Alabama Farmers' Union have all passed strong resolutions commending those days and urging the people to co-operate in making Good Roads days a success. Every mail brings letters to Mr. J. A. Rountree, Secretary of the Association, from good roads advocates and road officials stating that they are heartily in accord with the movement, and they will observe these days in their respective counties. It is to be hoped that this year that 100,000 citizens will do volunteer work on the roads of Alabama.

ODD FELLOWS HOLD INTERESTING MEETING

COMPLETE ARRANGEMENTS FOR HOLDING DISTRICT CONVENTION.

Clanton Lodge, No. 304, I. O. O. F., held its regular meeting on Saturday night last. The meeting was one of the most largely attended and most enthusiastic held during the present year.

All plans were completed for the entertainment of the Third District Convention, which meets in Clanton on Wednesday next, July 22. About forty or fifty delegates from all over the District will be in attendance, and the Grand Master, Grand Secretary, and others prominent in the ranks of the order, will be in attendance and will deliver addresses.

The several lodges in Chilton county will be represented at the meeting, and it is thought that this will be the largest gathering of Odd Fellows that has ever assembled in this section of Alabama.

The public sessions of the convention will be held at the Court House, the exercises commencing at ten o'clock, a.m. At intervals on the program music will be a feature, Mrs. J. H. Middleton having kindly consented to get up an appropriate musical program.

At noon the visiting delegates and all Odd Fellows and their families will be entertained with a basket dinner on the grounds of the Masonic Hall.

REPUBLICANS MAKE NATION-WIDE GAIN

ELECTIONS SINCE 1912 SHOW A SWEEPING TREND OF VOTERS BACK TO THE PARTY.

BIG PROGRESSIVE LOSS

Washington, July 5.—The National Republican Congressional Committee today issued the following statement:

"Official figures of recent elections, primaries and registrations in different parts of the country reveal sweeping Republican gains and corresponding Progressive losses. A careful analysis of these figures just completed, shows unmistakably the trend of political sentiment from Maine to California.

BIG GAIN IN NEW JERSEY.

"In the seventh District of New Jersey the total vote in congressional election fell away to 40 per cent, yet the Republican gain was 98 per cent over 1912. In the Second Iowa District the decrease in total vote, compared with 1912, was 38 per cent, yet the Republican gain was 27 per cent.

"In the senatorial primary in Pennsylvania in 1914 the total vote was 49 per cent less than the total vote in the Presidential election two years ago, but the Republican gain was 21 per cent.

"One of the most significant of the returns is that of the Minnesota primary election, for governor, this year, in which the Republican gain was 203 per cent in spite of the fact that the total registration of the party was less than 40 per cent of the registration of 1912.

Republican gain 110 per cent; Progressive loss 60 per cent.

First District, West Virginia, October 14, 1914. Presidential vote:

Taft 12,702; Roosevelt 13,287; Congressional vote—Hearne (Rep) 11,044; Laughlin (Prog) 3117. Republican loss 15 per cent; Progressive loss 72 per cent.

Second District, Iowa, February 10, 1914—Presidential vote:

Taft 8,303; Roosevelt 15,602. Congressional vote—Hull (Rep) 16,608; Hanley (Prog) 3, 718. Republican gain 27 per cent; Progressive loss, 76 per cent.

Seventh District, New Jersey, April 7, 1914—Presidential vote:

Taft 5,349; Roosevelt 11,701. Congressional vote—Drukker (Re) 10,620; Whitehead (Prog) 719. Republican gain 98 per cent; Progressive loss 94 per cent.

The Land of Broken Promises

A Stirring Story of the Mexican Revolution

SYNOPSIS.

Bud Hooker and Phil De Lancey are forced, owing to the revolution in Mexico, to give up their mining claim and return to the United States. In the border town of Gadsden Hooker meets Henry Kruger, a wealthy miner, who hints of a big mining proposition in Mexico that he wants Hooker to take charge of.

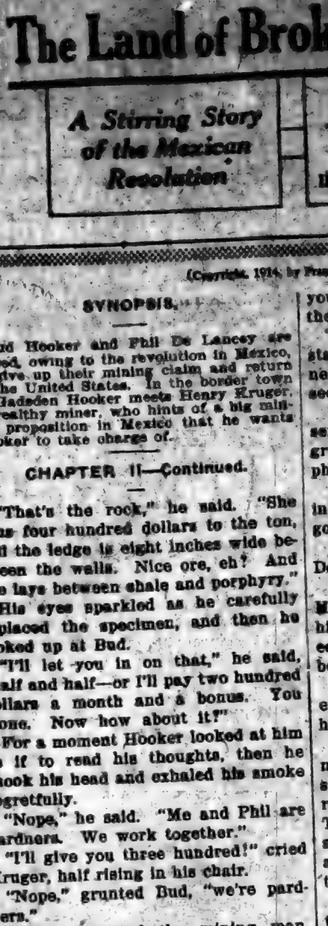
"That's the rock," he said. "She runs four hundred dollars to the ton, and the ledge is eight inches wide between the walls. Nice ore, eh? And she lays between shale and porphyry."

His eyes sparkled as he carefully replaced the specimen, and then he looked up at Bud.

"I'll let you in on that," he said, "half and half—or I'll pay two hundred dollars a month and a bonus. You alone. Now how about it?"



For a moment Hooker looked at him as if to read his thoughts, then he shook his head and exhaled his smoke regretfully.

"Nope," he said. "Me and Phil are pardners. We work together."

"I'll give you three hundred!" cried Kruger, half rising in his chair.

"Nope," grunted Bud, "we're pardners."

"Huh!" snorted the mining man, and flung away in disgust. But as he neared the door a new thought struck him and he came as quickly back.

"I'll Give You Three Hundred!" Cried Kruger.

"You can do what you please about your pardner," he said. "I'm talking to you! Now—will you think about it?"

"Sure!" returned Hooker.

"Well, then," snapped Kruger, "meet me at the Waldorf in an hour!"

CHAPTER III.

On the untrammeled frontier, where most men are willing to pass for what they are without keeping up any "front," much of the private business, as well as the general devilment, is transacted in the back rooms of saloons. The Waldorf was nicely furnished in this regard.

After a drink at the bar, in which De Lancey and Hooker joined, Henry Kruger led the way casually to the rear, and in a few moments they were safely closeted.

"Now," began Kruger, as he took a seat by the table and faced them with snapping eyes, "the first thing I want to make plain to you gentlemen is, if I make any deal today it's to be with Mr. Hooker. If you boys are pardners you can talk it over together, but I deal with one man, and that's Hooker.

"All right?" he inquired, glancing at De Lancey, and that young man nodded indulgently.

"Very well, then," resumed Kruger, "now to get down to business. This mine that I'm talking about is located down here in Sonora within three hours' ride of a big American camp. It isn't any old Spanish mine, or lost padre layout; it's a well-defined ledge running three or four hundred dollars to the ton—and I know right where it is, too.

"What I want to do is to establish the title to it now, while this revolution is going on, and make a bonanza out of it afterward. Of course, if you boys don't want to go back into Mexico, that settles it; but if you do go, and I let you in on the deal, you've got to see it through or I'll lose the whole thing. So make up your minds, and if you say you'll go, I want you to stick to it!"

"Well go, all right," spoke up De Lancey, "if it's rich enough."

"How about you?" inquired Kruger, turning impatiently on Bud; "will you go?"

"Yes, I'll go," answered Bud sullenly. "But I ain't stuck on the job," he added. "Just about [illegible] when a couple of [illegible] and take everything we've got."

"Well, you get a third of it [illegible] your taxes and you can come out, then," conceded Henry Kruger.

"No," grumbled Hooker, "if I go I'll stay with it." He glanced at his pardner at this, but he, for one, did not seem to be worried.

"I'll try anything—once!" he observed with a sprightly air, and Bud grinned sardonically at the well-worn phrase.

"Well," said Kruger, gazing inquiringly from one to the other, "is it a go? Will you shake hands on it?"

"What's the proposition?" broke in De Lancey eagerly.

"The deal is between me and Hooker," corrected Kruger. "I'll give him three hundred a month, or an equal share in the mine, expenses to be shared between us."

"Make it equal shares," said Hooker, holding out his hand, "and I'll give half of mine to Phil."

"All right, my boy!" cried the old man, suddenly clapping him on the shoulder, "I'll go you—and you'll never regret it," he added significantly. Then, throwing off the air of guarded secrecy which had characterised his actions so far, he sat down and began to talk.

"Boys," he said, "I'm feeling lucky today or I'd never have closed this deal. I'm letting you in on one of the biggest things that's ever been found in Sonora. Just to show you how good it is, here's my smelter receipts for eight hundred pounds of picked ore—one thousand and twenty-two dollars! That's the first and last ore that's ever been shipped from the old Eagle Tail. I dug it out myself, and sacked it and shipped it; and then some of them crooked Mexican officials tried to beat me out of my title and I blowed up the whole works with dynamite!

"Yes, sir, clean as a whistle! I had my powder stored away in the drift, and the minute I found out I was euchred I laid a fuse to it and brought the whole mountain down. That was ten years ago, and old Aragon and the agente mineral have had the land located ever since.

"I bet they've spent five thousand pesos trying to find that lead, but being nothing but a bunch of ignorant Mexicans, of course they never found nothing. Then Francisco Madero comes in and fires the agente mineral off his job and old Aragon lets the land revert for taxes. I've got a Mexican that keeps me posted, and ever since he sent me word that the title had lapsed I've been crazy to relocate that claim.

"Well, now, that don't look so bad, does it?" he asked, beaming paternally at Bud. "There ain't a man in town that wouldn't have jumped at the chance, if I was where I could talk about it, but that's just what I couldn't do. I had to find some stranger that wouldn't sense what mine I was talking about and then git him to go in on it blind.

"Now here's the way I'm fixed, boys," he exclaimed, brushing his unkempt beard and smiling craftily. "When I dynamited the Eagle Tail it was mine by rights, but Cipriano Aragon—he's the big Mexican down at old Fortuna—and Morales, the mineral agent, had buncoed me out of the title.

"So, according to law, I blowed up their mine, and if I ever showed up down there I reckon they'd throw me into jail. And if at any time they find out that you're working for me, why, we're ditched—that's all! They'll put you out of business. So, after we've made our agreement and I've told you what to do, I don't want to hear a word out of you—I don't want you to come near me, nor even write me a letter—just go ahead the best you can until you win out or go broke.

"It ain't a hard proposition," he continued, "if you keep your mouth shut, but if they tumble, it'll be a fight to a finish. I'm not saying this for you, Hooker, because I know you're safe; I'm saying it for your pardner here. You talk too much, Mr. De Lancey," he chided, eying him with sudden severity. "I'm afraid of ye!"

"All right," broke in Hooker good-naturedly, "I reckon we understand. Now go ahead and tell us where this mine is and who there is down there to look out for."

"The man to look out for!" answered Kruger with venom, "is Cipriano Aragon. He's the man that bilked me out of the mine once, and he'll do it again if he can. When I went down there—it was ten years and more ago—I wasn't on to those Spanish ways of his, and he was so doggoned polite and friendly I thought I could trust him anywhere.

"He owns a big ranch and mescal still, runs cattle, works a few placers, sends out pack trains, and has every Mexican and Indian in the country in debt to him through his store, so if he happened to get sore at you he could [illegible] there's always something [illegible]

"Well, [illegible] got to moving about [illegible] Spanish workings [illegible] Ministry [illegible] run across [illegible]

Aragon that he should [illegible] for me, under a power of [illegible] Didn't know him then like I do now. The papers had to be sent to Moctezuma and Hermosillo, and to the City of Mexico and back, and while I was waiting around I dug in on this lead and opened up the prettiest vein of quartz you ever saw in your life. Here's a sample of it, and it's sure rich."

He handed De Lancey the familiar piece of quartz and proceeded with his story.

"That ore looked so good to me that I couldn't wait—I shipped it before I got my title. And right there I made my mistake. When Aragon saw the gold in that rock he just quietly recorded the concession in his own name and told me to go to blazes. That's the greaser of it! So I blew the whole mine up and hit for the border. That's the Dutch of it, I reckon," he added grimly. "Anyway, my old man was Dutch."

He paused, smiling over the memory of his misplaced credulity, and Hooker and De Lancey joined in a hearty laugh. From the town bum that he had first seemed this shabby little man had changed in their eyes until now he was a border Croesus, the mere recital of whose adventures conjured up in their minds visions of gold and hidden treasure.

The rugged face of Bud Hooker, which had been set in grim lines from the first, relaxed as the tale proceeded and his honest eyes glowed with admiration as he heard the well-planned scheme. As for De Lancey, he could hardly restrain his enthusiasm, and drawn on by the contagion, Henry Kruger made maps and answered questions until every detail was settled.

After the location had been marked, and the lost tunnel charted from the corner monuments, he bade them remember it well and destroyed every vestige of paper. Then, as a final admonition, he said:

"Now go in there quietly, boys—don't hurry. Prospect around a little and the Mexicans will all come to you and try to sell you lost mines. Cruz Mendes is the man you're looking for—he's honest, and he'll take you to the Eagle Tail. After that you can use your own judgment. So good-by"—he took them by the hands—"and don't talk!"

He held up a warning finger as they parted, and Bud nodded briefly in reply. Silence was a habit with him, desert-bred, and he nodded his head for two.

CHAPTER IV.

From the times of David and Jonathan down to the present day the world has been full of young men sworn to friendship and seeking adventure in pairs. "Pardners," they call them in the west, and though the word has not crept into the dictionary yet, it is as different from "partner" as a friend is from a business associate.

They travel together, these pardners of the West, and whether they be cowboys or "Cousin Jacks," the boss who fires one of them fires both of them, and they go share and share in everything.

Bud Hooker and Philip De Lancey had met by chance in El Paso when the revolution was just beginning to boil and the city was swarming with adventurers. The agents of the rebels were everywhere, urging Americans to join their cause. Military preferment, cash payments, and grants of land were the baits they used, but Hooker stood out from the first and took De Lancey with him. A Mexican promise did not pass current where he was born and they went to the mines instead.

Then the war broke out and, while fugitives streamed out of stricken Chihuahua, they finally struck out against the tide, fighting their way to a certain mine far back in the Sierra Madres, where they could dig the gold on shares.

Behind them the battle waged; Casas Grandes was taken and retaken; Juarez, Agua Negra and Chihuahua fell; Don Porfirio, the Old Man of Mexico, went out and Madero took his place; and still they worked for their stake.

Then new arms and ammunition flowed in from across the border; Orozco and his rebel chiefs went out, and the breath of war fanned higher against the hills. At last the first broken band of rebels came straggling by, and, reading hate and envy in their lawless eyes, the Americans dug up their gold at sundown and rode all the night for their lives.

And now, welded together by all that toil and danger, they were pardners; cherishing no delusions as to each other's strength or weaknesses, but joined together for better or worse.

It was the last thing that either of them expected, but three days after they fled out of Mexico, and with all their money unspent, the hand of fate settled upon them and sent them back to another adventure.

It was early morning again, with crowds along the street, and as they smiled slowly along toward the line the men on the corners stared at them. The bench of cowboys gazed at Bud, who sported a new pair of high-heeled boots, and knew him by the way he rode; and the mining man looked searchingly at De Lancey, as if to guess the secret of his quest.

[illegible] squad of [illegible] troopers, [illegible] out on border duty, passed [illegible] glanced [illegible] on [illegible] and [illegible] on [illegible] Funny little customs officials, hurrying like spiders in their cooped-up guardhouses, rushed out as they crossed the deep trench and demanded their permit to bear arms. The moment they crossed the line the air seemed to be pervaded with Latin excitability and Indian jealousy, but De Lancey replied in florid Spanish and before his polite assurances and [illegible] some compliments it was dissipated in a moment.

"Good! Pass on, amigos," cried the beady-eyed little jefe, pasting a label on their pack. "Adios, senor," he added, returning Phil's salute with a military flourish, and with a scornful glance at Bud he observed that the gentleman was muy caballero.

"Huh!" remarked Bud, as they rode on through the town, "we're in Mexico all right, all right. Talk with both hands and get busy with your eyebrows—and holy Joe, look at them pelones!"

The pelones referred to were a squad of Mexican federal soldiers, so-called from their heads being shaved, and they were marching doggedly to and fro through the thorny mesquit bushes in response to shouted orders from an officer. Being from Zacatecas, where the breed is short, they stood about as high as their guns; and their crumpled linen suits and flapping sandals detracted sadly from the soldierly effect.

Big and hulking, and swelling with the pride of his kind, Hooker looked them over slowly, and spoke his hidden thought.

"I wonder," he said, turning to Phil, "how many of them I could lick with one hand?"

"Well, they're nothing but a lot of petty convicts, anyway," answered De Lancey, "but here's some boys ahead that I'll bet could hold you, man for man, husky as you are, old fellow."

They were riding past a store, now serving as an improvised barracks, and romping about in the streets were a pair of tall Yaqui Indians, each decorated with a cartridge-belt about his hips in token of his military service.

And a group of others, sunning themselves against the wall, looked up at the Americans with eyes as fearless as mountain eagles.

"Yes, that's right," admitted Bud, returning their friendly greeting, "but we'll never have no trouble with them."

"Well, these Nacionales are not so bad," defended Phil, as they passed the state soldiers of Sonora on the street, "but they're just as friendly as the Yaquis."

"Sure," jeered Bud, "when they're sober! But you get a bunch of 'em drunk and ask 'em what they think of the gringos! No, you got to show me—I've seen too much of 'em."

"You haven't seen as much of 'em as I have, yet," retorted De Lancey quickly. "I've been all over the republic, except right here in Sonora, and I swear these Sonorans here look good to me. There's no use holding a grouch against them, Bud — they haven't done us any dirt."

"No, they never had no chance," grumbled Bud, gazing grimly to the south. "But wait till the hot weather comes and the revoltosos come out of their holes; wait till these greasers thaw out up in the Sierras and come down to get some fresh mounts. Well, I'll tell 'em one thing," he added, reaching down to pat his horse, "they'll never get old Copper Bottom here—not unless they steal him at night. It's all right to be cheerful about this, Phil, and you keep right on being glad, but I got a low-down hunch that we're going to get in bad."

"Well, I've got that hunch, too," came back De Lancey, "that we're going to make a killing."

"Yes, and speaking about killings," said Bud, "you don't want to overlook that."

He pointed to a [illegible] the edge of the town [illegible] group of [illegible] standing out on [illegible] and flanked by a [illegible] wall all spattered with bullet-holes.

Alert Traveler Evidently Imagined Providence Had Thrown "Game" Within His Reach.

Gilbert Parker, the English author, tells of an Englishman, who recently came to this country to visit some friends in California. "In common with most travelers he supposed game was plentiful everywhere in that state, so he carried with him the necessary guns and ammunition.

"As his train neared San Bernardino—just before making the mountain climb—there was a delay. Several hours passed, and still the train remained stationary, and our traveler friend grew restive, and sought the porter of the Pullman car to ascertain the cause of thet delay.

"It seems that in mounting the grade a freight train had broken apart, the rear portion having descended the grade and blocked the track. The porter informed him of the accident to the freight train, and said, 'There is a caboose on the track.'

"Immediately the 'hunter' instinct was awakened; hastening to his berth he procured his gun and started for the door saying:

"'Show it to me! Show it to me!'"

The rose garden that Mrs. Woodrow Wilson had planted at the White House is said to be quite equal to others that she planned at Princeton and other places where she has lived. She and her daughters have spent much time, not only in superintending the work of the rose garden, but in actually working in it.

A Rough Road.

"My dear sir," said the philosopher, "when we look about us and see the troubles that afflict other people, we ought to rejoice that our own paths through life are made smooth."

"Your path may be smooth," replied the pessimist, "but a thundering big steam roller would have to make a great many trips over mine before the bumps in it were pressed out."

A Fish Story.

"The inns of dear old England are picturesque," said Richard Le Gallienne, on his return from abroad, "but the food they serve is something terrible.

"After a visit to Blenheim palace I entered an inn in the quaint village of Woodstock. As I lunched—or tried to lunch—my landlord said to me:

"'The great dook of Marlborough once sat in that chair you're a settin' in, sir.'

"'Is that so?' said I.

"'And the dook once drunk 'is beer out o' that same mug you're a-drinkin' out of.'

"'And I bet,' said I, 'I bet he refused to eat this fish, too. Well, take it away, my man. I don't want it, either.'"

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

President Wilson Orders Lower Speed for Autos

WASHINGTON.—There is sorrow in the White House garage. Two mighty touring cars and a landaulet have been brought to a state of watchful waiting. There is an embargo on speed which will not be lifted. Four chauffeurs—any one of whom can pass within an inch of a given object while running at 50 miles an hour—are constantly on watch lest the speedometers start to climb on them.

About the only person in the garage who is happy is the automobile washer, who has figured it out that the slower automobiles run the less dirt they accumulate.

Ever since a accidental automobile was held up outside of Hyattsville the White House speedsters have been passed by about everything on the road. Recently one of these runabouts (the type that sounds like a lawn mower and travels with a limp) actually went ahead of the big seven-passenger car which President Wilson affects.

The cause of the sorrow is manifest. The engines in the White House cars are of the latest type, and can, without an effort, run the machine up to 60 miles an hour. And on the road it is extremely difficult to gauge speed unless one's eye is constantly on the speedometer.

President Wilson has always insisted that the cars in which he rides be run slowly. But occasionally when his friends are taken out for a little spin the chauffeur has been inclined to open the throttle and let things whoop.

Besides the automobile washer, there are others in the White House who feel a certain relief. They are the secret service men.

When President Taft was in office his favorite recreation was a high-powered automobile. Coming to a quiet little stretch of road, the former president was not averse to having the high speed touched up a little. Colonel Roosevelt was also fond of speed.

Sleigh's Bells Give Shivers to the Gauzily Clad

IT WAS at noon on G street when the jingling bells of a sleigh were heard. A large, perspiring, spluttering fat man suspended his palm leaf fan in mid-air. "The doctor told me to cut it down to two these hot days. I didn't; now I am hearing things," he muttered.

Another jingle, in frosty accents.

A willowy maid, exceedingly summerish and diaphanous as to her gown, pulled her gauzy skirts close about her and was seen to shiver.

And still they jingled. Temperature, 98 in the shade.

A puffing lady, of generous girth, plumped down her market basket on the pliant asphalt and felt her pulse.

Traffic was suspended, passing horses sniffed the air, and Doctor Cook's press agent came running up from a nearby hotel to see whether some other intrepid explorer had put another one across on his employer.

"Going, going, gone. At twenty. And it's a bargain at that."

The raucous voice of the auctioneer explained the greatest natural phenomenon Washington has witnessed for many moons.

The fat man dashed back through the swinging doors for another bracer. And the crowd, with sheepish expressions, melted away as only a crowd and a penny vanilla "snowball" can melt on a sweltering June day.

"That's the hottest job I've had this week," plaintively wailed the auctioneer, as he wiped a seeping sleeve across his briny brow.

"If any more uptown folk want to raise cash for a trip to Newport by selling their last year's double-runner, two-seated, low-set, steel-shod, single or tandem—

"Gee, I'll be doing that in my sleep tonight. Say, did you ever try to sell a sleigh with the thermometer at 98 in the shade?"

Oscar Baun bought it. He says he wants it for an investment.

Birds Use Bubble Fountain as a Bathing Place

THE English sparrow is the quickest of all the feathered tribe to adapt itself to the advances of science and civilization. This is frequently proved to the consternation of biologists and many lovers of the beautiful.

The most striking instance of this adaptivity was recently proved to a group of laymen who gathered by the little triangular park in front of the Munsey building, that has recently been landscape-gardened into architectural eminence.

The sycamores along the avenue side of the park, and its cool shrubbery are favorite gathering places for the sparrow. Before the Pulaski statue was erected, the sparrows disported themselves in the cool water of an open fountain. Some lovers of bird and animal life wondered what these sparrows did for a drink and a bath after the fountain was torn up. Apparently there was no water in sight.

Some time ago a drinking fountain of the bubbling type was installed. For weeks and even months the sparrows paid but little attention. One or two audacious fellows eyed the bubbling stream at close range, but could find no standing water.

In the heat of noontime the other day, one of the boldest and noisiest of a twittering group, solved the problem. He lit on the outer edge of the fountain, cocked his dark brown head and eyed the stream. One or two pedestrians stopped to watch. Others gathered. Finally Mr. Sparrow thrust his bill into the stream with a quick darting motion. Nothing happened, and he tried it again. Finally he let it rest in the stream, and withdrawing it only to throw back his head, drank his fill. Contented he eyed his surroundings while an admiring throng applauded his perspicacity.

Suddenly seized of a new notion he fluttered through the stream to the other side. He repeated this feat several times, and many sparrows, quick to learn, were soon using the drinking fountain in approved style.

He Got His Money's Worth of Conversation

"DO YOU swear," said the marriage license clerk light-heartedly, "that the statements herein given are the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help you God one dollar please?"

The young man with the large, expressive hands, the trembling knees and the huge, awkward feet, dug feebly into his pocket and produced the sum of money required. There was something so red-faced and apologetically rabbitlike in the way he did it that one almost expected to see him flap his ears. But he didn't.

"Wish you all the luck in the world," said the marriage license clerk, evidently desirous of making the agitated young man feel at ease.

Real Tragedy of the Stage.

A beautiful actress, Fraulein Darmer, was killed by accident recently, while playing at the Theater of Variation at Berne, Switzerland. The last act of the comedy. "The Pride of the Third Company," was coming to an end when Fraulein Darmer fell through a defective stage trap to a distance of six feet and fractured her skull. The actress was carried unconscious to her room and a doctor was in prompt attendance, but the case was beyond his help, and as the curtain fell on the comedy on the stage the girl died. Neither the members of the company who took the final "call" nor the public, who wondered why the actress did not appear, had the slightest idea of the tragedy that had occurred behind the scenes.

HOW HE TURNED THE TRICK

After This, Mr. Mordecai Hammerfest Must Be Credited With Knowing a Thing or Two.

Mrs. Mordecai Hammerfest turned pale as her husband entered the dining-room for breakfast.

"Mordy!" she gasped. "Do you—don't you feel well?"

"Perfectly," he replied in seeming surprise.

"But—but, are you in your—your underduds!"

"Tell me something I don't know. Pass the butter, please," said Mr. Hammerfest.

She passed the butter, remarking pertinently: "But, Mordy, dear, as you came in I saw you didn't have any shoes on."

"Well, what of it. Your hair is in curl papers, isn't it!"

"Why—yes."

"And your face on a wrapper, haven't you?"

"Yes."

"Very well, then."

And he went on eating his breakfast in silence except when he asked her to pass the butter. Then he went upstairs and finished dressing, and the next morning and on succeeding mornings she reported for breakfast in regular clothes.

Sporting Instinct Aroused.

The street-corner orator had gathered around him a group of urchins. Why they listened so attentively he didn't understand; nor probably did they know themselves. Simply nothing doing. But the orator took full advantage of his opportunity and delivered an improving lecture on the value of kindness to dumb animals. At the end he sought for some illustration to point the moral and adorn the tale. It was there at hand. Across the way walked a lady, leading two little dogs in leash. The one was black and the other white. "Now," exclaimed the tub-thumper, "after what I have said, supposing those two dear little dogs were to start fighting, what would be the first thing you would do?" No answer came at first; but one little arab turned to look at the dogs critically and thoughtfully. "Well guv'nor," he answered, at last, "I fink I'd 'ave tuppence on the little black 'un!"

Suspicious.

"Too bad Jinx and his wife don't get along well together."

"Why, I always understood that they were an ideal couple."

"So did I, but they must have had a dreadful scrap before he started for work this morning."

"Did he have a black eye?"

"No, but he stopped in when we were on our way home and bought her a five-pound box of candy."

Ingenious Smuggling Device.

A museum of criminology has been founded in Paris by M. Charles Perchard, formerly chief of the police Anarchist brigade. Among its curious contents are a hollow wax baby which was used to smuggle brandy into Paris. A woman carried a baby into the city every day, but as it never grew any bigger the authorities examined it and discovered the fraud.

Not So Much to Blame.

"I didn't know you were so accomplished a linguist," he remarked as he glanced at the paper she was reading.

"I don't make any pretentions in that direction," she answered.

"But that is a Russian newspaper you have picked up."

"Why, so it is," she answered in surprise. "I thought it was a dialect story."

An Apposite Choice.

Bishop Evans Tyree at a dinner in Nashville was asked if he had any idea of preaching on the new fashions—the backless evening gown, slashed skirt and so forth.

"No," said the bishop; "such an idea has not occurred to me. If, however, I should preach on the new fashions I would assuredly choose my text from Revelation."

No Kick Coming From Mule.

FURNISHED BOND OF AMITY

Discomfited "Good Samaritan" the Unwilling Means of Bringing Rival Humorists Together.

Once upon a time two humorists dwelt in the same small town and both contributed to the Sunday Star. As was but natural, they became wildly jealous of each other, and when one would win a little more prominence than his fellow the other would have seven kinds of fits. "Your Pleasant Valley Items give me a pain!" quoth one. "Your prose rhymes make me ill!" retorted the other. As they were about to come to blows there appeared on the scene a Good Samaritan, and to him they appealed. "Which of us is the funnier!" they asked. "Neither!" was the prompt reply. "You are both as unfunny as wart hogs, and as tiresome as a trip across the Sahara!" Thereat they both set upon the gentleman from Samaria and beat him full sore, and dwelt together in amity forever after.

Moral: From this we should learn that while humorists delight in quarreling among themselves, they frequently resent criticism from outsiders.—Kansas City Star.

Modern Greek.

A stranger came into our office and graciously offered us some fruit which he said he purchased downstairs in the Greek grocery store. We asked him what Greek grocery, and he said the one right under us, in Holpos' place. We have been here some time and knew nobody of that name, and to satisfy our curiosity we went downstairs to have a look.

Sure enough, there was what did look like "Holpos" on the end of the awning, at least there were the letters "H O L P O S" standing out in bold relief. We have learned since that it is an abbreviation used by the store which, when translated, means "Highest quality, lowest prices, our standard." To the average reader it's all Greek and would easily pass for a Hellenic name.—Quincy Ledger.

SCALY DANDRUFF ON HEAD

Shiner, Texas.—"I had dandruff so badly my head would itch and when I scratched it would hurt. My head was full of scaly dry dandruff and it became so thick that it scaled off and showed plainly. My head was almost white with it. It crusted and itched terribly. It got so bad I could hardly rest at night. My hair began to fall out and it was lifeless.

"I tried a bottle of ——, but it did me little good. I saw an advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I sent for a sample. I applied the Cuticura Ointment to my scalp and frequently shampooed my head with the Cuticura Soap. After using one cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment my head was cured. Now I am free from dandruff and my hair is growing." (Signed) Miss Ida Ringhoffer, Mar. 25, 1914.

COULD NOT STAND ON FEET

Mrs. Baker So Weak—Could Not Do Her Work—Found Relief In Novel Way.

Adrian, Mich.—"I suffered terribly with female weakness and backache and got so weak that I could hardly do my work. When I washed my dishes I had to sit down and when I would sweep the floor I would get so weak that I would have to get a drink every few minutes, and before I did my dusting I would have to lie down. I got so poorly that my folks thought I was going into consumption. One day I found a piece of paper blowing around the yard and I picked it up and read it. It said 'Saved from the Grave,' and told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for women. I showed it to my husband and he said, 'Why don't you try it?' So I did, and after I had taken two bottles I felt better and I said to my husband, 'I don't need any more,' and he said 'You had better take it a little longer anyway.' So I took it for three months and got well and strong."—Mrs. ALONZO E. BAKER, 9 Tecumseh St., Adrian, Mich.

There were but four homicides and five wounded in Birmingham Sunday last.

Birmingham's cash offer of $600,000 for the Methodist university as against Atlanta's $2,250,000 in promises, is a case where the bird in the hand is worth two in the bush.

Clanton has been awarded the site for the location of the Chilton County High School. Clanton has made the commission the most liberal offer and secured one of the best things it was possible for any people to have. At Marion, the High School building of Perry county is being erected and it will be ready for the coming session.—Centerville Press.

Prof. Daniel Harmon of Blocton was in Clanton a few days last week looking over our high school field with a view of later making application for the place. Mr. Harmon is an A.M. Graduate of Buena Vista college of Mississippi and has been actively engaged in high school work for the past twenty-five years. During the last three years he has had charge of the T. C. & I. Co's school at Blocton, Ala. From the pictures shown us, covering his school garden work and domestic science department, we think he is well competent for County High School work.

A Word to Our Delinquents.

Under the rules of the post office department no newspaper can mail its papers to subscribers who are more than one year in arrears for subscription without jeopardizing its privilege to the second class rate. We have quite a number of subscribers on our books who are more than twelve months in arrears, and while it is not our desire to discontinue mailing the Press to any of our patrons, we will, in justice to ourselves, be compelled to quit or halt, unless these arrearages are promptly paid.

Then again, we are [illegible] need of funds. We [illegible] matters to many, and [illegible] assure it unless [illegible] accommodate the [illegible] to pay [illegible] enterprise. A dollar is a small amount to the individual, in fact a mere bagatelle, but in the aggregate it is a big consideration with us. We sincerely hope you will appreciate our position in this matter and rally to our assistance in "Pushing the load over the hill."

We are publishing elsewhere in this issue a statement issued by the Republican Congressional Committee, showing the comparative vote of the Republican and Progressive parties in recent primaries and the vote cast for Taft and Roosevelt in 1912. The result of these comparisons is significant in that it shows conclusively that the large majority of voters who supported Roosevelt when he led the forlorn hope in 1912, have ceased to look with favor upon the new party birthed by the disgruntled Teddy, whose dominant purpose in fostering the Progressive movement is his ever-craving desire for office, and are now pinning their hopes to the G. O. P. As shown by these comparisons Roosevelt and the policies he represents have been repudiated by his former adherents. They have learned the folly of following a one-man lead who is out for nothing save his own aggrandizement.

The heavy losses sustained by the Bull Moosers all over this broad land, from Maine to California show to the observant student of politics that the Progressive party is on its last legs, and it is only a question of time before its name will be nothing more than a humorous memory.

And yet, in the face of these great reversals, the Bull Moose leaders in this county would have you believe that Roosevelt's party is going to supplant the Republican party. And all this candy-coated tall about the Bull Moose grazing in the South this Fall is the veriest rot and nonsense.

SOLDIERS' ENCAMPMENT

Three thousand soldiers of Alabama, with at least two companies of the Regular Army, will be encamped at Montgomery from July 21st to July 30th, inclusive; and the people of the Capital City are planning to receive and entertain thousands of visitors from Alabama who will no doubt want to see the soldiers in the maneuvers and to participate in other features of entertainment that will be provided.

The three regiments of the Alabama National Guard and the other soldiers will be encamped near the Country Club on the Carter Hill Road about two miles from the center of Montgomery, but their maneuvers will extend for many miles in and around the city. The camp grounds will be accessible by street railway or motor cars and will be open to visitors throughout the day.

There will be several bands of music, demonstrations of wireless telegraphy, by the Signal Corps, exhibition drills and a street parade by the entire organization. While officers of the regular army of high rank will be in command of the soldiers, the Adjutant General of Alabama, General J. B. Scully, at Montgomery, will be on the grounds at all times and will be glad to furnish information to visitors.

Low railroad rates will be offered to Montgomery, and the Chamber of Commerce has extended an invitation to the people of Alabama to visit Montgomery on these dates and make themselves at home at the Club rooms of the business organization in the Tyson Building, on Court Square.

The merchants of Montgomery are especially interested in the occasion, and many of them will make extra effort to receive and entertain visitors.

This occasion will offer an opportunity for the citizens of the State to become better acquainted with the Military Department of Alabama, which has done so much to conserve law and order.

STANTON

STORK VISITS HOME.

The stork paid a recent visit to the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Gay and left a fine baby boy weighing six and one-half pounds, and he is the darling of the home. One may readily see how they love him as they gave him such a beautiful name—Julian David Gay. He has gained friends already, as is attested by the numerous presents he has received.

MISER CALLS ONLY FOR GOLD

First Thought in Ambulance on Way to Lynn Hospital—Found Starving in Cellar.

Lynn, Mass.—Lying on two bare boxes in the cellar of a vacant house at 24 Berkley street, Lynn, his feet and fingers frozen, and a cracked pitcher full of gold and silver coins within reach of his clutching hands, Hugh Morrison, a Lynn expressman, was found dying from starvation by the police.

As he was taken to the Lynn hospital in the ambulance, with hardly a chance for life, his first thought was of his pitiful hoard of money.

"They are trying to get my gold," he said.

King of All — WEBER — That's Why We Handle Them

Every Weber Wagon We Sell Is Inspected Four Times

Instead of waiting until you need a wagon and then taking the first that's offered you, find out in advance which wagon will give you the best service. Buy the wagon that will stand up for the longest time and be easiest on your horses.

That wagon is a Weber. Here's why. Each Weber wagon is thoroughly inspected. The lumber used is selected from large purchases of first grade oak and hickory for wheels and gears, the finest yellow or hay poplar for box sides, and long leaf yellow pine for bottoms.

Every stick of this lumber is carefully inspected, and each part cut from it is again inspected when it is shaped and ironed. The third inspection is made just before the wagon is painted, and insures perfect fitting of every part. The final inspection is made when the wagon is ready for delivery. Four inspections to make sure that you get just what you pay for when you buy a Weber wagon.

Drop in the next time you come to town and look over our line of Weber wagons. We are proud of them.

Surprising Cure of Stomach Trouble.

When you have trouble with your stomach or chronic constipation, don't think your case is beyond help just because your doctor fails to give you relief. Mrs. U. Stengle, Plainfield, N. J., writes: "For over a month past I have been troubled with my stomach. Everything I ate upset it terribly. One of Chamberlain's advertising booklets came to me. After reading a few of the letters from people who had been cured by Chamberlain's Tablets, I decided to try them. I have taken nearly three-fourths of a package of them and can now eat almost everything that I want." For sale by Alred Drug Co.

A SCHOOL OF CHARACTER

THE COLLEGE

1. The EDUCATIONAL STANDARDS meet the college requirements of the National Association of State Universities, of the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges, and of the Alabama Association of Colleges of which the institution is a member. The curriculum is high and varied, and the instruction is careful, personal and thorough.

2. The IDEAL of the institution is the development of CHRISTIAN CHARACTER. It believes the studies are more important than athletics, and that righteousness is more important than all. And this belief determines its whole attitude and policy.

3. The COST per year is very low. Tuition, fees and board amount to only $200 for the full nine months session—$150 for the sons of ministers and ministerial students.

THE FITTING SCHOOL

For the benefit of students who may not yet be prepared to enter college, but who desire the advantages of a high grade preparatory school, the Southern University maintains a FITTING SCHOOL. The work of this school is strictly preparatory, and

AT LAST!

The $5 Mystery Solved

NEARLY all of Chilton county have been wrestling with that sentence, the mystery of the five p's—P-P-P-P-P.

We received 698 guesses, and hundreds of people visited our store to learn more about Penslar. The first correct answer was brought in at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon, by Mr. Cecil E. Harris, Clanton, R 2. This is it: "Penslar Pure Preparations Please People," and Mr. Harris got the $5 before leaving the store. Mr. Harris says, "When reading your first advertisement the answer came to me like a flash." "I have used Penslar Pure Preparations for a long time and they have always been so satisfactory that I felt sure the slogan must be something about their quality. I guessed the 4th word as "please" and the rest was easy."

We have received several other correct answers since then, but Mr. Harris was too quick for the other competitors.

Anyway it will be worth more than the $5 to each of the 698 guessers to learn as much about Penslar as they have learned lately.

GOOD ROADS DAYS PROMISE SUCCESS

ALL INDICATIONS POINT TO BIG OBSERVANCE OF AUGUST 14 AND 15

STATE CAPITAL HAPPENINGS

Doings in and Around the State House Chronicled for Our Readers.

—Montgomery.

Every indication points to a successful observance of Good Roads Days, August 14 and 15. President John Craft of the Alabama Good Roads Association has sent out a special appeal to the good roads advocates and the various county good roads associations urging them to observe these days.

Governor O'Neal has issued a proclamation calling upon the probate judges and road officials to work the roads. The courts of county commissioners and boards of revenue in the various counties have passed resolutions endorsing these days and in many of the counties they have issued orders that every male citizen who is subject to road duty work on these days.

The Alabama Press Association, the Alabama Rural Carriers' Association and the Alabama Farmers' Union have all passed strong resolutions commending these days and urging the people to co-operate in making Good Roads Days a success. Every mail brings letters from good roads advocates and road officials stating that they are heartily in accord with the movement and they will observe these days in their respective counties.

620 Deaths from Violence.

There were 620 deaths from violence in Jefferson County during the year of 1913 and the first six months of 1914, according to the figures furnished to Governor O'Neal by Sheriff W. K. McAdory. These figures include all homicides, suicides and accidents of all kinds, including automobile accidents, street car accidents and all others. It is stated that about 50 per cent of the number of violent deaths were murders and suicides.

During the same period a total of 853 prisoners were lodged in the county jail by the sheriff's forces in connection with the killings. There were 188 negroes and 65 whites arrested on murder charges during the 18 months. The percentage is very large.

The figures were forwarded to Montgomery by the sheriff following the receipt of a letter from the governor asking for a report on all violent deaths in Jefferson County during 1913 and 1914.

Revenue from Convicts Increases.

Considerably over $1,000,000 now represents the annual revenue of the State convict department, according to Hartwell Douglass, president of the board of convict inspectors, who has made a brief report to the governor for the second quarter ending June 30. The receipts for the quarter, including revenue derived from all the convict labor contracts and from the output of the cotton mill at Speigners amounted to $313,000, the largest receipts of the department for any quarter in the history of the State.

According to President Douglass the contracts of the department are bringing into the State treasury more revenue than ever before in the department's history, and the receipts are constantly increasing. President Douglass declares that this is due to the nature of the contracts and to the thorough co-operation on the part of the contractors with the department in securing the best results from a humanitarian standpoint as well as from a financial one.

The output from Banner mines for the month of June was 45,000 tons, the largest ever made by that mine, and probably the largest ever produced by any mine in the district, according to President Douglass.

During the month the convicts in the mines earned about $1,300, which was paid to them for extra labor performed.

Feagin Visits Up-State Counties.

W. F. Feagin, State Superintendent of Education, returned from the Tennessee Valley, where he has been looking over the institute work. "Fine results are being obtained at the institutes attended and the attendance is large. All of the teachers are taking marked interest in the work and I look forward to a successful season," said Mr. Feagin. Mr. Feagin is this week attending teachers' institutes in Etowah, Cherokee, Blount and Walker counties.

Examine Chambers Accounts.

J. T. Gorman, examiner of public accounts, is in Chambers county, where he will examine the accounts of the officials of that county. Among those whose accounts he is to examine is Sheriff John Lane, against whom impeachment proceedings were recently ordered. Sheriff Lane is charged with corruption in office. It is alleged that he collected money from persons against whom warrants had been issued and then allowed the persons against whom the warrants were issued to escape without making the payments.

Treasurer Whiting Censured.

Sharp criticism of the methods of bookkeeping used by Treasurer W. B. Whiting of Montgomery county is made by J. T. Gorman, examiner of public accounts, in a report filed in the office of Governor O'Neal. The examiner also scores the members of the Montgomery County Board of Revenue for failing to publish semi-annual statements of its receipts and expenditures.

Examiner Gorman declares that the board has allowed the payment of illegan warrants amounting to $1,695.87 and that sum has been charged to Treasurer Whiting.

Examiner Gorman declares that Treasurer Whiting does not comply with statutory provisions in keeping his books and in discharging the duties of his office.

"The First National Bank of Montgomery keeps Mr. Whiting's books and they are not kept in accordance with the forms prescribed by Section 298 of the Code of 1907. The book kept shows the money received but does not show itemized disbursements," declares the examiner.

"The attention of the court and grand jury is especially called to Mr. Whiting's method of bookkeeping," says Examiner Gorman.

Accounts of the following officials were examined by Major Gorman; Charles B. Teasley, Probate Judge; J. B. Gaston, former Probate Judge; M. B. Gilmer, Tax Assessor; Charles B. Teasley, ex-Tax Collector; G. W. Covington, Superintendent of Education; H. T. Bartlett, Treasurer of School funds; W. B. Whiting, Treasurer, and members of the Board of Revenue.

Big Coal Output Predicted.

The indications are that the coal production of Alabama for the latter half of the year will show a decided gain over the output for the first six months of the year.

According to Chief Mine Inspector C. H. Nesbitt, here has been a revival in coal operations during the past few weeks and predicts that 1914 will be a banner year for the coal miners of the state. Many mines that were idle for some time during the first half of the year are now in operation. A number of new mines have recently been put into operation and several mines that were formerly abandoned have been cleaned up and are again in operation.

Hear Credits Case July 20.

The solvent credits case from Jefferson county has been made special business in the supreme court for July 20, and at the same time the court will consider a contest from Montgomery county, which will determine whether or not foreign corporations in the State can be forced to pay licenses on the total amount invested in Alabama or on 60 per cent of the total.

Announcement that the court would take up the cases and render immediate decisions was made. The Jefferson county case is important, as estimates are that one-fourth of all investments in the State are in solvent credits and if they can be taxed the revenue from taxation will be increased about one-fourth. Corporations fighting the commission's contention in the license case contend that they can be forced to pay only on 60 per cent., while the commission charges that the 60 per cent. clause relates to ad valorem taxes.

Artillery Will Camp at Mobile.

All plans have been made and the two artillery batteries of the Alabama National Guard in Birmingham will leave for the encampment at Mobile August 3, according to announcement made by Major L. S. Dorrance, commanding the First Battalion Alabama Field Artillery.

Batteries A and C will go from Birmingham and Battery B will join them from Montgomery. Captain Frank Flynn, commanding Battery A, and Captain A. V. Gregory, commanding Battery C, will take about 100 men each on the encampment. It is hoped to make this one of the most successful gatherings of the artillery branch of the State troops ever held.

Articles of Incorporation.

Papers were filed in the office of the secretary of State reporting the incorporation of the Peoples Bank of Centreville. The new institution is capitalized at $42,000. J. W. Hennecutt is president. Another corporation reported to the secretary of State is Sutton's Drug Company of Mobile. James D. Sutton and others are the incorporators.

Heads Exhibit Committee.

The governor of Alabama appointed James H. Hicks of Talladega, chairman of the Alabama commission to secure an appropriate exhibit for the Panama-Pacific international exposition at San Francisco in 1915. Louis Farley, president of the Farley National Bank of Montgomery, was appointed treasurer of the fund and Frank P. Glass of Birmingham was named on the commission to succeed W. P. G. Harding of Birmingham, who resigned when appointed a member of the federal reserve board.

Early Agreement on Rate Case.

Negotiations which will result in an satisfactory settlement of the differences existing between the railroads and the commission on the question of passenger rates in Alabama are now under way, it is stated. Attorneys for the railroads and the commission have been in conference in Montgomery for several days and it is stated that a settlement will be reached before the end of the week.

PROSPECTS GOOD FOR COTTON CROP

GOOD RAINS DURING PAST WEEK BROKE LONG DROUTH AND RAPID STRIDES MADE.

CORN REPORTED AS RUINED

Boll Weevil Begins To Bring Realization To Farmers of Many Counties.

Montgomery.—During the past week the cotton crop improved wonderfully. Local showers broke prolonged drouths, injected new life into plants, and it is believed the crisis has passed. Sixty counties of the State have filed reports and less than a dozen of them have any sign of deterioration, while, on the other hand, the crop is stalking forward to and past the normal mark in a surprising manner.

From reports the conclusion might be drawn that the 1914 crop has been settled; a fine cotton crop, with corn a failure. Exceptionally bright prospects come from the cotton fields of Perry, Baldwin, Barbour, Blount, Calhoun, Bullosk, Houston and Lamar counties.

Conditions are most favorable in the counties of Wilcox, Walker, Butler, Chilton, Clarke, Greene, Cherokee, Escambia, Hale, Clay, Covington, Chambers, Cullman, Jefferson, Macon, Madison, Dallas, Jackson, Lauderdale, Randolph, Marengo, Russell and Marion. These counties all had good rains, the fields are clean and fine acreages are noted. At Orrville one farmer is reported as having 500 acres planted with which he will make 500 bales of cotton.

In the few counties where unfavorable reports are made, the premature fruiting, forced by extreme heat, and dry weather, has caused deterioration. Lawrence county reports deplorable drouth conditions, while similar reports come from the counties of Colbert, Coosa, Elmore, DeKalb, Henry, Morgan, Lowndes, Lee and Conecuh. These counties are still suffering from the lack of moisture which so endangered the young plant and a short crop is expected in these sections unless conditions change.

The boll weevil has begun to bring realization to the farmers of many counties. The insect will cut the crop of Perry county 10 per cent, and Crenshaw farmers are also suffering a heavy loss. Remarkable fights against the pest are being waged in Greene county and also in Wilcox, where it has been placed on a strictly business scale and a set price of 50 cents per hundred is paid to encourage picking. Weevils are also reported in Butler, Clarke, Hale, Lowndes, Shelby, Sumter, Conecuh and Tallapoosa.

The corn crop seems to have about withered away altogether, and is too far parched by the heat and drouth to "come back." Wilcox county will make about 50 per cent of a normal crop as will Coffee county. Conditions are extremely bad also in Bibb, Butler, Chilton, Colbert, Cleburne, Henry, Monroe and Lamar. The crop is completely gone in Lawrence. In contrast with this, however, splendid corn crops are reported in Blount and Autauga counties.

Taken as a whole the farmers of Alabama are more optimistic over the general crop outlook than at any time since the crop began to come on. The fruit is maturing, a few bolls are opening and seasonable rains are opening and seasonable rains have caused a general improvement over the State.

FACE MURDER AFTER 17 YEARS.

Two Held for Childre Killing in Covington County.

Andalusia.—The summer term of the Andalusia city court of law and equity, which will convene August 1, promises to be one of the most interesting terms of court held in this county since the Spicer trial took place. It is in this court that Noah Wages and John McPherson will be tried for the murder of Wade Childre, which occurred 17 years ago.

ROOF OF STORE COLLAPSES.

Workmen Have a Narrow Escape When Foundation Gives Away.

Andalusia.—An accident occurred here in which more than a dozen carpenters and day laborers narrowly escaped instant death. They were attempting to raise the roof of a large brick storehouse when the foundation gave way and the entire top collapsed on the inside of the building. Fortunately no one was in the building at the time of the catastrophe.

EXAMINE U. S. OFFICERS.

Applicants for Commissions Appear Before Examining Board.

Montgomery.—Nearly elected officers of the Alabama National Guard who are applicants for commissions were examined in Montgomery July 15 and 16. The examination was conducted by the State Board of Military Examiners.

Following is the order previously issued by General Scully:

"The following applicants for commissions in the Alabama National Guard are hereby ordered to appear before the Examining Board at the office of the Adjutant General, Montgomery, Ala., at 10 a. m., on the dates set opposite their names for examination in their respective grades:

"Captain Lacey Edmondson, company D, 4th Infantry, July 15.

"First Lieutenant Eugene H. Ragsdale, company D, 4th Infantry, July 15.

Captain Elisha Downing, company K, 1st Infantry, July 15.

"First Lieutenant Julius S. Matthews, company K, 1st Infantry, July 15.

"Second Lieutenant Joel O. Rainer, Company K, 1st Infantry, July 15.

"First Lieutenant A. Wheaton, company C, 1st Infantryf, July 16.

"Second Lieutenant Albert P. Reasonover, company A, 1st Infantry, July 16.

"First Lieutenant James D. Kindred, company M, 1st Infantry, July 16.

"Second Lieutenant Andrew Vernuille, company M, 1st Infantry, July 16.

"First Lieutenant Wesley P. Newton, company K, 4th Infantry, July 16.

"Second Lieutenant Charles W. Griscom, company K, 4th Infantry, July 16.

"Second Lieutenant Albert Nollin company C, 1st Infantry, July 16.

300 CITED TO APPEAR.

General Ferguson Takes Action In Jefferson County.

Birmingham.—Alleging that there are over 300 persons in Jefferson county who are drawing pensions to which they are not entitled, Gen. Fred S. Ferguson, state pension examiner, has filed citations in the above number of cases with Judge J. P. Stiles of the probate court, directing him to serve them on the persons named. In a great many instances the contest of the pension is made on the insufficiency of the records to show continuous service during the war between the states. In others the charge is made that the party named never saw service in the Confederate army and some of the citations allege desertion.

Those named are cited to appear before the state pension board at Montgomery or to make their defense by affidavit before the probate judge. It is said that some of those drawing pensions now will have some difficulty in making the proof required, owing to the fact that the veterans are rapidly passing away and with each month the proof is more difficult to make. An instance is that of the widow o fa veteran who is nearing 90 years old, whose pension is questioned, and whose husband has been dead for a number of years. The husband qualified sometime before his death and made good his claim for a pension, which at his death went to his widow. It is stated that it may be hard for the old lady to produce the proof necessary to still draw the pension.

The citations will be served as rapidly as possible and unless satisfactory explanations are made those cited will be dropped from the pension rolls of this state.

CANAL PICTURES CAUSE ARRESTS

Magazine Editor, Author, Photographer And Writer Arrested For Disclosing Military Secrets.

Were Taken From Aeroplane—First Prosecutions Under New National Defense Act.

San Francisco.—Warrants for the arrest of Charles K. Field, editor of a magazine; Robert J. Fowler, an aviator; Riley A. Scott, a writer, and Ray A. Duhem, a photographer, were issued at the request of John W. Preston, United States attorney here. The charge against all four is the disclosure of military secrets. The penalty is ten years imprisonment or a $10,000 fine for such disclosure if made abroad and one year or a $1,000 fine, if made in the United States.

In April, a magazine published an article entitled "Can the Panama Canal Be Destroyed From the Air?"

Reproductions of photographs taken from an aeroplane and showing some of the fortifications of the canal zone and of the San Francisco Presidio accompanied the text. As soon as a copy of the number was called to the attention of the war department it requested Preston to investigate.

First Arrests Under New Law.

Washington.—The arrests at San Francisco marked the beginning of the first criminal prosecution under the national defense act of March 3, 1911, for disclosure of military secrets. The war department in the past has warned some publishers, but because the element of intent to do mischief was lacking, no attempt was made to prosecute.

NEW POSTOFFICES IN SOUTH

Bill Provides New Federal Buildings for Georgia and Florida.

Washington.—Special appropriations because of the Mexican crisis figure prominently in the general deficiency bill reported to the house. It provides a $25,000 emergency fund for the state department; another $25,000 for movements of diplomatic and consular officers under Secretary Bryan's orders, and $5,000 for returning home bodies of officers and enlisted men of the American forces on Mexican soil. For the Mexican prisoners along the border $170,000 will be appropriated. Other items included the following:

Georgia—Canton, postoffice site, $5,000; Dawson, site and commencement of postoffice, $5,000; Douglas, site and commencement of postoffice, $5,000; Forsyth, postoffice site, $5,000; Sandersville, postoffice site, $5,000; Waynesboro, postoffice site, $5,000; West Point, Ga. (including Lanet, Ala.), site and commencement of postoffice, $10,000.

Florida—DeFuniak Springs, postoffice site $5,000; Key West, postoffice, court house and customs house site, $70,000; Kissimmee, postoffice site, $6,000; Sanford, site and commencement of postoffice, $7,500.

CRISIS NEAR IN IRELAND

Ulsterites Prepare to Resist Home Rule Government.

London.—Predictions by the Unionist press that the last few days would see developments in the Ulster situation have not been fulfilled. Sir Edward Carson, Ulster Unionist leader, arrived at Belfast, and was accorded a reception of a military character, after which the provisional government held its first formal meeting and passed a series of resolutions, authorizing the executive to take steps to enforce Ulster's opposition to home rule.

Investigation Is Completed.

Washington.—Committee investigation into use of senate stationery in promotion of a mine at Gold Hill, N. C., practically has completed their work. George Walter Newman, promoter of the mine, and John Skelton Williams, comptroller of the currency, again were before the committee, amplifying points in their previous testimony.

Wood Bids President Farewell.

Washington.—Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, retiring chief of staff of the army, called officially at the white house to bid farewell to President Wilson before leaving for Governor's Island to take command of the department of the east.

Trading Stamp Will Gets on a Judge's Nerves

Man wants but little here below,
But trading stamps are all the go.

DETROIT, MICH.—Probate Judge Hanley absently scribbled the above sentiment on his blotter pad as he listened to the contest of the will of Hattie Wineshka. Hattie, by her last testament, left her entire earthly treasures, consisting of about $1,300 in trading stamps, to be divided equally between her husband, Julius, and her mother, Mrs. Matilda Brock. By dint of questioning, Judge Hanley learned that the trading stamps were worth a parlor rocker, a soup tureen and a shaving mug, or, by different combining, would get for the lucky holder a penwiper, a set of false teeth and a shoehorn.

"Your honor," said Julius, "my mother-in-law must have used undue influence on my wife to get her to bequeath half of these trading stamps to me instead of my wife and me. I want the will declared void on that ground."

Judge Hanley scribbled another couplet as he listened to the oration of counsel. It read:

It's fun to spite a mother-in-law,
Especially when it's by the law.

"My wife spent the best years of her life collecting these trading stamps," declared Julius. "Many is the happy evening she and I spent counting them over."

Bucolic pleasures clashed with art,
But never loosened Cupid's dart.

That was what Judge Hanley scribbled at this juncture. But the mother-in-law now had her inning. She said they were soap trading stamps and that she had helped her daughter to get them.

The soap was soon used up in lather,
That's what got the stamps, I gather.

So the judge scribbled, but the testimony was by that time all in and he delivered judgment.

"This is the cheapest will contest that has ever been brought in Wayne county," he said. "I admit the will to probate, and, further, if the will be thrown out, the husband and mother of the woman would divide the trading stamps under the statute."

Old Chippewa Indian Chief Views Wonders of City

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—John Smith, or Wa-be-ne-gew-wes, for more than a hundred years chief of the once powerful tribe of Chippewa Indians, is to one hundred and twenty-eight years old, as he reckons it, and whose existence as a boy 116 years ago is vouched for by government records, he left for his tepee.

He came here to see before death the great city that has risen in his native time where once the wilderness was unbroken. The last of the great Indian chieftains of the country, bent and shrunken by age, still is able to walk about, and all his faculties have been retained.

Two small bright eyes in the depths of a face so seamed and wrinkled and withered that no words can visualize it looked out on the city. "Too many wagons," said the old chief. The solitude of the northern woods called him and he suffered from homesickness. To Charlie Brunell, "Little Cloud," who, with his wife and six-months-old baby, came along with the old chief, he complained of the noise.

"Me old," he said in English. But he lapsed into the Chippewa tongue and spoke through an interpreter when he said:

"My people are going. Soon I will go. I came to see Minneapolis before I die."

In the great Indian uprising of 1862, the most historic warfare incident of Minnesota, he with other runners went north after the New Ulm massacre, to warn the white people of their danger. Other runners fell, pierced by Sioux arrows, but Wa-be-ne-gew-wes got through and his friendliness for the whites and his efforts in their behalf mark a part of the history of that time.

"Now my people are dying, my youth is gone," he said. And he is very sensitive on one point, for last winter while hunting he froze his nose. "Blood run cold like squaw," he said.

Bees Own a Street; Stop Business and Traffic

CINCINNATI, O.—Sycamore street in the vicinity of Sixth street was practically deserted the other day, because of a swarm of bees which, after attempting to establish a colony at St. Xavier's college, were routed by students there and made things miserable for pedestrians, school children and factory employes in the vicinity. Business was practically at a standstill until the bees could be gathered into a box and taken away.

Conductors and motormen on the pay-as-you-enter cars which operate on Sycamore street had the laugh on their comrades who man open summer conveyances, although some of them got stung before the lesson was learned. Teamsters made but one attempt to reach the intersection of Seventh street and Sycamore, long detours being the order of the day after the first tryout. Pedestrians got wise on the run. Many home and business men along Sycamore street used the back entrances in going to and fro.

The bees under the leadership of their queen took the liberty of swarming on one of the windows of the third floor of St. Xavier college. Some one discovered them and proceeded to rout them with water. The bees attacked the water and forced the passengers and crew to take flight.

Fred Dueker, with his son Irwin, with a common old shoe box as a trap, captured in all the bees without any trouble, the youngster handling the big-gest part of the job. With the departure of the bees, peace again reigned on Sycamore.

Ancient Game of "Snipe" Hunting Is Revived

NEW YORK.—The ancient and honorable game of "snipe hunting" has been revived and in this enlightened vicinity, too. The revivee is Jack Ehrler, bookkeeper at the Guardian Savings and Trust company. Lest there be some folk who are not acquainted with the delights and joys of "snipe hunting" we will elucidate. For hunting the wary snipe, a dark night is selected. The hunters repair to a dense woods. They circle through the woods and drive the snipe toward the hunter where one man stands ready to catch them in a bag. The sport comes when every one beats it for home, leaving the one man to hold the bag until he comes to.

Jack was visiting on a farm near Hudson recently and some one proposed that the hunt for snipe ensue. The buck grew quite enthusiastic over its possibilities and quite naturally declared that he would hold the bag. He just would not allow anyone else to do it. And the more unselfish members of the party let him. The bag was placed in the depth of the woods with mile chutes leading to it as a runway, so the snipe could not miss finding it. Jack, it seems, cannot see well at night. He was armed with a lantern. About 3 a. m. Mr. Ehrler arrived home, after having been chased by dogs and irate farmers whom he awoke. He would not have this story become known.

Carbajal Said To Be The Man Who Will Be Mexico's Temporary President.

UNITED STATES FAVORS HIM

Sub-Secretary Estava Ruiz Gives Out Interview Telling of Latest Plans of Dictator.

Vera Cruz. — To save his country from further horrors of civil war and his capital from capture and perhaps sack, General Huerta intends to resign the provisional presidency and leave Mexico.

This statement has been made by Roberto Estava Ruiz, Mexican sub-secretary of foreign affairs, who has reached Vera Cruz from Mexico City, on his way to Europe. Huerta, he said, will surrender the government to Francisco Carbajal, new minister of foreign affairs, who, in turn, will step aside for a provisional president, acceptable to the Constitutionalists.

"The president did not make me his confidant," Estava Ruiz declared, "nor did I have much time to talk with him after it was determined I should leave the cabinet."

Attack on San Luis Potosi.

Saltillo, Mexico.—Fighting already has commenced at San Luis Potosi. Engagements of outposts, designed by the Constitutionalists to establish the federals' strength and position, are of daily occurrence, according to reports received here by General Carranza. These actions are careful reconnoissances.

George W. Goethals, in command of the Panama zone. This was stated when the men appeared before a United States commissioner.

SENATORS IN A BIG HURRY

Will Endeavor to Complete Trust Legislation This Week.

Washington.—Trust legislation to complete the administration's legislative program will be undertaken in earnest in the senate, and Democrats and Republicans alike are straining at the leash to get at the task and complete it as speedily as thorough consideration of the proposed measures to supplement the Sherman law and regulate issuance of railroad securities will permit.

STORSTAD HELD RESPONSIBLE

For Sinking of Empress of Ireland When Many Lives Were Lost.

Quebec.—The collier Storstad is held to blame for the Empress of Ireland disaster in the findings of the wreck commission, handed down. The commission holds that the disaster was due to the Storstad's change of course ordered by the third officer without instructions from the first officer who was in charge of the collier at the time.

The Empress was sunk in the St. Lawrence on May 29 with a loss of more than one thousand lives.

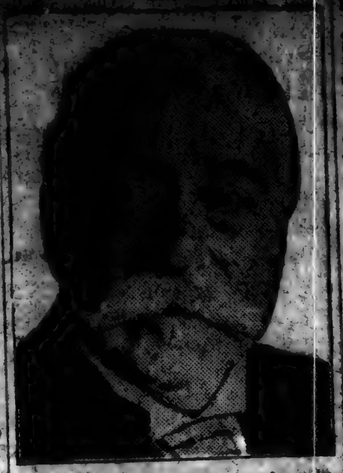
Surplus Continues to Grow.

Washington.—Income and corporation tax receipts for the first ten days of July aggregated $5,240,108.33 and raised the receipts from that source for the fiscal year to $76,626,264.96. The estimate of Secretary McAdoo was that the total incorporation tax collections would be only $75,000,000.

Timber Lands Owned by Few.

Washington.—Concentration of timber lands in the United States in the hands of a few owners is discussed at length in the second and third parts of the report of the bureau of corporations on the lumber industry.

Battleship Nevada Launched.



Quincy, Mass.—The battleship Nevada, sister ship to the new Oklahoma, was launched here. Secretary Daniels of the navy department and Tasker L. Oddie, governor of Nevada, were among the distinguished guests present at the ceremonies.

U. S. Has Aviation Service.

Washington.—The Hay bill, organizing a special aviation service in the signal corps of the army, was finally agreed upon in the house and now goes to the president.

Justice Horace Lurton Dead.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Associate Justice Horace Harmon Lurton of the United States supreme court died suddenly at a hotel here from acute indigestion superinduced by pneumonia. He was 76 years old.

Admiral George Dewey has been invited by Secretary of the Navy Daniels to resume command of his old flagship Olympia at the time of the great naval display marking the formal opening of the Panama canal. The Olympia, it was decided, will share honors with the battleship Oregon, and if Admiral Dewey cannot go to the isthmus it is hoped he at least will visit the cruiser at the San Francisco exhibition.

WILL CONTINUE REVOLUTION

ALL HOPE FOR PEACE VANISHES WHEN CONSTITUTIONALISTS REFUSE MEDIATION.

Rebel Chief Says He Will Establish a Military Government in Mexico.

Laredo, Texas.—The Constitutionalists are unlikely to accept the offer of the Niagara mediators for a conference with representatives of General Huerta, to arrange a provisional government in Mexico. This announcement, coming from unquestioned sources, reached the border here.

It was declared by arrivals here that the generals of the Constitutionalist army to whom the question was submitted for advice by General Carranza had, with the exception of the generals of Obregon's division who have not yet had time to report, very strongly opposed any such conference.

Carranza Promises Peace.

General Carranza, it is said, has given assurances that if the Tampico gateway is opened and he can obtain through that port arms and ammunition and supplies, he will take Mexico City within a very short time, establishing peace on a firm basis under military rule until it is possible to hold a fair election.

DEFENDED BY PRESIDENT

Wilson Supports the Appointment of Jones and Warburg.

Washington.—Declaring it would be unfair to regard the Democratic party as the enemy of big or little business, President Wilson has given out a statement in support of Paul Warburg of New York and Thomas D. Jones of Chicago, his nominees for the federal reserve board.

"It would be particularly unfair to the Democratic party and to the senate itself to regard it as the enemy of business, big or little. I am sure that it does not regard a man as an object of suspicion merely because he has been connected with great business enterprises," said President Wilson.

MEN BLOWN TO BITS

Nitroglycerin Hauled in Auto Explodes With Fearful Results.

Findlay, Ohio.—Charles Armstrong and P. H. Longabaugh, oil well shooters, were instantly killed by the explosion of several hundred quarts of nitroglycerin which they were taking to Buckland to shoot an oil well. The men were literally blown to atoms and only a small piece of the axle of the automobile in which the explosive was being transported could be found.

Several houses nearby were wrecked and thousands of panes of glass in the vicinity were broken.

Fire at Tuscumbia.

Birmingham, Ala.—Fire originating in a tailoring establishment at Tuscumbia, a small town in northern Alabama, destroyed three blocks of buildings and entailed a loss estimated at $60,000. Seven store rooms with several offices were included in the blocks.

Crop Damaged by Hail.

Charlotte, N. C.—Reports coming in from the country districts show last night's storm to have been severe in many places.

Britain Interested in Canal Dredge.

London.—A fair degree of interest in Great Britain had been aroused over the United States dredge which passed through the Panama canal on the first leg of its journey to Europe.

Our Statesmen.

Ambrose Bierce, the brilliant satirist, says, at a dinner in Washington, a few political definitions.

"A conservative," said Mr. Bierce, "is a statesman who is enamored of existing evils, while a radical would replace them with others."

DON'T SUFFER WITH ITCHING

My, what relief!—The moment resinol ointment touches any itching skin, the itching stops and healing begins. With the aid of resinol soap, it quickly removes all trace of eczema, rash, tetter, ringworm, pimples or other ugly, tormenting eruption, and leaves the skin clear and healthy. It is equally effective for sunburn, insect bites, sores, boils, burns, red, rough hands, dandruff and falling hair.

You need never hesitate to use resinol. It is a doctor's prescription that has been used by other physicians for the past 19 years in the treatment of most sorts of skin affections. Unlike many other remedies, it contains absolutely nothing that could injure the tenderest skin. Resinol ointment and resinol soap are sold by all druggists. Look out for worthless imitations.—Adv.

Marriage Causes False Fire Alarm.

Seven minutes of blasts from the whistle of the Passaic Metalware company, in honor of the marriage of the daughter of the superintendent, recently turned out five volunteer fire departments. The fog made the whistle audible in Rutherford, Nutley, Belleville, Garfield and Clifton and the firemen rushed to headquarters at the alarm.

It took half an hour to determine where the whistling came from. The wedding which caused the commotion united Miss Sallie Karp, 217 Brook avenue, Passaic, to Michael F. Barnan.—New York Mail.

Bless the Ladies.

"Our congressional committee heard 30 ladies in two hours. That many men could have kept us listening for several days."

"That shows that women can transact public business. But how did they manage to crowd 30 speeches into two hours?"

"Oh, they spoke threes and four at a time."—Kansas City Journal.

WRONG BREAKFAST.
Change Gave Rugged Health.

Many persons think that for strength, they must begin the day with a breakfast of meat and other heavy foods. This is a mistake as anyone can easily discover for himself.

A W. Va. carpenter's experience may benefit others. He writes:

"I used to be a very heavy breakfast eater but finally indigestion caused me such distress, I became afraid to eat anything.

"My wife suggested a trial of Grape-Nuts and as I had to eat something or starve, I concluded to take her advice. She fixed me up a dish and I remarked at the time that the quality was all right, but the quantity was too small—I wanted a saucerful.

"But she said a small amount of Grape-Nuts went a long way and that I must eat it according to directions. So I started in with Grape-Nuts and cream, two soft boiled eggs and some crisp toast for breakfast.

"I cut out meats and a lot of other stuff I had been used to eating all my life and was gratified to see that I was getting better right along. I concluded I had struck the right thing and stuck to it. I had not only been quitting improper food, but too much.

"I was working at the carpenter's trade at that time and thought that unless I had a hearty breakfast with plenty of meat I would play out before dinner. But after a few days of my Grape-Nuts breakfast I found I could do more work, ride better in every way and was not bothered with

CHILTON COUNTY SINGING CONVENTION

The Chilton County Singing Convention met with Chestnutt Creek, Cooper, on July 4th and 5th, and rendered the following program:

Called to order at 9:40 by president with song.

Devotional Exercises—R. T. Grant.

Eleven new members were added, after which the following officers were elected:

James Franklin, President; R. T. Grant, Vice President; F. Iveh Popwell, Secretary; S. M. Yates, Chaplain.

The importance of vocal music was very ably discussed by M. C. Crumpton.

The importance of more sight-singing and ear-training being taught was discussed in an interesting manner by H. M. Eagle.

The rest of the day was spent in singing, the following directors entertaining the class:

H M Eagle, H C Collins, J L Harris, A H Glass, L T Grant, R A Smith, Lee Robinson, S. M. Yates, with Mrs. H M Eagle, Miss Eva Franklin, Lee Grant, H M Eagle, and H C Collins, organists.

SECOND DAY

Called to order at 9:30 with song by president. Prayer by chaplain.

The Program committee placed the following directors on the program, who sang throughout the day:

W G Culp, P B Shaw, Edgar Miner, James Franklin, J L Gore, H M Eagle, L T Grant, C M Scott, G L Godfrey, W O Rich, T L Robinson, J W Lowrey, R D Durham, G C Weldon, J M Smith, A H Glasscock and P B Shaw.

The organists for the day were Miss Eva Franklin, Mrs. H M Eagle, J L Gore, Lee Grant, H M Eagle, Lee Robinson, P B Shaw, Edgar Miner and W G Culp.

The special songs that deserve mention were the quartette, rendered by Chilton County Quartette Band, the Godfrey Quartette Band of Ensley, Ala., and the solos rendered by R. D. Durham and Mrs. H M Eagle, the duet by Mrs. H M Eagle and Miss Carry Dorminy; the choruses and duets rendered by A H Glasscock and Mrs H M Eagle also deserve praise.

Taking the singing as a whole for both days, this was by far the best singing ever held in Chilton county as we had a full class of singers and a house full of listeners both days all the time.

The Committee on Resolutions, consisting of A H Glasscock, R A Smith and F I Popwell, drew up the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted by the Convention:

1. We desire to thank the people of Chestnut Creek and Cooper communities for their hospitality shown us during the 1914 session of the Chilton County Singing Convention, especially do we wish to thank them for providing water for the convention.

2. We wish to thank the visitors and singers from other communities for their help and co-operation and extend to them a cordial invitation to attend future sessions of the convention.

3. We, the committee, believe this to be the best session ever held in the county, and ask the prayers of the convention to this great cause, that God's richest blessings may rest upon us in our future efforts.

JUMPS ON RUSTY SIDEWALK NAIL

While working on a well digging machine a Minnesota man jumped upon a rusty sidewalk spike. The nail drove part of his black woolen sock far up into his foot. He removed as much of the sock as he could, put on Allen's Ulcerine Salve, and kept right on with his work. The salve drew out parts of the sock and all other poisons and in a week his foot was healed up.

This salve is one of the oldest remedies in America and since 1869 it has been known as the only salve powerful enough to cure chronic ulcers and old sores of long standing.

Allan's Ulcerine Salve acts by drawing out the poisons and healing the sore from the bottom up. It is so powerful that it heals new cuts and sores in one third the time that common salves and liniments take. And it heals burns and scalds without a scar. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co., and other leading druggists.

COURAGE

All mankind honors the courageous individual. The world pays willing homage to the men who stood aside on the ill-fated Titanic that the women and children might be saved.

Nations have for centuries dedicated memorials to the heroic dead. Tributes in prose and verse have been poured out unsparingly.

Physical courage commands the admiration of the world.

But there is another and equally as important courage,—moral courage.

The man who stands for the right in the face of public clamor; the man who from inherent courage is strong enough to mete out justice tempered with mercy.

Such a man is an invaluable asset to a city, state or nation. He is the kind of man who, after being correctly informed, will ask of himself what is right, and being convinced will do the right.

The L. & N. shares the public admiration for such men. Having had its work of supplying service and conducting development rewarded by ignorance, prejudice and selfishness, the L. & N. knows the value of courageous manhood, and the danger of moral weakness to the public welfare.

Ridicule is a dreadful weapon. Men dread it. Men, big men, crave understanding and sympathy. The absence of these and the presence of ridicule prove their bigness. If, in the face of ridicule and without understanding and sympathy, a man performs his duty, he is truly great.

And the performance of that duty not alone enhances his reputation,—which means to promote him in the esteem of his fellow man,—but it strengthens his character, which means to make him an even better man.

The L. & N. talks of these things because we want the understanding and sympathy of the morally courageous men. We want their help and co-operation in our efforts to do what is for the general public good.

We want your moral support and sympathetic co-operation. We will endeavor to at all times merit the confidance reposed in us by the morally courageous.

MR. GULLEDGE MAKES CORRECTION

Verbena, Ala., July 20, 1914

Editor Press—Please correct your list or guide notice this week, that I gave only $5.00 for barbecue fund, and that the other $5.00 included in my name was given by W. S. Keller, our esteemed State Highway Engineer.

I notice your list of receipts and disbursements show quite a deficit. This is a hardship on the committee. In casting about I can count up within a small territory, in and contiguous to our county seat, sufficient names who, it seems have given no help, but who were there at the eating, and who are well able and who, by contributing one dollar each, would relieve the committee. We have them hereabouts who should have, but did not help. Liberal men live and do well by their liberality; the small minded "small potato" is always "few in a hill and far between." Nothing given by and nothing expected of them.

F. A. GULLEDGE.

UPCHURCH DRUG CO.

TO HAVE THEIR OPENING DAY FRIDAY NEXT.

For the past several years the business of Upchurch Drug Company has grown by such rapid leaps and bounds that it became necessary to seek new and larger quarters in order to meet the demands of a large and growing patronage. So, realizing this great need, Mr. Upchurch made a deal with Dr. S. E. Johnson, whereby the latter was to erect a large two story brick building on his lot at the corner of Second Avenue and Seventh Street. Plans were at once drawn for the building, the contract let and work begun. The building was completed a few weeks ago, and Mr. Upchurch, with his assistants, have been busy since that time stocking the entire lower floor and basement with drugs, paints, etc., and preparing for the opening day, which will take place on Friday. Everybody has a cordial invitation to attend. Free drinks will be served on that day and the most courteous treatment will be accorded one and all.

In view of their opening day, it is but fitting that we give a brief description of the interior furnishings of this beautiful store, the luxurious appointment of which is not excelled by any drug store in the South. The show cases are of heavy plate glass, in fact every piece of the fixtures, including mirrors, shelving, etc., are of heavy plate glass; all exposed woodwork is of solid mahogony.

The soda fount is the latest 1914 made and is indeed a beauty to look upon, being constructed of genuine Mexican onyx, together with slate and white Italian marble, there being not a piece of wood in entire front counter. The back bar of fount has refrigerated base, with refrigerated candy case in centre, the top of same being made of 7-8 inch plate glass. The base of all fixtures in entire building is trimmed with imported black and gold marble. A pair of $50.00 prescription cases have been added which will meet the requirements of any city in the South.

An announcement of the opening of this—pronounced by many to be one of the best equipped drug stores in the South,—will be found in another place in this issue.

NEGRO KILLED BY DEPUTY IN DALLAS

George Jones, a negro, who escaped from the Dallas county jail last week, was shot and instantly killed near Plantersville, Sunday morning by Deputy Sheriff Sam H. Campbell.

Jones was in the county jail awaiting trial on the charge of burglary and assault with intent to murder, when he made his escape. After escaping from jail he went to Dolomite, where he broke into a store and stole a pistol and some clothing. During the past week he returned to the northern part of Dallas county, and stole a Winchester rifle from a negro. With the rifle and pistol he was going to kill every negro who had anything to do with sending him to jail, as [illegible] Deputy Sheriff [illegible]

SECRETARY ROUNTREE TO PROBATE JUDGES

STATEWIDE INTEREST BEING MANIFESTED IN ROAD MOVEMENT

State-wide interest is being aroused in the observance of Good Roads Days, August 14th-15th. The Alabama Good Roads Association is making every effort possible to secure the co-operation of Chilton county, in this movement. Secretary J. A. Rountree has written the following letter to Judge E. B. Deason, which is self explanatory:

Birmingham, Ala.,
July 15th, 1914.

Judge E. B. Deason,
Clanton, Ala.

Dear Sir:

August 14th-15th are Good Roads Days. We hope that you have everything organized in your county to observe these days. Reports from nearly 60 counties, stating that they will observe Good Roads Days, have been received. We are glad to know you are deeply interested in the good roads movement and hope that you will lend every aid possible to make these days a success.

Every indication points that at least 100,000 citizens in Alabama will turn out and work the roads on these days. Think of the splendid work that will be accomplished by these volunteer workers, and the great enthusiasm that will be aroused by the working of the highways of the State.

Already, resolutions endorsing Good Roads Days have been passed by the Alabama Good Roads Association, the Alabama Press Association, the Alabama Rural Letter Carriers' Association and the Alabama Farmers' Union.

Governor O'Neal has issued a proclamation appealing to the people to observe Good Roads Days, also calling upon the Probate judges and County Commissioners to see that the same is put into effect.

The Alabama Good Roads Association, which inaugurated this movement in 1911, is very anxious that Good Roads Days in 1914 shall be the greatest days in the history of the State, and we hope that you will leave no stone unturned to make the same a success. Our Association stands ready to assist you in every way possible in your splendid work.

With very high regards, we are

Yours very truly,
Alabama Good Roads Ass'n,
J. A. ROUNTREE,
Secretary.

IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS CONDITIONS

Exaggeration of an optimistic character relative to business conditions is not a sin of which the commercial and financial newspapers of New York are guilty, and when one of these finds cause for congratulation upon improvement in any line of endeavor, it is conclusive evidence that such improvement has a positive existence outside of the editorial fancy. It ought to be especially pleasing, therefore, to the [illegible] men of the Financial [illegible] to read from the editorial in the New York Times, which is one of the most conservative of the New York papers, that "the United States Steel Corporation last Friday reported the first increase in unfilled orders on its books at the end of the month that it has had for several months. It has recently made large additions to its working force, and has resumed operations in several idle plants. As the Pennsylvania and several other important railroads must come into the market for rails and equipment in the near future, the outlook for the steel business seems to be very bright.

The improvement that has already taken place is due to the activity of the building trades and the factories which make agricultural implements, machinery, automobiles and other vehicles.

That there is not a marked increase in the placing of orders for rail and equipment, is due to the hope of the railroads that the Interstate Commerce Commission will render a favorable decision in the Eastern District freight rate case, is the impression of the Commercial. This does not mean, it says, that the roads are holding back in an effort to influence the decision, but that the necessary financial arrangements can be made at a much more satisfactory figure if the rate increase is granted. As matters now stand, it would cost the roads more to finance extensive improvements than it would were they permitted to make the proposed advance in rates, and thus be placed where they could be sure of a reasonable profit, and of being in a position to assume the additional interest charges.

As a matter of fact, there has been too much delay in this rate matter, and the Interstate Commerce Commission has it in its power to give business a decided stimulus by acting upon this case. If the advance is granted, then there is no doubt that the railroads will place large orders in a short time, and that business generally will be given a tremendous boost. If, on the other hand, the petition of the railroads should be turned down, then the great common carriers would know where they are "at," and those that are able to do so would go ahead.

While the Interstate Commerce Commission may not grant the Eastern roads the 5 per cent increase they petitioned for, it is the general opinion that some increase will be authorized and, to quote the Commercial this will mean "To start a boom that even an optimistic politician out of office could hear."

Cause for optimism also is found by the Commercial in the attitude of business men toward pending anti-trust legislation. It comments upon the utterances of Henry Ford, the millionaire automobile manufacturer, who told the President that "business is good," and goes on to say:

Bankers and merchants from Chicago were also optimistic and assured President Wilson that as soon as the currency law becomes operative, the last straw on which many business men are clinging in their criticism of the depression will disappear and business will be better. None of these Western business men seem to fear the anti-trust bills and other business legislation which the President is trying to get Congress to pass in order to clean the slate. They were impressed by President Wilson's friendly attitude toward the great industrial enterprises of the country, and those who have talked to the President agree with him that all will be well if Congress will hurry up and finish its work.

The business situation is improving, there can be no controversy upon this fact, and the outlook for the future is just about as rosy as one could hope for. Indeed, events point to the early arrival of the "boom" to which the President referred in a recent address, and which he declared would be the greatest in the history of the country.—Birmingham News.

ROBERTS & SON SECURE CONTRACT

The building Committee of Chilton County High School met on Monday at the Court House and opened bids for the erection of the High School building. There were three or four bids submitted from Birmingham and Montgomery firms. Roberts & Son Lumber Company were the only local bidders, and their bid of $14,500 being the lowest and best, they were awarded the contract.

The work of construction will begin within the next ten days and will be completed by Dec. 20, next. The famous Bessemer brick will be used for the facings of the building, which will make a very beautiful finish.

SOME HAIL.

Mr. C. B. Cox, candidate for Commissioner from the First District, returned Sunday from a business trip to points in North and South Carolina, bringing with him a pretty good hail story. Now of course every one has heard a fish tale, but this is a hail tail. Charlie says while traveling through North Carolina he noticed a stretch of land three miles wide and ten miles long that had been dealt a terrible blow from hail. Charlie vows that the stones were as large as hen eggs and covered the ground to the depth of several inches, and that the corn planted in the storm's path was laid as flat as if the steam roller Taft used to have had passed over it. He also says that a large number of stock were killed by the hail. Charlie gave us a lot of additional dope on this hail story, but space is short, so we refer our readers to him for any other information.

The Land of Broken Promises

A Stirring Story of the Mexican Revolution

SYNOPSIS.

Bud Hooker and Phil De Lancey are forced, owing to a revolution in Mexico, to give up their mining claim and return to the United States. In the border town of Gadsden Bud meets Henry Kruger, a wealthy miner, who makes him a proposition to return to Mexico to acquire title to a very rich mine which Kruger had blown up when he found he had been cheated out of the title by one Aragon. The Mexican had spent a large sum in an unsuccessful attempt to relocate the vein and then had allowed the land to revert for taxes. Hooker and De Lancey start for the mine.

CHAPTER V.

The journey to Fortuna is a scant fifty miles by measure, but within these eight kilometers there is a lapse of centuries in standards. As Bud and De Lancey rode out of battle-scarred Agua Negra they traveled a good road, well worn by the Mexican wood-wagons that hauled in mesquit from the hills. Then, as they left the town and the wood roads scattered, the highway changed by degrees to a broad trail, dug deep by the feet of pack-animals and marked but lightly with wheels. It followed along the railroad, cutting over hills and down through gulches, and by evening they were in the heart of Old Mexico.

Here were men in sandals and women barefoot; chickens tied up by the legs outside of brush jacales; long-nosed hogs, grunting fiercely as they skirmished for food; and half-naked children, staring like startled rabbits at the strangers.

The smell of garlic and fresh-roasting coffee was in the air as they drew into town for the night, and their room was an adobe chamber with tile floor and iron bars across the windows. Riding south the next day they met vaqueros, mounted on wiry mustangs, who saluted them gravely, taking no shame for their primitive wooden saddle-trees and pommels as broad as soup-plates.

As they left the broad plain and clambered up over the back of a mountain they passed Indian houses, brush-built and thatched with long, coarse grasses, and by the fires the women ground corn on stone metates as their ancestors had done before the fall. For in Mexico there are two peoples, the Spaniards and the natives, and the Indians still remember the days when they were free.

It was through such a land that Phil and Hooker rode on their gallant ponies, leading a pack-animal well loaded with supplies from the north, and as the people gazed from their miserable hovels and saw their outfit they wondered at their wealth.

But if they were moved to envy, the bulk of a heavy pistol, showing through the swell of each coat, discouraged them from going farther; and the cold, searching look of the tall cowboy as he ambled past stayed in their memory long after the pleasant "Adios!" of De Lancey had been forgotten.

Americans were scarce in those days, and what few came by were riding to the north. How bold, then, must this big man be who rode in front—and certainly he had some great reward before him to risk such a horse among the revoltosos! So reasoned the simple-minded natives of the mountains, gazing in admiration at Copper Bottom, and for that look in their eyes Bud returned his forbidding stare.

There is something about a good horse that fascinates the average Mexican—perhaps because they breed the finest themselves and are in a position to judge—but Hooker had developed a romantic attachment for his trim little chestnut mount and he resented their wide-eyed gapings as a lover resents glances at his lady. This, and a frontier education, rendered him short-spoken and gruff with the paisanos and it was left to the cavalier De Lancey to do the courtesies of the road.

As the second day wore on they dipped down into a rocky canyon, with huge cliffs of red and yellow sandstone glowing in the slanting sun, and soon they broke out into a narrow valley, well wooded with sycamores and mesquits and giant hackberry trees.

The shrill toots of a dummy engine came suddenly from down below and a mantle of black smoke rose majestically against the sky—then, at a turn of the trail, they topped the last hill and Fortuna lay before them.

In that one moment they were set back again fifty miles—clear, back across the line—for Fortuna was American, from the power-house on the creek bank to the mammoth concentrator on the hill.

All the buildings were of stone; square and uniform. First a central plaza, flanked with offices and warehouses; then, behind them barracks and lodging houses and trim cottages in orderly rows; and over across the canyon loomed the huge bulk of the mill and the concentrator with its aerial tramway and endless row of sighing buckets.

Only on the lower side, where the rough country rock cropped up, was there one of the customary adobe huts of the Mexican laborers, and these were huddled together as though for protection from the cold, unfriendly stone buildings which towered above them.

"Gee, what a burg!" raved Phil; "say, there's some class to this—what? If I mistake not, we'll be able to find a few congenial spirits here to help us spend our money. Talk about a company town! I'll bet you their barroom is full of Americans. There's the corral down below—let's ride by and leave our horses and see what's the price of drinks. They can't fease me, whatever it is—we doubled our money at the line."

Financially considered, they had done just that—for, for every American dollar in their pockets they could get two that were just as good, except for the picture on the side. This in itself was a great inducement for a ready spender and, finding good company at the Fortuna hotel bar, Phil bought five dollars' worth of drinks, threw down a five-dollar bill, and got back five dollars—Mex.

The proprietor, a large and jovial bonifface, pulled off his fiscal miracle with the greatest good humor and then, having invited them to partake of a very exquisite mixture of his own invention, propped himself upon his elbows across the bar and inquired with an ingenuous smile:

"Well, which way are you boys traveling, if I may ask?"

"Oh, down below a ways," answered De Lancey, who always constituted himself the board of strategy. "Just rambling around a little—how's the country around here now?"

"Oh, quiet, quiet!" assured their host. "These Mexicans don't like the cold weather much—they would freeze you know, if it was not for that zarape which they wind about them so!"

He made a motion as of a native

"Which Way Are You Boys Traveling?"

wrapping his entire wardrobe about his neck and smiled, and De Lancey knew that he was no Mexican. And yet that soft "which a'way" of his betrayed a Spanish tongue.

"Ah, excuse me," he said, taking quick advantage of his guess, "but from the way you pronounce that word 'zarape' I take it that you speak Spanish."

"No one better," replied the host, smiling pleasantly at being taken at his true worth, "since I was born in the city of Burgos, where they speak the true Castilian. It is a different language, believe me, from this bastard Mexican tongue. And do you speak Spanish also?" he inquired, falling back into the staccato of Castile.

"No indeed!" protested De Lancey in a very creditable imitation; "nothing but a little Mexican, to get along with the natives. My friend and I are mining men, passing through the country, and we speak the best we can. How is this district here for work along our line?"

"Nona better!" cried the Spaniard, shaking his finger emphatically. "It is of the best, and, believe me, my friend, we should be glad to have you stop with us. The country down below is a little dangerous—not now, perhaps, but later, when the warm weather comes on.

"But in Fortuna—no! Here we are on the railroad; the camp is controlled by Americans, and because so many have left the country the Mexicans will not trouble us."

"Then again, if you decide to stay a while by, it may be easy to call it home—and if you open up a mine, as I am sure you will, you will find that we are very, very kind to strangers. We are not like Mexico—or a revolution, either!"

"No, it don't," admitted Bud; "everything running full blast, too. Look at that ore train coming around the hill!"

"Yess it is a little balcony," he said, stepping outside, "where you can sit and look down on the plain. We have the wind and noise when the weather is fine, and you can watch the pretty girls from here. But you have been in Mexico—you know all that!" And he gave Phil a roguish dig.

"Bless, my frien', I am glad to meet you—" He held out his hand in welcome and De Lancey gave his in return. "My name," he continued, "is Juan de Dios Brachamonte y Escalon; but with these Americans that does not go, as you say, so in general they call me Don Juan.

"There is something about that name—I do not know—that makes the college boys laugh. Perhaps it is that poet, Byron, who wrote so scandalously about us Spaniards, but certainly he knew nothing of our language, for he rhymes Don Juan with 'new one' and 'true one!' Still, I read part of that poem and it is, in places, very interesting—yes, very interesting—but 'Don Joo-an!' Hah!"

He threw up his hand in despair and De Lancey broke into a jollying laugh.

"Well, Don Juan," he cried, "I'm glad to meet you. My name is Philip De Lancey and my partner here is Mr. Hooker. Shake hands with him, Don Juan de Dios! But certainly a man so devoutly named could never descend to reading much of Don Joo-an!"

"Ah, no," protested Don Juan, rolling his dark eyes and smiling rakishly, "not much—only the most in-teresting passages!"

He saluted and disappeared in a roar of laughter, and De Lancey turned triumphantly on his companion, a self-satisfied smile upon his lips.

"Aha!" he said; "you see? That's what five dollars' worth of booze will do in opening up the way. Here's our old friend Don Juan willing, nay, anxious, to help us all he can—he sees I'm a live wire and wants to keep me around. Pretty soon we'll get him feeling good and he'll tell us all he knows. Don't you never try to make me sign the pledge again, brother—a few shots just gets my intellect to working right and I'm crafty as a fox.

"Did you notice that coup I made—asking him if he was a Spaniard? There's nothing in the world makes a Spaniard so mad as to take him for a Mexican—on the other hand, nothing makes him your friend for life like recognising him for a blue-blooded Castilian. Now maybe our old friend Don Juan has got a few drops of Moorish blood in his veins—to put it politely, but—" he raised his tenor voice and improvised—

"Jest because my hair is curly Dat's no reason to call me 'shine!'"

"No," agreed Bud, feeling cautiously of the walls, "and jest because you're happy is no reason for singing so loud, neither. These here partitions are made of inch boards, covered with paper—do you get that? Well, then, considering who's probably listening, it strikes me that Mr. Brachamonte is the real thing in Spanish gentleman; and I've heard that all genuwine Spaniards have their hair curly, jest like a—huh?"

But De Lancey, made suddenly aware of his indiscretion, was making all kinds of exaggerated signs for silence, and Bud stopped with a slow, good-natured smile.

"S-s-st!" hissed De Lancey, touching his finger to his lips; "don't say it—somebody might hear you!"

"All right," agreed Bud; "and don't you say it, either. I hate to knock, Phil," he added, "but sometimes I think the old man was right when he said you talk too much."

"Pest!" chided De Lancey, shaking his finger like a Mexican. Tiptoeing softly over to Bud, he whispered in his ear: "S-s-st, I can hear the feller in the next room—shaving himself!"

Laughing heartily at this joke, they went down-stairs for supper.

CHAPTER VI.

If the Eagle Tail mine had been located in Arizona—or even farther down in Old Mexico—the method of jumping the claim would have been delightfully simple.

The title had lapsed, and the land had reverted to the government—all it needed in Arizona was a new set of monuments, a location notice at the discovery shaft, a pick and shovel thrown into the hole, and a few legal formalities.

But in Mexico it is different. Not that the legal formalities are lacking—far from it—but the whole theory of mines and mining is different. In Mexico a mining title is, in a way, a lease, a concession from the general government, giving the concessionaire the right to work a certain piece of ground and to hold it as long as he pays a mining tax of three dollars an acre per year.

But no final papers or patents are ever issued, the possession of the surface of the ground does not go with the right to mine beneath it, and in certain parts of Mexico no foreigner can hold title to either mines or land.

Feeling Cautiously of the Walls.

bestowed upon Hooker and De Lancey the task of finding an honest Mexican, and keeping him honest until he made the transfer.

While the papers were being made out there might be a great many temptations placed before that Mexican—either to keep the property for himself or to hold out for a bigger reward than had been specified. After his experience with the aristocratic Don Cipriano Aragon y Tres Palacios, Kruger was in favor of taking a chance on the lower classes. He had therefore recommended to them one Cruz Mendez, a wood vender whom he had known and befriended, as the man to play the part.

Cruz Mendez, according to Kruger, was hard-working, sober and honest—for a Mexican. He was also simple-minded and easy to handle, and was the particular man who had sent word that the Eagle Tail had at last been abandoned. And also he was easy to pick out, being a little, one-eyed man and going by the name of "El Tuerto."

So, in pursuance of their policy of playing a waiting game, Hooker and De Lancy hung around the hotel for several days, listening to the gossip of Don Juan de Dios and watching for one-eyed men with prospects to sell.

In Sonora he is a poor and unimaginative man indeed who has not at least one lost mine or "prospecto" to sell; and prosperous-looking strangers, riding through the country, are often beckoned aside by half-naked paisanos eager to show them the gold mines of the Spanish padres for a hundred dollars Mex.

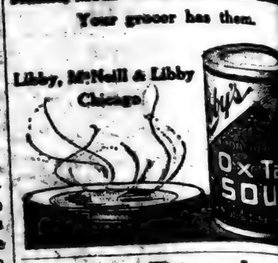
It was only a matter of time, they thought, until Cruz Mendez would hunt them up and try to sell them the Eagle Tail; and it was their intention reluctantly to close the bargain with him, for a specified sum, and then stake him to the denouncement fees and gain possession of the mine.

As this was a commonplace in the district—no Mexican having capital enough to work a claim and no American having the right to locate one—it was a very natural and inconspicuous way of jumping Senor Aragon y Tres Palacios' abandoned claim. If they discovered the lead immediately afterward it would pass for a case of fool's luck, or at least so they hoped, and, riding out a little each day and sitting on the hotel porch with Don Juan the rest of the time, they waited until patience seemed no longer a virtue.

"Don Juan," said De Lancey, taking up the probe at last, "I had a Mexican working for me when we were over in the Sierras—one of your real, old-time workers that had never been spoiled by an education—and he was always talking about 'La Fortuna.' I guess this was the place he meant, but it doesn't look like it was a [illegible] town. Maybe now—his name was Mendez."

"Jose Maria Mendez?" inquired Don Juan, who was [illegible] directory of the place. "Ricardo Pancho? Cruz?"

"Cruz!" exclaimed De Lancey; "that was it!"



"He lives down [illegible] mines," said Don Juan. "Old Fortuna! [illegible] Fortuna."

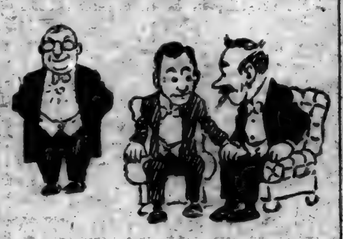
WASHINGTON CITY SIDELIGHTS

Swarm of Bees Is Attraction in Capital Street

WASHINGTON.—Chauncey C. Brainerd, the Washington correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle, entered his office on Fourteenth street in the heart of the business section early the other morning and found a compact group of visitors there ahead of him. The guests were rolling about the office, not on the floor, but halfway between it and the ceiling. A swarm of bees coming from the head of no man knows where had taken possession.

Brainerd knows little about bees except that they sting, a fragment of knowledge which made him cautious. He turned on the electric fan, and the visiting swarm getting into the path of the wind passed out an open window to fasten themselves in a body in a little poplar tree not more than 12 feet high which had been set out to take the place of a storm-broken maple.



The bees were an attraction. Traffic was blocked for a while with a throng of curious but none too courageous spectators. Finally a bold one placed a big paper box to the tree just below the bees, saying that they soon would settle in it and that when this happy result was reached he would clap the cover on and be the owner of a swarm that would bring him $20 in the market.

The bees would not go into the box. For half an hour the crowd watched impatiently, but the buzzing bunch clung to the foliage of the poplar and ignored the trap retreat. Soon there happened along James P. Hornaday, for years the Washington correspondent of the Indianapolis News. In his youth Hornaday had lived on a farm, and he knew about bees. He said: "Get a small bell, put it in the box, tinkle it and the bees will enter."

The crowd told Hornaday he was a fine josher, but that it could not fall for such stuff. The correspondent, finding his advice reproached, went his way. Five minutes later a man in a wagon came along. He was a farmer, and he showed it. He took a little bell off a bicycle which was standing at the curb, put it in the box and rang it. In two seconds the bees had dropped like a bunch from the foliage into the box, the cover was clamped on and the farmer drove away with his prize.

The Side of Politics at the Nation's Capital

HE HAD a keen eye, and from the neck up he looked like a brilliant, successful young man. A survey of him from his chin down disclosed the fact that he wore a shiny evening suit a size too small for him, that he had a tailtale sinking-in somewhere in the immediate vicinity of his wishbone, and the tops of his shoes were in better condition than the soles. Altogether, he was on his uppers—a fact which he was confiding to his friend in the hotel lobby.

After a while there appeared in the distance the picture of unlimited wealth, unsullied success, and uninterrupted prosperity. Instead of a sinking at the wishbone, he exhibited a stand-window effect. His clothes fitted him to perfection. Evidently he had come out a victor in every battle he had fought against adversity.

As soon as he appeared, the young man in the small evening clothes was electrified into new life.

"Excuse me," he said to his friend. "That old duffer is from Wisconsin, and he wants to get an ambassadorship. I'm helping him to get it."

All of which is another indication that strangers looking for honors in Washington will pay large sums of money to any needy person who claims to have influence with Bill Jones, who says he has influence with Congressman Smith, who is known to have influence with Senator Jones, who must have influence with a cabinet official who has more influence than anybody else with the president.

Found a Good Way to Defeat a Political Boss

THE most abject slaves of a political boss will revolt if their slavery is flung in their faces," philosophized Representative McKellar, who comes from the Memphis (Tenn.) district. "I had a concrete example of that in my first congressional campaign," he continued. "One day I met in the street the political boss of Binghamton, a manufacturing suburb. For years he had voted the men like sheep, and he was proud of his autocratic rule. He had opposed General Gordon, my predecessor, and was now violently, but good-naturedly, opposing me.

"'Mac,' he said, 'you won't get but four votes in Binghampton; there are 353 votes there altogether, and I poll the 348. I carry them in my vest pocket.'

"'We'll see about that, Tom,' I replied, with a laugh.

"And thereupon, relying upon that principle of human nature I have just stated, I planned my attack upon Tom's stronghold, where I was to speak the following night.

"I got my crowd in a good humor that evening with a few preliminary jokes, and then electrified them by assuring them that I did not expect their votes; that they could not vote for me, even if they wished to, for, no longer than yesterday, I told them, their fellow townsmen had informed me that they carried all their votes but four in his vest pocket—and they would all be voting against me. I called for a show of hands from those whose votes were not in Tom's vest pocket; not a hand. I then called for the hands of the independent voters—and every hand went up!

"And, on election day, I carried Binghamton by a handsome majority."

Wilson Likes June Brides, But Couldn't See 'Em

PRESIDENT WILSON has no desire to spoil the honeymoon of any June bride. Unfortunately, however, affairs of state prevent him from granting all the favors asked by June brides who happen to come to Washington on their honeymoons. That is why a certain June bride and her darling groom from Passaic, N. J., had to go down very much disappointed.

Accompanied by the aforesaid hubby, and clad in a very, very diaphanous gown, this June bride went into the executive offices to see Secretary Tumulty.

"We have just been married," announced the bride, blushing.

"Congratulations," said Tumulty.

"Isn't it delicious!" she exclaimed.

"It is," agreed the secretary.

"We want to see the president," announced the bride. "I'm sorry mine—I mean Hadley—but he is very busy just now," she pouted, "John and I thought it would be nice to shake hands with us for a photograph."

The secretary stepped and then politely "impossible," he said. "The president is very sorry, exceedingly sorry, but he is very busy just now."

Women's Times of Danger

Women suffer a great deal from kidney disease. Their indoor life, tight clothing and trying work all tend to weaken the kidneys. Woman's life also includes times of danger that are apt to leave the kidneys weak and to start attacks of backache, headache, dizziness, nervousness and urinary ills.

Prompt treatment, however will avert the danger of dropsy, gravel, or fatal Bright's disease.

Take Doan's Kidney Pills, the best recommended, special kidney remedy. Doan's are used successfully throughout the civilized world—have brought new life and new strength to thousands of tired, "Every Picture Tells a Story." discouraged women.

An Alabama Case

Mrs. J. M. Bowling, Union Ave., Ozark, Ala., says: "My kidneys acted irregularly and I felt miserable all the time. I had such bad dizzy spells I could hardly stand and my sight was affected. I doctored, but kept getting worse. The first day's use of Doan's Kidney Pills made me feel better and while I was finishing the third box I passed a gravel stone the size of a pea. I have been in good health ever since."

TANGO AS CAUSE OF CRIME

Brooklyn Judge Blames Theft by Two Youths to Nights Given to Modern Dance.

In suspending sentence in the cases of two youths who had pleaded guilty to attempted grand larceny, County Judge Fawcett, in Brooklyn listed "white lights and tango nights" in the catalogue of incentives to crime.

"You can't expect to dance all night," he said, "and lie abed half the day, yet always have money for your carousals, unless you steal it. And let me tell you our jails and penitentiaries are full of people with just such ideas. If your family had given you good beatings instead of money to spend, it would have been better for you."

The boys, John Colver, twenty years old, of 497 Hancock street, and Carlton Chapman, sixteen, of 362 Jefferson avenue, had been indicted for stealing money and jewelry from Adelaide Wiston, keeper of a furnished room house, where they lived for a time. They belonged to respectable families of moderate means. Both promised the judge to go home and begin again, Chapman to return to school, and Colver to work. Both wore tango pumps and silk shirts when arraigned.—New York Sun.

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES—RESINOL CURED

Atlanta, Ga., April 24.—"My face was covered with pimples which defied creams, soaps and cosmetics. They were a source of constant humiliation to me. By the time I had finished a cake of resinol soap and half a jar of resinol ointment, my skin was soft as velvet, and as smooth. My friends were stunned, and everyone asked me what I had done. When I told them, I think they hardly believed it, for the transformation was simply wonderful. Since then I have been using resinol soap and shall never be without it again, for I have learned the delights of a clear, soft, beautiful complexion that may be attained by its constant use." (Signed) Miss E. P. Gaddis, 234 South Pryor St.

Resinol ointment and resinol soap stop itching instantly and speedily heal eczema, and other skin humors, dandruff, sunburn, sores, burns and piles. Sold by every druggist.—Adv.

One Hundred Years Ago.

The curious modes which women affect now began as far back as 1798, which is a period we should hardly wish to copy in most respects. A dance not at all unlike the tango was in vogue at that time, and had many exponents, who danced in loose bodices opening in a V shape from the shoulders almost to the waist. Skirts were slit and were often made of transparent gauze.

We may return to the gowns of that period, which were without waists, having simply a girdle to the bust, with skirts caught up rather short in front and slightly trained at the back. In 1800, women wore sandals and bare feet. Corset belts were only about two inches wide. Some gowns were caught up to the knee with large cameos. Soon fashion overreached itself, and then came crinolines, pointed footgear and unnaturally small waists. Are we coming to this?

Puzzled the Parson.

At a marriage service performed some time ago in a little country church in Georgia, when the minister said in a solemn tone: "Wilt thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?" instead of the woman answering for herself, a gruff man's voice answered, "I will." The minister looked up very much perplexed, and paused. He repeated the sentence, and again the same gruff voice answered, "I will." Again the minister looked up surprised, not knowing what to make of it, when one of the groomsmen at the end of the row said: "She's deef, parson, an' I'm answerin' for her."

GET WIRELESS BY BEDSPRING

Eastern Amateur Experiments With a Novel Form of Antennae and Is Successful.

Cyrus H. Flandreaux of Peekskill, N. Y., gives the following interesting account of his experiments with a novel form of antennae for wireless telegraphy:

"There are many things used as antennae to catch the mysterious electric wives which carry our wireless messages through space, and I find that the springs of my bed serve as very efficient antennae. My room is on the second story of my house, and by using these springs as antennae I can easily read the signals sent out every night by the wireless station at Sayville, L. I., although they are not by any means so loud as when I use my outdoor antennae, which are 40 feet above ground, 60 feet long and consists of four wires on spreaders, the wires being two feet apart.

"The bedspring antennae are best for use with nearby high power stations. Sayville, L. I., is about fifty miles from Peekskill. With my outdoor antennae I continually hear the Arlington (Va.) naval station when it sends out the correct time signals at 11:55 a. m and at 9:55 p. m.; also the weather reports, Brooklyn navy yard; New London, Conn.; Cape Cod and others, including amateur stations too numerous to mention.

"I have an all-round good apparatus. I hold a station license and an operator's license, both issued by the United States government. My official call is 2 V U."

London Has Ambulances.

London, which has never yet had an ambulance, has at last ordered six of them, and expects them to do all the work for the entire city. In case of past accidents the policemen have had to commandeer the nearest wagon, depending on the generosity of the driver, as they were not able to offer him anything.

THOUGHT SHE COULD NOT LIVE

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Unionville, Mo.—"I suffered from a female trouble and I got so weak that I could hardly walk across the floor without holding on to something. I had nervous spells and my fingers would cramp and my face would draw, and I could not speak, nor sleep to do any good, had no appetite, and everyone thought I would not live. Some one advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had taken so much medicine and my doctor said he could do me no good so I told my husband he might get me a bottle and I would try it. By the time I had taken it I felt better. I continued its use, and now I am well and strong.

"I have always recommended your medicine ever since I was so wonderfully benefitted by it and I hope this letter will be the means of saving some other poor woman from suffering."—Mrs. MARTHA SEAVEY, Box 1144, Unionville, Missouri.

The Mountain Creek correspondent of the Birmingham News in last Thursday's issue said that a fine rain fell all over Chilton county on Wednesday before. This esteemed correspondent evidently thinks Mountain Creek is the whole county, as no rain fell in these parts. However, we did get a beautiful rain on Friday night and Saturday, and it was general too, all over the county. Guess now, this "correspondent" will tell us the rain fell all over the universe.

With spring wheat 35,000,000 bushels ahead of the last year of Taft—with winter wheat 132,000,000 bushels more than in the year when republican rule ended—with 421,000,000 more bushels of corn than in the year which marked the height of the Roosevelt-Taft feud—the cock of democracy may crow joyously. In this year of grace we shall not have to import grain from Argentina, but will have a stock so great that it will make the United States the world's storehouse.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Clanton market seems to be well stocked with chickens, eggs and water melons. Last year at this time chickens, eggs and vegetables were a hard proposition in Clanton. This was due to the large number of people employed at Lock 12 and farmers found a ready market for their products. Notwithstanding there are plenty of chickens on the market there is no depreciable decrease in prices, good fryers bring from 25 to 30 cents.

Mr. Andrew Wilson, a prosperous farmer, living near town, shipped a car load of the famous Watson watermelons to Birmingham Monday. So far as we have been able to learn, this is the first car of melons that has ever been shipped from Clanton.

PROGRESSIVE DISINTREGATION

In recent State elections candidates on the Progressive ticket have failed to receive anything like adequate support, and there are distinct signs of party disintregation. The Progressive party of North Dakota was unable to nominate a State ticket, being ruled out on account of lack of requisite 25 per cent of votes cast at a former election as required by the election laws of that State.

And in Minnesota the Bull Moose party faces the same political status. Although the laws of that State require that parties seeking a place on the official ballot to have cast only 10 per cent of the votes recorded in the previous primary contest, it seems that progressives will be disqualified here also. The number of votes necessary under the 10 per cent provision is 3345. The Roosevelt party, however, could only rally 2874 votes. But at the last gubernatorial election Colonel Roosevelt's supporters in Minnesota gave their leader a total of 125,856.

In Pennsylvania Clifford Pinchot, the Progressive senatorial candidate, is said to be rapidly losing ground, The Progressive party retains the hope of winning in Louisiana, thus breaking "solid south;" but this claim is extremely doubtful; so doubtful, indeed, as to be regarded not at all seriously by Democrats. As indicated by the enthusiasm aroused in some quarters by Roosevelt's Pittsburg speech, the Colonel, as a national figure, still holds a large measure of his personal popularity. No party, however, can hope to become a potential factor in national affairs when its claims for support are based entirely on the personality of one man.

Many politicians attribute the rapid decline of so-called progressivism to the record of the Democrats enacting conservative legislation. The Wilson administration's note of sincerity has been clear and strong, and its record for definite achievement, it is thought, has a tendency to force alluring promises made in the Progressive platform into the background of public appreciation.—Age Herald

MOUNTAIN CREEK

COTTON GIN COMPANY ORGANIZED

There has been organized and financed a new cotton ginning company at Mountain Creek for the purpose of accommodating farmers and planters in this portion of Chilton county.

This new company was organized by the purchase of the plant formerly owned and operated by the Southern Cotton Ginning Company. The prime means in the enterprise were Judge Graff Sims and W. W. Cobern. These gentlemen conducted the negotiations to a successful conclusion and then sold small holdings of the stock to the farmers and others to whose interests it is to further the home matters.

The plant is being put in first class condition, and will be ready for the use of cotton growers when the ginning season opens. Liberal and fair prices for farmers and cotton growers will prevail.

FAIRVIEW.

There will be a Union ralley at this place on Friday, July 31st. Everybody is invited to come and bring baskets well filled.

ODD FELLOWS

Dr. E. A. Matthews, mayor, and Judge S. M. Adams. Response to the addresses in behalf of the Convention were delivered by Palmer P. Dangette of Birmingham and President J. H. Hickman. About 200 visiting Odd Fellows and delegates are in attendance. A full account of the proceedings will appear in next week's issue.

THE MAN WHO FAILS

The man who fails is the sort of chap
Who is always looking around for a snap;
He neglects his work to regard the clock;
Who never misses a chance to knock.
He is grouchy and slow when work begins;
When it's time to quit, he jokes and grins.
He's always as busy as busy can be,
When he thinks the boss is around to see.
He believes that a "pull" is the only way
By which he can ever draw big pay;
And he sulks and growls when he sees his plan
Upset by the "push" of another man.
He's on his job when he draws his pay;
Then done, he soldiers his time away;
When the men who tackle their job with vim
Keep pushing and climbing ahead of him.
For the man who fails has himself to blame,
If he wastes his chances and misses his aim
He'd win if he'd used his hands and wits;
The man who fails is the man who quits

Minneapolis Lady Badly Scalded While Cooking

While preparing dinner a young Minneapolis wife had the misfortune to scald her hand so badly that over half the skin came off. She was alone at the time and rushed over to her neighbor's for help. This neighbor promptly applied Allen's Ulcerine Salve and in ten days the hand was comhealed without a scar.

This salve is one of the oldest remedies in America and since 1869 it has been known as the only salve powerful enough to cure chronic ulcers and old sores of long standing.

Allan's Ulcerine Salve acts by drawing out the poisons and healing the sore from the bottom up. It is so powerful that it heals new cuts and sores in one third the time that common salves and liniments take. And it heals burns and scalds without a scar. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co., and other leading druggists.

Mr. T. J. Curry, W. A. Curry, and daughter and son came down from N. Decatur by auto on last Friday to spend the week with their brother, Thos. A. Curry and family. The party made the trip without a single accident and report the roads to be in fairly good condition.

Hilyer and Miss Lizzie Taylor. The last two named were married at the court house on Wednesday morning by Chief Clerk Thos. S. Pyron.

King of All — WEBER KING OF ALL — That's Why We Handle Them

Every Weber Wagon We Sell Is Inspected Four Times

Instead of waiting until you need a wagon and then taking the first that's offered you, find out in advance which wagon will give you the best service. Buy the wagon that will stand up for the longest time and be easiest on your horses.

That wagon is a Weber. Here's why. Each Weber wagon is thoroughly inspected. The lumber used is selected from large purchases of first grade oak and hickory for wheels and gears, the finest yellow or bay poplar for box sides, and long leaf yellow pine for bottoms.

Every stick of this lumber is carefully inspected, and each part cut from it is again inspected when it is shaped and ironed. The third inspection is made just before the wagon is painted, and insures perfect fitting of every part. The final inspection is made when the wagon is ready for delivery. Four inspections to make sure that you get just what you pay for when you buy a Weber wagon.

Drop in the next time you come to town and look over our line of Weber wagons. We are proud of them.

REBEL CHIEF READY TO END HOSTILITIES

IS WILLING TO RECEIVE COMMISSIONERS AND DISCUSS TERMS.

WILL BE UNCONDITIONAL

Safety of People Will Be Guaranteed. Leaders of Madero Tragedy Will Be Prosecuted.

Washington.—General Carranza informed the United States government he was ready to declare a suspension of hostilities against the government of Provisional President Carbajal, Huerta's successor, pending negotiations with his representatives for the transfer of authority at Mexico City to the constitutionalists.

The constitutionalists' chief cordially expressed his views to John R. Silliman, personal representative of President Wilson, and Consul General Hanna and Vice Consul Robertson, who interviewed him at Monterey. He voiced a willingness to receive the commission of three appointed by Provisional President Carabajal to discuss peace. Secretary Bryan announced the receipt of the message from the American representative with the comment that prospects for an agreement between the two factions now were very favorable. Inasmuch as the three men chosen by Carbajal are constitutionalists who have been in hiding in Mexico City and are thoroughly in accord with General Carranza's policies, as well as personal friends of Mr. Carbajal, the impression now is general that the negotiations for an transfer of authority of government will be successful.

General Carranza is insistent, however, that the surrender of the Carbajal government should be unconditional. He is willing, it is declared by his representatives, to grant a limited amnesty as a voluntary act of generosity on the part of the constitutionalists after they obtain the reins of government. It is the intention of the constitutionalists to give guarantees of safety to the people generally, but to prosecute ring-leaders in the plot through which Madero was overthrown. Most of the latter, however, already left Mexico.

No official information has reached Secretary Bryan as to whether the Carabajal commission has left Mexico City. Newspaper reports for several days have said they were en route northward.

Fernando Iglesias Calderon and Luis Cabrera, two confidential advisers, and General Carranza will leave here for Monterey. They, together with Jose Vasconcelos, who is now with General Caranza, were named as a commission to participate in the Niagara Falls mediation if constitutionalists were admitted. It is believed General Carranza will call on the same commission to act for him in parlays with the delegation sent by Mr. Carbajal.

Incidentally Secretary Bryan said that the protocol signed at Niagara Falls agreeing to recognize a government set up by agreement of the two Mexican factions would become effective if a satisfactory agreement were reached in the proposed conference.

Ambassador Da Gama of Brazil and Minister Suarez of Chile discussed mediation and the Mexican situation generally with Secretary Bryan

Mr. Da Gama said afterward that from his point of view mediation formally ended with the resignation of General Huerta, but that he hoped the protocol with reference to an agreement between the two Mexican factions would be vitalized soon.

Speaking of reports that General Villa had affronted General Carranza by promoting Major Fierro and others in disfavor with the first chief, Secretary Bryan said he had received "nothing definite enough to make public."

He intimated that while stories of a break between Carranza and Villa had reached him he was seeking through consular representatives to obtain authentic information.

Jules Jusserand, the French ambassador, repeated his inquiry to Mr. Bryan concerning the French clergymen who had been imprisoned by the constitutionalists at Zacatecas. Mr. Bryan said urgent representation about them had been made to General Carranza but no answer had yet been received.

Although the subject of financial operations incurred by the Huerta government has not been officially taken up here, Secretary Bryan told inquirers that the American government, along with the constitutionalists, had notified the world that concessions or financial transactions of the Huerta government would not be recognized as legal after October 10, 1913, shortly after the dictator dissolved Congress.

HUERTA GOES TO JAMAICA.

Departure Without Incident and Devoid of Formality or Distinction.

Puerto Mexico.—The German cruiser Dresden, with former President Huerta and his family and former War Minister Blanquet, Senorietta Blanquet and their daughter, aboard, sailed for Jamaica.

The departure of the former executive was without incident, there not being even any shouts of "Good-by" to him from the dock.

The only thing to indicate anyone of distinction was aboard the Dresden was an extended file of 50 ragged troops. These troops presented arms as the Dresden moved out, but it was so dark it is doubtful if Huerta observed this sole official tribute.

DICTATOR HUERTA RESIGNS

Former President Blames His Inability to Restore Order on American Government.

Mexico City.—Gen. Victoriano Huerta resigned from the provisional presidency of the Mexican republic and his resignation was accepted by the Senate and Chamber of Deputies by a vote of 121 to 17.

Francisco Carbajal then was appointed President and took the oath of office at the joint session of the deputies and senators.

Huerta's resignation was submitted through the department of foreign relations. It was read in the House and was greeted with cries of "Viva Huerta." It then was referred to the joint committee of gobernacion. After brief consideration the committees reported, accepting the resignation

A ballot was taken and the joint session approved the report.

President Carbajal proceeded to the national palace under an escort of presidential guards, and all along the way was greeted with tumultuous cheering.

The text of General Huerta's resignation follows:

"Deputies and Senators: Public necessity admitted by the Chamber of Deputies, by the Senate and by the supreme court called me to the supreme magistracy of the republic. Later when in this same hall I had the honor of addressing you in compliance with the constitutional precept I promised at all costs to bring about peace.

"Seventeen months have passed, and in that brief period of time I have formed an army with which to carry out that solemn promise. You all know the immense difficulties which my government has encountered owing to a scarcity of funds, as well as to the manifest and decided protection which a great power of this continent has afforded to the rebels—so much so that when the revolution had been broken up, seeing that its chief leaders were and continued to be divided, the power in question sought a pretext to intervene directly in the conbict, and the result of this was the outrage committed at Vera Cruz by the American fleet.

"Success was had, s you know, in adjusting honorably through our delegates at Niagara Falls the petty Tampico incident, but the revolution continued with the support of whom we all know.

"Yet after the highly patriotic work achieved by our delegates at Niagara Falls, there still are some who say, come what may I seek my personal interest and not that of the republic. And as I need to rebut this allegation with facts I tender my formal resignation of the presidency of the republic.

"The national Congress must know taht the republic, through its government, has labored in entire good faith and with the fullest energy, having succeeded in doing away with the party which in the United States calls itself democratic, and having shown how the right should be defended.

"To be more explicit, I will say that the action of the government of the republic during its short life has dealt death blows to an unjust power. Later on, stronger workers will come, using implements that undoubtedly will end that power which has done so much harm and committed so many outrages on this continent.

"In conclusion I will say that I abandon the presidency of the republic, carrying with me the highest sum of human wealth, for I declare that I have arraigned at the bar of universal conscience the honor of a position, whom I, as a gentleman, challenge to prove from me that possession.

"May God bless you and me."

Fresh Trouble Reported.

Douglas, Ariz.—Fresh trouble between the military and military governments in Sonora was reported here with the arrest of Governor José M. Maytorgan, of Major Carlos Plank.

Plank was sent by Francisco A. Salazo, president of the Sonora body and sent the commission, as it reported, was hearing letters. The latter were addressed to General Alvaro Obregon, commander of the constitutionalist army operating in Sonora. The letters were found in the governor's baggage by Plank's men.

At Hermosillo Major Plank was arrested by order of Governor Maytorgan. He was released later and told to return the border in an automobile, but was caught shy, mounted, and fled from Hermosillo.

HUERTA'S ROLE HAS BEEN ONE OF BLOODSHED

Killing of Madero Marked Beginning of Despotism.

MADE VAIN BOAST TO TAFT

Dictator Declared He Would Restore Peace at Once, but Refusal of United States to Recognize Him Assured His Downfall.

Victoriano Huerta took oath as provisional president of Mexico February 19, 1913, the day after President Francisco I. Madero, Jr., had been arrested at the national palace.

Three days later Madero and Jose Maria Pino Seafez, vice-president, were shot to death while on a midnight ride under guard from the palace to the penitentiary. The precise manner of their death has never been explained.

One of Huerta's first acts as provisional president was to telegraph William H. Taft, then president of the United States, the following message:

"I have the honor to inform you that I have overthrown the government. The forces are with me, and from now on peace and prosperity will reign."

PROVOKES CIVIL WAR.

The Mexican republic, however, was at once plunged into civil war again, notwithstanding the issuance by Huerta of a proclamation of general amnesty. The Sonora state congress officially repudiated the provisional government before Huerta settled himself comfortably in the presidential chair.

Zapata, revolutionary leader to the south of the capital, after negotiating a few days with the new regime, went back to his guerrilla campaign.

Salazar, one of the highest generals in the army, denounced Huerta.

Carranza, constitutionalist leader in Chihuahua, assailed Huerta in a bitter statement made public at San Antonio.

Francisco Villa announced himself an adherent of Madero and joined the northern army.

Pasqual Orozco of the clan of the northern revolutionists was the lone notable figure among the disaffected who declared for the new government.

TAFT LEAVES PROBLEM.

President Taft, nearing the end of his term, left to his successor the problem of adjusting diplomatic relations with Mexico. To Woodrow Wilson Huerta sent felicitations on the day of the American president's inauguration.

Hampered at the outset of his administration by the refusal of the United States to recognize him, Huerta soon faced growing difficulties in raising funds to run his government. His uneasy hold on affairs was weakened by minor constitutionalist victories in the north and by recurring rumors of a break with Felix Diaz, nephew of Porfirio Diaz and Huerta's ally in the overthrow of Madero.

HUERTA CALLS ELECTION.

May 1 Huerta announced that he would urge congress to call elections in October to choose his successor. The congress selected October 26 as the date of the election, and a decree to that affect was issued by Huerta June 3.

Felix Diaz, who had announced himself as a candidate for the presidency, was sent to Japan July 17.

Henry Lane Wilson, American ambassador, was recalled to Washington, and Nelson O'Shaughnessy, charge d'affaires, was left in charge of American interests in Mexico.

REJECTS PEACE EFFORT.

Early in August it became known that President Wilson intended to send John Lind, former governor of Minnesota, to Mexico as his personal representative in an endeavor to arrange a basis for the republic's peace. Huerta announced that he would not tolerate foreign interference.

Nevertheless Mr. Lind delivered his note from President Wilson.

Huerta rejected all proposals made by the American government, chief of which were the suggestions that he resign and not be a candidate election day.

Relations between Mexico and the United States became acute. President Wilson proclaimed his policy in an address before congress to which was attached the correspondence between Mr. Lind and the Huerta administration.

HUERTA ARRESTS DEPUTIES.

Huerta was attacked in the Mexican senate October 7 by Senator Belisario Dominguez, who had the hardihood to speak what was in the minds of himself and some of his colleagues. Dominguez disappeared.

The chamber of deputies adopted a resolution calling for an investigation.

To this Huerta's reply was prompt and explicit. His agents [illegible]

And here enter the persistent report that Huerta really desired to be elected and that his protestations to the contrary were a sham.

U. S. DEMANDS HE RESIGN.

When it became certain that the elections had resulted in no constitutional choice on account of the failure of voters to go to the polls, the American government peremptorily called on him to resign.

In a statement to the diplomatic corps November 9 Huerta announced that he would declare the result of the election null and order another election.

November 12 Huerta refused to accede to the American demand for his resignation, and Mr. Lind left Mexico City for Vera Cruz.

Meantime the United States dispatched warships to the Mexican coast and Americans continued to leave Mexico.

U. S. VEERS TO CARRANZA.

Definite proposals were made by the United States to Carranza and his adherents.

Several of the European powers, notably Great Britain, Germany and France, gave strong support to the policy of the United States.

The constitutionalists grew stronger and continued their advance to the south. They captured Victoria, Chihuhua, Juarez and Tuliscan.

The situation became so critical that Great Britain, Germany, France, Spain and Japan ordered warships to Mexican waters.

Fighting continued at Tampico and many other centers. Torreon soon was taken by the constitutionalists.

RAISES EMBARGO ON ARMS.

An embargo placed on the exportation of arms from the United States to Mexico was raised early in February of the present year.

A large number of American troops were concentrated on the border, and the American fleet in Mexican waters was strengthened.

The constitutionalists advanced on Torreon and Monterey. The former place was captured early in April.

Then came the departure of Mr. Lind from Vera Cruz and the arrest of a party of American bluejackets at Tampico, for which an apology and salute were demanded by the United States and refused by Huerta.

AMERICANS TAKE VERA CRUZ.

April 21 American bluejackets and marines were landed at Vera Cruz in consequence of the reported arrival of a large consignment of arms and ammunition for Huerta. A number of Americans were killed in the street fighting. The Mexicans retired and destroyed a portion of the railroad and the Americans held the port.

Shortly after a mediation proposal from Argentina, Brazil and Chile was accepted. A conference ensued at Niagara Falls.

In the interval American troops relieved the bluejackets at Vera Cruz. These have since remained in occupation of the port.

Tampico and Zacatecas fell into the constitutionalists' hands and the victorious armies continued their march on Mexico City, where rumors were in circulation for many weeks of the resignation of Huerta.

With Huerta's retirement the constitutionalists feel that their revolution has virtually triumphed. They turned against him the moment he overthrew Madero, the constitutional president of Mexico, in February, 1913, and have waged war with unrelenting vigor ever since.

U. S. TROOPS REMAIN IDLE.

The prospect of an early solution of the Mexican problem gave both president Wilson and Secretary Bryan much joy, naturally. American forces will not be withdrawn from Vera Cruz until a stable government has been established in Mexico City and recognition has been accorded the new government.

The feeling is general, however, that if Carranza gives guarantees to political offenders as well as the people generally recognition will be promptly extended by the United States and other nations of Central and South America, as well as Europe.

LAWYER IN PLACE OF POWER

For the First Time in History Mexican Republic Has a Civilian in Presidential Chair.

Mexico City.—Francisco Carbajal is fifty-four years old; a native of the state of Campeche, and a lawyer.

Almost ever since the start of his career he has occupied posts in the judiciary. In the Madero administration he was a senator, but relinquished his post to become the supreme court, of which he was chief justice at the time General Huerta appointed him minister of foreign relations.

When General Porfirio Diaz determined in 1911 to treat with the Madero revolutionists, Senor Carbajal proceeded to Juarez as his commissioner.

Senor Carbajal has a reputation for possessing considerable intellectual force and independence of character. His dominant is quiet. He shuns the contemporaneous vanities and gratifications to which the Mexicans are prone. He is [illegible]

RECEIVER ASKED FOR NEW HAVEN

Minority Stockholders Want Official To Prosecute Claims Amounting To Millions.

DIRECTORS ARE DEFENDANTS

William Rockefeller, J. P. Morgan Estate, Robert W. Taft and Others Are Named.

Boston.—The appointment of a receiver, special master or other official to prosecute claims aggregating $300,000,000 against defendant directors and estates of directors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, asked in a suit filed in the supreme court. The action is brought by Whipple, Sears & Ogden, representing minority stockholders of the company.

The suit in which the attorneys recently demanded that the directors join is designed to force restitution from those responsible of funds alleged to have been illegally expended in building up the New Haven system.

Judge Brady issued an order of notice returnable next Friday to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed and why an injunction against the desposition of the defendants' stock should not be issued.

Among the defendants, who include various New Haven directors since 1903 and estates of deceased directors, are:

William Rockefeller, Charles M. Pratt, Lewis Cass Ledyard, H. McK. Twombley, George McC. Miller, George J. Bush, James S. Hemingway, James H. Elton, Henry K. McHarg, Robert W. Taft, William Skinner, Charles S. Mellen, Alexander Cochrane, J. P. Morgan estate, Edwin Milner estate, I. De V. Warner estate.

WANT PEACE IN MEXICO.

America and Other Powers are Laboring to this End.

Washington.—Every influence and diplomatic agency at the disposal of the government was working for immediate peace in Mexico.

The administration is convinced that, with the elimination of Huerta, the factions in Mexico will be drawn together quickly. To aid in this and assure restoration of normal conditions without further bloodshed, officials here are exerting themselves to smooth the way for a new and stable administration which shall be recognized by the powers.

JONES URGED TO REPLY.

To Criticisms of those Opposing His Nomination.

Washington.—Democrats of the senate banking and currency committee who favor confirmation of Thomas D. Jones, of Chicago, as a member of the federal reserve board, have urged him to answer the report of the majority of the committee, which opposed his confirmation on the ground that he is a director of the International Harvester company, which is under indictment for violation of the Sherman act.

Burleson Favors Autos.

Washington.—Postmaster General Burleson has recommended the supplanting of horses on rural routes by automobiles. Along the recommendation goes a suggestion for an increase in the length of standard routes to fifty miles. The present length is twenty-four miles.

Beer Dumped Into River.

Parkersburg, W. Va.—To avoid paying the federal tax a local brewing company had deputy internal revenue collectors supervise the destruction of 170,000 gallons of beer. The beer, left over when West Virginia went dry July 1, was run out of the vats into the Little Kanawaha river.

Plucking Board May Go.

Washington.—To abolish the "plucking board" of the navy, Representative Britten, of Illinois, introduced a bill proposing retirement by a system of mental and physical examination for promotion to each grade. Officers failing to pass examinations would fail of promotion and a second failure would automatically retire them.

Six Killed in Wreck.

ATLANTA GIVEN UNIVERSITY

METHODIST SCHOOL WILL BE LOCATED IN ATLANTA BY DECISION OF THE COMMISSION.

Atlantian Endows New Methodist University in the Southeast With a Large Fortune.

Atlanta.—Atlanta wins the great southeastern university of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, the companion of the institution which has been located already at Dallas, Tex.

Announcement of the victory was made from the educational commission's meeting.

Shortly after the announcement, [illegible] G. Candler gave out a typewritten statement verifying the report that he will give $1,000,000 outright to the new university.

Atlanta's victory resulted from [illegible] two-million dollar offer for the university, the largest made. Of this amount $1,500,000 is a cash pledge, $500,000 of which the directors of the chamber of commerce agreed to underwrite.

The rest of the two million is the property of the Wesley Memorial church and the Wesley Memorial hospital, easily valued together at $500,000.

FLEE FROM MEXICO CITY

Families of Huerta and Blanquet Leave Capital on Guarded Train.

Mexico City.—The family of President Huerta and other relatives and close friends have left the capital for Vera Cruz aboard a special train.

The train was composed of three sleepers and a baggage car. Running ahead of it were two military trains carrying 500 men. Following came another military train with 500 troops aboard.

It is believed that President Huerta, General Blanquet and other high officials will leave the capital immediately.

The party boarded the train at Villa de Guadalupe, a railroad station, [illegible] miles from Mexico City. Only a few persons were aware of their departure.

DENIAL MADE BY MORGAN

Replies to Charges Made by Interstate Commerce Commission.

New York.—While J. P. Morgan & Co. consistently refused to discuss the interstate commerce commission's report severely censuring directors of the New Haven railroad system under the administration of Charles S. OPTIMISM MARKS REPORT OF KOLB DETERMINED STAND OF FARMERS AGAINST THE ENCROACHMENTS OF BOLL WEEVIL.

GOOD RESULTS FOLLOW

Report Says Danger Now Lies in the Second Appearance of the Weevil.

Montgomery.—Because of the determined resistance of the farmers and as a result also of continuous dry weather, there was less damage done to the cotton crop by the boll weevil during the week just ended than during the preceding weeks, according to the weekly agricultural review issued at the office of Captain Reuben F. Kolb, commissioner of agriculture.

"Reports from all sections indicate determination and interest on the part of the farmer to adopt the simple suggestion of picking the fields clean of the boll weevil as the pest appears and the gathering up of the squares which harbor these crop destroyers," declares the report.

"The danger now lies in the second appearance of the weevil which may be expected between the first and tenth of August and we would enjoin upon our farmers the necessity of redoubling their efforts in continuing the good work that they have successfully maintained up until now. In addition to the lively fight that has been made on the pest the efforts to destroy it has been greatly aided by the hot weather of the past few weeks. The drouth, while visiting a penalty in the nature of a shortage in the corn crop, has allowed a generous margin on the score of redemption against a maximum of harm from the boll weevil. This is a compensation not to be overlooked in apprising the effect upon our summer spell," continues the statement.

Optimism over the bright outlook for the cotton crop is breathed throughout the report.

"Nothing has transpired since our last report to undervalue the reality of a fine cotton crop. It is everywhere in evidence that unless something intervenes, not now to be considered, in an apprehensive way, this crop will be in the nature of a bumper," it declares.

The report says that farmers are buying red and crimson clover and vetch seed in abundant quantities and the prospects are that next year will mark an epoch in the growing of these crops in Alabama. Loss of hogs from cholera is still being reported from different counties, but in nearly every instance where there has been considerable loss as a result of the disease it was where the serum treatment has been ignored, according to the report.

BIG CELEBRATION AT ATHENS

Civic Bodies of Birmingham and Nashville Attend in Honor of the Completion of Road.

Athens—One of the biggest celebrations that this town has ever given was the celebration held here July 21 in honor of the completion to Athens of the Lewisburg and Northern road, which started its first train schedule last week. The entertainment was in the shape of a barbecue. The Nashville Board of Trade and the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce and the officials of the new road and the president of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis road were here, as well as people from all over the county. Several thousand visitors were in attendance, large delegations from Nashville and Birmingham also being present.

Athens is midway between Nashville and Birmingham and the citizens feel a closely allied interest in both cities, and, with the complete opening of the new road, Athens will have an additional outlet and expects to reap a rich harvest from the increased facilities.

BAPTIST HIGH SCHOOL

For the reason that we have seen no account of the Fifth Sunday Meeting at Stanton, we wish to say that a rousing interest was manifested when the discussion of the Baptist High School for central Alabama came up. While everything had not been as we might have wished, yet the first year's work has been reasonably successful, and we trust we are facing a successful future. A strong faculty has been provided for the coming session with Rev. John A. Pool, Ph. D., as President. Mr. Pool is from Georgia and has successful experience in the Baptist school work in that State, and under his leadership we expect a great year's work. We appeal to the Baptists of this section to rally to the support of the school, and make for this part of Alabama a great and needed institution.

Fraternally,
W. H. CONNELL.

PROSPEROUS TIMES AHEAD

Prophets of business prosperity do not always see their predictions fulfilled; but, among bankers and conservative merchants and manfacturers there is a consensus of opinion that unprecedented business activity will prevail throughout the United States within the next twelve months.

Large crops were produced last year, but this year's crops are much larger. In fact, they are breaking all records both in bulk and in money value; and as intelligent observers have pointed out, bumper crops are always irresistable. Commodity stocks are very low, and in view of the bountiful harvest, purchasing on a large scale must soon be in evidence.

August and September promise to be exceptionally busy months, and when October comes the probability is that the only complaint heard will be scarcity of labor. No man who can work, and who is willing to work, will be idle.

In the Birmingham district the wheels of industry are humming now, and it is reasonable to assume that in every part of this country the Fall will witness industrial plants operating at 100 per cent capacity.

Prosperity reached the high water mark in 1907 just before the panic. For something like four years business has been going at a phenominal clip. According to present indications, new records will be established in the business world before a great while that will make the prosperity of 1907 look small.

No wonder the calamity howler has hid himself and the normal business man is buoyant.—Age Herald.

PLANNING FARM WORK AHEAD

As this is read the active season, so far as the production of our staple crops is concerned, will be drawing to a close. It is true that some cultivation still remains to be done; but at most the farmer can do little henceforth toward making the crop. If the present outlook is poor, if stands are bad, and if unfavorable weather conditions appear to have cut yields, we believe in many cases the trouble may largely be attributed to a lack of vegetable matter—humus—in the land and to a lack of adequate preparation. Now that the less strenuous days are here and we have some time to look about us and plan the next year's work, the progressive farmer will begin to seek some way of avoiding a repetition of the losses sustained this year.

Right now one of the most profitable bits of planning any farmer can do is to arrange to plant some clover this fall. If a small patch was grown last year the acreage this fall should be increased, and if none hitherto been grown, by all means a small patch should be planted. Bear in mind that here we have reference particularly to bur and crimson clovers, two great winter soil builders that have proved successful on practically every well drained soil type in the South. We want to emphasize, too, the importance of getting clover seed early, as it seems almost certain now that the demand will far outrun the supply.

We are here emphasizing this matter of a cover crop of clover because, as we have often said before, it is only the farmer with a rich, clover-covered, humus-filled soil that is ever to make anything farming. These cover crops offer such a cheap and splendid means of filling the soil with fertility that we believe no man is realizing on his opportunities who fails to grow them. Get in touch with reliable growers and dealers at once and prepare to become a clover grower and soil builder.—Progressive Farmer.

FORMER CHILTONIAN SHOT DOWN BY NEGRO

B. W. Foshee, for 20 years a merchant at Belle Sumter, a mining community about 18 miles west of Birmingham, was shot and instantly killed last Thursday morning abou six o'clock by Martin Holley, a negro truck farmer, also well known in that community. The negro escaped and there is talk of summary action if he is captured.

The greatest excitement prevails in Belle Sumter, according to the meagre reports received in Birmingham. It is stated that armed citizens are patrolling the streets and that about 500 men are spread about in the woods looking for Martin Holley. Sheriff W.K. McAdory, with several deputies, is on the scene, but it is feared that they will not be able to save the negro from a violent death at the hands of the mob should he be captured. At a late hour Thursday night Holley was still at large.

Mr. Foshee was well known and was about 45 years of age. He had been a resident of Belle Sumter for the past twenty years and was highly respected by his fellow citizens. He was unmarried and is survived by a sister at Belle Sumter, and other relatives in Chilton county.

Accounts of the actual killing of Mr. Foshee are to the effect that the deceased had hired a son of Martin Holley, the negro, to work in his store, but owing to delinquent service had recently discharged the boy from his employ. Martin Holley, who is about 55 years of age and a well known negro truck farmer, came to Belle Sumter yesterday to see Mr. Foshee about his son. In the discussion that followed there were some heated words and finally it is alleged the negro struck Mr. Foshee, who is small in stature, and knocked him down just in front of Mr. Foshee's store. As the merchant lay on the ground the negro is alleged to have drawn a pistol and to have fired several shots at the prostrate form of Mr. Foshee, who was instantly killed by a bullet through his heart. The negro then got on his wagon and went off.

Following the killing the Birmingham authorities were notified and Sheriff McAdory hurried to the scene in an automobile. The Bessemer authorities also sent deputies to Belle Sumter and all precautions were taken to enforce law and order at the little mining community and to prevent further trouble.

Up to the time of going to press the negro has not been captured.

AMERICAN ROAD CONGRESS

At least six great national organizations are expected to hold distinct sessions at the Fourth American Board Congress, which will be held in Atlanta, Georgia, during the week of November 9, under the auspices of the American Highway Association and the American Automobile Association. As there are more than 100,000 petty officials having authority in road matters throughout the United States, and as there is an annual expenditure well over $2,000,000,000, at least $[illegible] of which is wasted every year, according to expert judgment, the field of usefulness for the Congress is a broad one. With the purpose of bringing about an efficient road system in that of the [illegible] from political [illegible] the attention of [illegible] gates at the Congress for one full session. President Richard Henry Dana, of the National Civil Service Reform League, will be one of the presiding officers.

An exact compilation of every existing road law in each of the forty-eight States is nearing completion, and will form the basis for analysis and proposed revision at an exceedingly important session of the Congress to be directed by special committees of the American Bar Association and the American Highway Association. It is expected that this session will result in a comprehensive plan of simplified and efficient road legislation, which may be presented through the governors of the states to each state legislature, at their next session.

At the Third American Road Congress, held last year in Detroit, one of the most interesting sessions was that relating to finance, which was held under the auspices of a committee from the American Bankers' Association. A large portion of the 4,000 delegates present at the Detroit meeting attended the finance session and paid close attention to the proceedings. This year's congress will devote particular attention to the financing of road improvement in view of the fact that upwards of a half billion dollars of road bonds are now outstanding and questions relating to issuance of new bonds and methods of retirement are assuming increasing importance.

I. S. Pennybacker, Executive Secretary of the Road Congress, with headquarters at Washington, D. C., states that indications are that the Atlanta congress will attract the largest assemblage of delegates and visitors ever assembled at a non-political public-welfare meeting in America.

THORSBY MASS MEETING

Pursuant to a call from the Mayor and Council of the Town, a mass meeting was held in the Public School house at Thorsby, on Friday, July 24, at 8 p.m.

The meeting was called to order by Mayor Bice and asked to elect a chairman and secretary. Wallace C. Edler was elected chairman and W. M. Parnell, secretary.

Mayor Bice then addressed the meeting, reciting his past services as mayor, and asking a re-election to the office. After discussion, a motion was made and carried, that the chairman appoint a committee of five to prepare a platform for the nominees to stand on; the committee appointed were: Messrs. Norton, Soberg, Franzen, J. R. Parnell and Carl C. Peterson. It submitted the following report:

"We, the qualified voters of Thorsby, Ala., in mass meeting assembled, do hereby declare the following basis on which we nominate candidates for office of Mayor and Council for the term, 1914-16, and require that all officers nominated by this meeting do accept the following, if they accept the nomination:

1st. We deem that the maintenance of good public schools and the protection of the health of the community are the chief duties of our municipality, and the first object for which the money of the town shall be expended.

2nd. The streets of the town should be strictly kept in good condition.

3rd. We declare that it shall be the duty of the Town Clerk to make no fraudulent report [illegible] amended by Mr. Butler, a fourth clause was added, viz: We also demand that the prohibition laws be strictly enforced. The report as amended was adopted.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. JOHN THOMPSON

Mrs. John Thompson died suddenly on Friday, last about five o'clock p.m., at her home in Clanton.

Mrs. Thompson had been ill with malarial fever for about four weeks at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Goodgame. Her condition had improved so much that she had been removed to her home recently, and on Friday last the children left her bedside to attend the Upchurch opening. They had been gone only a short while, and on returning home, were grief-stricken to find that their mother, whom they had left only a short time before feeling in the best of spirits, had passed into the Great Beyond. The cries of the heart-broken children were pathetic and heart-rending.

The deceased was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Goodgame. She was a kind and affectionate wife, a devoted mother, and leaves many friends to mourn her demise. A husband and three children, two girls and a son, survive her who have the sympathies of everyone in their great bereavement.

Funeral services were impressively conducted by Judge S. M. Adams, pastor of the Baptist church, a large concourse of sorrowing friends and relatives attending. Interment followed in the Clanton Cemetery.

I. O. O. F. CONVENTION

The Sixth Annual Convention of the Third District, I. O. O. F., at Clanton on Wednesday of last week was one of the most interesting and largely attended ever held. About 200 visiting Odd Fellows were in attendance from all over the district.

The reports from different Lodges showed the order to be in a flourishing and healthy condition, with a steady increase of membership.

Judge R. L. Bradley, who was on the program for an address at the morning session, was unable to reach Clanton till the afternoon train, but delivered a splendid address at the night session, which was well received.

Grand Secretary, H. C. Pollard, also delivered an inspiring address.

The visiting delegates were loud in their praises for the hospitable manner in which they were entertained by the citizens of Clanton, and especially the ladies, for the beautiful music rendered for the occasion.

Troy was selected as the place for the next Convention, which will be held some time in January, 1915.

RUNAWAYS GET MARRIED IN COLUMBUS

On Tuesday of last week Mr. Claude Jones and Miss Agnes Williams, a fair young lady of Evergreen community in the southern part of the county, ran away from home and were married in Columbus, Ga.

For some time this young couple had planned for their hearts to beat as one, but the irate father of the bride got wind of the game and entered a strenuous protest, so strong was he "agin" the plan that he notified the Probate Judges of this and adjoining counties not to issue the license. So the persistent couple knew it would be worse than folly to attempt to get married in Alabama.

Claude, stern Spartan that he is, was firm in his determination that nothing should thwart his plans for wedding the fair one he loved, and he at once began to devise ways and means to "put one over" the "old man."

Accompanied by his father young Jones came to Clanton on Monday and made arrangements with Lee Maddox for an automobile. Lee left Clanton Tuesday morning at eight o'clock and found the betrothed in waiting at the Evergreen school house. They at once proceeded on the long journey to Columbus, arriving there at six p.m. The license was immediately procured, a minister sought and the happy couple united.

The party left Columbus early Wednesday morning and arrived back home late in the afternoon.

Lee says the trip of over 300 miles was the quickest he has ever made with his car, and was a pleasant one, not a mishap occuring during the entire journey.

LOCK 12 NEWS

Misses Alice and Suetta Gray have returned from a two week's visit to relatives at Marbury.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Ray and little son, Eugene, are visiting the parents of the latter, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Patterson.

Mr. Jack Skews left for Gadsden Friday, where he was called on account of the illness of his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Noah and family, of Cane Creek, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Orman Wagoner of this place, Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Robert Allen, of Bessemer, spent Saturday with his brother, Mr. G. W. Allen.

Miss Jessie Cameron spent Monday and Tuesday with friends at Cane Creek.

The power house here is nearing completion and will soon be ready for permanent men.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. White spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Cameron.

THORSBY INSTITUTE FACULTY

The Trustees of [illegible] Thorsby Institute [illegible] for 1914-15: [illegible] Principal, [illegible] faculty for the past year, and are known to the people of the county. A word about the other members may be of interest.

Miss Stoddard is a graduate of Iowa Weslevan College with the degree of Ph. B. She is spoken of very highly by those who have known her. Her home is at Grinnell, Iowa.

Miss Pittman is a graduate of the Fifth District Agricultural School at Wetumpka, and has attended the Alabama Girls' Technical Institute at Montevallo, and the State Normal College at Florence. She has taught for five years under an Alabama First Grade Certificate. She is spoken of by those who know her as "faithful, conscientious and painstaking student, and a young lady of high Christian character."

The outlook for Thorsby Institute for the coming year is a good one. A number of applications have already come in for places in the Boarding Department. The new catalogue has just been issued, and will be mailed to any one on request. The Ladies' Guild of Thorsby are making arrangements for the painting of the dining room, and the study hall in the institute building will be painted. With the new drop curtain which was installed during the spring, this will make the institute hall a more useful and pleasant auditorium than ever.

ELIMINATION OF ADULT ILLITERACY IN UNITED STATES

In the house of Representatives, April 8, 1914.

Mr. Abercrombie introduced the following bill which was referred to the Committee on Education:

A BILL.

To require the Commissioner of Education to devise methods and promote plans for the elimination of adult illiteracy in the United States.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That the Commissioner of Education shall, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, investigate the methods that have been and are now used in any part of the United States and in foreign countries, in teaching illiterate men and women to read and write, and in inducing and assisting those of meagre education to extend their knowledge of subjects pertaining to their individual welfare and to their duties and responsibilities as citizens and members of society, and that he shall devise efficient and economic methods for teaching adult illiterates and adult men and women of meagre education, both native and foreign born, in the United States, promote plans for the elimination of illiteracy and the extension of education among the adult population, and co-operate with State, county, district, and municipal educational officials and others in putting these plans into operation.

Sec. 2. That for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the [illegible] sum of [illegible] dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended under the direction and supervision of the Commissioner of Education for the purposes aforesaid: PROVIDED, That no part of this sum shall be used directly or indirectly for the purchase, erection or supervising any school or schools: PROVIDED FURTHER, That the Commissioner of Education shall not undertake to [illegible] the teaching of adult illiterates [illegible] and women of [illegible]

SUGGESTIONS ON THE OBSERVANCE OF GOOD ROADS DAYS

The Alabama Good Roads Association is making every effort possible to see that Good Roads Days, August 14the-15th, are observed in every county in the State, and that the work that is done shall be systematic and of value.

Mr. J. A. Rountree, Secretary of the Alabama Good Roads Association, has sent out the following letter of instructions and suggestions for observing Good Roads Days. This letter has been addressed to probate judges, mayors, road officials and presidents of good roads organizations, etc. It is as follows:

Birmingham, Ala.,
July 24, 1914.

Judge E. B. Deason,
Clanton, Ala.

Dear Sir:

We are glad to know that you and the people of your county are taking an active interest in Good Roads Days, August 14th-15th. Hope that you will arouse the people in the various road districts and communities and let them do systematic work on these days.

The Alabama Good Roads Association has the following suggestions to make in regard to observing Good Roads Days:

Let each community organize by road or school districts, appoint the best road builder in the neighborhood as boss for these days and then turn out and work loyally under his directions.

The following suggestions are offered as work that can be done by volunteer workers:

Remove logs, rocks, stumps and stones from the roadway; fill holes, preferably with good earth, cover stretches of sand with clay or gravel; drain wet places in the roadway; scrape off and outward sod margins where they hold the water in the traveled track. When drained and graded, clay may be covered with sand or gravel, but the gravel should not contain any clay unless it is to be placed on sand. Culverts may be repaired or new culverts put in. Road drags (of planks or split logs) should be made and arrangements perfected for using them after rains, throughout the season, on all clay or loamy soils.

Don't try to do too much.

Don't start more than you can finish. You cannot build a macadam road, nor very long stretches of gravel road in two days.

Don't haul gravel into a road that has not been properly graded and drained.

Don't grade roads that have not been properly staked out on correct lines.

Don't plow long stretches of road and leave them impassable.

Don't scrape soils onto the traveled highway and leave them for passing vehicles to smooth down.

The Alabama Good Roads Association makes these suggestions hoping that it will be of benefit to volunteer road workers of the State, and that a great success will be made of these days, and swell the enthusiasm for better roads, we are,

Yours very truly,
Alabama Good Roads Ass'n.

The Land of Broken Promises

A Stirring Story of the Mexican Revolution

SYNOPSIS.

Bud Hooker and Phil De Lancey are forced, owing to a revolution in Mexico, to give up their mining claim and return to the United States. In the border town of Gadsden Bud meets Henry Kruger, a wealthy miner, who makes him a proposition to return to Mexico to acquire title to a very rich mine which Kruger had blown up when he found he had been cheated out of the title by one Aragon. The Mexican had spent a large sum in an unsuccessful attempt to relocate the vein and then had allowed the land to revert for taxes. Hooker and De Lancey start for the mine. They arrive at Fortuna near where the mine known as the Eagle Tail is located, and get information about Aragon and a Mexican named Cruz Mendez who is friendly to Kruger.

CHAPTER VI—Continued.

"Que busca?" the one-eyed one finally inquired; "what are you looking for?"

And when Phil oracularly answered, "Gold!" the old man made a motion to the boy to go on and sat down on a neighboring rock.

"Do you want to buy a prospect?" he asked, and Bud glanced up at him grimly.

"We find our own prospects," answered Phil.

"But I know of a very rich prospect," protested Mendez; "very rich!" He shrilled his voice to express how rich it was.

"Yes?" observed Phil; "then why don't you dig the gold out? But, as for us, we find our own mines. That is our business."

"Seguro!" nodded Mendez, glancing at their outfit approvingly. "But I am a poor man—very poor—I cannot denounce the mine. So I wait for some rich Americano to come and buy it. I have a friend—a very rich man—in Gadsden, but he will not come; so I will sell it to you."

"Did you get that, Bud?" jested Phil in English. "The old man here thinks we're rich Americans and he wants to sell us a mine."

Bud laughed silently at this, and Mr. Mendez, his hopes somewhat blasted by their levity, began to boast of his find, giving the history of the Eagle Tail with much circumstantiality and explaining that it was a lost padre mine.

"Sure," observed Phil, going back to his horse and picking up the bridle, "that's what they all say. They're all lost padre mines, and you can see them from the door of the church. Come on, Bud, let's go!"

"And so you could this!" cried Mendez, running along after them as they rode slowly up the canyon, "from the old church that was washed away by the flood! This is the very mine where the padres dug out all their gold! Are you going up this way? Come, then, and I will show you—the very place, except that the Americano ruined it with a blast!"

He tagged along after them, wheedling and protesting while they bantered him about his mine, until they finally came to the place—the ruins of the Eagle Tail.

It lay spraddled out along the hillside, a series of gopher-holes, dumps and abandoned workings, looking more like a badly managed stone quarry than a relic of padre days. Kruger's magazine of giant powder, exploded in one big blast, had destroyed all traces of his mine, besides starting an avalanche of loose shale that had poured down and filled the pocket.

Added to this, Aragon and his men had rooted around in the debris in search of the vein, and the story of their inefficient work was told by great piles of loose rock stacked up beside caved-in trenches and a series of timid tunnels driven into the neighboring ridges.

Under the circumstances it would certainly call for a mining engineer to locate the lost lead, and De Lancey looked it over thoughtfully as he began to figure on the work to be done. Undoubtedly there was a mine there—and the remains of an old Spanish smelter down the creek showed that the ground had once been very rich—but if Kruger had not told him in advance he would have passed up the job in a minute.

"Well," he said, turning coldly upon the fawning Mendez, who was all curves in his desire to please, "where is your prospecto?"

"Aqui, senor!" replied the Mexican, pointing to the disrupted rock slide. "Here it was that the Americano Crooks had his mine—rich with gold—much gold!"

He shrilled his voice emphatically, and De Lancey shrilled his in reply.

"Here?" he exclaimed, gazing blankly at the hillside, and then he broke into a laugh. "All right, my friend," he said, giving Bud a facetious wink; "how much do you want for this prospect?"

"Four hundred dollars," answered Mendez in a tone at once hopeful and apologetic. "It is very rich, Senor Crooks shipped some ore that was full of gold. I packed it out for him on my burros; but, I am sorry, I have no piece of it!"

"Yes," responded De Lancey, "I am sorry, too. So, of course, we cannot buy the prospecto unless we can get some to show; but I will give you—Bud Hooker," he continued, turning to his partner, "it seems that we have got to have an honest man, or you would have stolen a piece of ore from the sacks. So show us now where the gold was found, the nearest that you can remember, and perhaps, if we think we can find it, we will pay you to denounce the claim for us."

At this the one good eye of Cruz Mendez lighted up with a great hope and, skipping lightly over the rock piles with his sandaled feet, he ran to a certain spot, locating it by looking across the canyon and up and down the creek.

"Here, senores," he pronounced, "is where the mouth of the old tunnel came out. Standing inside it I could see that tree over there, and looking down the river I could just see the smelter around the point. So, then, the gold must be in there." He pointed toward the hill.

"Surely," said De Lancey; "but where?"

The old Mexican shrugged his shoulders deprecatingly.

"I do not know, senor," he answered; "but if you wish to dig I will denounce the claim for you."

"For how much?" inquired De Lancey guardedly.

"For one hundred dollars," answered Mendez, and to his delight the American seemed to be considering it. He walked back and forth across the slide, picking up rocks and looking at them, dropping down into the futile trenches of Aragon, and frowning with studious thought. His pardner, however, sat listlessly on a boulder and tested the action of his six-shooter.

"Listen, my friend," said De Lancey, coming back and poising his finger impressively, "if I should find the ledge the one hundred dollars would be nothing to me, sabe? And if I should spend all my money for nothing it would be but one hundred dollars more. But listen! I have known some false Mexicans who, when an American paid them to denounce a mine, took advantage of his kindness and refused to give it over. Or, if it turned out to be rich, they pulled a long face and claimed that they ought to be paid more. Now if—"

"Ah, no, senor!" clamored Mendez, holding up his hand in protest; "I am a poor man, but I am honest. Only give me the hundred dollars—"

"Not a dollar do you get!" cried De Lancey sternly; "not a dollar—until you turn over the concession to the mine. And if you play us false"—he paused impressively—"cuidado, hombre—look out!"

Once more Cruz Mendez protested his honesty and his fidelity to any trust, but De Lancey silenced him impatiently.

"Enough, hombre!" he said. "Words are nothing to us. Do you see my friend over there?" He pointed to Bud, who, huge and dominating against the sky line, sat toying with his pistol. "Buan'! He is a cowboy, sabe? A Texan! You know the Tejanos, eh? They do not like Mexicans. But my friend there, he likes Mexicans when they are honest. If not—no! Hey, Bud," he called in English, "what would you do to this fellow if he beat us out of the mine?"

Bud turned upon them with a slow, good-natured smile.

"Oh, nothing much," he answered, patting up his gun; and the deep rumble of his voice struck fear into the old man's heart.

Phil laughed and looked grimly at Mendez while he delivered his ultimatum.

"Very well, my friend," he said; "we will play and look at this mine. If we think it is good we will take you to the mining agent and get a permit to-day. For sixty days we will dig, and if we find nothing we will pay you fifty dollars. If we find—"

"Ah, no, senor!" interrupted Mendez, "I am a poor man, but I am honest. Only give me the hundred dollars—"

"Not a dollar do you get!" cried De Lancey sternly; "not a dollar—until you turn over the concession to the mine. And if you play us false"—he paused impressively—"cuidado, hombre—look out!"

Can't Find This Perfect Woman

Belgium has been trying to discover the perfect woman. According to the symposium in Brussels, she must possess the figure of an American, the complexion of a Frenchwoman, the carriage of an Austrian, the eye of an Italian and the profile of a Spaniard. So far the picture has eluded discovery.

ECZEMA ON CHILD'S FACE

Harpleton, W. Va.—"When my baby was one year old he broke out with fine pimples all over his face. Sometimes they would dry up and scale off and peel off, then they would break out fresh again. He would scratch them until his face would bleed. The eczema looked angry and caused blood and corruption. His face was red and disfigured. He was restless and I had to be up with him a greater part of the nights. I applied various remedies without benefit. He continued to break out with the eczema until I sent for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used Cuticura Soap and the first application relieved him and the first application started improvement. In ten days he was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Lizzie Lloyd, Jan. 2, 1914.

Absurd Comment.

Theodore Dreiser, the realist, said in an idealist at the Players' club in New York:

"The man's comments on life are monstrous and absurd. They remind me of the old lady's comment on the work of the militant suffragettes.

"After the suffragettes in London slashed a Valesquez, a Bellini and a Gentile, the old lady said, with a look of saintly expression:

"But, thank goodness, they're all old pictures that are being slashed."

Long-Lived Family.

The record for longevity is held by the Garrett family of Stranraer, Scotland, the oldest member of which, Mrs. Agnes Garrett, has just passed away. Garrett claimed to be the oldest German in Scotland. A native of Stranraer, he was almost a hundred years old. His mother and father, who were also natives of the district, lived until they were one hundred and one hundred and three years respectively. His oldest surviving son is now well over seventy years of age.

Carelessness Cause of Fire.

More than 50 per cent of all fires are caused by simple carelessness, which is unnecessary and criminal. Repairs to dilapidated buildings, the removal of all fire breeding material, care in burning weeds and rubbish, the placing of engines at a safe distance from buildings, the removal of waste, proper ventilation—in brief, plain common sense, will minimize the danger from this class of fires.

It seems that no matter how high a man climbs, a man is never above suspicion.

It is possible to be a man of many parts by trying to be all the different kinds of fool at once.

Jerusalem has no developed commerce or industries.

It's a corking good idea to bottle up your wrath.

Bohemia employs $75,000 persons in factories.

PRIZE FOOD.

Palatable, Economical, Nourishing.

A Nebr. woman has outlined how to use food in a few words, and from personal experience. She writes:

"After our long experience with Grape-Nuts, I cannot say enough in favor. We have used this food almost continually for seven years.

"We sometimes tried other cereal foods but we always returned to Grape-Nuts as the most palatable, economical and nourishing of all.

"When I quit tea and coffee and began to use Postum and Grape-Nuts I was almost a nervous wreck. I was so irritable I could not sleep and had no interest in life.

"After using Grape-Nuts a short time I began to improve and all my ailments have disappeared and I am a well woman. My two children have been almost raised on Grape-Nuts, which they eat every day.

"They are pictures of health and have never had the least stomach trouble, even through the most severe siege of whooping cough they could retain Grape-Nuts when all else failed.

"Grape-Nuts food has saved our lives, and has been, therefore, the most economical food for us."

FAR THREATENS BALKAN POWERS

Austria's Ultimatum To Servia Outgrowth Of Murder of Ferdinand And Wife By Servians.

MAY INVOLVE OTHER NATIONS

General Belief Is That Servia Cannot Comply With Humiliating Demands of Austria.

London.—European diplomacy is faced with a situation of extreme gravity in the controversy between Austria and Servia. Unless it is handled with great delicacy it is not unlikely that others will become involved in war. The Austro-Hungarian ultimatum to Servia, couched in a tone of almost unprecedented severity and fastening on the Servian government and people responsibility for the assassinations of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife at Sara Yevo, has been presented at Belgrade.

The almost universal opinion in the European capitals is that the Servian government cannot comply with such humiliating terms as are set forth in the ultimatum, since compliance would be tantamount to an admission of Servia's guilt.

The efforts of European diplomacy should the powers fail to avert the threatened war will be devoted to localizing it. Montenegro has indicated her readiness to support Servia in the event of an Austrian attack. This certainly would plunge the whole of the Balkans into hostilities. Austria insists on the neutrality of her allies, Germany and Italy, but with the possibility of Russian intervention on behalf of Servia, Austria would run great risks of risings among her own great Slav population.

MEXICAN TREASURY ROBBED

Warrant Issued For Eugenio Paredes, Former Treasurer.

Mexico City.—As the result of the investigation ordered by Provisional President Carbajal into the finances of the country during the administration of Gen. Victoriano Huerta, it is reported that a warrant was issued for the arrest of Eugenio Paredes, former general treasurer of the republic. Paredes is charged in the warrant with misappropriating more than two million pesos of government money. He is reported to be now at Puerto Mexico.

Rebels Getting Together.

Washington.—Official advices revealed that the Washington administration was meeting with success in bringing Provisional President Carbajal, General Carranza, General Villa and General Zapata, into harmony for the restoration of peace in Mexico. From these four leaders—representing all the factors concerned in the establishment of a stable government—came encouraging messages in answer to the counsel and advice which the United States has been lending to smooth the way to a complete agreement.

ULSTERITES DETERMINED

Leaders Demand Total Exclusion From Home Rule.

Belfast.—Official announcement of the failure of the Buckingham palace conference on home rule caused no excitement here, as telegrams from the Ulster leaders had been received previously. The leading business men, clergymen, bankers and manufacturers who had declared for an anti-home rule movement were unanimous in indorsing the uncompromising attitude of Sir Edward Carson and Captain Craig in demanding the total and permanent exclusion of Ulster from the workings of the home rule bill.

BANDITS HOLD UP TRAIN

Flagman Reported Killed—Two Others of Crew Reported Missing.

New Orleans.—The New York Limited, fast L. & N. through passenger train, was held up at a crossing four miles east of here by two masked men. The flagman of the train is reported to have been killed by the bandits and two other members of the train crew are reported missing. A special train left here later for the scene of the hold-up. It carried officers and physicians.

Agree on Cotton Bill.

Washington.—Legislation to curb the grosser evils of cotton exchange gambling, which has been perfected by a conference committee of the senate and house, has been reported to the house.

HALF BILLION FOR HIGHWAYS

IS FEATURE OF SENATOR BRYAN'S SUBSTITUTE FOR THE SHACKLEFORD BILL.

U. S. Highway Commission Provided For by Senate Postoffice and Post Road Committee.

Washington.—Senator Bryan's good roads bill, a substitute for the Shackleford bill already passed by the house, was ready to be reported to the senate. The measure had received the approval of the senate committee on post offices and post roads.

Under the terms of the Bryan bill the federal government would issue fifty-year 3 per cent. bonds to the amount of $500,000,000 in lots of $100,000,000 each for five years. Before states could participate in the funds, they would be required to issue an equal amount of 4 per cent. bonds, which, when deposited in the treasury department, would be exchanged for cash. The 1 per cent. difference would make up a sinking fund to aid the states in retiring the bonds.

Creation of a federal highway commission to supervise the expenditure of highway funds is a feature of the Bryan bill. The commission would be composed of the chairman and members of the senate and house committees on roads, the director of the office of public roads and a United States army engineer.

THEY MUST GET TOGETHER

Is Expression of U. S. Officials to the Constitutionalists.

Washington.—The United States, through its consular representatives, appealed to General Carranza and General Villa in the interest of patriotism and permanent peace in Mexico to bury their personal differences and work in harmony for the establishment of a new government.

Secretary Bryan telegraphed both George C. Carothers and John R. Silliman, representatives of the state department with General Villa and General Carranza, respectively, urging that they present in a most friendly yet effective manner the importance of cohesion in the Constitutionalist forces.

Old Claim for Georgia Road.

Washington.—The senate postoffice committee ordered a favorable report on a bill to pay the Georgia Railroad company $4,480 and interest, as compensation for services rendered prior to May 31, 1861, in the transportation of United States mails. The bill has been pending in the senate for nearly ten years.

Hibernians Are In Session.

Norfolk, Va.—The forty-ninth biennial convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in America, opened for a five-day session here with solemn high mass at St. Mary's Catholic church and sermon by Right Rev. Dennis J. O'Connell, bishop of Richmond.

NO EXPERT WITNESS NEEDED

Quite Evident Mr. Migge Was Right When He Testified as to the Handwriting.

"Libel, indeed!"

Old Migge repeated the words to himself dully and uncomprehendingly, as he tramped along to the court, where he was to appear as witness in a local libel suit.

Nervously he entered the witness box.

The fierce looking lawyer eyed him calculatingly.

"Do you swear," he asked, "that this is not your handwriting?"

"I don't think so," stammered Migge.

"Now, be careful," insinuated the lawyer. "Are you prepared to swear that this handwriting does not resemble yours?"

"Yes," answered Migge trembling.

"You take your oath that this does not in any way resemble your handwriting?" solemnly queried the learned man.

"Y-yes, sir," stammered the witness, now thoroughly frightened.

"Well, then, prove it!" denounced the lawyer, triumphantly, as he thrust his head toward the witness.

This action woke the last spark of drooping courage in poor Migge, and, thrusting forth his head, he yelled:

"'Cos I can't write!"

The Tango in Church.

Mother, like countless other mothers, had been doing much tangoing and hesitating of late. She had taken dancing lessons. She practiced the various steps at home with father. Little Frances had heard much of the lingo that goes with the tango, and the hesitation. She knew all of the phrases.

A few days ago Frances went to church with her mother. Frances had not learned all of the ceremonials of this church for, after the mother knelt outside the pew, Frances looked up at her and whispered:

"Mother, what did you do the dip for?"—Indianapolis News.

Law's Uncertainties.

"When you poke a toad," said old Farmer Hornbeck, philosophically, "you can't tell which way he will jump, nor how far; an' it is jest about the same way with a jury."

"That so?" returned young Jay Green, in a noncommittal way.

"Yep. For instance, in the case of Plunk Jarvis, who has jest been tried over at Kickyhasset courthouse for pullin' out his brother-in-law's whiskers by the roots in a fight, the jury discharged Plunk an' fined his brother-in-law 10 cents, the regular price of a shave."—Puck.

Outspoken.

Mrs. Smith's four sons made the life of her old colored servant a burden. One day Uncle Andy was busy in the garden hoeing corn, and for half an hour Tom, the most mischievous of the quartet, had amused himself throwing clods of dirt at him. At last Andy threw down his hoe and stamped indignantly down to the house.

"Miss Ella," he said, to the little culprit's mother, "Ah jes' has to tell yu dat dat boy Tawm am de meanes' chile yu got—an' Ah tells you fo' yo' face and tells you behine yo' back!"

Musical Note.

"Why is the scholarly-looking man slamming down his windows so hard?"

"I will tell you why, the scolarly-looking man is slamming down his windows so hard."

"The scholarly-looking man is slamming down his windows so hard because the hurdy-gurdy out in front is playing the same tunes that he paid five dollars to hear last night at grand opera."—Judge.

Still in Vogue.

John Vincent Honeywell, the veteran life guard of Bar Harbor, was talking about bathing suits. "They tell me," said the wise old man, "that the girls 'll wear suits this summer to match the eyes."

He added with a chuckle:

"Suits to catch the eyes 'll still be popular, too."

These June Brides.

"Ma'am, here's a man at the door with a parcel for you."

"What is it, Bridget?"

"It's a fish, ma'am, and it's marked C. O. D."

"Then make the man take it straight back to the dealer. I ordered trout."—Kansas City Star.

IN NO POSITION TO PREACH

Stranger Lost the Confidence of Truthful Fisherman When He made His Inquiry.

Representative Frank Clark, Representative Howard of Georgia, and Superintendent George W. Hess of the botanic gardens, were having a friendly argument at Washington.

"Howard," said Clark, banteringly, "I just want to illustrate to you in a story how little you know about this. There is in my district in Florida an attractive village named Callahan.

"One day a stranger walking along a road in the country near a creek saw a youth fishing.

"'Young man,' said the ministerial-looking individual, 'can you tell me the way to Callahan?'

"'Yes,' replied the boy, 'take the first road to your right.'

"Instead of proceeding on his journey, the stranger gazed intently at the boy a few moments and said: 'My young friends, don't you know you are wasting your time in a way that is dreadful to contemplate? You are fishing, just fishing, when you ought to be a-studyin' of books to prepare yourself for life's struggle. My boy, you're sure on the road to perdition.'

"'Road to perdition,' replied the indignant youth. 'What in blazes do you know about roads? You don't even know the road to Callahan.'"

Revolutionary Patriot.

James Lovell, a distinguished patriot of the Revolution, died 100 years ago in the town of Windham, Me. Mr. Lovell was born in Boston in 1737 and graduated from Harvard college at the age of nineteen. He delivered, April 2, 1771, the oration before the town authorities on the Boston massacre. Because of his display of patriotism he was imprisoned by General Gage immediately after the battle of Bunker Hill. Subsequently he was conveyed to Halifax with the British army, and remained in confinement until exchanged for Governor Skene in the latter part of 1776. From 1776 until 1782 Mr. Lovell was a member of the Continental congress. In later life he filled a number of public offices in Boston.

Snakes Got His Roll.

"I lost $325 trying to kill rattlesnakes, and now I am going to walk back to my home in Brooklyn," explained a man about forty-five years old, who said he is Ezra Sellen.

Sellen said he started for a walk from his boarding place, encountered a lot of rattlesnakes, killed some, fled from the others, waded a stream, and then missed his roll of bills. He said he had just money enough left to ride to this city and took the state road out of town.—Middletown (N. Y.) Dispatch to New York World.

IN SUCH PAIN WOMAN CRIED

Suffered Everything Until Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Florence, So. Dakota.—"I used to be very sick every month with bearing down pains and backache, and had headache a good deal of the time and very little appetite. The pains were so bad that I used to sit right down on the floor and cry, because it hurt me so and I could not do any work at those times. An old woman advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I got a bottle. I felt better the next month so I took three more bottles of it and got well so I could work all the time. I hope every woman who suffers like I did will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. P. W. LANSENG, Route No. 1, Florence, South Dakota.

Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

A man named Lemon has been nominated for Auditor of Jefferson county by the Bull Moosers. Wouldn't Dennis be a more appropriate cognomen?

We hope that the people of Chilton county will not fail to remember August 14-15 as "Good Roads Days." These days come at a time when business is dull, and farmers, merchants, and men of all classes can well afford to leave their business and spend the time in improving our highways.

Speaking of warrants, will the Union-Banner, while it is posing as the guardian of the taxpayer and as the "watch dog" of the treasury, please tell us about all the secrecy going on in Clanton in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and six, when the Commissioners' Court issued interest-bearing warrants to the amount of several thousand dollars, and the county's strong box was stripped of funds and unable to meet the current debt? A certain county official at that time got the interest on several of these warrants.

Records are pretty handy things to have laying around. They present cold facts and there is no getting around them. In 1906, the minutes of the Commissioners' Court show that interest-bearing warrants were carried for a number of months. Those who cashed them charged the county interest on amount advanced. There were several thousand dollars of these warrants and the taxpayer had to dig down in his jeans for the interest.

The Union-Banner, in its always eager desire to criticize the official acts of the present Board of County Commissioners, has the following to say in its last issue:

"They have failed for the last three years to even pay the current expense of the county. How can they do more? Doesn't the county owe several thousand dollars on accounts that have not been passed on by the Commissioners Court?

It the present Board of Commissioners without first ascertaining the facts.

There is not a word of truth in the statement that the county has failed to pay the current expense; nor is it true that the county owes several thousand dollars on accounts that have not been passed on by the Commissioners Court.

Since the administration of Judge Deason began the current debt of the county has always been paid, and without the issuance of interest-bearing warrants at an expense to the taxpayers as was the case with former administrations.

To show the taxpayers the financial status of the county in 1906, we get the following from the minutes of the Commissioners Court. These records speak for themselves and you can't get around the facts, Mr. Union-Banner:

'Commissioners' Court Minutes, Vol. 1, page 532-4 recite the fact that there were outstanding debts in June, 1906, to the amount of $2,185.04, and quoting from Commissioners' Court minutes we find these words: "And the several sums which said Court contracted to pay remain unpaid and said County is unable to pay the same."

Minutes referred to further show that a special tax of ten cents on each one hundred dollars of taxable property was levied for purpose of paying debts as above set out.

Commissioners' Court Minutes, Vol. 2, page 24, under date of June, 1907, shows that there were outstanding debts to the amount of $4,272.40; said Minutes last above referred to show that County had no money to pay said debt or debts, aggregating $4,272.40, and a special tax of 15 cents was levied on each hundred dollars of taxable property to pay said debt or debts.

For the Boss Championship.

Boss Barnes has sued Boss Roosevelt for libel. On with the trial and let the country know which is the greater boss. Perhaps Boss Murphy will challenge the winner?

The prime party rule of Theodore Roosevelt is, "Thou shalt have no other bosses but me." He has lived up to it by putting forth Harvey D. Hinman, wearing the badge of Roosevelt approval, as a candidate for Governor in the Republican primaries. Mr. Hinman swallows his dose without a grimace. Roosevelt demanded of him that he issue a statement attacking Barnes and certain other Republican leaders. Hinman willingly and docilely signed the statement provided for him.

Charles D. Whitman, a likeable man who made an excellent record in a trying time as District Attorney of New York, wants the Republican nomination. He has a record as clean as a hound's tooth. Roosevelt demanded of him that he attack the Taft leaders in New York. Whitman said that he was not fighting fellow Republicans. At that moment he became "weak, vacillating" and unworthy of trust. What Roosevelt really wanted was a man who had no mind and no will of his own, who would patiently, even cheerfully, accept domination from Oyster Bay. Hinman was the man for the job.

To people who believe in party government there is a repugnance to conditions which allow a man to oppose and sell with all the agencies at his command to destroy one political party and then to come into the next primary to do inside the party what he could not do without it. In 1912 Theodore Roosevelt was pouring hot shot and shell into the New York Republicans. He was heading a third party ticket which turned New York's vote over to the Democratic party and he was supporting vehemently a State ticket which made possible the election of the fantastic Sulzer.

Now, with two years not passed, he goes back into the party which he wrecked, attempts to dictate its nominees and platform, not because he is any better Republican than he was in 1912, but because he knows that his State ticket which ran a bad third in 1912 would run a ridiculous third in 1914. This is a feature of present day politics, which no man who believes that party organization good for the country can approve. We trust that such [illegible]

Surprising Cure of Stomach Trouble.

When you have trouble with your stomach or chronic constipation, don't imagine your case is beyond help just because your doctor fails to give you relief. Mrs. G. Stengle, Plainfield, N. J., writes: "For over a month past I have been troubled with my stomach. Everything I ate upset it terribly. One of Chamberlain's advertising booklets came to me. After reading a few of the letters from people who had been cured by Chamberlain's Tablets, I decided to buy them. I have taken nearly three bottles of a package of them and can now eat almost everything that I want." For sale by Alred Drug Co.

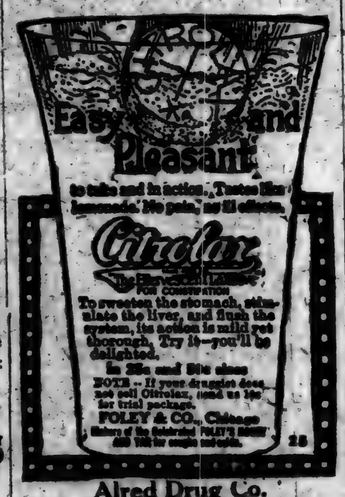
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.



We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

King of All

WEBER KING OF ALL

That's Why We Handle Them

Every Weber Wagon We Sell Is Inspected Four Times

Instead of waiting until you need a wagon and then taking the first that's offered you, find out in advance which wagon will give you the best service. Buy the wagon that will stand up for the longest time and be easiest on your horses.

That wagon is a Weber. Here's why. Each Weber wagon is thoroughly inspected. The lumber used is selected from large purchases of first grade oak and hickory for wheels and gears, the finest yellow or bay poplar for box sides, and long leaf yellow pine for bottoms.

Every stick of this lumber is carefully inspected, and each part cut from it is again inspected when it is shaped and ironed. The third inspection is made just before the wagon is painted, and insures perfect fitting of every part. The final inspection is made when the wagon is ready for delivery. Four inspections to make sure that you get just what you pay for when you buy a Weber wagon.

Drop in the next time you come to town and look over our line of Weber wagons. We are proud of them.

CHILTON COUNTY SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

The Chilton County Sunday School Convention, representing Sunday schools of all denominations, met with Mulbury church, near Thorsby, July 23-24. At the opening session Dr. J. M. Shelburne, President of Howard College, gave suggestions on "Helping Every Sunday School" The church was filled at the very first session and a large number of superintendents and pastors were present.

The reports of the department superintendents show 438 miles traveled during the year; 18 Sunday schools visited; 26 speeches made; 272 letters written.

The district president's report showed District No. 6, a Gold Star district, every Sunday school in district represented; at a convention held during the year every Sunday school made a written report, and every Sunday school made a contribution.

District No. 1 lacked three schools, which were reorganized since the district convention.

The other district reports were not so encouraging. Two of these district presidents reported 80 miles traveled; 10 speeches made; 263 letters written.

The State association was represented by Miss Myra Batchelder, Mrs. S. P. Moore and Prof. R. D. Webb, Field Secretaries of the Alabama Sunday School Association.

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY
GREENSBORO, ALA.
A SCHOOL OF CHARACTER

THE COLLEGE

1. The EDUCATIONAL STANDARDS meet the college requirements of the National Association of State Universities, of the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges, and of the Alabama Association of Colleges of which the institution is a member. The curriculum is high and varied, and the instruction is careful, personal and thorough.

2. The IDEAL of the institution is the development of CHRISTIAN CHARACTER. It believes the studies are more important than athletics, and that righteousness is more important than all. And this belief determines its whole attitude and policy.

3. The COST per year is very low. Tuition, fees and board amount to only $150 for the full nine months session,—$150 for the sons of ministers and ministerial students.

THE FITTING SCHOOL

For the benefit of students who are not yet prepared to enter college, but who desire the advantages of a high grade preparatory school, the Southern University has established and maintains its FITTING SCHOOL. This school offers a standard high grade course under specially prepared conditions. Graduates of the Fitting School enjoy the privileges of the Y. M. C. A., and all public...

DECLARES SOLVENT CREDITS TAXABLE

SUPREME COURT RULES FAVORABLY TO STATE IN IMPORTANT TEST CASES.

STATE CAPITAL HAPPENINGS

Doings In and Around the State House Chronicled for Our Readers.

—Montgomery.

Declaring that the State of Alabama has a right to collect and ad valorem tax on solvent credits, the supreme court ruled in favor of the State in two test cases brought before the supreme body from the city court of Birmingham. The court decided that the State can collect this tax on all solvent credits except those secured by recorded mortgages, deeds of trust and written contracts of conditional sales, which have paid a privilege tax for their recordation.

This decision was a sweeping victory for the State and will mean that much additional revenue will be forthcoming each year from this source. It will enable the State tax commission to carry on the work of assessing taxes against solvent credits and will give that body a larger field of operation.

All the members of the supreme court, with the exception of Chief Justice J. C. Anderson, concurred in the decision. The case was taken up at the special session of the court, which began last week, and the members of the court spent several days in discussing the case.

Gorman Reports on Auburn.

Disbursements of the Alabama Polytechnic institute at Auburn for the period extending from June 1, 1911, to May 31, 1914, were $400,105.43, according to the report of Examiner of Public Accounts J. T. Gorman on the books and accounts of Miss Allie Glenn, treasurer of the institution. Examiner Gorman filed his report in the office of the governor.

The examiner reported that the books of the treasurer were accurately kept, the various vouchers having been numbered consecutively and filed for the disbursement of all funds.

The report contains a detailed account of the source from which all revenues are received by the college, the principal sources being the Morril fund, the State college fund and the horticultural fund.

The value of the lands and buildings of the institution is $500,000, according to Examiner Gorman, and the insurance carried on the buildings is $300,000. The examiner declares that the year 1913-14 was the most prosperous and successful in the history of the institution, the enrollemnt being 820, with 16 States, Mexico, Peru, Cuba, Guatemala and China being represented in the student body.

Sheriff Lane Not Guilty.

Sheriff John W. Lane, of Chambers county, was not guilty of the charges brought against him by the State and he will continue to discharge the duties of his office, according to a decision announced by the supreme court of Alabama. Sheriff Lane was charged with corruption in office and with the commission of offenses involving moral turpitude. He was tried before the supreme court.

The court was divided on the case, four justices being of the opinion that the State had failed to establish the charges against Sheriff Lane and three dissenting. Justices Sayre, Mayfield, Somerville and Gardner decided in favor of Sheriff Lane, with Chief Justice Anderson and Justices McClellan and deGraffenreid dissenting from the majority of the court.

The impeachment proceedings against Sheriff Lane were brought at the request of the governor, following the filing of information with him charging the Chambers official with the commission of various illegal acts. The most serious charge against him was that he collected money for fines without having issued warrants for arrest. Moreover, it was claimed that this money did not reach the county treasury.

Supreme Court Takes Recess.

The supreme court declared recess until the November term and no more sessions of the body will be held until that time unless an extraordinary situation should arise. Nearly all the members of the court will leave within the next few days for various resorts to obtain recreation and rest. The court has been grinding away longer than usual because of the extra work brought before it recently. Twenty sessions and 12 rulings on applications for re-hearings were handed down on the last day by the court.

H. H. Smith, Assistant Solicitor.

Harry H. Smith, of Mobile, was appointed as assistant solicitor of Mobile county, to succeed T. J. Tenart, whose term has expired. The appointment was announced by Governor O'Neal. Mr. Smith is a son of Tyrwhitt L. Smith, one of the State's most prominent lawyers. Practically all the members of the Mobile bar endorsed Mr. Smith for this place and it is said many leading citizens of that city commended him for the position.

Pensions for Fourth Quarter.

As a result of the labors of the State board of pension examiners in purging the rolls of more than 1,300 illegal pensioners, Confederate veterans this year will receive 45 per cent of the pension money due for the fourth quarter, according to an announcement made at the office of Auditor Brooks Smith.

The paying of pensions to bona fide veterans of the Confederate army for the fourth quarter of this year will mark the first time since 1911 that pensioners have received any money for that quarter, inasmuch as the fund, under an act of the last legislature, has heretofore been exhausted with the payment of pensions for the third quarter.

More than 1,000 other pensioners have been cited by the special master to appear before the State pension board at a special meeting to be held September 7, and show cause why their names should not be dropped from the pension rolls. A regular meeting of the board will be held August 14, but no pensioners have been cited to appear at that meeting.

In the purging of the pension rolls it has been discovered that the State has been paying pensions to 325 men who deserted the Confederate army. It is thought that this number will be doubled by the time the board concludes its work.

$100,000 For Negroes.

Thirty per cent of a fund of $300,000 voted by Congress for the promotion of agricultural education in Alabama will be appropriated to the negro institutions if the recommendations of a special committee that visited the Tuskegee institute are approved by Governor O'Neal. According to the members of this committee, these recommendations will be made, but it is up to the governor to divide the fund.

The committee, it is understood, will suggest that 15 per cent of the fund will be appropriated to the Tuskegee institute and that an equal sum be given other negro agricultural institutes of the State. A report is being formulated by Commissioner of Agriculture R. F. Kolb and will be submitted to the governor. After it has been presented, the remaining 70 per cent of the fund will be apportioned among Auburn and the various agricultural schools for white students.

Commission May Attend Dedication.

The Alabama commission appointed recently by Governor O'Neal to raise funds for the purpose of erecting an Alabama building at the Panama-Pacific exposition, which will be held next year at San Francisco, may go to San Francisco during the summer to be present at the dedication of a site for the Alabama building, it was announced by Lee Cowart, secretary of the commission.

J. H. Hicks, of Talladega, is chairman, and if he decides that the commission should go, the trip will be made within the next six weeks. If the whole commission does not go, it is certain that at least three members will make the trip. Governor O'Neal may accompany the commission to California.

The commission is composed of J. H. Hicks, Talladega, chairman; W. L. Henderson, Mobile; G. G. Crawford and O. P. Bartlett, Birmingham; F. G. Salter, Montgomery; Louis B. Farley, Montgomery, treasurer, and Lee Cowart, Birmingham, secretary.

Says Route Could Be Made Good.

W. S. Keller, State highway engineer, returned from southwest Alabama, where he went on an automobile tour over the old stage route between Montgomery and Mobile. Mr. Keller, accompanied by John Craft, of Mobile, and Prof. G. N. Mitcham, of Auburn, members of the State highway commission, made a trip from Fort Deposit to Burnt Corn over the old mail route between Mobile and Montgomery.

Some of the highway traversed by the Keller party is in good condition, but much of it is rough and uneven, according to Mr. Keller. The route has the advantage of running along the top of the watershed in southwest Alabama and could be put in fine condition.

Text-Book Changes Made.

Members of the county high school commission, which has charge of the work of selecting text-books for the county high schools and State agricultural schools, met in the office of W. F. Feagin, State superintendent of education. The commission cleared up many routine matters that required its attention. Several new text-books were selected and a few changes in old text-books were made.

S. and S. E. Railroad.

Extension of the Birmingham and Southeastern railroad from Eclectic to connect with trains entering Birmingham and Anniston will be made within the near future, according to a statement of W. M. Blount, president of the road.

Mr. Blount made this announcement at Eclectic, where he attended the barbecue and picnic given at that place in honor of the opening of the road, one year ago. President Blount declared that all financial arrangements had been made for the extension.

COTTON AND CORN HURT BY DROUTH

FARMERS WILL TURN ATTENTION TO BURR AND RED CLOVER, SAYS KOLB.

KEEP UP FIGHT ON WEEVIL

Farmers Must Redouble Their Efforts and Keep Up the Struggle Against Pest.

Montgomery.—That the cotton crop has been greatly effected by the long drouth and that the corn crop has been seriously damaged by the same cause in the statement given out by the State department of agriculture and industries, in the latest report on agricultural conditions throughout Alabama.

The report declares that the farmers are getting ready to plant crimson and burr clover in great quantities next fall, and that a large crop of that product is predicted.

"We are near the time when the farmers in the infested boll weevil area should redouble their efforts and quicken their vigilance against this pestiferous foe," says the report. According to the department's report, from August 1 to 10 is the time predicted for the appearance of the second weevil crop.

A suggestion is made in the weekly report as to one of the methods by which weevils may be destroyed. Following is the department's report:

"The continued drouth is evidenced in the shedding of the cotton which in some localities indicates a larger shortage in the crop than was anticipated a week ago. The rains have fallen in most sections, but not in sufficient quantities to check the drouth and give the impetus to growing crops that this stage of growth requires. The corn crop, as previously reported, is seriously damaged and it will fall far short of the expectations entertained previous to this severe hot spell.

"The farmers generally throughout the State are getting ready to plant crimson and burr clover in quantities next fall, and a large crop of this valuable product is predicted as an item in the yield for next year.

"We are near the time when the farmers in the infested boll weevil area should redouble their efforts and quicken their vigilance against this pestiferous foe. From August 1 to 10 is the time predicted for the appearance of the second weevil crop, and it stands the farmers whose fields have been invaded to continue their energetic measures heretofore waged against the weevil. It is the policy of this department to keep our farmers posted upon lines of suggestion and advice as to all expedients that are known as an agency of warfare against this pest. In addition to other remedies we have mentioned, an interesting device discovered by an enterprising Texan is reported. It can be constructed in a few minutes by the veriest novice. All that is required is a strip of pine board about two inches wide and four feet long, a small piece of old leather belting about three by five inches and about 25 or 30 ten-penny finishing nails. This is all the material that is necessary. The nails are then driven through the leather belting as close together as space will permit to give them the effect of the bristles of a brush. This done, the leather is nailed to the end of the pine strip with the nail points extending forward, giving it the effect of a steel brush. The operation of the device is said to be even simpler than its construction. This consists of going over the cotton field with it and tamping the ground where there are punctured squares. The pronged effect produced by the nails will pick up these squares and they will be placed in a sack which, when full, is taken off and burned. This operation is to be repeated until the field is clean. It is said the work can be carried on in a rapid manner, and in proof of this, an instance is cited by a farmer who has tested the merit of this device on his Texas farm showing that in the course of two hours, 1,000 punctured squares were gathered therewith. Figuring that each square stands for 30 weevils, this means a destruction of 30,000 weevils, if all the squares prove fertile."

NORMAL SCHOOL CLOSES.

A Total of 163 Teachers Attended Jacksonville School.

Jacksonville.—The summer school at the Jacksonville State Normal school has closed. It was stated, a very successful session, 163 teachers being enrolled. The State examination for teachers was held on the Normal school building, there being 26 white applicants for third grade certificates, 57 for second, 14 for first, and five for life.

HOLD STATE CONVENTION.

Republicans Nominate Street of Marshall County for Governor.

Birmingham.—At a State convention held by republicans of Alabama in the Jefferson theatre here a full ticket to be voted on in the November elections was put into the field. O. D. Street of Marshall county, was named for governor, and Alex C. Birch for United States senator to oppose Hon. Oscar W. Underwood.

A noticeable feature was that there was not a single negro delegate in the convention. It is understood that one negro was named as a delegate, but did not come to the convention.

The other candidates selected are as follows: Lieutenant Governor, George Beyer of Cullman; secretary of state, Frank Feltus of Jefferson; auditor, R. O. Nocjin of Etowah; treasurer, J. M. Atkins of Cleburne; attorney general, William Chenault of Marion; chief justice supreme court, Sheiby S. Pleasants of Madison; associate justices, Warren S. Reese of Montgomery and James B. Sloan of Blount; judge circuit court of appeals, John B. Isbell of DeKalb; railroad commissioners, C. P. Lunsford of Madison and John B. Shields of Walker; superintendent of education, Thomas H. Robinson of Franklin; congressman-at-large J. T. Abercrombie of Shelby; commissioner of agriculture, Norris Woodruff of Calhoun.

OLD LANDMARK TORN DOWN.

Factory Over One Hundred Years Old to Give Way to Storehouse.

Huntsville.—The oldest building in the business center of Huntsville, the old Bell factory building, is being torn away to make room for a modern storehouse. The building is fully 100 years old and was for many years the offices of a general supply concern and the Bell factory, which was the first cotton mill in Alabama.

Many interesting old papers are being found, some of them being nearly 100 years old. The papers are mostly invoices of merchandise and cotton and show that at that time cotton bales averaged about 300 pounds in weight and the market price for the staple was between 8 1-2 and 10 cents. One letter from New Orleans states that the cotton market is dull and inactive because na advices had been received of the state of the market in England in several weeks.

Dates of State Reunion.

Mobile.—General Chairman C. B. Harvey of the convention committee of the Mobile Chamber of Commerce, named October 20, 21 and 22 as the dates for the holding of the general reunion of the Alabama division of the United Confederate Veterans. Maj. Gen. Hervey E. Jones has approved of the dates.

New Opera House.

Sheffield.—Sheffield's new opera house, built at a cost of $12,000 to $15,000, was formally opened to the public.

STATE BRIEFS.

Houston county's board of commissioners appropriated a 2-mill tax for good roads building in the county.

Miss Rosa Tatum has been appointed postmaster of Dutton and will move the office to Sand Mountain institute.

Marengo county commissioners did not think there was any need to raise taxes in that county and the State may take action.

Lightning struck the house of Martin Stone on Sand Mountain and destroyed a kettle of jelly and a dozen jelly glasses near by.

Severely criticising conditions which now prevail in Montgomery and offering a number of strong suggestions and recommendations for betterment of the affairs of the county, the grand jury made its final report to Judge Gaston Gunter in the city court. There were 231 indictments returned out of 300 cases docketed, after examination of 560 witnesses.

Robert L. Sears, former deputy sheriff of Montgomery county, must serve a five year term in the State penitentiary for shooting Will Smith, a negro, in the court room of the Montgomery city court last fall, according to a ruling handed down by the supreme court. The court denied the application for a rehearing filed by Sears' attorneys.

TO RID NAVY OF UNDESIRABLES

SUMMARY DISMISSAL INSTEAD OF IMPRISONMENT FOR DESERTERS.

DRASTIC ORDER BY DANIELS

The Secretary Believes the New Order Will Raise the Standard of the Navy.

Washington.—Abolition of imprisonment for desertion from the navy in times of peace was ordered by Secretary Daniels. Bluejackets who now overstay their leave or commit similar breaches of discipline will be dismissed summarily instead of being sent to prison while men who become dissatisfied and want to quit may have an honorable discharge by merely refunding certain enlistment allowances.

Secretary Daniels, in a statement announcing the new order said: "Enlistments in the navy always have been for a definite period—at present four years—and it always has been difficult, at times impossible, for men to terminate their contract of enlistment by honorable discharge before the enlistment expired. Absence from his ship or duty after having been granted leave, made a man a deserter and conviction involved a prison sentence.

"After thorough consideration and after a referendum in which the opinion of many of the highest officers were obtained, the secretary became convinced this situation was not in keeping with modern business ideas.

"The old plan involving long imprisonment created among enlisted men a feeling that during their term of enlistment if they desired to leave the navy, they were as if in bondage. Furthermore, this feeling doubtless in a large measure, accounted for more absence over leave or absence without leave, and other offenses which would never be tolerated in any well organized business.

"The secretary recognizes that the navy is in tife of peace a large business organization, that any feeling by enlisted men of compulsory detention or bondage is undesirable, that the service offers so many advantages, especially to those desiring to make of it a life work or secure a practical education, that it can keep fully recruited with men who are willing to obey and the department, therefore, holds that overstayed leave, drunkenness and similar offenses indicate merely that the offender is unfit for the service.

"In order not to be too drastic, the order permits commanding officers to hold a first offender on probation on reduced pay for periods of six months or 12 months, but on repeating the offense he is to be discharged.

"The naval prisons and naval barracks last year cost about $1,000,000. Under the new plan this cost will be greatly reduced, and before a great while will be very small."

VILLAREAL SCORES CHURCH.

Says Confessional and Sacristy Have Become Menace in Mexico.

Tampico, Mex.—A decree limiting the scope of the Roman Catholic church in the State of Nueva Laredo on the ground of public health, morality and justice was issued by Antonio I. Villareal, governor and military commander.

The decree issued in Monterey makes the following orders for the government of Catholic schools and churches.

"1. All foreign Catholic priests and Jesuits of whatever nationality will be expelled from the State of Nuevo Leon.

"2. Of the remaining Catholic priests, those who cannot promise absolute abstemiousness from politics shall be expelled.

"3. Only priests who have permission to do so will officiate.

"4. Confession is prohibited.

"5. The public is prohibited from entering the sacristy.

"6. Church bells shall ring only to celebrate fiestas, in honor of the country, or for triumphs of the arms of the constitutionalists.

"7. All Catholic colleges shall be closed which do not obey programs and texts ordered by officials and which do not have at their head some professor who is a graduate of the normal schools of the country, who will be responsible to the government for any infraction of the rules.

"8. Any infraction of these laws will be punished by a fine of $100 to $500, and arrest and imprisonment from two to four months, or both fine and imprisonment. In event of a second offense the school will be closed."

AUSTRIA SEEMS ANXIOUS FOR WAR

Servian Minister Given His Passports. Austria Arrests Chief of Servian General Staff.

RUSSIA WILL AID SERVIA

In Event of Conflict With Austria, Germany Is Allied With Austria.

London, England.—The latest developments appear to furnish new proof that Austria is determined to make war on Servia. The possibilities of a general European war seem greater than ever have confronted the present generation.

The Servian reply to the Austro-Hungarian ultimatum was an acceptance of almost all the imperious demands, except that Austrian officials should participate in the investigation and fix the responsibility for the anti-Austrian propaganda. Servia proposed an appeal to the powers at The Hague for the settlement of that feature.

Servian Minister Given Passports.

Notwithstanding this humiliating surrender, which was more than Europe expected of the proud little nation, the Austrian government gave the Servian minister his passports, which may be construed as a virtual declaration of war.

Servian General Arrested.

Austria committed an act of war by arresting the chief of the Servian general staff, General Putnik, near Budapest.

A formal declaration of war is not expected because Servia is not a party to The Hague convention, which requires this.

The suspension of all parliamentary and judicial institutions has been decreed in Austria and an iron-clad censorship has drawn a cordon of secrecy around the country.

Even now the Austrian armies may be closing in upon Servia and launching a sudden blow, as Japan did when she sent her fleet against the Russian ships without warning.

Another Chance to Avert War.

While Austria announces a "partial mobilization," the Austrian ambassador at London has issued a significant notice to all Austrians liable for military service to return home. The only possibility of averting war at the eleventh hour which Austria recognizes is that Servia shall reconsider her reply to the Austrian note and bow to all the demands. Even then Austria proposes to exact payment for all her expenses in connection with her military measures.

Russians Are Active.

The question as to whether Russia will take up arms to save her Slav protege is the feature on which the peace of Europe hinges. The same degree of secrecy which Austria has imposed has been established in Russia, also, therefore it cannot be known whether military preparations are in progress there.

Faculty for Methodist School.

Atlanta.—Bishop Warren A. Candler, chairman of the executive committee of Atlanta's $5,000,000 Methodist university, announced that the faculty of the theological department had been selected. Six prominent Methodist educators of the South are the choice of the committee. They are: Dr. W. J. Young of Richmond, Va.; Dr. Plato T. Durham of Charlotte, N. C.; Dr. H. C. Howard of Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Dr. W. A. Shelton of Oklahoma City, Okla.; Dr. Andrew Bledd of Greensboro, Ala.; Prof. W. A. Smart of Charlotte, N. C. Bishop Candler stated that the committee is still pondering over the selection of the dean, which will probably be determined at the next meeting.

Labor Troubles in England.

London.—Not for many years has the labor situation in England been so serious as it is at present. There is hardly an industry that is not affected by strikes and plans are being made by the trade unions for a combined assault on capital next year, which, if it comes off, will surpass in magnitude anything ever known in the history of this country.

Big Railroad Strike Feared.

Chicago.—After announcement that mediation had failed to bring the representatives of the ninety-eight Western railroads and their engine crews, numbering 55,000 men, any nearer a settlement, the federal commissioners sought an adjustment along new lines.

Anti-Divorce Court.

Chicago.—The divorce prevention bureau of the municipal court, which opened its doors, signalized the inauguration of its work by reuniting four families.

Crop Money Is Ready.

Washington.—National banks in Atlanta, Macon and Savannah have applied for and will receive part of the $34,000,000 of government funds Secretary of Treasury McAdoo will deposit to help take care of the crops.

Four Killed in Dublin Riot.

Dublin, Ireland.—Three men and one woman are dead and more than sixty persons are in the hospital wounded as the result of a battalion of the king's own Scottish borderers firing into a mob in the streets of Dublin.

PEACE ASSURED IN MEXICO

CARRANZA AND PROVINCIAL PRESIDENT CARBAJAL REACH AN AGREEMENT.

United States Is Keeping Villa From Getting Arms Across the Border.

Mexico City.—That an armistice between the government and the Constitutionalities will be suspended at once throughout the republic, was the statement given out by Gen. Eduardo Iturbide, governor of the federal district, in the name of President Carbajal.

Governor Iturbide added that the peace negotiations will be advanced upon a basis of giving full guarantees to everybody.

It is understood General Carranza has agreed to a general amnesty, the chief point for which Provisional President Francisco Carbajal has been contending.

The 300 men in the advance guard of Gen. Alvaro Obregon's 8,000 Constitutionalists are at Tula, an hour's ride from the capital, and the remainder of this army is near Queretaro, 120 miles to the north, where it is assembling for a peaceful advance of Mexico City.

General Obregon, a staunch supporter of Gen. Venustiano Carranza, probably will be the first Constitutionalist commander to arrive here, and his force is believed to be sufficient to insure the capital against international disorder or attacks by bandits now active in the South.

"HURRY" IS THE KEYNOTE

Of Senate Anti-Trust Program Agreed Upon.

Washington.—Senate Democrats in caucus agreed upon a definite legislative program under which they expect to put through the anti-trust program and appropriation bills, and bring about adjournment of congress at the earliest possible moment. Nearly every majority senator now in Washington attended and "hurry" was the keynote of the meeting.

It was decided that the pending interstate trade commission bill should be continued as the unfinished business and kept constantly before the senate until disposed of, except when it becomes necessary to sidetrack it temporarily to make way for conference reports of appropriation bills.

Intervention Seems Probable.

Washington.—Pressed by European powers, the United States government has about lost patience with the various elements in the republics of Haiti and San Domingo, and will demand a restoration of peace or threaten armed intervention.

Mexican Women Demonstrate.

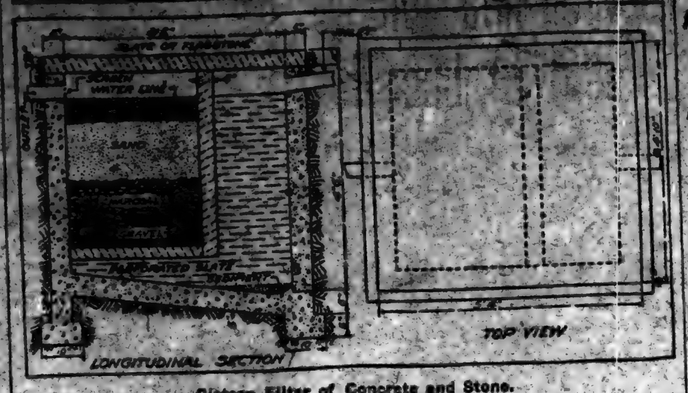
Naco, Ariz.—Mexican women threw their skirts at men who resumed work in the mines at Cananea. The men had been told by General Carranza that they must work or join the Constitutional army.

Bacon Memorial Day December 8.

Washington.—The senate set aside December 8 for memorial exercises to the late Senator A. O. Bacon of Georgia.

Home Rule Conference Fails.

London.—At the close of a cabinet council it became known that there is only the smallest prospect of the home rule conference arriving at an agreement and its termination after it reassembles is regarded as certain.



Florida Site Is Dedicated.

San Francisco.—Florida's site at the Panama-Pacific exposition was dedicated here by a commission representing that state. Social and military functions preceded the dedication ceremony.

Seattle, Wash.—Eight hundred thousand dollars in gold bullion, the largest consignment received from the north this year, was brought from Nome, Alaska, by the steamship Victoria, which arrived here.

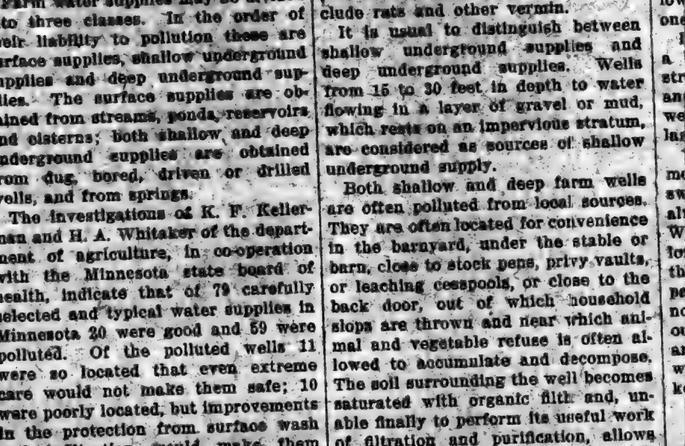
CONTAMINATION OF FARM WATER SUPPLY

Cistern Filter of Concrete and Stone.

Many diseases may be transmitted by means of water, and some of the diseases are so uniformly transmitted by this means that they are known as "water-borne" diseases. Typhoid, dysentery and other intestinal disorders come under this class of diseases, and consequently it is of the greatest importance that every precaution be taken to insure a pure water supply, says Bulletin No. 57 of the United States department of agriculture.

Farm water supplies may be divided into three classes. In the order of their liability to pollution these are surface supplies, shallow underground supplies and deep underground supplies. The surface supplies are obtained from streams, ponds, reservoirs and cisterns; both shallow and deep underground supplies are obtained from dug, bored, driven or drilled wells, and from springs.

The investigations of K. F. Kellerman and H. A. Whitaker of the department of agriculture, in co-operation with the Minnesota state board of health, indicate that of 79 carefully selected and typical water supplies in Minnesota 20 were good and 59 were polluted. Of the polluted wells 11 were so located that even extreme care would not make them safe; 10 were poorly located, but improvements in the protection from surface wash and infiltration would make them safe; 25 were bad only because of poor surface protection and could easily be made safe. Practically all the surface supplies investigated were polluted. During these investigations 22 of the farms examined showed a record of typhoid fever.



Surface water supplies are those most liable to pollution, and authorities agree that they are the most unsatisfactory for farm use. Streams and ponds receive the greater part of the surface wash from the immediate neighborhood, and in many cases barnyard or stockyard drainage from points remote from where the water is taken for household use. Streams or ponds located in pastures, manured fields or where stock can gain access to them are polluted. Sometimes sewage and house drainage are emptied into streams and ponds. In fact, since they are open and unprotected, there are a thousand and one different sources of pollution. Rain waters from the roof are polluted by dust, dirt and leaves, which collect in the eavestrough, and by the droppings from birds.

Surface water supplies should therefore not be used for household purposes, unless for washing milk cans or for laundry purposes. And it may be safely assumed that the person who drinks water from surface supplies endangers his health if such supplies are not first protected from the sources of contamination as far as possible and then purified.

In localities where underground waters are hard to obtain cisterns may be used for the filtration, partial purification and storage of rain water. The size of the cistern will depend on the number of persons in the house and on the general water consumption.

The cistern should be of water-tight construction to prevent leakage and to prevent pollution from the neighboring soil. It should have an overflow drain and a tight cover. There should also be suitable provision for straining or filtering the water provides to its entrance to the cistern.

Concrete is probably the most satisfactory available material for cisterns. A good mix is one part cement, two parts sand and four parts gravel. The walls and floor should be from 4 to 6 inches thick and well reinforced with the concrete should be properly compartmented and stirred. A mixture of one part cement to 4 parts of sand is used for the inside plastering of the walls and floor. This should be about one inch thick and well troweled on while the concrete is still green. The cement should be mixed dry and then the water added. Only enough water should be used to make the mixture of the proper consistency to work well. Too much water will weaken the concrete.

Types of Deep and Shallow Wells.

Bored or driven wells are less liable to pollution than shallow dug or bored wells.

The safety of water supplies when near sources of possible surface pollution often depends largely on the character and quality of the material in which the well is sunk. Surface waters in sinking through sandy soils or surfaces are filtered, and in the finer sands much of the polluting matter which they carry is frequently removed. In coarser sands or gravel the degree of filtration is less, but water taken from sands and gravels at a considerable depth may be considered relatively safe. Waters from wells in clay are not often polluted, since surface pollution filters through clay very slowly.

Waters from wells in limestone are frequently polluted, owing to the fact that limestone soils usually contain passages and channels at different depths, which sometimes form a continuous passage for underground water for a considerable distance, and which are very often directly connected with sinks and basins occurring here and there on the surface. It is a common practice to dump manure, trash and garbage into such sinks or basins, and rain water falling into these plunges directly into the underground channels, carrying with it the impurities from the basin to those points where wells are sunk. In this manner garbage or refuse dumped anywhere in the neighborhood or even at a considerable distance from a well in limestone may pollute the water.

Plants for Green Pigs.

Clover and alfalfa are not only fine to fatten pigs, but they are also very good for young pigs, as they contain a large amount of bone and muscle forming material. Rape is also a very good plant for pigs, and is relished by them when young. Rape is also a very good plant for pigs, and is relished by them when young.

GOOD TIMES COMING

Artificial Depression of Business at an End.

Approach of Boom in Country Has Forced Obstructionists to Get Out of the Way.—Era of Prosperity at Hand.

The Pennsylvania railroad has ordered 100,000 tons of steel rails. This order was divided among five steel-making corporations: The steel trust, and the Pennsylvania, Cambria, Lackawanna and Bethlehem Steel companies.

The division of such an order proves that the road needs the rails in a hurry. It has held off from ordering them just as long as possible; it needs them now in rush time to take care of the increase of business which has already begun.

Part of this hold-off policy, no doubt, was due to genuine apprehension as to future legislation. More, it is to be feared, was designed to put pressure on the administration and the interstate commerce commission, as a means of forcing favorable action on railroad demands. How long this plan of bulldozing would have been followed under ordinary conditions, no one can tell.

In this case, the near approach of a boom in business has warned obstructionists to get out of the way, and the Pennsylvania railroad is too well managed an institution to be the last to heed that warning.

"There's a good time comin', it's almost here." The prosperity special sweeping in from western farms is almost in sight. The effort to "put Wilson in a hole" by artificially prolonging the period of dull times through which the world has been passing has failed ingloriously; and now intelligent business men throughout the land are joining to promote and care for the era of progress which Wall street tried in vain to keep away.

Sees Certain Victory.

Before Norman E. Mack sailed for Europe he dictated a statement concerning the political situation. He does not believe that the Republicans and the Progressives will get together this fall or in 1916, and that in both instances, victory will be certain for the Democrats.

"When Colonel Roosevelt made his Pittsburgh speech," said Mr. Mack, "he again threw down the gauntlet to the Republican party and cleared up the entire political situation.

"As a matter of fact, it was the only thing left for Mr. Roosevelt to do unless he wanted to repudiate all his utterances from the day he arrived at the Chicago convention, two years ago, for the purpose of annihilating the Republican party, which he accomplished at that time. His Pittsburgh speech showed his intention of continuing the fight to a finish until the job is completed.

"The Republican party now is in the same condition that the Democratic party was for 16 years, except that Roosevelt expects to continue the third party in existence, which the contestants in the Democratic party did not do from 1896 to 1908."

A Question.

The United States Steel corporation now has unfilled orders ahead for more than 4,000,000 tons of its products. The figure was 3,998,160 tons on May 31, and there has been a steady increase since that date.

This is an increase of 25 per cent over the average unfilled orders during 1910 and 1911, when the Aldrich tariff was in its glory, and "prosperity" was reigning by Wall street fiat. Now, according to the same financial center, there is great "depression" in business, for which tariff and trust legislation are declared responsible.

What makes prosperity, as Wall street defines the word; actual business, like making steel, or marking stocks up and down on a blackboard?

Really Up to the Country.

Whether President Wilson is right or not in regarding the "tired feeling" of many business men as "merely psychological"—that is, existing only in their own imaginations—it is certain that the foundations of American prosperity are solid.

Good crops have always meant "good times" heretofore. Quite possibly if we could all just make up our minds to take a more cheerful view of the future we would all wake up some fine morning and find Prosperity knocking at our doors and refusing to go away unless positively kicked down the front steps.

Good Deal of a Reality.

And that resumption of full-time work by the Allegheny Steel company at Brackenridge, Pa., isn't any psychological stunt, either.—Indianapolis News.

May Trust the President.

It is a certainty that the president and his associates at the capital know more of the inducement details of situations than do their critics. This, of course, applies especially to the Mexican situation, for which the administration is responsible. It also applies to all other matters for which the administration is responsible.

In the Woman's Home Companion Margaret Busbee Shipp, writing a love story entitled "Sweet Margaret," presents a character who comments, as follows, on women's conversation:

POWER

Man can view with equanimity the rush of the locomotive, the onward dash of the automobile, the graceful flight of the aeroplane, the majestic progress of the modern floating palace.

He can listen with security to the thunder of a Niagara, the roar of the beasts in the jungle, the crash of burned cities falling.

Because, no matter how great the calamity, man has more power than any of these forces.

He can, through the power of his brain, repair the damage and prevent a repetition. He can, through the power of his brain, control the action of any of these forces.

Occasionally man builds a Titanic vessel. In the darkness, at sea, it jams an iceberg and sinks to the bottom. The horror is great, but the lesson is there.

Man has an object lesson of faulty work and the consequences thereof. His power to overcome obstacles is more deeply stirred. Future generations get the benefit.

The L. & N. reminds the people of these things because the L. & N. is dependent for success upon the power of the people. You, the people, build locomotives, construct automobiles, harness Niagaras, tame wild beasts, fly in aeroplanes, sail in giant ships.

The L. & N. is the product and the servant of the people. Every mile of its rails, every tie on its roadbed, every locomotive in its roundhouses, every coach in its depots, represent the power of the people to create modern freight and passenger traffic.

The officials and employees of the L. & N. represent the mental power of the people in their control of these mechanical forces, and conduct them in such manner as will result in the public good.

Man should take pride in his power, and use it with discretion. His tendencies are constructive, but misdirected, his powers can be destructive.

The L. & N. wants to co-operate with the constructive element in our citizenship for the control of forces and the development of the territory through which the lines operate.

ROADS AND ROAD BONDS ARE GOOD

Leaving property for other people is a kindly thing. The fairer and better thing is to leave the property and the debt by which it was created to our children. That is the idea in road building—get the roads by issuing bonds, use the roads while you live and pay the interest on the bonds honestly and you have done your part. He is a poor citizen of the future who would object to paying his share of the interest while he lives, and then pass the roads and the debt to the next generation.

The bonds need never be paid, but the interest promptly and honestly is all that the bond holders want. The fear of creating a debt is not reasonable, for the builders of today are the land owners and tax payers. A road voted by them is a permanent improvement, that is passed to our children with the bonds. They will do as we do, pay the interest for the use of the roads. It is a fair gift to our children and they will be pleased with it. No wise man hesitates to leave his sons a piece of land with a mortgage on it. The property is worth the mortgage. Most of us would be pleased to get a piece of property with a mortgage on it.

That is what road bonds are, just a little tax on a good and beautiful property—a road.—Birmingham Ledger.

MRS. ROSS MULLINS ENTERTAINS FOR GUESTS

One of the most enjoyable evenings of the season was that of last Tuesday, when Mr. and Mrs. Ross Mullins entertained at their beautiful home in honor of their attractive guests, the Misses Dickens, of Texas. As the guests arrived they were ushered to the dining room where delicious punch was served by little Miss Annie Mae Harper.

After a musical program each one was asked to answer the questions of a "nut contest." The prizes were awarded to Misses Lurline Harper, Eva Dickens, Lena Downs, and Messrs Grady Reynolds and Clarence Evans.

Those enjoying Mr. and Mrs. Mullins' hospitality were:

Misses Bessie VanDerveer, L. E. Morgan, Willetta Stringfellow, of Reform, Ala., Estella Morgan, Myrtle Mullins, Mary Daniels, Maude Mullins, Willie Reynolds, Lena Downs, Lurline Harper, Ruby Downs, Dalene Hayes, Willie Belle Carter, Kathleen Mullins, Miss Hall, of Wetumpka, Marguerite Chappelle. Messrs. John T. Morgan, J. Burton Higgins, Grady Reynolds, Julian Latham, Sam Latham, Roy Roberts, Henry Bell, of Atmore, John Bell, Oliver Mullins, Blake Pipes, O. G. Anderson, Homer Arnold, Jos. P. PALACE OF EDUCATION AT AMERICA'S GREAT EXPOSITION, SAN FRANCISCO, 1915.

Copyright, 1914, by Panama Pacific International Exposition Company.

This palace occupies a site at the southwest corner of the main group of exhibit palaces. To the left is the Half-Dome of Thought, constituting the main western entrance to the palace. This is one of two half-domes constituting the principal architectural embellishment of the western facade of the main group, the other being the Half-Dome of Vigor, the principal western entrance to the Palace of Food Products.

These domes are modeled after similar recesses in old Roman baths, or in buildings surrounding the Forum. Within the cool shade of these beautiful doorways, the leisurely gentlemen of old Rome were wont to gather for informal lectures and discussions.

Within the shadow of the Dome of Thought will be a semi-circle of eight columns, surmounted by figures by Ralph Stackpole, embodying ideas of intellectual development. Within the Dome of Vigor, a similar colonnade will be surmounted by figures by Earl Cummings, representative of the ideals of physical development. In the center of both entrances will be a fountain. The portals in the southern facade are Italian renaissance. W. B. Faville is the architect. The Panama-Pacific International Exposition opens in San Francisco in February, 1915.

NEW CHILD LABOR BILL PASSES GEORGIA HOUSE

The Georgia House passed a new child labor bill July 24 by the overwhelming vote of 99 to 44. This is a distinct victory for the National Child Labor Committee, and the various organizations in Georgia which have been fighting hard for the bill. Other child labor bills have passed the Georgia House in previous years, but the National Child Labor Committee considers this the best bill passed, and feels confident that public opinion is strong enough now to force it through the Senate. The mill owners fought the bill to the end in the House, but were unable to prevent its passage. They were not even able to weaken it with amendments, although they offered many of them.

The new law provides a 14 year limit for mills, factories, laundries, manufacturing establishments and places of amusement. At present Georgia has a 12 year limit, except for children of dependent parents, for whom the age limit is 10 years.

A 16-year limit for night work is provided by the new bill, instead of the existing 14-year limit, and it requires children under 16 to secure employment certificates or work permits before they may be employed. Such permits are not issued unless evidence is produced that the child is of the required age, and unless the child can read and write.

"The last provision," said Mr. Herschel H. Jones of the National Child-Labor Committee, who has been directing the campaign in Georgia, "means that if the bill becomes a law, Georgia's large per cent of illiteracy will begin to decrease. A high percent of illiteracy is always found where poor child labor laws exist. It is true in Alabama, the Carolinas and Louisiana as well as Georgia. The most effective way to begin to raise the standard of literacy is to require children to have at least the rudiments of an education before they are allowed to go to work."

A short [illegible] campaign [illegible] it received from [illegible] in promoting [illegible] Mills went out on strike just before the child labor campaign began, and among their demands was the elimination of children under 14 from the mills. 300 of these operatives appeared at the hearing on the new bill to show that they were in sympathy with its provisions. Before this the only operatives who have ever appeared at a hearing have been brought there by mill owners to testify they did not want a better child labor law. "When the operatives were well enough organized to stand up for what they really wanted," said Mr. Jones, "we very soon discovered that they did not want to have their children working in the mills."

"If the Senate passes this bill, it will be impossible for advocates of child labor reform to class Georgia any longer with Alabama, the Carolinas, and Louisiana as the States which have the most inadequate child labor laws in the United States," continued Mr. Jones. "If Georgia can overcome the enormous opposition which has always existed there and succeeded in raising the standard for the protection of her children, the other southern states can afford to follow her example."

ORDERS NEW SCHEDULE FOR RURAL CARRIERS

Washington, Aug. 1.—A new salary schedule for rural carriers throughout the country went into effect today by an order promulgated by Postmaster General Burleson in accordance with the recent act of Congress providing $1,200 as the maximum annual pay for carriers.

Heretofore the unit of compensation upon which carriers salaries was based included only the number of miles traveled, but under the new schedule consideration is to be given of the time required to travel such mileage, and to the amount of service rendered by the carrier.

The Postmaster General declared today that the order was a step toward greater efficiency of the rural mail service and the elimination to a large extent of the enormous disparity between receipts and expenditures in this service.

FAMILY REUNION AT MAPLESVILLE

Friday, July 30th, was an enjoyable day long to be remembered by Mr. R. J. Mitchell, an aged and respected citizen of west Chilton. Mr. Mitchell will be 80 years old in October. He is the father of 13 children, 10 of which are still living, 9 being present on this occasion. Mrs. Elizabeth Milling of Birmingham could not attend on account of sickness. His children, grand children, great grand children, daughters and sons in law, together with those who have married into the families, number 98; 79 of these were present.

Other near relations were present. Mr. T. A. Mitchell of Lawley, Ala., a brother, and Mrs. Fannie Smitherman, of Clanton, Ala., a sister, were present.

Those of the children present were: Mrs. Mary Gay, Moro; Rev. John W. Mitchell, Centreville; Mrs. T. G. Milling, Stanton; Mrs. Ada Gay, Riderville; Mrs. Jennie Hays, Ashby; Mrs. W. T. Mitchell, San Antonio, Tex., Mrs. James W. Mitchell, Maplesville; Mrs. Ollie D. Martin, Brent; Mrs. Lula T. Merchant, Maplesville.

Those not so near kin were: Mr. Frank Harris and family, Riderville; Mrs. Perry Collins and family, Lawley; Mrs. Dora Williams and family, Maplesville.

Quite a number of the grandchildren had never seen each other before. The meeting was in the large grove near the Baptist church. The forenoon was spent shaking hands, kissing, playing and talking.

At noon a bountiful dinner was spread on a table that had been prepared; every family brought a basket well filled and a nice barbecue had been prepared. Every one ate heartily and there was much left. Plenty of lemonade and ice cream for all.

After dinner they all came together for a short service, Rev. Jno. W. Mitchell conducting the service. Mr. Mitchell gave the history of the Mitchell family, after which he read the Scriptures of where Jacob in his old age called his sons together; then prayer was led by Father Mitchell and concluded by Rev. J. W. Mitchell.

Then short talks were made by W. T and James W. Mitchell, T. A. Gay, and T. G. Milling. All sang "Blest Be The Tie That Binds" and "In The Sweet Bye and Bye," and all present shook hands with Grandfather Mitchell. After this a photographer from Selma took a picture of the entire crowd, and one of grand father Mitchell and his children, then all went home feeling glad that they had come.

Very Respectfully,
J. W. MITCHELL, JR.

WHY, I ATTEND CHURCH

(By Hon. Claude Weaver, Congressman from Oklahoma.)

It is sweet on a summer's morning, when the air is aquiver with the love songs of the birds and fragrant with the odor of roses blown, to hear the music of the churchgoing bells, an invitation to the world-wearied to enter God's temple and find peace, because the instinct of worship is in the heart of man and the church is the temple of the living God.

I go to church because I find peace there, that peace which De Quincy described as a resting from human labors, a Sabbath of repose, a respite granted from the secret burdens of the heart, as if I stood at a distance and aloof from the uproar of life; as if the tumult and fever and strife were suspended; as there brooded over me a dove-like and halcyon calm.

I go to church because I love the music that I hear there, the mighty roll of the great organ, mingled with the marvelous symphonies of that divine stringed instrument, the human voice, untwisting all the chains that tie the hidden soul of harmony.

I go to church because I delight to hear the teachings of the preacher, whose soul is dedicated to God, whose field is as wide as God's universe, whose theme is the destiny of man, and whose words are the oracles of Fate. Marvellous is the spell of the preacher to whom God has given genius and consecration and the power of illustration drawn from the old, sacred, immortal Book, and from the miracles of nature, no less revealed in the crimson-tipped flower turned up by the plowshare of Robert Burns upon the soil of Ayr than in the long reaches of the star-girt skies.

I go to church because "the way is dark and I am far from home," and because the church is the polar star to light my pathway in the rayless night.

I go to church because the church ministers not only to the spiritual but also to the material needs of life, and because it is there that the charities that soothe and heal and bless are scattered at the feet of man like flowers.

I go to church because in that atmosphere vice and crime wither and die.

I go to church because I hear the teaching of the philosophy of Jesus, the incomparable man, and if you say his teaching is philosophy and not religion and that he was a man and not a god, then the philosophy of that man has redeemed the world from savagery and blessed mankind with Christian civilization, and, to my mind, it is a thing worth while to hear.

I go to church because I find there consolation and hope; because I see there the sun and not the sunset; and it is better for man, if the hope is baseless and the vision but an elusive phantom, to cherish a dream so glorious and beautiful than to be weighted down and crushed with the quarried mountains of a world without hope and without God.

The Land of Broken Promises

A Stirring Story of the Mexican Revolution

By DANE COOLIDGE
Author of "The Fighting Foel" "Hidden Woods" "The Tinhorn," Etc.

(Copyright, 1914, by Frank A. Munsey)

SYNOPSIS.

Bud Hooker and Phil De Lancey are forced, owing to a revolution in Mexico, to give up their mining claim and return to the United States. In the border town of Gadsden Bud meets Henry Kruger, a wealthy miner, who makes him a proposition to return to Mexico to acquire title to a very rich mine which Kruger had blown up when he found he had been cheated out of the title by one Aragon. The Mexican subsequently spent a large sum in an unsuccessful attempt to relocate the vein and then allowed the land to revert for taxes. Hooker and De Lancey arrive at Fortuna near where the mine, known as the Eagle Tail, is located. They engage the services of Cruz Mendez, who has been friendly to Kruger, to acquire the title for them and get a permit to do preliminary work. Aragon protests and accuses them of jumping his claim.

CHAPTER VII—Continued.

For a minute Don Cipriano stood looking at him, his black eyes heavy with rage; then his anger seemed to fall away from him and he wiped the sweat from his brow.

"Very well," he said at last, "I perceive that you are a gentleman and have acted in good faith—it is only that that fellow Mendez has deceived you. Let it pass, then—I will not quarrel with you, my friend—it is the fortune of war. But stop at my store when you go by and come and see me. It is indeed lonely here at times, and perhaps I can pass a pleasant hour with you. My name, senor, is Don Cipriano Aragon y Tres Palacios—and yours?"

He held out his hand with a little gesture.

"Philip De Lancey," replied Phil, clasping the proffered hand; and with many expressions of good-will and esteem, with a touching of hats and a wiggling of fingers from the distance, they parted, in spite of Bud, the best of friends.

CHAPTER VIII.

There are some people in this world with whom it seems impossible to quarrel, notably the parents of attractive daughters.

Perhaps, if Gracia Aragon had not been watching him from the window Philip De Lancey would not have been quite so cordial with her father—at least, that was what Hooker thought, and he was so badly peeved at the way things had gone that he said it, too.

Then, of course, they quarreled, and, one thing leading to another, Phil told Bud he had a very low way of speaking. Bud replied that, whatever his deficiencies of speech might be, he was not fool enough to be drawn in by a skirt, and Phil rebuked him again. Then, with a scornful grunt, Bud Hooker rode on in silence and they said no more about it.

It was a gay life that they led at night for the Fortuna hotel was filled with men of their kind, since all the staid married men had either moved across the line with their families or were under orders to come straight home.

In the daytime the hotel was nearly deserted, for every man in town was working for the company; but in the evening, when they gathered around the massive stove, it was a merry company indeed.

There were college men, full of good stories and stories not so good, world-wanderers and adventurers with such tales of the East and West as never have been written in books. But not a college boy could match stories with Phil De Lancey, and few wanderers there were who could tell him anything new about Mexico. Also, when it came to popular songs, he knew both the words and the tune. So he was much in demand, and Don Juan passed many drinks across the bar because of him.

In all such festivities the two partners stayed together; Bud, with a broad, indulgent grin, listening to the end, and Phil, his eyes alight with liquor and good cheer, talking and laughing far into the night.

Outside the winter winds were still cold and the Mexicans went wrapped to the eyebrows; but within the merry company was slow to quit, and Phil, making up for the lonely months when he had entirely lacked an audience, sat long in the seat of honor and was always the last to go.

But on the evening after their spat Bud sat off to one side, and even Phil's sprightly and ventriloquistic conversation with the little girl behind the door called forth only a fleeting smile.

Bud was thinking, and when engaged in that arduous occupation even the saucy little girl behind the door could not beguile him.

But, after he had studied it all out and come to a definite conclusion, he did not deliver an ultimatum. The old, good-natured smile silently came back to his rugged face, he noted a truce; and there for the rest of the evening he lay near the entrance and shook. Only in the morning, when they went out to the corral to get their horses, he carried his saddle over into Don Cipriano Bottom's side of the shed and threw it down with a heave, he smiled it out of the harnessroom where it had been stored and slung it deftly across the pack-saddle.

"Why, what's the matter?" said De Lancey, when they were on their way, "don't you like the hotel?"

"Hotel's fine," conceded Bud, "but I reckon I'd better camp out at the mine. Want to keep my eye on that Mexican of ours."

"Aw, he's all right!" protested Phil.

"Sure," said Bud; "I ain't afraid he'll steal something—but he might take a notion to quit the country."

"Why, what for?" challenged De Lancey. "He's got his wife and family here."

"That's nothing—to a Mexican!" countered Bud. "But I ain't figuring on the excuse he'd give—that won't buy me nothing—what I want to do is to keep him from going. Because if we lose that Mex now, we lose our mine."

"And—"

"No 'and' to it," said Bud doggedly. "We ain't going to lose him."

"But if we did," persisted De Lancey, "why, then you think—"

"Your friend would get it," finished Hooker grimly.

"Ah, I see," nodded De Lancey, noting the accent on "friend." "You don't approve of my making friends with Aragon."

"Oh, that's all right," shrugged the big cowboy; "it won't make no difference now. Go ahead, if you want to."

"You mean you can get along without me?"

"No," answered Bud, "I don't mean nothing—except what I say. If you want to palaver around with Aragon, go to it. I'll round up Mendez and his family and keep 'em right there at the mine until we get them papers signed—after that I don't care what happens."

It Was a Merry Company, Indeed.

"Oh, all right," murmured De Lancey in a subdued tone; but if his conscience smote him for the moment it did not lead to the making of any sentimental New Year's resolutions, for he stopped when he came to the store and exchanged salutations with Aragon, who was lounging expectantly before his door.

"Buenos dias, Don Cipriano!" he hailed. "How are you this morning?"

"Ah, good morning, Don Felipe," responded Aragon, stepping forth from the shadow of the door. "I am very well, thank you—and you?"

"The same!" answered Phil, as if it were a great piece of news. "It is fine weather—no?"

"Yes, but a little dry!" said Aragon, and so they passed it back and forth in the accepted Spanish manner, while Bud hooked one leg over the horn of his saddle and regarded the hacienda with languid eyes.

But as his gaze swept the length of the vine-covered corredor it halted for a moment and a slow smile came over his face. In the green depths of a passion-flower vine he had detected a quick, birdlike motion; and then suddenly, like a transformation scene, he beheld a merry face framed and illuminated by soft, golden locks, peering out at him from among the flowers and smiled again. That was the way Gracia Aragon affected them all.

He did not point out the place to Phil, nor betray her by any sign. All he did was to glance at her once and then ride on his way, but somehow his heart stood still when he met her eyes, and his days became filled with a pensive, brooding melancholy.

"What the matter, Bud?" rallied Phil, after he had jollied him for a week; "you're getting mighty quiet lately. Got another hunch—like that one you had up at Agua Negra?"

"Nope," grinned Bud; "but I'll tell you one thing—if old Aragon don't spring something pretty soon I'm going to get uneasy. He's too dog-goned good-natured about this."

"Maybe he thinks we're stuck," suggested De Lancey.

"Well, he's awful happy about something," said Bud. "I can see by the way he droops that game eye of his—and smiles that way—that he knows we're working for him. If we don't get a title to this mine, every tap of work we do on it is all to the good for him, that's a cinch. So sit down now and think it out—where's the joker?"

"Well," mused Phil, "the gold is here somewhere. He knows we're not fooled there. And he knows we're right after it, the way we're driving this cut in. Our permit is good—he hasn't tried to buffalo Mendez—and it's a cinch he can't denounce the claim himself."

"Maybe he figures on letting us do all the work and pay all the denouncement fees and then spring something big on old One-Eye," propounded Bud. "Scare 'im up or buy 'im off, and have him transfer the title to him. That's the way he worked Kruger."

"Well, say," urged Phil, "let's go ahead with our denouncement before he starts something. Besides, the warm weather is coming on now, and if we don't get a move on we're likely to get run out by the revoltosos."

"Nope," said Bud; "I don't put this into Mendez's hands until I know he's our man—and if I ever do go ahead I'll keep him under my six-shooter until the last paper is signed, believe me. I know we're in bad somewhere, but hurrying up won't help none.

"Now I tell you what we'll do—you go to the mining agent and get copies of all our papers and send them up to that Gadsden lawyer. I'm going to go down and board with Mendez and see if I can read his heart."

So they separated, and while Phil stayed in town to look over the records Bud ate his beans and tortillas with the Mendez family.

They were a happy little family, comfortably installed in the stone house that Mendez had built, and rapidly getting fat on three full meals a day. From his tent farther up the canyon Bud could look down and watch the children at play and see the comely Indian wife as she cooked by the open fire.

Certainly no one could be more innocent and contented than she was, and El Tuerto was all bows and protestations of gratitude. And yet, you never can tell.

Bud had moved out of the new house to furnish quarters for El Tuerto and had favored him in every way; but this same consideration might easily be misinterpreted, for the Mexicans are slow to understand kindness.

So, while on the one hand he had treated them generously, he had always kept his distance, lest they be tempted to presume. But now, with Phil in town for a few days, he took his meals with Maria, who was too awed to say a word, and made friends with the dogs and the children.

The way to the dog's heart was easy, almost direct, and he finally won the attention of little Pancho and Josefa with a well-worn Sunday supplement. This gaudy institution, with its spicy stories and startling illustrations, had penetrated even to the wilds of Sonora, and every Sunday as regularly as the paper came Bud sat down and had his laugh over the funny page.

But to Pancho, who was six years old and curious, this same highly colored sheet was a mystery of mysteries, and when he saw the big American laughing he crept up and looked at it wistfully.

"Mira," said Bud, laying his finger upon the smirking visage of one of the comic characters, "look, and I will tell you the story."

And so, with laborious care, he translated the colored fun, while the little Mendezes squirmed with excitement and leaped with joy. Even the simple souls of El Tuerto and Maria were moved by the comicas, and Mendez became so interested that he learned the words by heart, the better to explain them to others.

But as for Mexican machinery, Bud could find none of it. In fact, finding them so simple-hearted and good-natured, he became half ashamed of his early suspicions and waited for the return of Phil to explain Don Cipriano's expatriancy.

For two more days, as Bud thought, he waited in vain, and then, on the morning of the third, Don Cipriano, with a courtly flourish of his sombrero, rode up to the door and, dismounting, greeted Bud with a smile on his face and bitter disappointment in his heart. Over a cup of coffee and a cigarette they talked of the weather and the crops, and then Don Cipriano, with a deprecating gesture, asked if Bud had seen Phil.

"Why, no," said Bud, "I haven't seen him since he went to town. Is he back?"

"Yes, he arrived last night," said Don Cipriano, "and I have had the pleasure of entertaining him at my house. He is a very fine young man, and I am sorry that you have had a misunderstanding. He tells me that you have been very kind to him, and that you have treated him like a brother."

"Oh, he's all right," said Bud, "but I'm surprised that he didn't come out and see me. Is he coming back?"

"He said he would return this morning," said Don Cipriano, "but I have not seen him. Perhaps he has gone on to the mine. Will you ride with me, Don Carlos, and we will look for him?"

"Why, I'd be glad to," said Bud, "but I've got to get back to the mine. I've been away for three days now, and I'm afraid the Mexicans will get to fighting among themselves. Maybe Phil has gone out there."

"Perhaps," said Don Cipriano, "but I will ride with you as far as the mine, and then I will return and look for him in town. Perhaps he has gone to see Mendez."

"Maybe he has," said Bud, "but I'll bet he hasn't. Mendez is out at the mine with his family, and Phil knows it. Well, I'll be glad to have you ride with me, Don Cipriano, and I'll look for Phil on the way back."

So they rode on together, Don Cipriano and Bud, and as they rode Bud's heart was heavy with misgivings. Phil had gone to see Mendez, and Mendez was not at the mine. Mendez had gone to Agua Negra, and Phil had gone with him. Mendez had gone to denounce the claim, and Phil had gone to help him. Mendez had gone to get a permit to do preliminary work, and Phil had gone to help him get it. Mendez had gone to get the mine, and Phil had gone to help him get it.

Bud's head was in a whirl as he rode along, and he could not think connectedly. Phil had gone to help Mendez get the mine, and Mendez had gone to get the mine

Mr. McAdoo's suggestion, passed animously an amendment to the rrency law modifying the clause oviding that banks of national cur ncy associations, to avail themselves the issue, must have outstanding rrency notes "secured by bonds of e United States to an amount not ss than 40 per cent of its capital."
The amendment would give the Sec tary of the treasury authority in his scretion to ignore this restriction.

Underwood Tariff Yields $23,000,000

Washington.—During the first nine onths of its operation, the Underwood

COTTON PICKING NEAR AT HAND

MANY FARMERS ARE COMPLAIN-ING OF PARCHED FIELDS AND SHEDDING FRUIT.

BOLL WEEVIL ADVANCES

Has Big Batch of Troubles and Pessimistic Reports, Many Counties
Sound Note of Hope.

Montgomery.—Cotton picking time getting close enough to figure by
ys. The bolls are beginning to rst and the fields are slowly turning hite. In ten more days the black ces of the field hands and the white ton piled high in the hampers will a common sight in the southern unties.
Even with picking time so close at nd, the size of the crop is a matter uncertainty. Most of the counties e crying for rain, and most of the rmers say that their cotton is parch-g and shedding. Many say that the st week has brought deterioration the crop. The hot sun has been erless, the rain has kept away om the cotton belt and many of the unties that predicted a bumper crop rly in the season have lost their p-form. The boll weevil, marching adily eastward, has wrought havoc some of the counties, and from ese reports a good crop is doubtful.
Yet with the big batch of troubles
d pessimistic reports there come any reports that sound a note of pe, and a few that proclaim the crop their county to be a bumper.
More optimism over the prospects
r a fairly good corn crop is shown the weekly crop report issued by
pt. Reuben F. Kolb, Commissioner
Agriculture, and the indications e are that there will be a large eld of late or young corn. The dry ather has already perfected its disrous work on the old corn, accord-
g to the report.
Cotton continues to improve and a od crop is practically certain, ac-rding to reports received at the dertment. The oat crop is only fair d does not come up to expecta-ons.

PREDICTS GOOD ROADS ERA.

German Discusses History of Highway Development.

Montgomery.—Alabama is just en-ering upon the greatest era of good road construction known in her history, according to J. T. Gorman, Examiner of Public Accounts, who has prepared a statement showing the amount of work done on the roads of Alabama and treating in general with the good roads movement in the United States.
"The people of Alabama will not be satisfied until fine permanent highways are constructed all over the state and every county has a good system of public roads," says Mr. Gorman.
During last year the total aid given to road building by the state amounted to $116,000, according to Mr. Gorman. He declares that it is the earnest hope that the next legislature will increase the state appropriations for the construction of good roads.

FARMERS TO MEET.

Attendance at Meeting to be Held in Birmingham Will be Large.

Birmingham.—Because of the big prospects as to the crops this year, and for other reasons, the expectations are that the attendance at the convention of the Farmers' Union of Alabama will be the greatest in the history of the organization. Preparations are being made here to give the farmers a royal reception and entertainment August 19, 20 and 21. T. J.
Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the union, with headquarters in Birmingham, has been assured by the Chamber of Commerce here that there will be an affiliation in the preparations looking to the entertainment that will result in much being done.

GOVERNMENT WORK STOPS.

Appropriation Has Been Spent in the Cause.

Mobile.—All government work in Mobile river and Mobile bay channel has been stopped as a result of the government appropriation having given out. Work in the Gulfport,
Miss., harbor and on the Warrior river has been stopped and its continuance depends solely on the passage of the rivers and harbors bill.

LEEDS POSTOFFICE ROBBED.

Burglars Rob Cash Drawer of About $25 in Money and Stamps.

Leeds.—The postoffice here was robbed by unknown parties and about $25 in money and stamps were taken.
No attempt was made to blow the safe, as it is believed the robbers were frightened away before accomplishing their purpose. A mercantile store was also robbed on the same night of a small amount of money.

SEARCY CAPTURED IN ILLINOIS.

Defaulting Treasurer of Cullman
County Apprehended.

Birmingham.—J. D. Searcy, Treasurer of Cullman County, and charged with embezzlement of $25,000 of county funds, was arrested in Rock Island, Ill., according to a wire to the George Bodeker National Detective Agency in Birmingham.
The allegation is that in June
Searcy sold bonds of Cullman County to Otto Marx and Company, and then pocketed the $25,000 realized.
He purchased an automobile from a local firm and started touring.
The machine in which Searcy was traveling was traced through Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia and to Washington. Under the name of C.
A. Robinson, giving a New Orleans address, Searcy purchased an auto license there.
From Washington he went to Baltimore, Atlantic City, Philadelphia and then to Brooklyn. He stayed in and around New York city from July 1 to 16. Mr. Wren went to New York and spent two weeks trying to locate Searcy, but the man was always just ahead of the detective.
Searcy is said to have left New York with a "red-headed woman," furnishing another clue besides the auto number, according to the detectives. From New York he was traced west through Buffalo, Sandusky, O.; Kendallville, Ind. He was headed for Denver.
In Atlantic City Searcy registered as Charles Murphy. In New York he was known as Charles F. Murphy.
One night in New York he got in a row in a picture show and nearly tore up the place, it is said. When he told the police his name was Charles F. Murphy they turned him loose, thinking he was the famous Tammany Hall boss.
Searcy visited all the resorts around New York, using various assumed names, but always posing, it is said, with the "red-headed woman," as a honeymooning couple.

INTERNAL REVENUE $76,804.

Manufacturers Believe That But Few Men Will Leave for Foreign War.

Birmingham.—Internal revenue collections during the past month, amounted to $76,804, according to the report made public by Collector John D. McNeill. This is an increase of more than $36,000 over the same month last year.
Manufacturers and corporation heads in the Birmingham district express the belief that there will be but few men to leave here to take part in the war, though there are no less than 25,000 foreigners working in this section.

DISPENSARY MAKES MONEY.

Net Profits for the Month at Huntsville Are Over $4,000.

Huntsville.—The monthly report of the city dispensary made public shows that the total receipts during the month amounted to $11,295.40. The smallest day's sales amounted to $214.-
05 and the largest $1,302. The net profits of the period amount to $4,544.-
01 and of this amount checks have been distributed as follows: City of Huntsville $2,000, county of Madison
$2,000, State of Alabama $444.44.

Reprieve Angers a Murderer.

An unusual scene was enacted at Versailles (France) jail recently, when the public prosecutor went to inform two murderers that their death sentence had been commuted to penal servitude for life.
One, Joseph Brugen, received the news joyfully, but the other, Louis
Louis, exclaimed: "What, you asked the jury for my head, and now you come to torture me by a reprieve?
I do not want it; I must have liberty or the guillotine. I won't go to the galleys at any price."
So saying he rushed upon the public prosecutor, seized him by the throat and endeavored to strangle him. The keeper had great difficulty in releasing the official and putting the convict in a strait jacket.

A German princeling went to pay a visit of ceremony to a small but ana branch line of railway. His serene highness had just stepped from his exchanged with the local receiving party.

"And what," said the prince to the burgomaster, "are those children do-

Next week Clanton will be alive with teachers, the Chilton County Teachers' Institute meeting here for a five days session.

Wednesday morning's dispatches state that Great Britain has declared war against Germany, and now nearly the whole of Europe is involved.

Mr. Howard said that it was best that Roosevelt was defeated in 1912. Them's our sentiments exactly. We don't want a return of conditions such as this country experienced in 1908.

Wonder why it was that both the chairman and secretary of the Bull Moose Executive Committee were not at the committee meeting Saturday? It seems that they called the Committee together and then left them to "root hog or die." Too bad!

Now watch the Bull Moose LEADERS of this county get busy and try to hoodwink the people with the cry that the Democrats were responsible for the closing of the cotton market. It wouldn't be surprising if they didn't lay the cause of the great European war at the feet of the Democratic party. They are up to all sorts of tricks, these LEADERS; we know, 'cause we dropped in on 'em last Saturday at the mass meeting.

Recent rains have put a good season in the ground and all crops are in splendid shape. Mr. Moses Robinson, County Commissioner, was in town Tuesday, and stated that cotton in his section was in fine condition and that he has never before known the stalks to be so full of bolls. Similar reports are general from all over the county.

Early corn has suffered greatly from drouth but late planting has had a good season and all feed crops are in excellent condition. With these conditions surrounding us and the U. S. government providing funds for moving crops, the Chilton county farmer should worry.

list votes, but who now claims to have never been a Republican, said in a speech at the court house last Saturday that Roosevelt would be elected President in 1916 as a Progressive by a bigger vote than has ever been accorded a candidate. Wonder if Mr. Howard has forgotten the Colonel's recent action in New York State politics, when he attempted to dictate the platform of the Republican party? And then again, upon what grounds does Mr. Howard base his claims for victory in the face of recent overwhelming losses sustained by the Progressives in State and Congressional primaries?

Wonder if our Judge L. H. Reynolds who Saturday spoke against Chilton county's efforts to construct the B. & M. highway is the same Judge L. H. Reynolds who six or eight weeks ago while in Birmingham talking to a Ledger reporter spoke so praisingly of Chilton's efforts and progress on the same enterprise! Fair minded reader, you who have the Anglo Saxon spirit of independence and honest dealings, ask the Judge if he is the Birmingham man mentioned above. Judge, we would not object to your answering the question yourself. We will publish your reply next week if you will submit it to us. Think it would be interesting matter for our readers.

Stock exchanges all over the country have suspended operations, and the cotton market has been closed for an indefinite period pending developments in the European war.

Just how long this state of affairs will exist no one can foretell, and it is very probable that when the cotton market opens again there will be a decided slump in the price. Of course, the bulk of cotton will not be ready for market for more than sixty days yet and the chances are by that time the scrap will be over; it is to be hoped so at least.

In this day of modern warfare, with the billigerant nations well prepared there is little probability of the ructus lasting more than a short while and then business will shape itself into a normal and prosperous condition.

Under the wise leadership of Woodrow Wilson and a Democratic Congress conditions in this country will not be materially hampered during the present crisis, and the President has assured the people of this nation that there is no occasion for alarm and urges them to keep their heads and sit steady in the boat.

Congress passed a law Monday providing for the issuance of over a billion dollars to be added to the circulating medium of the country.

The Colonel and "Depression"

Some newspaper has been mean enough to dig up a little information that throws light upon the "prosperous" conditions the country experienced under the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, who is so distressed over the "hard times" that have come about under President Wilson Wilson, and the showing is one that would "get under the skin" of the Colonel were it not of the rhinoceros variety.

In his recent address at Pittsburgh the Colonel was in despair over the "terrible depression" that exists at this time—lurid is his always busy imagination—and he wept copious tears over the "army of employed." It was then that an exchange went through the files of a Pennsylvania newspaper, The Johnstown Democrat, and brought forth some facts that show how things were in 1909, when the country was so fortunate, or unfortunate, according to whether the Colonel or some more humane Unemployed in San Francisco form a league and form a league and demand the issue of $23,000,000 in bonds to aid unemployed.—March 23, 1908.

At Camden, N. J., a riot follows application of 1,500 men for 300 jobs advertised by the Joseph Campbell Company.—August 10, 1908.

Loan of $9,000,000 to provide funds for public work asked by City of Philadelphia for unemployed; race riot followed demonstration of unemployed; Italians attacked by other nationalities.—March 15, 1908.

The Colonel would like very much to have the country forget the great industrial depression that featured his residence in Washington, for when it is remembered, the "hard times" he finds at this juncture appear like unto "boom times." But the Roosevelt bread lines and the Roosevelt soup houses are fresh in the public mind, and the Colonel simply makes himself rediculous when he comes forward with his talk of a "great industrial depression." The people know that the conditions are infinitely better than when the Colonel was "on the job," and, moreove, they know that things are improving right along.

If the Colonel is seeking to be amusing then he is on the right track, but if he has serious political intentions, then he had better find some new issue. "Industrial depression" will not do in the face of his own disastrous record.—Birmingham News.

LUKE McLUKE SAYS:

Nobel forget all about it, but Carnegie can secure the lasting gratitude of a suffering world if he will donate a prize of $1,000,000 per year to be awarded to the man who shows the ability to keep his mouth shut.

There are a whole lot of narrow minded men in this world who are wearing No. 8 hats.

A fat woman will squeeze her feet into tight shoes and keep two maids busy hauling to get her fastened into a straight front and get the pacing harness adjusted. Then she will let the maids strangle her into a tight brassiere that would kill a male person in two minutes. And, after all this, she will feel so comfortable when she is dressed that she will go out and have a man arrested because he is driving a horse with a check rein.

The old-fashioned girl who used to part her hair in the middle now has a daughter who hangs her hair on a gas fixture and parts it on the side.

Nowadays the quick are the speedy pedestrians and the dead are those who are too slow to dodge automobiles.

After all, when one considers how scarce they are in this country

SHOW PAST IN ITS TRUTH

Buildings Which Have Survived Are the Most Valuable Historical Records the World Has.

It has been said that history was the written order of things. No doubt what had been written was of enormous value, but it was not all, and even where we had a literature of the past it was in some cases not the greater part of what conveyed the past to us, said Prof. Flinders Petrie, in London, the Philadelphia Public Ledger states. Where should we be in the understanding of the ancient Greeks if there were no statuary and no sculpture? How could we understand their magnificent sense of accuracy, precision and refinement if there were no architecture to study? Many years ago, with regard to the great question of the restoration of the Parthenon, the objection was made that no person could ever get to know precisely how the columns were put together.

Professor Petrie thought it was only a question of measurements, and he bought a lathe in Athens and did some careful measurements. To his intense surprise he found he could not detect the errors. There were none. He thought he was going to deal with tenths of an inch, but he found he had to deal with hundredths. How the Greeks did it, he did not understand. He could not comprehend the physical means of doing it on that scale. That was only an instance of how much a building could teach them. Who could appreciate the accuracy, the sense of perfection and the sense of beauty, if we had not these material remains?

Then, if they looked a little later, let them consider how miserable was the greater part of the histories of the emperors. What did they understand of Rome? They understood the Coliseum — the majesty of it and the cruelty of it—they could understand the magnificent temples, the great architecture, and they could see from that what Rome was far better than by reading all the imperial historians. And if they looked a little later what was there in the whole writings of the thirteenth century which gave them such a perfect picture of the medieval mind as Salisbury cathedral?

He ventured to give these as illustrations of the value of the material civilization side by side with the civilization of the people, because he thought they would enable them to grasp perhaps more clearly how much they could ascertain and feel and know about the civilization of which they had material remains. They enabled them to understand the feelings, sentiments and ideals of those bygone men from their literature. The question of material evidence might seem a dead and dull thing, but he ventured to think they were as much a key to the mental designs and powers as any other form of expression.

Remembers Flora Temple.

Spectators at the United shoe machinery trial yesterday in the United States district court enjoyed the repartee between Judge Putnam and Frederic P. Fish of counsel for the defense, says a Philadelphia paper. Attorney Fish was arguing on the patent question involved in the anti-trust suit against the United company, and as a means of illustrating a point remarked: "You can put a race horse in a plow and you can put a plow horse in a race."

Here Judge Putnam interrupted to say: "Flora Temple was a plow horse."

"Yes," responded Attorney Fish, "but she soon got out of it. I remember seeing her in a box car at Taunton."

"Why, I didn't think you were that old," replied Judge Putnam.

"Oh, Lord," replied Attorney Fish, "you don't know what an old fellow I am. I remember Flora Temple well, and I know what her time was, too. It was 2:27."

By this time the whole courtroom full of lawyers and spectators was in roars of laughter, and Judges Dodge and Brown, sitting with Judge Putnam, joined in the merriment.

Cat Treed Peanut-Thief Squirrel.

Policemen are reputed to have a penchant for fruit-stand peanuts, but the Judiciary square squirrels cause the Greek who conducts the store opposite City hall the most anguish, as they are a thieving lot. Hourly they cross the street on foraging expeditions, but one nearly came to grief, says an exchange.

The squirrels became so bold in preying on the peanuts that the Greek recently installed a large cat as guardian of the stand. While the cat apparently was concealing on the shady side of the stand an unsuspecting squirrel stepped up. The cat pounced and slid the little thief down a pole to a small tree.

For nearly two hours the terrified squirrel hung on the tree, while the cat watched closely from the bottom. The squirrel made several attempts to run down the tree, but each time the cat headed him off. Finally the squirrel made a desperate dash for the roof of a house.

King of All — WEBER KING OF ALL — That's Why We Handle Them

Every Weber Wagon We Sell Is Inspected Four Times

Instead of waiting until you need a wagon and then taking the first that's offered you, find out in advance which wagon will give you the best service. Buy the wagon that will stand up for the longest time and be easiest on your horses.

That wagon is a Weber. Here's why. Each Weber wagon is thoroughly inspected. The lumber used is selected from large parchases of first grade oak and hickory for wheels and gears, the finest yellow or bay poplar for box sides, and long leaf yellow pine for bottoms.

Every stick of this lumber is carefully inspected, and each part cut from it is again inspected when it is shaped and ironed. The third inspection is made just before the wagon is painted, and insures perfect fitting of every part. The final inspection is made when the wagon is ready for delivery. Four inspections to make sure that you get just what you pay for when you buy a Weber wagon.

Drop in the next time you come to town and look over our line of Weber wagons. We are proud of them.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally, in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Minneapolis Traveling Man In Bad Shape.

In an affidavit executed before a Notary in St. Paul, a traveling man swears to the following: Had a scrofulous ulcer about two by three inches in size on the right side of neck over the jugular vein—a dangerous place. Was treated by many doctors, but no benefit. Allen's Ulcerine Salve cured the ulcer in six months.

This salve is one of the oldest remedies in America, and since 1869 it has been known as the only salve powerful enough to cure chronic ulcers and old sores of long standing.

Allen's Ulcerine Salve acts by drawing out the poison and healing the sore from the bottom up. It is so powerful that it heals new cuts and sores in a few hours time. Common sense and imagination tells you that a salve powerful enough to cure a chronic ulcer will cure any sore. And it does. Sold

MOBILIZATION OF ALL EUROPEAN COUNTRIES VIRTUALLY COMPLETED

Few Reports of Actual Military Movements are Being Received Owing to the Censorship—German Ambassador at Paris Ordered by Emperor to Demand His Passports.

London.—John Burns, president of the local government board, resigned from the cabinet, owing to disagreement over the war policy of the British government, and a late report says Viscount Morley, lord president of the council, was considering resigning.

Sir Edward Grey, in the commons, reviewed the situation, and although he used qualifying phrases, his words were taken generally to mean that England is committed to war.

The German ambassador at Paris was ordered by the Emperor to demand his passports, which lines up France with Russia, Servia and Montenegro against Germany and Austria.

The mobilization of most of the countries of Europe had been virtually completed. Holland has been invaded at Limburg by German troops, according to reports, and the Dutch people are said to b flooding the country to prevent the passage of soldiers.

Germany has issued a white book, justifying her action with respect to Russia, at the same time German diplomats at London are using their utmost efforts to win Great Britain to a position of neutrality.

Few reports of actual military movements are being received, owing to the censorship.

Russian Emperor Outlines Events Leading to War

St. Petersburg.—Emperor Nicholas issued a manifesto outlining the events leading up to the declaration of war by Germany, and saying that "Russians will rise like one man and repulse the insolent attack of the enemy.

The text follows:

"By the grace of God, we, Nicholas II, Emperor and Autocrat of all the Russias, King of Poland and Grand Duke of Finland, etc., to all our faithful subjects make known that Russia, related by faith and blood to the Slav People, has never regarded their faith with indifference.

"But the fraternal sentiments of the Russian people for the Slavs have been awakened with perfect unanimity and extraordinary force in these last few days, when Austro-Hungary knowingly addressed to Servia claims inacceptable for an independent state.

"Having paid no attention to the pacific and conciliatory reply of the Servian government and having rejected the benevolent intervention of Russia, Austria-Hungary made haste to proceed to an armed attack and began to bombard Belgrade, an open place.

"Forced by the situation thus created to take necessary measures of precaution, we ordered the army and navy put on a war footing, at the same time using every endeavor to obtain a peaceful solution. Pourparlers were begun amid friendly relations with Germany and her ally, Austria, for the blood and the property of our subjects were dear to us.

"Contrary to our hopes in good, neighborly relations of long date, and disregarding our assurances that the mobilization measures taken were in pursuance of no object hostile to her, Germany demanded their immediate cessation. Being rebuffed in this demand, Germany suddenly declared war on Russia.

"Today it is not only the protection of a country related to us and unjustly attacked, that must be accorded, but we must safeguard the honor, the dignity and the integrity of Russia and her position among the great powers.

"We believe unshakably that all our faithful subjects will rise with unanimity and devotion for the defence of Russian soil, that internal discord will be forgotten in this threatening hour; that the unity of the Emperor with his people will become still more close, and that Russia, rising like one man, will repulse the insolent attack of the enemy.

"With a profound faith in the justice of our work and with a humble hope in omnipotent providence in prayer, we call God's blessing on Holy Russia, and her valiant troops.

"NICHOLAS."

German Statement Charges That France is Aggressor

Berlin.—A further official communication regarding French acts of hostility against Germany was published here. It said:

"The German troops hitherto have obeyed orders not to cross the French frontier. French, on the contrary, have made several attacks on the frontier posts without any declaration of war having been made.

"The French have crossed the border at several places in spite of the fact that the French government a few days ago informed us that it would not infringe on the unoccupied zone of six miles from the frontier, and companies of French troops have been in the occupation of a number of German villages.

"French army aeronauts have been flying over Baden and Bararia and by throwing bombs have violated Belgian neutrality by flying over Belgian territory into the Province of the Rhine in an effort to destroy our railways.

"In this way France has opened the attack upon us and has established a state of war which has compelled the German Empire to take measures for the security of its territory."

Without Declaring War German Forces Invade France

London.—German forces began the invasion of France without, so far as is known a declaration of war having been made. Two German detachments entered French territory, moving in the direction of Paris.

One German force crossed the French frontier near the village of Cirey, between Nancy and Strassburg, and another German detachment, probably the twenty-ninth infantry, invaded the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, neutral territory between Belgium and Germany, and continued its march on the French fortified town of Longwy.

The German force which came into France near Cirey, which is 40 miles from Nancy, is reported to have been repulsed with heavy losses.

Over Billion Dollars to be Circulating Medium of U. S.

Washington.—More than a billion dollars in currency will be added to the circulating medium in the United States by the action of Congress to meet the situation resulting from the European crisis. The new money, backed by prime assets of banks, may be issued under a modification of the bank law, passed in both House and Senate, then compromised in conference and approved by the administration for final action in both houses.

All national banks and all state banks and trust companies, members of the new federal reserve system, and those that have agreed to join, may issue notes under the Aldrich-Vreeland section of the bank law, up to 135 per cent of their combined capital and surplus.

There is approximately $1,760,000 such capital and surplus on which issue of notes may be based. Of that, about $800,000,000 invested in government bonds is not available. Approximately $960,000,000 plus 25 per cent therefore is ready for a basis of issue. Bankers told administration leaders the issue available should more than care for the situation.

RUSSIAN FORCES CROSS THE GERMAN FRONTIER

Berlin.—Russia has begun the invasion of German Territory, Russian forces having crossed the German frontier at Schwirdsen, southeast of Eydtkn, while last night a Russian patrol entered Germany near Pistkarrish in Posen.

...Count Berchtold assumed the port...of foreign affairs at Vienna upon ...irement of Count von Aehren...who put through the act of an...ing of Bosnia-Herzegovina, which ...motion the wild passions that ...ated in the assassination of the ...ian heir to the throne.

Russia Back of Servia.

...n he took office as the director ...foreign office, Berchtold found a ...n full of portent. Servia, in...ed by Austria's absorption of ter...which formerly had belonged ...ey and to which Servia consid...self the heir, because they are ...ed largely by a people of Serb ...ns clamoring for the undoing of ...hich had been accomplished by ...ce of annexation. ...chtold set himself to work to re...ations to a normal basis. Be...n were the two other members ...triple alliance—Germany and ...and opposing him were Russia, ...f-imposed protector of all the ...nations, including Servia, and ...other members of the triple ...Great Britain and France.

Broke Up Balkan League.

...came the Balkan war in 1912, ...ch the Bulgarian and Servian ...crushed the power of Turkey in ... The formation of the Balkan ...and the utter defeat of Turkey ...startling events which caught ...old napping. His next move ...break up the Balkan league by ...ing the land hunger of Sergia ...Greece, with their ally, Monteneg...and turning them against Bul...which was the predominant mil...factor in the war of 1912.

...Greco-Servian success, though, ...another development for which ...ld was unprepared. After Bul...had been defeated by the combi...of five nations, including Tur...the clamor at Belgrade against ...annexation of Bosnia-Herzego...Austria was resumed with re...doubled vituperativeness and noisy rancor.

This agitation, it has been pointed out by Berchtold, was the direct cause of the tragedy at Sarajevo, when the archduke and his morganatic wife fell by bullets fired by a Servian. The Austrian minister of foreign affairs demonstrated in the judicial inquiry that followed the crime, that Servian officials, civil and military, had been involved in the events that led to the assassination.

Deemed Time for Action.

The moment for action had come. Berchtold surveyed the international horizon.

He observed that Russia was involved in a big strike which had a revolutionary tinge.

That France was in a turmoil of political uncertainty.

That Great Britain was facing an internal convulsion as a result of the Ulster situation.

The Austrian ultimatum to Servia, demanding an apology for Servia's part in the tragedy of Sarajevo and a suppression of the anti-Austrian agitation in Belgrade, followed promptly, in the midst of the preoccupation of the triple entente.

Berchtold realizes more clearly than anybody else that he has challenged the entire Slav world, with the exception of Bulgaria; that his quarrel is not with Servia, but with Russia, which has stood back of Servia in her attacks upon Austria.

Nikola Pashitch, Servian Premier.

Nikola Pashitch, premier and minister of foreign affairs of Servia, has twice before been the dominant figure in Servian politics in the course of his 40 years in the public affairs of his country. His policy always has been bitterly hostile to Austria-Hungary, and the present crisis in the relations of the two countries is largely the outcome of his provocative attitude.

Pashitch throughout his career has conducted a vigorous fight for the economic freedom of Servia from Austria. By means of railway tariffs and inspection regulations on the frontier of Austria, Servia's natural road to the markets of western Europe, the Austrian government has been able to control Servian trade in pigs and poultry, the staple products of Servia.

Clamor Against Austria.

But the chief grievance of the Servians has been the continued domination of Austria-Hungary over a large population across the frontier which the Servians maintain is of Serb blood. Although a considerable part of this population has contested the claims of the Servian jingoes and has repeatedly demonstrated its preference for Austrian rule, the campaign for liberating the Servian brothers from the Austrian yoke has been kept up with frequent outbursts of anti-Austrian clamor in Belgrade. To this clamor Russia, always jealous of Austria, has lent her secret and sometimes her open support.

The annexation of Bosnia-Herzegovina by Austria in 1909 produced a wild demand in Servia for immediate war to liberate the Bosnian brothers from Austrian rule. At that time, however, Russia was not ready for action against Austria, so the clamor spent itself in torrid speeches and fervid press declarations.

Occupied Adriatic Ports.

Pashitch was premier of Servia in 1912, at the outbreak of the Balkan war. He saw an opportunity to block Austria's long-sought road to the Aegean sea. The first objective points of the Servian armies in the first war were the ports of the Adriatic, in what is now Albania. These, with the help of Montenegro, Servia occupied in the first stages of the struggle.

At this stage, however, Pashitch's calculations were upset by Austria. Acting in conjunction with Italy, which also had pretensions to the country inhabited by the aboriginal stock of the Balkan peninsula, the Austrian government succeeded in inducing Europe to order Servia, Greece and Montenegro out of the Adriatic territory occupied by them, and set aside this region as an independent state, to be called Albania.

Servians Nursed Their Wrath.

The negotiations which Pashitch conducted in this phase of the Balkan struggle were protracted and delicate, but eventually the Austro-Italian demand was carried out, and the Servians nursed their wrath.

For the success of his defiant attitude toward Austria, Pashitch depended almost entirely upon Russia. It was realized clearly by General Putnik, the Servian chief of staff, that resistance to Austria upon the field of battle would be unthinkable, so far as an ultimate triumph for Servian arms is concerned.

In the course of the past score of years Servia has been conducting an active agitation among the Slavic population of southern Austria, and Pashitch undoubtedly counts upon internal disorders in the rear of an advancing Austrian army to embarrass the enemy in a campaign into Servia.

Of the success of this plan there is grave doubt, however, as the Catholic and Moslem Serbs of Austria have no hankering for Servian rule.

Austrian War Record—300 Years

PROVES LAW'S VALUE

All Sections Benefit Under Banking and Currency Law.

Money Received for the Huge Crops to Be Garnered Will Stay Where It Has Been Earned and Develop Country.

The United States will contribute more than 5,000,000,000 bushels of grain to the world's food supply this year. The major part—two-thirds or three-quarters of the whole—of this vast yield comes from the West. Under the new banking and currency system, money paid for this huge crop will stay in the West to be used in actual development, instead of being forwarded to New York to help the stock gambling operations of Wall street.

Under the old plan of concentrated reserves, money paid for a western crop gravitated into three great cities, mostly to New York. There, it was placed out on call loans, and used to mark stocks up and down at the pleasure of captains of finance. Western builders could not get western capital to finance a western enterprise without buying the O. K. of some "investment banker" with Wall street connections.

When the new plan is in complete operation, the reserve money of any district will stay right in that district. Western crop money will be available for western development in the West. It will be on hand to build new silos, new railroad equipment, new machinery of all sorts—and this without paying tribute to the money lords of New York.

It is this fact which makes the new banking and currency law admittedly the greatest piece of constructive reform the country has known in a generation; and it is this fact which gives added significance to the huge crops of the present season. When money stays where it is earned, prosperity is on a sound foundation.

Wilson's Vindication.

President Wilson has had a heavy load to carry in the last few months. The domestic problems confronting the administration would, of themselves, have been sufficiently difficult. He has had in addition the burden of the distressing situation in Mexico.

He has been swamped with advice from persons familiar and unfamiliar with the conditions. By one group he has been urged to recognize Huerta. By another to intervene and establish an American protectorate. Through all the conflict of opinion and the storm of criticism he has kept his head and steadily adhered to the policy laid down months ago.

The Star recalls with satisfaction that last December it expressed confidence in the president's purposes and ability regarding the Mexican situation, and urged that his policy be upheld by the nation without regard to party lines.

Mr. Wilson's wisdom and his self-reliance have amply vindicated the views then expressed.—Kansas City Star.

Prices for Raw Wool.

There has been no decrease in the demand for wool, and the prices of the domestic clip are high. It looks as though these prices will break all records except for a few exceptional years. There seems a scarcity of the finer fleeces, and efforts are being made to use some of the poorer kinds to make attractive fabrics with a fair show of success. Farmers and wool growers all through the West and South are aware of the conditions and of the needs of the mills, and are holding back for even higher prices. Some of the mill men who put in early orders before clipping began are congratulating themselves on their foresight.—New York Times.

Big Business and Big Politics.

When most of the caliber of the president and worthy representatives of big business get together there is hope of something being done worth while. In congress we have observed the manoeuvers of tacticians looking, for the most part, with personal interests, and rising at highest to the assessment of privilege. For masters of various sorts. Strategists of that sort would win a battle at the close of a campaign. The president is not changeable with such sentiments. He is not the president of a class or of a party. He is the president of all Americans and the foe of privilege by any.—New York Times.

This Should Stick.

A slogan in the penny of the Topeka Republican is the title-head for an article in which Mr. Hitchcock and Mr. Bryan will quick believe.

The Old Idea.

"What makes you so late?" asked his mother.

"The teacher kept me in because I couldn't find Moscow on the map of Europe," replied Johnnie.

Mother—And no wonder you couldn't find Moscow. It was burned down in 1812. It's an outrage to treat a child that way.

Cultured Tramp.

There came to the kitchen door of a certain household in Philadelphia a ragged hobo, who took his stand against the doorjamb and gazed longingly at food displayed on the kitchen table.

"You look strong," suggested the lady of the house. "Are you equal to the task of sawing and splitting half a cord of wood?"

"Equal to it, madam?" said the tramp, with a courtly bow. "The expression is inadequate. I am superior to it."

And he went away.

NEW IDEA
Helped Wisconsin Couple.

It doesn't pay to stick too closely to old notions of things. New ideas often lead to better health, success and happiness.

A Wis. couple examined an idea new to them and stepped up several rounds on the health ladder. The husband writes:

"Several years ago we suffered from coffee drinking, were sleepless, nervous, sallow, weak and irritable. My wife and I both loved coffee and thought it was a bracer." (Delusion.)

"Finally, after years of suffering, we read of Postum and the harmfulness of coffee, and believing that to grow we should give some attention to new ideas, we decided to test Postum.

"When we made it right we liked it and were free of ills caused by coffee. Our friends noticed the change—fresher skin, sturdier nerves, better temper, etc.

"These changes were not sudden, but increased as we continued to drink and enjoy Postum, and we lost the desire for coffee.

"Many of our friends did not like Postum at first, because they did not make it right. But when they made Postum according to directions on pkg. they liked it better than coffee and quickly changed by the change." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. "There's a Reason" for Postum.

WORLD'S OLDEST BOOK

SOME FACTS CONCERNING PACK OF PLAYING CARDS.

Have Been Known as Far Back as History Reaches, and Their Significance Has Seldom Been Thoroughly Appreciated.

"The oldest book in the world," said the wise woman of the party of card players, indicating the pack of cards held in her hands. "Its leaves have been called playing cards since the fourteenth century, but they were known as far back as history reaches, by the Chinese, Persians and Egyptians, not to name the ancients of prehistoric times. A pack of cards said to be a thousand years old is preserved in the museum of the Royal Asiatic society.

"The women who play bridge all the morning and then all the afternoon, and after that go to bridge parties in the evening," said another of the party, "little think what ancient things they are playing with. But what was the purpose of this book in the time before it became a game?"

"The mystic book," answered the wise woman, "held the hidden wisdom of the ancient world. It was used by the priests in their temples when time was young. Call its origin Egyptian or what you will, it is full of astronomical symbolism, and the wisdom of numbers; such learning as men had of old was carefully concealed from the uninitiated. But to those who could read it the mystic test book was a veritable book of fate.

"The cards, for one thing, are all symbols of the astrological art. Each one is an emblem. It would tire you if I would attempt to go into the subject deeply. I can only glance along the top waves of the deep ocean. But notice a few particulars which lie upon the surface.

"The 52 emblems or pages of this book represent the 52 weeks in the year. The 12 court emblems are the 12 months, the 13 cards in each suit represent the sun and the 12 signs of the zodiac, the four suit figures the four seasons.

"Further—but this you can easily see—the heart is the emblem of spring and love, the trefoil or clover leaf—we call it club—of summer and knowledge, the diamond of autumn and wealth, and the acorn or spade, of winter, labor and death.

The pages of this book are in red and black. White was once used in place of red. These colors in the cards symbolize night and day, astronomically, and the lights and shades of life as applied to man.

"Look closely at the court cards and notice the emblems carried. These all survive from the ancient forms. The queens hold the lotus flower, supplemented in the case of the queen of spades by the distaff, emblem of industry, kept through all the long centuries. The king and queen of clubs bear symbols of wisdom, the king still plainly showing the winged globe.

"Each suit has its mystic symbolism, corresponding to the planets, in both suit and spots. Venus and Mercury rule hearts, Mars and the earth rule clubs, Jupiter and Neptune, diamonds; Saturn and Uranus, spades. But I am becoming too astronomical. I must close this fascinating book."

"No, no," the others protested. "And what about the joker?"

"Oh, the joker is a modern invention. He does not count in any serious game of life or of cards. Yet there was in the days of old always a court jester, so this new card is not really out of place among queens and kings."

Fortunes in Lace.

Several millionaire families in New York possess immense fortunes in laces alone. The laces owned by the Astor family are valued at $300,000; those of the Vanderbilts at $500,000. It is said that the New York Four Hundred buy more lace than any collectors in the world. No fewer than twenty wealthy women may be mentioned who each own lace worth $50,000. Lace is the luxury of the rich. No ordinary middle-class collector can hope to possess anything but a few choice pieces, if lucky enough to be able to have those.

There are several fine collections amongst the English aristocracy. The priceless lace of the late Queen Victoria, worth at least $375,000, was chiefly left to H. R. H. Princess Henry of Battenberg. Queen Alexandra has a magnificent collection; years ago its value was said to be $250,000.

Living-Room Hints.

In the living room, where the family is wont to gather after the day's work, let there be a number of small tables, with a good light for each, so that everyone may have a chance to read, or work in comfort, or be stretched at ease on the couch, paper magazine in hand.

Let the living room be the keynote of truth through, that privacy have a very definite influence on the life of each member of your household.

STATE SINGING CONVENTION

The Alabama State Singing Convention of the Sacred Harp met in the Court House in Birmingham, July 24, 25 and 26. Prof. Worley, of Cordova, was President, and Miss Ema Hood, of Birmingham, Secretary.

Attendance was large. On Sunday it was necessary to use two rooms of the building and both were just packed with people.

Among the noted visitors were: Prof. White, of Atlanta, Prof. Cooper, of Dothan, and Mrs. Byrd, daughter of the well remembered B. F. White. The Densons, of North Alabama, were there—a family of great singers and composers. We wish all Chilton county singers could have heard the lesson directed by Prof. S. M. Denson Sunday just before noon; at its conclusion the applause was long and loud. We wish all Christians in Chilton county could have heard Mrs. Owens of Cleburne, the great alto singer, not needing a book, apparently forgetting all else, she seemed just immersed in the songs. Mrs. Robinson of Cullman, her face wreathed with smiles, evidently filled with religion, held the crowd spell bound while she was leading. But the crowning feature was the lesson by Miss Isabel Jackson, of Birmingham—her leading swept the convention off its feet—when she concluded the building rang with applause. By the way, we expect Miss Jackson at the next Chilton convention. The young boys did fine leading; it was a great convention; spirituality and enthusiasm were abundant.

MOOSE CONVENTION FEATURED BY ROWS AMONG DELEGATES

MEETING REMINDS INNOCENT BY-STANDERS OF MUSICAL COMEDY POLITICAL GATHERING

A comedy like unto a political meeting as portrayed on the burlesque stage, interspersed with the assailing of the characters of delegates, a fight and shouts of "You're drunk!" and "You're full of morphine," and if he's drunk, what's the matter with you?" was the Jefferson County Progressive Party convention Wednesday morning.

Participants in the fight were Chairman G. R Lewis and George O'Bear. Each man passed a few without inflicting any apparent damage before they were separated.

The fight followed a denunciation of Lewis by O'Bear, the latter charging the former with attempting to make the Jefferson County Progressive party a part of the black and tan wing of the stand pat Republican party. Charges of a caucus, prior to a former meeting of a committee, which was appointed to name delegates to the district and State convention, with Mr. Lewis as the instigator, were made by Mr. O'Bear. This caucus he charged with having planned to frame up the delegates so that Lewis might retain control of the party in Jefferson.

Lewis replied to O'Bear using the word untruth, and denying the charges. The men interrupted each other continually during their respective talks, and after half an hour's wrangle, came to a fisticuff in the aisle.

The meeting was one long squabble. A few moments after it started someone moved for adjournment. Pandemonium ensued when Chairman Lewis put the motion in a new fashion.

"All those who want to stick here and attend to business stand up over here, and all those who want to quit and adjourn stand up over yonder," he said. The meeting was held in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium, and the delegates filled both sides. The chairman's call for vote brought a howl from both parties. Additional excitement was added by Lewis declaring the meeting would not adjourn.

PROFANITY IS FREE.

Profanity became profuse.

"What kind of a meeting do you call this,?" shouted one man. A dozen delegates left. An effort was made to have Chairman Lewis call first for the ayes to stand and then the nays. This he refused to do.

"If you are not satisfied we will take the vote this way," said he. "Let those who want to stand here and work say "aye," and those who want to go on and quit and adjourn say "nay." The delegates chorused their ayes and nays in unison. There was more profanity.

"Out of order," and "Who in the h—— ever heard of such a vote." was shouted.

"May I ask what parliamentary rules we are working under," asked one delegate.

"We are proceeding as the Progressive party sees right," replied Chairman Lewis.

W. R. Fairley, one of the delegates attempted to make a speech. He spoke for a minute and a half. Then came interruptions. Mr. Fairley picked up his hat and left the hall.

Mr. H.M. Snell pleaded for decorum in the convention. "Let us be gentlemen," was his plea. There is really nothing for this meeting to attend to. At the former convention we appointed a committee to name delegates to the district and State convention, and this meeting was simply called to attend to any other business that might come up. The matter of delegates has been settled; so there is nothing else for this convention to do."

WILLIS MAKES MOTION

A loud howl greeted Mr. Snell's words. G. C. Willis moved that all those present be elected delegates to the State Convention with half a vote each. There was more noise. A dozen men were speaking at once.

J. W. Hughes called the attention of the convention to the fact that a Democratic reporter was in the room and asked that the delegates behave themselves.

But it only added fire to the excitement.

"To h—— with the Democrats," shouted one man.

A motion for adjournment was made. Chairman Lewis refused to consider it. About two-thirds of the convention then adjourned itself. Chairman Lewis put the Willis motion to a dozen who remained. They passed it and enrolled themselves as delegates to the State and District conventions, in addition to the regular 32 delegates already appointed.

SOME HOT SHOT FOR MR. GILLESPIE

Editor Press,
Clanton, Ala.,
Dear Sir:

Please give me space in your paper to say a few words in reply to Mr. W. H. Gillespie of issue July 26th, last. I never like to write for public print, but, when I see a person trying to mislead the people into doing something that they or he know nothing about, I cannot refrain from expressing my views. In the first place, I wish to state that I am highly in favor of good roads, and for me and mine I say issue $50,000, yes $100,000 of warrants, if necessary, to build good roads. Not that I expect them to benefit me much, for I won't live long enough to reap much benefit from the roads, for I am sixty-four years of age now, but I have children and grand children, as have most all other men in Chilton county, that will get the benefit. Therefore I am perfectly willing, anxious and ready to pay my part of the taxes to build the roads, regardless of cost. I do not say this in defense of any man or set of men, but simply as I see it from an unbiased standpoint, and what will ultimately result in the greatest asset to Chilton county and her people—and that is GOOD ROADS.

Mr. Gillespie says: "I do not know of a tax payer in my community that is not opposed to the county issuing time warrants to build roads." God pity his community—and that "ninety per cent of the people of the county will protest against such issuing of said warrants if given a chance." The "Clarion" call was sent broadcast to the "Children in Bondage"; thousands of circulars were distributed over the county, announcing the mass meeting, when this "90 per cent of the people" would be permitted to file their protest of the issuing of the "warrants," and how many actually responded? —less than twenty per cent. I can point out to you three men in the county who pay as much tax as the crowd at the "mass meeting" pays, and incidentally are in favor of their taxes being used in any way the Commissioners' Court sees fit to use in the building of good roads. The facts in the case are: That all this howl about what the Commissioners' Court does and has done is by the smallest tax payers in the county, as is evidenced by Mr. Gillespie, who as the tax records show, pays only $3.74 taxes. State, $1.62; county, $2.12, divided as follows: General County, $1.25; School, 25c; Roads, 62c. Shame on you, Walter, to be calling on the people to rally to the support of a scheme in which you figure so little, and are such a "small potato."

Now, Walter, one more question: Who took the post office at Verbena away from Mr. Jones' widow and orphans and gave it to another man?

I am not in politics, but I believe in a fair square deal, and believing as I do that Ben Jones is the best man in the race for the office, and knowing that he sits right in the saddle, I am going to cast my ballot for him for Sheriff.

Respectfully,

F. ...

DEMOCRATIC EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETS

Pursuant to a call of the Chairman, E. M. Pinckard, the Democratic Executive Committee of Chilton county met at the Court Houes last Saturday. Mr. Pinckard, upon taking the chair, stated that the purpose of the meeting was to elect a Chairman and Secretary, and to inaugurate plans to wage a vigorous campaign for the approaching general election.

A goodly number of the Committee, including the candidates and other Democrats from different parts of the county were present and all spoke in optimistic terms for Democratic success this year.

The name of Mr. Pinckard was placed in nomination for the Chairmanship and he was unanimously re-elected. Barney M. Roberts was re-elected Secretary.

Senator Curry was chosen as Chairman of the Campaign Committee, with C. J. Davis, Secretary. This committee will meet soon and organize, and will be composed of men from every Beat in the county, who are well known in their respective precincts, and who have the success of Democracy at heart and will labor unceasingly in their efforts to return Chilton to the Democratic fold.

CHILTON COUNTY TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

The Teachers' Institute of Chilton county convened at the court house Aug. 10, 1914.

The Institute was called to order by Superintendent W. T. Bean, who made a brief talk, setting forth the advantages of Institute work, which was quite appropriate for the occasion.

The conductors were introduced by Supt. W. T. Bean. They are Mr. T. W. Smith, of Montgomery, and Miss Rosa Strickland, of the Birmingham High School.

The Chilton county teachers are highly pleased with their conductors. Many topics interesting to teachers have already been discussed. Mr. Smith has already succeeded in creating considerable interest in vocational training. Then, again, his explanations are far above the average. Miss Strickland is hard to excell in making people think for themselves.

The Institute had a rare treat yesterday by having the privilege of listening to Prof. E. W. Wright of the Troy Normal school, lecture on "The Science of Teaching." He is far above the average as a lecturer, bringing out many interesting thoughts.

Ninety-four teachers have enrolled up to the present date; they all speak highly of the Institute work.

A concise report of the week's work will appear in the county papers next week and one or two of the State papers.

Tuesday night the teachers were tendered a reception at the Court House. A delightful program was rendered, consisting of ... songs and recitations ... ment. After the pro... served ...

has the town had such a general cleaning up as was given it on last Friday. An epidemic of typhoid fever for the past two months has aroused the people to the necessity of exerting themselves to to stamp it out.

Under the direction of Miss Helen Harlan, Red Cross Nurse for Chilton county, the ladies of the town have been organized as the Thorsby branch of the Chilton County Improvement Association. Their first work was to discover the source of typhoid infection, which proved to be "open wells," receiving drainage or seepage from unprotected water-closets, which were also accessible to flies, well known to be carriers of typhoid germs.

To prevent further contamination of food or water from this source the town council passed an ordinance requiring all water closets to be provided with "dry pail" system and to be made fly proof, and to complete the work the ladies have interested not only the council members, but men, women and children to devote a day to civic improvement, cleaning the streets, cutting grass and weeds, gathering and hauling away rubbish, and cleaning up generally.

The ladies provided a dinner on the Institute campus and sold ice cream and cake to secure money for their treasury. There has been no deaths from typhoid fever and no recent cases at Thorsby. All the patients are now convalescent.

BANKS IN FULL SHAPE TO CARE FOR SITUATION

Further words of assurance have been received by Alex. E. Walker, state superintendent of banks, regarding the money situation over Alabama. Mr. Walker stated Monday morning that the people need have no fears as to the situation resulting from the European war as he had positive knowledge that the Alabama banks were in full shape to protect the farmers and merchants against any crisis.

Since the beginning of the war scare hundreds of inquiries have come from the rural districts showing a tendency on the part of the planters to fear dire conditions and hard times. Immediately Mr. Walker began an investigation as reports received from the state banks have been gratifying. He declared Monday that the planters need have no fears as to the outcome of the situation in this state.

JEMISON MERCHANT A BANKRUPT

A. C. Wells, a merchant of Jemison, Chilton county, was thrown into bankruptcy in the Federal Court Tuesday morning and George Stuart of Montgomery was appointed receiver of the estate. He went to Jemison Tuesday morning to take charge of the assets of Wells.

Five allegations of insolvency are made in the petition entered against Wells. It is averred that he preferred certain creditors and that within four months preceding the present proceedings, he mortgaged store buildings to the Clanton Bank and to Schloss & Kahn of Montgomery. During the past three months he is alleged to have been disposing of merchandise at less than cost and it is also alleged that he has concealed the proceeds of sales.

The petition was filed by the following concerns who claim accounts in the following sums: United China and Glass Company of New Orleans, $61.84; Jacob Dold Packing company, Wichita, Kansas, $52.61; Seward Trunk and Bag company, Petersburg, Va., $62.80; Taylor-Christian Hat company, Bristol, Tenn., $138; Suttle and Beeler, Knoxville, Tenn., $215.85.

The Land of Broken Promises

A Stirring Story of the Mexican Revolution

By DANE COOLIDGE
Author of "The Fighting Final," "Hidden Western," "The Tenderfoot," Etc.
Illustrations by Dean J. Lavin

(Copyright, 1914, by Frank A. Munsey)

SYNOPSIS.

Bud Hooker and Phil De Lancey are forced, owing to a revolution in Mexico, to give up their mining claim and return to the United States. In the border town of Gadsden Bud meets Henry Krueger, a wealthy miner, who makes him a proposition to return to Mexico to acquire title to a very rich mine which Krueger had blown up when he found he had been cheated out of the title by one Aragon. The Mexican subsequently spent a large sum in an unsuccessful attempt to relocate the vein and then allowed the land to revert for taxes. Hooker and Le Lanmine, known as the Eagle Tail, is located. They engage the services of Cruz Mendez, who has been friendly to Kruger, to acquire the title for them and get a permit to do preliminary work. Aragon protests and accuses them of jumping his claim. Bud discovers that matrimonial entanglements make it impossible for Mendez to secure a valid title to the land. Phil, who has become interested in Aragon's daughter, Gracia, decides to turn Mexican and get the title in his own name.

CHAPTER IX—Continued.

Undoubtedly, in his own way, he was in love—but he would never admit it, that he knew, too. So he sank down on the blankets and swore harshly, while De Lancey stared at him in unfeigned surprise.

"Well, then," he went on, taking Bud's answer for granted, "what're you making such a row about? Can't I go to a dance, with a girl without you jumping down my throat?"

"W'y, sure you can!" rumbled Bud, now hot with a new indignation; "but after getting me to go into this deal against my will and swearing me to some damn-fool pledge, the first thing you do is to make friends with Aragon and then make love to his daughter. Is that your idea of helping things along? D'ye think that's the way a pardner ought to act? No, I tell you, it is not!"

"Aw, Bud," protested De Lancey plaintively, "what's the matter with you? Be reasonable, old man; I never meant to hurt your feelings!"

"Hurt my feelings!" echoed Hooker scornfully. "Huh, what are we down here for, anyway—a Sunday school picnic? My feelings are nothing, and they can wait; but we're sitting on a mine that's worth a million dollars mebbe—and it ain't ours, either—and when you throw in with old Aragon and go to making love to his daughter you know you're not doing right! That's all there is to it—you're doing me and Kruger dirt!"

"Well, Bud,' said De Lancey with mock gravity, "if that's the way you feel about it I won't do it any more!"

"I wish you wouldn't," breathed Bud, raising his head from his hands; "it sure wears me out, Phil, worrying about it."

"Well, then, I won't do it," protested Phil sincerely. "So that's settled—now who's going to turn Mexican citizen?"

"Suit yourself," said Bud listlessly.

"I'll match you for it!" proposed De Lancey, diving into his pocket for money.

"Don't need to," responded Bud; "you can do what you please."

"No; I'll match you!" persisted Phil. "That was the agreement—whenever it was an even break we'd let the money talk. Here's your quarter—and if I match you I'll become the Mexican citizen. All set? Let 'er go!"

He flipped the coin into the air and caught it in his hand.

"Heads!" he called, without looking at it. "What you got?"

"Heads!" answered Bud, and Phil chucked his money into the air again and laughed as it dropped into his palm.

"Heads she is again!" he cried, showing the Mexican eagle; "I never did see the time when I couldn't match you, anyway. So now, old socks, you can keep right on being a Texan and hating Mexicans like horny toads, and I'll denounce the Eagle Tail the minute the time is up. And I won't go near the Aragon outfit unless you're with me—is that a go? All right, shake hands on it, pard! I wouldn't quarrel with you for anything!"

"Aw, that's all right," mumbled Bud, rising and holding out his hand. "I knowed you didn't mean nothing." He sat down again after that and gazed dreamily out the door.

"Say, Bud," began Phil, his eyes sparkling with amusement, "I've got something to tell you about that dance last night. If I didn't put the crusaser on Mr. Felix Luna and Manuel del Rey! Wow! I sure wished you were there to see me do it!

"Felix Felix Luna is the son of an old sugar planter down in the hot country somewhere. He got run out by the revolutions and now he's up here trying to make a winning with Gracia Aragon—uniting two noble families, and all that junk. Well, sir, of all the conceited, swelled-up little squirts you ever saw in your life he's the limit, and yet the old man kind of throws him.

"But this Manuel del Rey is the captain of the rurales around here and a regular Mexican fire-eater—oh, boy, what a chile con carne he is! He's the kind that wears his hair long and has his pants trimmed with silver buttons down the side, and he struts around like a turkey gobbler. Well, I was standing there with Gracia, waiting for the music to start, when this Manuel del Rey came up and tried to cut me out. He was all dressed up in his best clothes, with a sword and spurs and a big sombrero, and he looked like a million dollars. But I just turned my back on him and kept right on talking to Gracia, and when the music started I took her right out on the floor and away we went.

"Gee, Bud, you should have seen the way she rose to it. The girl is a sport, believe me, and the idea of those two novios chewing the rag while she sat out the dance didn't appeal to her at all. So she gave me her hand and away we went, with all the old ladies talking behind their fans and Manuel del Rey blowing up like a volcano in a bunch of carambas or worse. Gee, it was great, and she could dance like a queen.

"But here's the interesting part of it—what do you think she asked me, after we'd had our little laugh? Well, you don't need to get so grouchy about it—she asked about you!"

"Aw!"

"Yes, she did! So you see what you get for throwing her down!"

"What did she ask?"

"Well, she asked"—here he stopped and laughed—"she asked if you were a cowboy!"

"No!" cried Bud, pleased in spite of himself; "what does she know about cowboys?"

"Oh, she's wise!" declared Phil; "she's been to school twice in Los Angeles and seen the wild west show. Yes, sir, she's just like an American girl and speaks English perfectly. She told me she didn't like the Mexican men—they were too stuck on themselves—and say, Bud, when I told her

She Gave Me Her Hand and Away We Went.

you were a genuine Texas cowboy, what do you think she said?"

"W'y, I don't know," answered Bud, smiling broadly in anticipation; "what did she say?"

"She said she'd like to know you!"

"She did not!" came back Bud with sudden spirit.

Then he laughed the thought away, a great burden seemed to be lifted from his heart, and he found himself happy again.

CHAPTER X.

To an American, accustomed to getting things done first and talking about it afterward, there is nothing so subtly irritating as the old-world formalism. The polite exactitude of the Mexican, and yet, at times, they can speak to the point with the best of us.

For sixty days Don Cipriano Aragon had smiled and smiled and been, suddenly, as the last day of their mission passed by and there was no permit issued by and there was no record of a denouncement by Cruz Mendez, he appeared at the Eagle Tail mine with a pistol in his belt and a triumphant mien on his face.

Behind him were four Mexicans, fully armed, and they made no reply to De Lancey's polite "Buenos dias."

"Take your peon-thieves—"

"Be careful there!" warned Bud, suddenly fixing his eyes on one of the four retainers. "If you touch that gun I'll kill you!"

There was a pause, in which the Mexicans sat frozen to their saddles, and then De Lancey broke the silence.

"You must not think, Senor Aragon," he began, speaking with a certain bitterness, "that you can carry your point like this. My friend here is a Texan, and if your men stir he will kill them. But there is a law in this country for every man—what is it that you want?"

"I want this mining claim," shouted Aragon, "that you have so unjustly taken from me through that scoundrel Mendez! And I want you to step aside, so that I can set up my monuments and take possession of it."

"The Senor Aragon has not been to the agents mineral today," suggested De Lancey suavely. "If he had taken the trouble he would not—"

"Enough!" cried Aragon, still trying to carry it off cavalierly; "I sent my servant to the mining agent yesterday and he reported that the permit had lapsed."

"If he had taken the pains to inquire for new permits, however," returned De Lancey, "he would have found that one has been issued to me. I am now a Mexican citizen, like yourself."

"You!" screamed Aragon, his eyes bulging with astonishment; and then, finding himself tricked, he turned suddenly upon one of his retainers and struck him with his whip.

"Son of a goat!" he stormed. "Pig! Is this the way you obey my orders?"

But though he raved and scolded, he had gone too far, and there was no putting the blame on his servant. In his desire to humiliate the hated gringos he had thrown down all his guards, and even De Lancey saw all too clearly what his intentions in the matter had been.

"Spare your cursing, Senor Aragon," he said, "and after this," he added, "you can save your pretty words, too—for somebody else. We shall remain here and hold our property."

"Ha! You Americans!" exclaimed Aragon, as he chewed bitterly on his defeat. "You will rob us of everything—even our government. So you are a Mexican citizen, eh? You must value this barren mine very highly to give up the protection of your government. But perhaps you are acquainted with a man named Kruger?" he sneered.

"He would sell his honor any time to defraud a Mexican of his rights, and I doubt not it was he who sent you here. Yes, I have known it from the first—but I will fool him yet!

"So you are a Mexican citizen, Senor De Lancey? Bien, then you shall pay the full price of your citizenship. Before our law you are now no more than that poor pelado, Mendez. You cannot appeal now to your consul at Gadsden—you are only a Mexican! Very well!"

He shrugged his shoulders and smiled significantly.

"No," retorted De Lancey angrily; "you are right—I cannot appeal to my government! But let me tell you something, Senor Mexicano! An American needs no government to protect him—he has his gun, and that is enough!"

"Yes," added Bud, who had caught the drift of the last, "and he has his friends, too; don't forget that!" He strode over toward Aragon and menaced him with a threatening finger.

"If anything happens to my friend," he hissed, "you will have me to whip! And now, senor," he added, speaking in the idiom of the country, "go with God—and do not come back!"

"Pah!" spat back Aragon, his hate for the pushing foreigner showing in every glance; "I will beat you yet! And I pray God the revoltosos come this way, if they take the full half of my cattle—so long as they get you two!"

"Very well," nodded Bud as Aragon and his men turned away, "but be careful you do not send any!"

"Good!" he continued, smiling grimly at the pallid Phil; "now we got him where we want him—out in the open. And I'll just remember them four pelsanos he had with him—they're his handy men, the boys with nerve—and don't never let one of 'em catch you out after dark."

De Lancey sat down on a rock and wiped his face.

"Heavens, Bud," he groaned, "I never would have believed it of him—I thought he was on the square. But it just goes to prove the old saying—every Mexican has got a streak of yellow in him somewhere. All you've got to do is to trust him long enough and you'll find it out. Well, we're hep to Mr. Aragon, all right!"

"I never seen one of these polite, palavering Mexicans yet," observed Bud sagely, "that wasn't crooked. And this feller Aragon is mean, to boot. But that's a game," he added, "that two can play at. I don't know how you feel, Phil, but we been kinder creeping and slipping around so long that I'm all cramped up inside. Never suffered more in my life than the last sixty days—being polite to that damn Mexican. Now it's dog eat dog. Are you game?"

"Quien sabe?" cried De Lancey, rising from his rock. "Watch me play it!"

Aragon rode, Bud took down his rope and waited in anticipation.

"You go on ahead," he said, shaking out his loop, "and I'll try to put the catgut on Brindle."

"Off like a flash!" answered De Lancey, and, putting the spurs to his dery hay, he went dashing down the street, scattering chickens and hogs in all directions. Behind came Bud, rolling jovially in his saddle, and as the dogs rushed out after his pardner he twirled his loop once and laid it skilfully across the big brindle's back. But roping dogs is a difficult task at best, and Bud was out of practice. The sudden blow struck Brindle to the ground and the loop came away unfilled. The Texan laughed, shifting in his saddle.

"Come again!" commented Bud, leaning sidewise as he coiled his rope, and as the womenfolk and idlers came rushing to see what had happened he turned Copper Bottom in his tracks and came back like a streak of light.

"No, Senor," Said Hooker, Dropping His Hand to His Six-Shooter.

"Look out, you ugly man's dog!" he shouted, whirling his rope as he rode; and then, amid a chorus of indignant protests, he chased the yelping Brindle down the lane and through a hole in the fence. Then, with no harm done, he rode back up the street, smiling amiably and looking for more dogs to rope.

In the door of the store stood Aragon, pale with fury, but Bud appeared not to see him. His eyes were turned rather toward the house where, on the edge of the veranda, Gracia Aragon and her mother stood staring at his antics.

"Good morning to you, ladies!" he saluted, taking off his sombrero with a flourish; "lovely weather, ain't it?" And with his tongue in his cheek and a roguish glance at Aragon, who was struck dumb by this last effrontery, he went rollicking after his pardner, sending back a series of joyous yips.

"Now that sure does me good," he confided to Phil, as they rode down between cottonwoods and struck into the muddy creek. "No sense in it, but it gets something out of my system that has kept me from feeling glad. Did you see me bowing to the ladies? Some class to that bow—no? You want to look out—I got my eye on that gal, and I'm sure a hard one to head. Only thing is, I wouldn't like the old man for a father-in-law the way matters stand between us now."

He laughed boisterously at this witticism, and the little Mexican children, playing among the willows, crouched and lay quiet like rabbits. Along the sides of the rocky hills, where the peons had their mud-and-rock houses, mothers came anxiously to open doors; and as they jogged along up the river the Chinese gardeners, working in each separate nook and eddy of the storm-washed creek-bed, stopped grubbing to gaze at them inquiringly.

"Wonder what's the matter with them chinks?" observed Bud, when his happiness had ceased to effervesce; "they sit up like a village of prairie dogs! Whole country seems to be on the rubber neck. Must be something doing."

"That's right," agreed Phil; "did you notice how those peons scattered when I rode down the street? Maybe there's been some insurrection through. But say—listen!"

He stopped his horse, and in the silence a bugle-call came down the wind from the direction of Fortuna.

"Soldiers!" he said. "Now, where did they come from? I was in Fortuna day before yesterday, and—well, look at that!

"From the point of the hill just above of them a line of cavalry, marching by mounted officers.

"Aha!" exclaimed Bud at the same time; "they've come from below! This is the force that we were told—"

"Adios, Americanos!" they called, gazing enviously at their fine horses, and Phil in his turn touched his hat and wished them all Godspeed.

"Poor devils!" he murmured, as the last tottering camp-followers, laden with their burdens, brought up the rear and a white-skinned Spanish officer saluted from his horse; "what do those little peloses know about liberty and justice, or the game that is being played? Wearing the same uniforms that they had when they fought for Diaz, and now they are fighting for Madero. Next year they may be working for Orozco or Huerta or Salazar."

"Sure," muttered Bud; "but that ain't the question. If they's rebels in the hills, where do we get off?"

CHAPTER XI.

The plaza at Fortuna, ordinarily so peaceful and sleepy, was alive with hurrying men when Bud and Phil reached town. Over at the station a special engine was wheezing and blowing after its heavy run and, from the train of commandeered ore cars behind, a swarm of soldiers were leaping to the ground. On the porch of the hotel Don Juan de Dios Brachamonte was making violent signals with his hands, and as they rode up he hurried out to meet them.

"My gracious, boys," he cried, "it's a good thing you came into town! Bernardo Bravo has come over the mountains and he's marching to take Moctezuma!"

"Why, that doesn't make any difference to us!" answered Phil. "Moctezuma is eighty miles from here—and look at all the soldiers. How many men has Bernardo got?"

"Well, that I do not know," responded Don Juan; "some say more and some less, but if you boys hadn't come in I would have sent a man to fetch you. Just as soon as a revolution begins the back country becomes unsafe for Americans. Some of these low characters are likely to murder you if they think you have any money."

"Well, we haven't," put in Bud; "but we've got a mine—and we're going to keep it, too."

"Aw, Bernardo Bravo hasn't got any men!" scoffed Phil; "I bet this is a false alarm. He got whipped out of his boots over in Chihuahua last fall, and he's been up in the Sierra Madres ever since. Probably come down to steal a little beef.

"Why, Don Juan, Bud and I lived right next to a trail all last year and if we'd listened to one-tenth of the revoltoso stories we heard we wouldn't have taken out an ounce of gold. I'm going to get my denouncement papers tomorrow, and I'll bet you we work that mine all summer and never know the difference. These rebels won't hurt you any, anyhow!"

"No! Only beg a little grub!" added Bud scornfully. "Come on, Phil; let's go over and look at the soldiers—it's that bunch of Yaquis we saw up at Agua Negra."

They tied their horses to the rack and, leaving the solicitous Don Juan to sputter, hurried over to the yard. From the heavy metal ore cars, each a rolling fortress in itself, the last of the active Yaquis were helping out their women and pet dogs, while the rest, talking and laughing in high spirits, were strung out along the track in a perfunctory line.

If the few officers in command had ever attempted to teach them military discipline, the result was not apparent in the line they formed; but any man who looked at their swarthy faces, the hawklike profiles, and deep-set, steady eyes, would know that they were fighters.

After all, a straight line on parade has very little to do with actual warfare and these men had proved their worth under fire.

To be sure, it was the fire of Mexican guns, and perhaps that was why the officers were so quiet and unassertive; for every one of these big, upstanding Indians had been captured in the Yaqui wars and deported to the henequen fields of Yucatan to die in the miasma and heat.

But they had come from a hardy breed and the whirligig of fortune was flying fast—Madero defeated Porfirio Diaz; fresh revolutions broke out against the victor and, looking about in desperation for soldiers to fill his ranks, Madero fell upon the Yaquis.

Trained warriors for generations, of a race so fierce that the ancient Aztecs had been turned aside by them in their empire-founding migration, they were the very men to whip back the rebels, if he could but win them to his side.

So Madero had approached Cinco Bull, whom Diaz had taken under a flag of truce, and upon the agreement was made, in return for faithful service, Marico would give back to the Indians the one thing they had been fighting a hundred and sixty years to retain, their land along the Rio Yaqui, and that they should be permitted to live in peace as their ancestors had done before them.

And now, with a thousand or more of his men, the crafty old war chief had taken service in the federal army, though his mind, schooled perhaps by

Plan Home Classes in Practical Agriculture

WASHINGTON.—A plan whereby ten or more farmers or farm women can form home classes in agriculture or domestic science and receive the textbooks, lectures, lantern slides, laboratory and cooking equipment necessary to conduct them has been devised by the United States department of agriculture in co-operation with agricultural colleges of certain states.

The object of the plan is to make accessible at home, to men and women who have not the time or means to attend the regular courses at the colleges, practical short courses in agriculture and home management specially adapted to their districts. These courses, which will consist of 15 to 20 lectures, and will consume five or more weeks, can be arranged to suit the spare time and convenience of each group of people.

The courses to be offered at first are poultry raising, fruit growing, soils, cheese manufacturing, dairying, butter making, and farm bookkeeping; and for the women especially, courses in the preparation, cooking and use of vegetable and cereal foods. The department will supply lectures and lantern slides covering these subjects, and the states which have agreed to co-operate in the plan will lend to each group laboratory and cooking apparatus valued at $100 and a reference library. The textbooks and lectures will be made so complete that each group can safely appoint one of its members as study leader to direct the work of the course.

When a group has decided to take up the work, the state which co-operates sends an agent with the department's representative to organize a couple class and assist the leader whom they elect in laying out the work and in showing him the best methods of procedure. The classes commonly are held from eight to twelve in the morning and from one to four in the afternoon, two or three days each week. The sessions are not held every day, so that the members will have time to attend to their farm duties in between the sessions, as well as before and after the instruction period. The classes meet commonly at the most convenient farmhouse. During the morning hours, textbook work is done. In the afternoon laboratory work is conducted, and the women who have elected to take the domestic science courses have practical lessons in cooking.

Trapped While at Work Under a Banquet Table

THE story is just getting around about a dinner given in exclusive Washington society, at which the most tactful person was undoubtedly a plumber in overalls. It was an elaborate dinner. The central feature of the table decoration was a playing fountain.

But just before the dinner was to be served the fountain refused to play.

A plumber was hastily called. He crawled under the table and soon had the fountain sending a delicate spray into the air. He was busy tightening the couplings of the temporary pipes under the table when the head butler, his mind relieved of a load of care when he saw the fountain playing, announced in the drawing room:

"Dinner is served."

Before the plumber knew what was happening the guests had entered the dining room, chairs were drawn up, and he suddenly found himself hemmed in by a wall in which trousers alternated with skirts.

It was a big round table, so he was safe from discovery from any shifting foot. He scratched his head and wondered what he should do. He looked carefully around. Neither to the right nor to the left nor between any pair of feet was there sufficient space for him to wiggle through. The only way to get out would be to tap on some knee and—"Pardon me, please."

He didn't know much about the etiquette of formal dinner parties, but he had a hunch that that wouldn't make a hit. He decided that there was just one thing to do—stay where he was until the trouser-and-skirt wall departed. So there he sat.

When the dinner was at last over and the guests had returned to the drawing room the plumber crawled forth.

The hostess had tarried for a moment to give a few directions to the head butler. She gasped with astonishment.

The plumber explained.

"Sir," said she, "you are a gentleman." Then to the head butler: "James, give this man $10 for himself." Then to the plumber: "And please say nothing."

No National Holidays in the United States

YOU might suppose that July 4 is a national holiday, but it isn't. Worse than that, there isn't such a thing as a national holiday in the whole United States. A patriotic young woman in Brookland spent a quarter in phone calls just to find out. She is a young woman who likes to know things, and when some iconoclast cast a doubt as to the nationality of the day we celebrate, she called up a Washington newspaper and got this answer:

"There is no national holiday in the United States."

On the principle that you can't believe everything a paper says, she phoned to the head of an educational institution, and was told by an authority, who asked not to be quoted, that to the best of his impression there were no holidays, etc.

In this conflict of opinions, and not being able to get the state department or the attorney general's office—both closed July 4—the young woman rang up President Wilson.

She was told that the White House did not know, but that as soon as the information could be obtained she would be called up, which was done within the hour. And that settled it.

"We have no national holidays in the United States."

"Prophet Without Honor in His Own Country"

THAT "a prophet is without honor in his own country" was very clearly shown the other day at Marshall hall. The day was an ideal one, and a Washington woman, taking advantage of that fact, put some lunch in a basket, took her daughter, annexed two other children and went down the river to let the tots enjoy the fun of pink lemonade and peanuts.

Presently the children got tired wandering around, peeping at the tomb of the ancient Marshalls, and went to the pony track, where a dozen barefoot colored boys were in charge of the nags. The oldest of them, Virgil, was a round-headed boy with a face as brown as a nut and a mouth that looked like a slit for a watermelon. His main interest in life was [illegible] clothing and learning were regarded [illegible]

The Washington woman stood looking [illegible] as the opposite shore showed the white [illegible]

HUBBY GOT THE GOODS, BUT—

It Was the First Flash of the Green-eyed Monster, and He Says "Never Again!"

"Never again," was the conclusion of a story told by a young bridegroom of the month, after he related his efforts to please his bride by fulfilling her every wish.

Sitting in his office a few days after the wedding he received a telephone call which was something like this: "Dearie, I do so hate to trouble you, but I have run out of lace for that dress I was making, and I can't finish it until I have another yard. Can't you stop at the store and get some as you come home—Oh, I can tell you what it is like—just four leaves, then a sprig, then four leaves, then a sprig, and so on—it's just two threads over an inch wide."

He hung up the receiver and mopped his brow. He walked by the store twice, finally entered and approached the lace counter. She was pretty, but he had been married only a week and was busy repeating in his mind: "Four leaves, then a sprig."

"Well, after looking at 500 samples of lace, I got it, but—"—Indianapolis News.

No Airs About Her.

"Airs!" exclaimed the proud mother, and shook her head vigorously. "My Elsie, for all her learning, hasn't any more airs, so to speak, than her poor old dad."

"Then she won't turn up her nose at her old friends?" queried the visitor.

"La, no!"

"How refreshing! Most girls who go through college nowadays will hardly look at you after they're graduated."

"Well, they ain't like my Elsie, that's all I can say," retorted Elsie's ma. "She's become a carnivorous reader, of course, and she frequently importunes music. But stuck up—my Elsie? Not a bit. She's unanimous to everybody has a most infantile vocabulary, and what's more, never keeps a caller waiting while she dresses up. No, she just runs down, nom de plume, as she is."

Very Effective.

At an English provincial theater not long since the curtain rose on an empty stage in the second act of a play, and by and by a meek-looking young man with a dust-coat slung over his arm came on and loudly called, "Uncle—uncle!"

According to the book of the play he should have received no answer to his call, and after an appropriate pause should have gone on with a monologue. But a graceless "god" in the gallery took upon himself to answer the actor.

"All right, I'm coming in a moment. How much do you want on it?" he shouted.

The effect on the audience may be imagined.

Hot in the Superlative.

A preacher was describing the bad place to a congregation of shellbacks.

"Shipmates," he said, "you've seen the molten iron come running out of the furnace, sizzling and hissing, like some kind of snaky, horrible monster. Well, shipmates—"

The preacher pointed his forefinger at the awed shellbacks.

"Well, shipmates," he said, solemnly, "they use that stuff for ice cream in hell."

REVELATION WAS TOO MUCH

Picture of "Hollering Jones" at Favorite Diversion Caused Him to Reform.

A well-known illustrator, who makes interesting western pictures, once made the acquaintance of a noisy but good-natured cowboy who rejoiced in the appellation of "Hollering Jones."

In physical appearance this man was typical of his kind, and the artist made several studies of him, both in repose and in his favorite diversion of "hollering." Some of the studies were sold by the artist to an eastern magazine. They showed Jones in his most violent state.

A year later the artist again visited the region. He was soon approached by Mr. Jones himself, bearing one of the pictures, which he had torn from the magazine in which its was printed. Pointing to it, he asked:

"Is that me?"

"Well," replied the artist, evasively, "I got the general idea from you, of course, but—"

"Oh, I ain't takin' no offense," Jones made haste to say. "It's all right; only if it's me, say so."

"If you put it to me that way," said the artist, "I can only reply that it is a fairly good portrait of you."

"The men here on the ranch agree with you. So I look like that when I holler, do I?"

"I think you do."

"In that case," said Hollering Jones, "all I've got to say is that Hollering Jones has hollered his last holler. Hereafter, when I celebrates, I does so with a tin horn. In my own opinion, no man has a right to look like that—not round white folks, anyhow."—Youth's Companion.

Rather Effeminate.

Congressman Peter J. Dooling of New York smiled the other evening when reference at a dinner was made to effeminate ways. He said he was reminded of the explanation of Smith.

Some time ago the Smiths attended a reception where they met a man named Brown. On the way home, while exchanging opinions of the guests, Brown was mentioned.

"Speaking of that man Brown," vigorously remarked Smith, "he certainly has an effeminate way of talking."

"Why, John," was the wondering rejoinder of Mrs. Smith, "how can you say that? He certainly has a very loud and masculine voice!"

"Yes, I know he has," explained Smith, "but what I mean is that he talks all the time."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Heartless.

Absorbed in her own sweet thoughts Miranda meandered through the meadow, coyly aware that in the distance her lover awaited her coming.

The sun just popped off this earth as Miranda was clasped in her lover's fondow embrace.

"It has been the longest day in the year," he whispered ardently as he held her still closer.

How perfectly sweet of him, thought Miranda, as she closed her eyes in an ecstasy of happiness.

"Sweetheart," she breathed, raising her face to his, "why has it been so long?"

"Because—because," he answered lamely—"well, because, my dear girl, it's the twenty-first of June."

Perfectly Natural.

As Herbert Gory tells it, he went to a dinner once where Andrew Carnegie was a guest.

"After the eating was over and the speechmaking had started," said Corey, "Mr. Carnegie reached in his pocket for something and pulled out a handful of small change. A dime got away from him and fell on the floor, and at the first chance Mr. Carnegie got down under the table and looked for it."

"Did he find it?" asked one of the audience to whom Corey was narrating the incident.

"Did he find it?" echoed Corey. "He found 15 cents!"—Saturday Evening Post.

Some Weather.

College boys who put money in their purses by toil in Kansas wheat fields will not be discouraged by this story: "I think I smell burning meat," said the farmer, as he paused for a moment in the harvest field to mop his brow. "You do," said the raw harvest hand, wearily, as he stooped to get a couple more sheaves of golden grain. "The burning meat you smell is my liver frying. It is overdone." And with that the young fellow spat on a grasshopper and scalded it to death.—Atlanta Constitution.

Found Task a Hard One.

Whether a boy's ears belong to his face or his neck has always been a matter of washing convenience to the boy. One of two boys on a street car evidently had been told to wash his face, for his companion remarked: "You're all dirty back of your ears."

"Aw, I ain't either," remonstrated the accused.

"Well, you don't have to believe me," said the other; "you just look and see."

"Can the contortions," growled the conductor; and the boys became as quiet as boys can be."

Fortune Hunter.

"So Jack's married. Did he marry for beauty?"

"No, booty."

Many a man has taken a hand in politics and then put his foot in it.

Every new invention is expected to revolutionize things—but does it?

We had answers prepared to the questions propounded to us by last week's Union-Banner, but on account of time and space were unable to publish them. But next week, boys, we will be there with the goods.

It's nearly always the case that the greatest howlers are those whose taxes are the lowest. We have some men in this county who, if their taxes were commensurate with their amount of howling, it would break old Rockefeller to pay them.

Yes, the Union-Banner told its readers of the harmony that existed at the mass meeting held at Clanton on August 1st, but its dollars to doughnuts our contemporary will be as silent as the proverbial clam when it comes to letting them know of the "harmony" that characterized the recent State affair in Birmingham.

The Voters Indifference.

The Progressives of New York, who have more enthusiasm to the vote than any political party in the United States, were woefully disappointed over the scattering vote polled in their unofficial primary to select delegates to an unofficial State convention. "The vote," they say, "was amazingly small "The Progressives, in short, found that they had deceived themselves into believing that the people were all wrought up over "issues," perpetrated by their leaders. It is not uncommon for leaders, who have fanned themselves into a flame of enthusiasm over a political campaign, to be amazed at the indifference shown by the voters.—Montgomery Advertiser.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank, through the Press, our good neighbors and friends and relatives for their kindness and sympathy during the sickness and death of our two little children, Jettie and Edison, and our faithful physician, Dr. Sam Johnson.

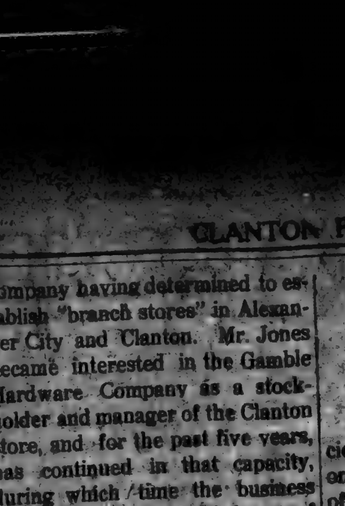
J. R. ROBINSON AND WIFE.

Jumps On Rusty Sidewalk Nail.

While working on a well diging machine a Minnesota man jumped upon a rusty sidewalk spike. The nail drove part of his black woolen sock far up into the foot. He removed as much of the sock as he could, put on Allen's Ulcerine Salve, and kept right on with his work. The salve drew out parts of the sock and all other poisons, and in a week his foot healed up.

This salve is one of the oldest remedies in America and since 1899 it has been known as the only salve powerful enough to cure chronic ulcers and old sores of long standing.

Allan's Ulcerine Salve acts by drawing out the poisons and healing the sore from the bottom up. It is so powerful that it heals new cuts, and sores in one third the time that common salves and liniments take. And it heals harder and smaller without a scar. Sold by Peckinpaugh Drug Co. and other leading druggists. Price 25 cents.



NEW HARDWARE FIRM

CLANTON HARDWARE COMPANY BECOMES PURCHASER OF LOCAL STORE OF GAMBLE HARDWARE COMPANY.

The Clanton Hardware Company, incorporated to do a general hardware business in the town of Clanton, filed its incorporation papers in the Probate office on August 5th. The new company has a paid up capital of $20,000.00 and the incorporators are C. F. Jones, J. D. Martin and L. A. Collins, and these three gentlemen compose the Board of Directors of the company

Mr. C. F. Jones is the President of the new company, and is the pioneer hardware man of Clanton. About twelve years ago he came to Clanton from Goodwater, Ala., and with Mr. W. D. Spigener formed a partnership and opened the first hardware store to be located in Clanton. The business was conducted under the firm name of Spigener & Jones and prospered for some six or seven years, when the firm sold its store and business to the Gamble Hardware Company of Wetumpka, that company having determined to establish "branch stores" in Alexander City and Clanton. Mr. Jones became interested in the Gamble Hardware Company as a stockholder and manager of the Clanton store, and for the past five years, has continued in that capacity, during which time the business has grown until today it is one of the largest and most complete stores in central Alabama. The new corporation (The Clanton Hardware Co.) has purchased this store and will continue the business at the same place, but it is understood will enlarge the business and make some improvements.

Mr. L. A. Collins, who is Vice-President of the new firm, comes to Clanton from Wetumpka, where he has been sales manager of the Wetumpka store of the Gamble Hardware Company for a number of years. Mr. Collins, who is the only member of the new firm who happens to be married, is bringing his family to Clanton and for the present will occupy a residence in the Gowan addition.

Mr. J. D. Martin, Secretary & Treasurer of the Clanton Hardware Co., is Secretary of the Gamble Hardware Co., and Secretary & Treasurer of the Alabama Retail Hardware Association. He has lived at Wetumpka for a number of years, having been born and reared in Elmore county.

The Press joins the people of Clanton in extending a welcome to the new company, and to these gentlemen who are coming to live among us and have part in the business affairs of the town and county.

METHODIST LADIES ENTERTAIN

The Methodist Ladies Aid Society entertained at the Parsonage on Monday evening last in honor of their husbands.

There was a lavish supper spread, consisting of the very edibles the men love best, which every one present enjoyed. In fact, you would have thought the "old folk" were transformed into "young folk" could you have heard the merry voices and the gay laughter. The only trouble the men had was to find a place to hide the chicken bones. The only trouble the ladies had was the fear of being sick on tomorrow. This was a supper alright—and no PAY supper. The only ones who missed having a good jolly time were those who did not come.

The semi-annual election of officers for the Society were as follows: Mrs. Sam Johnson, President; Mrs. J. H. Middleton, Vice-President; Mrs. E. A. Matthews, Secretary; Mrs. W. W. Fox, Treasurer.

Those present were: Rev. L. H. S. Chappelle and wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Fox, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Middleton, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Callen, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Broadhead, Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Matthews, Dr. and Mrs. Sam Johnson, Mr. and Mrs Frank Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Roper, Mr. and Mrs. E. Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. H. Headley, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Gore, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Longcrier, Mr. P. D. Wilson.

The next regular monthly business meeting will be held with Mrs. Jennie Davis, on the second Monday in September.

Registration Notice.

In accordance with the provisions of Section 6 of an Act "To further regulate elections in the State of Alabama," approved October 6th, 1903, as amended, the Board of Registrars of Chilton county will meet at Clanton, Alabama, on the following appointments for the purpose of striking the registration list:

August 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 1904.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. A SCHOOL OF CHARACTER

THE COLLEGE.

1. The EDUCATIONAL STANDARDS meet the college requirements of the National Association of State Universities, of the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges, and of the Alabama Association of Colleges of which this institution is a member. The curriculum is high and varied, and the instruction is careful, personal and thorough.

2. The IDEAL of the institution is the development of CHRISTIAN CHARACTER. It believes the studies are more important than athletics, and that a right conception is more important than all. And this belief determines its whole attitude and policy.

3. The COST per year is very low. Tuition, food and board amount to only $120 for the full nine months session.—$110 for the sons of ministers and missionaries.

MORE THAN 1,000 APPLY FOR PENSION

MANY APPLICANTS HEARD BY STATE PENSION BOARD AT ANNUAL MEETING.

STATE CAPITAL HAPPENINGS

Doings In and Around the State House Chronicled for Our Readers.

—Montgomery.

More than 1,000 applications for pensions were considered by the state pension board at its annual meeting. These applications have been filed in all the counties of the State and were reviewed by the State board for final action.

No cases involving the removal of names from the pension rolls were heard at the annual meeting of the board. The purging of the rolls of the names of illegal pensioners will be continued by the board at a special session which will be held in September. More than 1,200 persons have been cited to appear before the board at the September session so show cause why their names should not be dropped from the rolls.

Members of the State pension board are Capt. John C. Wood, Demopolis, chairman; Dr. M. L. Wood of Montgomery, and Gen. Fred S. Ferguson of Birmingham. W. B. Moore of the State auditor's office, is secretary of the board. General Ferguson has served for almost a year as special master for the board in the work of purging the rolls of the names of illegal pensioners.

Special Session Still Considered.

No decision as to whether or not he will call the Alabama legislature together in extraordinary session has been made by Governor O'Neal. The governor has been urged by citizens in many parts of the State to assemble the legislature and has also been urged not to call that body together by other leading citizens.

If the legislature is called together, it will be the new legislature, the members of which will be elected in November. It is not believed that the present legislature will be called together by the governor should he decide that an extra session is necessary.

It is pointed out by those desiring an extra session that much good can be done by such a session in the matter of providing relief to Jefferson county from the burdens of the fee system and the passage of laws which will bring about a reformation in the judiciary system of the State.

It is known that Governor O'Neal will insist on certain changes in the present judicial system in case an extra session is called.

Much legislation of a preliminary nature would be discussed at the extra session so that it can be whipped into shape for the regular session next January.

During the last few weeks many members of the new legislature have called on the governor and discussed with him the probable business that will be taken up should a session of the new legislature be called.

Quite a number of the members of the present legislature have also called on the governor recently, among whom was E. B. Almon, speaker. Judge Almon talked with the governor this week, but no announcement of the subject under discussion was made.

Must Serve Sentence.

Robert L. Sears of Montgomery county must serve a three-year term in the penitentiary for shooting Bud Smith, a negro, last fall, according to action taken by Governor O'Neal in refusing to grant a temporary parole to the convicted man. Last week the governor declined to grant a parole to Sears and he announced that he had finally decided that he will not interfere with the sentence imposed by the Montgomery city court. A delegation in Sears' behalf appeared before the governor.

Court of Appeals Great Aid.

During the three years of its existence the state court of appeals has rendered final decisions in 1,728 cases, an average of 576 cases for each of the three judges, and has transacted other business which would have been a severe burden upon the supreme court had it been necessary for the supreme court to handle this business, according to a statement issued by Col. Alexander Troy, clerk of the court of appeals. At present the court of appeals has almost caught up with its work.

Girard Excise Commission Named.

The governor has appointed Dr. W. C. Prather, chairman and C. T. Stillwell associate member of the Girard excise commission. The appointment of the two commissioners was made after several interviews and conference with delegations from Girard, and those named for the offices are declared to be acceptable to all classes of citizens of that city.

The governor several weeks ago appointed John Adams chairman of the commission, but in view of covers protest against his appointment, the governor withdrew his name.

In making the appointments the governor gave out the following statement:

"After repeated interviews and conferences with delegations of the city of Girard, it was the consensus of opinion that the following gentlemen would be competent and acceptable to all classes of people of that city, and hence I have accordingly appointed Dr. W. C. Prather, chairman, and C. T. Stillwell, associate member of the Girard excise commission.

"No charges were made reflecting upon the integrity or character of the present commissioners, but some friction was developed on account of the fact that these gentlemen had large business interests. It has been my policy, on that account, always to avoid appointing those who were engaged in the real estate or banking business as excise commissioners."

Revision of Rates Petitioned.

Petitions requesting a revision on class rates I. L. M. and N. between Mobile and all points on the Louisville and Nashville were filed before the State railroad commission by that railroad. The claim is made that the rates on these classes now in force are discriminatory as against Birmingham, Montgomery, Selma and other points. The discrimination is said to be in favor of Mobile. The proposed revision will eliminate the discriminations according to the railroad attorneys.

The petitions ask for both advances and reductions in rates. This is an important case and will be heard by the commission in September. The petition refers only to car load lots.

Classes I. L. M. and N. include car load lots of wagons, barytes, sash, doors and blinds, brick, metal, charcoal, clay earthen cups, cotton seed meal, handles, ice, bridge materials, links and pins, cast iron and material, lumber, lathes, graders' outfits, earthern pipes, pitch, cement, salt, shingles, sand, cotton, stone and tar.

Would Advance Coal Rates.

Permission to advance rates on coal from the Birmingham mines to the Gadsden-Anniston-Talladega district is sought by the Louisville and Nashville railroad in a petition filed before the state railroad commission. The railroad desires to advance the rate on coal from 50 to 60 cents per ton and on coal used by certain manufacturing companies from 50 to 70 cents per ton. These manufacturing companies are located at Gadsden, Alabama City, Attalla, Anniston, Talladega and Sylacauga.

This is one of the most important cases the state railroad commission has ever been called upon to settle. The advance of 10 cents a ton on coal to the Birmingham group on account of the vast coal consumption at those points is a momentous question and the advance on coal for the manufacturing companies or 20 cents a ton is necessarily of utmost importance to those manufacturing cities.

September 11 has been set as the date for the hearing. It is probable that the cities affected by the rates will send delegations to appear before the commission.

Parole is Denied.

Because the trial judge refused to recommend clemency, Governor O'Neal declined to issue a parole to Burrell Grubbs, of Geneva county, who was sentenced to 20 years on a charge of second degree murder. It was claimed by Burrell's attorneys that the killing for which Grubbs was convicted was done by some one else.

Governor O'Neal took up the matter with the trial judge, and in a letter to the govenor the judge declined to recommend the extension of clemency. Several affidavits to the effect that Grubbs was innocent were presented to the governor and he referred them to the trial judge who refused to consider them.

Negroes Will Get Their Share.

Booker T. Washington, president of the Tuskegee Institute, called on governor O'Neal and discussed the distribution of funds in Alabama which will be made under the provisions of the Smith-Lever bill recently passed by Congress. Governor O'Neal told Washington that the fund for this state will be administered by Dr. C. H. Thiele, president of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, and that the negroes will be given their full share under the law.

GERMAN AIRSHIPS SAID TO BE MAIN THING RELIED ON

Assertion Made That Nation Will Surprise the World in This Direction.

CAPITALS AT HER MERCY?

Dirigibles, Which Form the Fighting Air Fleet of the Kaiser, Said to Be the Deadliest Weapon of War That Was Been Devised.

(From the Chicago Tribune.)

This article is written by a man in the secret service of a great world power. Under the guise of a professional aviator he has flown over every capital in Europe, making photographs with a secret camera attached to his machine for the war ministry archives of his government. As a designer and operator of aeroplanes he is known the world over. His article, therefore, deals particularly with the air equipment of the various European nations for war.

Whatever the final outcome of the war, this is certain:

Germany is going to surprise the world by her mastery of the air.

For Germany and not France ranks first in war aviation. The ponderous dirigible, not the fleet aeroplane, is the most destructive machine that soars.

Ready to Attack London.

Germany stands ready to assail Paris, Warsaw, and even London by an attack from the air, and the odds are against the defenders.

While Frenchmen have been capturing the prizes in aerial contests, Germany has been far from idle. After experiments with every kind of engine that soars the air she has abandoned the newer, heavier than air creations for the dirigible of ancient origin. This she has made the deadliest machine that flies.

I have worked as an itinerant mechanic on the military air craft of every nation of Europe.

Germany and France represent two distinct and different types in air fighting. France stakes her all on the aeroplane. The Gnome motor is her foundation. Germans cannot duplicate it. The Russian air corps are a mere shadow of the French system. Austria patterns her work air corps after Germany. England's system is a composite between the two without the perfections of either.

The dirigible is a floating machine—a dreadnought of the air. And the aeroplane is a scout cruiser, and like the other

Why Dirigibles Surpass.

More in detail, he says that the dirigible is the only practical machine of ordnance and cannot drop bombs with any accuracy.

It can be heard and located by sound a mile distant, while a dirigible painted sky color with motors and lights shut off can neither be heard nor seen at night at a distance of 700 feet.

Plans for Attack Made.

In the war archives of Germany are complete plans for aerial attacks on both Paris and London. Details for such attacks have been figured out with Metz as the base. For an attack on London they calculate upon leaving Metz as darkness falls, crossing the channel at a height of 8,000 feet. Under ordinary circumstances London would be gained before midnight. Then the bag would be dropped to 3,000 feet and the work of destruction begun. Its nitroglycerine cartridges could render London helpless in a few hours. Furthermore, the English capital is inadequately protected with searchlights with which to detect a night attack.

Any of the nine non-rigid dirigibles in the British service would be unable to cope with one rigid Zeppelin.

Attacks on Paris have been outlined from the same base—Metz. Paris is better protected by sky searchlights than London.

France has 23 dirigibles, but all of the non-rigid type, which cannot be compared with the giant Zeppelins, of which Germany has 16, with as many more dependable dirigibles of other types.

On the Russian frontier Germany will find but trifling resistance to her air fleets.

Germany virtually is impregnable to an air invasion. At Metz, Leipsig, Cologne, Baden Baden, Hanover, Frankfort and Johannisburg she has the most powerful searchlights in the world.

WILD RUSH TO GET HOME

Americans in London Willing to Accept Any Kind of Accommodation.

Offered Them.

London.—There were more Americans in the west end of London during the days following the declaration of war than Englishmen. They were chiefly crowded about the offices of the American Express company and of the steamship lines trying to get checks cashed and secure passage home.

The express companies were able to afford much relief to those in financial straits and the steamship companies booked hundreds of passages, although no guarantee could be given that British steamers would sail until their safety was assured by the navy.

The greatest demand, therefore, was for berths on American liners. Perhaps the most eagerly buying crowd were those which had been occupied by cabinet visitors to the coronation. Those who were getting their money from the offices of the American Express company were also [illegible]

WIFE OF NATION'S RULER IS DEAD

FIRST LADY OF LAND PASSES AWAY AFTER A BRAVE STRUGGLE.

PRESIDENT IS HEARTBROKEN

Desire in Last Hours Was for Benefit of the Poor and Uplift of the People.

Washington. — Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the President of the United States, died at the White House at 5 o'clock p. m., August 6. Death came after a brave struggle of months against Bright's disease with complications.

The president was completely unnerved by the shock and his grief was heart-rending. He bore up well under the strain, however, and devoted himself to his daughters.

The end came while Mrs. Wilson was unconscious.

Kneeling at the bedside at the end

MRS. WOODROW WILSON

Whose Death in Washington Has Plunged a Nation Into Grief.

were the president and their three daughters. Dr. Cary T. Grayson, U. S. N., and a nurse were in the room, and just outside the door were Secretary McAdoo and Francis B. Sayre, Mr. Wilson's sons-in-law, and Mr. Tumulty, his secretary.

Vice President Marshall and members of the cabinet and the leaders in Congress were notified. Both houses promptly adjourned, the flag on the White House dropped, gates were closed and the silence of death spread over the White House for the first time since 1892, when Mrs. Benjamin Harrison passed away.

Mrs. Wilson had told the President early in the day she would more cheerfully "go away" if the bill for the improvement of Washington alleys were passed by Congress. A word to leaders from Secretary Tumulty and the measure was adopted in silence by the Senate and soon reported in the House, where it will be passed tomorrow. Mrs. Wilson learned the measure would be a law in another day or so and expressed her satisfaction. She had become deeply interested in the social welfare of the community and had worked always without seeking aid of the president. It was the strain of this, the duties of entertainment and kidney trouble which became chronic last autumn that sapped her life.

Mrs. Wilson took an active interest in the career of her husband. She had been his constant helpmate and adviser.

Funeral services for Mrs. Woodrow Wilson were held August 10 at the White House in the historic east room, where a few months ago she witnessed the marriage of her daughter, Jessie, to Francis B. Sayre. Burial was held in Myrtle Hill cemetery, Rome, Ga., where Mrs. Wilson spent many of her girlhood days and where her mother

ABLE TO HANDLE SITUATION

Bankers Cheerful Despite Fact That War Crisis Is Upon Financial Institutions.

Montgomery. — Alabama banks are in sound condition and Alabama bankers are optimistic and confident that they can handle the financial situation in this State with a firm grasp in case of unfavorable conditions that may arise from an European war, according to Alex E. Walker, superintendent of the State banking department, who returned from Birmingham, where he held a conference with bankers from all parts of the State.

Mr. Walker declared that he talked with many of the leading bankers of Alabama and that they are unusually optimistic over conditions, despite the fact that the war crisis is upon the financial institutions of the world.

"I found that the bankers, with the help that they will receive from the government and other sources, will be able to handle the situation in Alabama. I discovered that the large banks have no disposition to push the smaller banks and that in this case the smaller banks can attend exactly the same time to the farmers as heretofore," said Mr. Walker.

"There is no reason to believe that there will be any bad effects from the financial situation providing that the present sound status be continued. In Birmingham I talked with bankers from all parts of the State and have received letters from bankers from all parts of Alabama and the outlook is nothing but optimistic," said Mr. Walker.

One bank in Birmingham has received $1,200,000 that can be used while several other banks in that city have been assured that they can get any reasonable amounts that they may desire.

PROGRESSIVES HOLD MEETING.

Dr. E. H. Cross Nominated for Governor by Progressives.

Birmingham. — Prohibition and woman's suffrage were made the leading planks in the platform adopted by the Progressive State convention held here. The convention was replete with interesting features, and the fight of the prohibition plank was intense and after a most exciting fight the prohibitionists won their point by a vote of 35 to 27.

A resolution was adopted placing the convention on record as being opposed to fusion or amalgamation with any other political party.

Joseph O. Thompson, Judge L. H. Reynolds, Judge A. P. Longshore and Col. W. T. McElroy, of Walker, led the fight for the drys, while the fight against prohibition was championed by Julius W. Davidson, Judge Oscar R. Hundley and M. W. Howard.

With the exception of candidates for the judiciary a complete state ticket was nominated headed by Dr. E. H. Cross, of Gadsden, for governor, and Judge A. E. Longshore of Shelby, for the United States Senate.

The other nominees of the convention follows:

For Congressman at large — G. A. Saylor of St. Clair.

For Lieutenant Governor—C. E. Forman of Etowah.

For Attorney General—Duncan Trimble, of Jefferson.

For Secretary of State—T. T. Nock of Jefferson.

For Auditor — J. W. Cochran of Madison.

For Treasurer—J. F. Sutterer of Cullman.

For Commissioner of Agriculture — Sid Berry, of Mobile.

For Railroad Commissioner—H. H. Bolton of Mobile.

For Railroad Commissioner—John M. Green of Baldwin.

Woman Deserved Sharp Retort.

A white Pomeranian escaped from the arms of its mistress in Surf avenue, Coney island, the other night and ran in front of an automobile. A newsboy darted after the dog, caught it, and then fell in a mud puddle. He lost a dozen or so of papers but held on to the dog, which he returned to its owner slightly soiled.

"You impudent little scamp!" said the woman. "What made you get the dear little dog so dirty. You ought to be whipped."

"I am mighty glad I didn't save your life," replied the boy, and a score of onlookers applauded him.

Very Striking, Indeed.

Representative Wagner, at a picnic in a charming glen on the outskirts of Waco, advised a group of young ladies to avoid the international marriage.

"You've heard, no doubt," he said, with a smile, "of Lotta Golde.

"Lotta was running down international marriages.

"'They're all alike,' she said. 'I have had three husbands. The first, Lord Laciand, slapped me. The second, Comte L'Oignon, slashed me with a dog-whip. Prince Spaghetti, the third, hit me on the head with his fist. This proves that between all international marriages there exists a striking, a very striking, resemblance.'"

What You Make Us

We—the L. & N.—are what you—the people—make us.

True, you are not responsible for our errors of judgments and our clerical mistakes—

But you influence them.

You—the people—in proportion that you are greater than the L. & N., exert an influence over us that is beneficial or detrimental to both of us in proportion to our relative importance.

You have it in your power to make or break the L. & N., just as you have it in your power to make or break a bank in your community.

And while the bank might have to close its doors, liquidate and go out of business, some of you—the people—would suffer.

On the contrary, mutual trust and co-operation can make of us a strong, a powerful influence for good in the community.

And in proportion that you are greater than the L. & N, you will be benefited.

Every grade on the road should be reduced, every curve should be straightened, every tie kept sound, every rail made secure, in order that you, the people, will get the best transportation possible to be had.

Depots should be cool in summer and warm in winter—clean at all times; coaches should be well lighted at night, clean and well ventilated at all times. Engines should be powerful, fast and safe. Employees should be considerate and polite.

These are things for which we are constantly striving, and you—the people—can help us, and by helping us help yourselves.

Remember, in spite of our rules and discipline we have among our employees, just as there are among you, the even-tempered and the irascible, the happy natured and the grouch. They must come into contact with men, women and children; the old and the newly-born; the white and black; the halt, the lame and the blind, the decrepit, the exuberant, the drunk, the sober, the well-behaved, and the tough.

Remember, in the transportation of freight we handle millions of consignments; the carload lot and the small package; the shipments from Bombay and Birmingham; the freight from Mandalay and Montgomery.

We need your help in our effort to render satisfactory service to all sorts and conditions of human beings in our freight and passenger departments.

CATALOGS NOW IN CIRCULATION

Thorsby, Ala., Aug. 10, 1914.

Dear Editor:

Allow me to take this opportunity of announcing that our catalogs are now in circulation. We shall be glad to send some to any one interested in our work. Instead of there being a probability that we would not open at all, we will be doing business at the same old stand, with a far better outlook than that of last year. We invite the correspondence of all, especially those who are interested in Baptist high school training.

As the papers have had more or less to say about typhoid fever here, allow us to say that the cases have all been light. There have been no deaths, and no new cases in some time. All are now convalescent. The town has had a general clean-up, so no one need have any fear about taking up his abode in our town.

Respectfully,

PROGRESSIVES ARE SOLD INTO BONDAGE BY COL. ROOSEVELT

Congressional Committee Disgusted With His New York Departure.

BELIEVES HE'S AFTER G. O. P. NOMINATION

Washington, Aug. 16.

Whether Theodore Roosevelt retains sufficient power in the Progressive party to lead it back to the Republican camp, or whether the Progressives now are strong enough to stand without him, or even to fight him, was a question considered very seriously today by Progressive members of the House. These 20 members form the Progressive Congressional Committee.

The opinion of these men was almost unanimous that without Roosevelt the Progressive party would disintegrate nationally, but would retain its individuality and power in a number of states. As long as Penrose remains in power in the Republican party in Pennsylvania, said men from that State, the Progressive party will live and will increase in strength. At a recent Progressive convention in West Virginia, said Representative M. Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania, the 1200 delegates had decided unanimously to continue as a third party and not to follow the course adopted by Roosevelt in New York, when he is backing Harvey D. Hinman, a Republican, for Governor.

In Illinois and Kansas and in some other western states, it was said, the Progressive party would survive Roosevelt's "defection" and would nominate its own ticket in all campaigns.

ROOSEVELT IS "WISE"

Even more significant, however, was the Progressive view of the presidential election in 1916. The Progressives in Washington believe that Roosevelt is looking for the Republican nomination, and already they are discussing a possible Progressive candidate, with their choice running strongly toward Senator Robert M. LaFollette, of Wisconsin. At the same time, the Proeressives here are cautious and object to mention of their names, lest Roosevelt should spring some new surprises and crack the whip over their heads.

But in conversation among themselves they go still further and assert that from the viewpoint of principle, LaFollette would have made a far better Progressive candidate in 1912 than Roosevelt, although they admit he could not have attracted the same number of votes. As a former President, they argue, Roosevelt already had a substantial following, and also he is a master campaigner, but the Progressives in Congress do not regard him as imbued with the same conviction and sincerity as LaFollette.

To put it boldly, the Progressives here are disgusted with Roosevelt and most of them are hostile to him. Nor do they know at what moment he may turn against some, or all of them, and back Republicans in their districts on the same ground that he has taken in the New York gubernatorial campaign. He is playing with both ends against the middle in New York, as they see it, and they feel he would not hesitate to throw them down if he thought he thereby could make a deal to his own advantage.

THINK HE BLUNDERS.

Nor do they look on Roosevelt's move in New York as good politics, especially since Hinman has come out in avowed opposition to the referendum and recall and in implied opposition to woman suffrage. These principles the Progressive Congressmen regard as fundamentals in the Progressive platform, and they "cannot see" how Roosevelt logically can support a candidate who positively repudiates them. This course, they figure, will alienate all true and sincere Progressives and still will not attract to Roosevelt or his "hybrid New York party" any ever-loyal Republicans.

Beyond this, they expect Roosevelt's tactics in New York to kill the Progressive movement in the South, where, especially in Louisiana, it has gained strength in the last two years. Democrats who never would become Republicans and yet have joined the Progressive party, will become suspicious and timid at any coalition of Progressives and Republicans and will return to their original fold, rather than run the risk of being delivered to the Republican party. That is the viewpoint at the Capitol.

Virtually all the Progressives here now believe that Roosevelt intends to use that party simply for his own political aggrandisement, and already some are preparing lines of defense against possible attacks from him in their respective districts.—Age-Herald.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

The most successful institute that has ever been held in Chilton county closed Friday, August 14, 1914. Ninety-four teachers were enrolled. The conductors were Prof. T. W. Smith, Rural Supervisor of the Montgomery county schools, and Miss Rosa Strickland, of the Birmingham Teachers' Training School. The teachers of the county were highly pleased with their conductors. Professor Smith is an excellent hand to explain what he wishes others to know. Then, too, he is so practical in having the teachers to do the actual work.

Miss Strickland has very few superiors in making people think for themselves. In fact, she ranks as one of the best assistant conductors sent out by the State Department of Education.

Among the prominent features of the Institute were the emphasis placed upon vocational training and the eminently practical nature of the work presented. At three o'clock each afternoon the men adjourned to the nearby shops for manual training work, and the ladies turned their attention to sewing and cooking. At the close of the Institute the products of the manual training work formed a very interesting exhibit. Then, again, the work accomplished by the ladies in cooking and sewing stands out as one of the very important features of the week's work. The value of the work given by the conductors in the above subjects will no doubt be like "Seed sown in good ground."

Mrs. Helen G. Marshall, Red Cross Nurse for Chilton county, addressed the teachers several times on the importance of improving sanitary conditions. At the close of the Institute a resolution approving her work was unanimously adopted.

On Tuesday night the people of Clanton joined the teachers in a very pleasant social gathering and on Thursday night an old fashioned "spelling bee" was held which created much enthusiasm and brought out a large house. Several prizes were offered for the best spellers. The following ladies received prizes: Miss Ruby Downs, grand prize; Miss Rilla Smith, 1st prize; Mrs. Dunson, 2nd prize; Mrs. Adams, 3rd prize; Miss Martha Jane Mims, 4th prize; Mrs. Lela Mullins, 5th prize.

The following gentlemen received prizes; Mr. S. H. Herbert, grand prize; Mr. H. L. Davis, 1st. Mr. J. J. Mims, 2nd prize; Mr. F. H. Chappelle, 3rd prize; Mr. F. B. Williams, 4th prize; Mr. J. J. Pickens, 5th prize. The "spelling bee" was by no means a small feature of the Institute.

During the Institute Prof. E. W. Wright, of the State Normal school at Troy, Ala., delivered an interesting address on "The Science of Teaching." He is far above the average as a lecturer, bringing out many interesting thoughts, as well as creating laughter at many of his humorous sayings.

The Institute adopted resolutions favoring compulsory education, consolidation of rural schools and co-operation with the county in a county school fair. [illegible]

FARM FACTS

BY PETER RADFORD, NATIONAL LECTURER, FARMERS' EDUCATIONAL & CO-OPERATIVE UNION OF AMERICA.

Those who till the soil are the chosen people of God.

Farming is as old as the human race and is yet in its infancy.

Success is bound to come to the farmer who plans while he plows.

No civilization has ever advanced beyond its agricultural development.

No farmer is successful who thinks more of his barn than he does of his home.

The development of the farmer himself must precede the full development of the ground he tills.

The most beautiful fact in the farmer's work is that everything he plants is a lesson in faith.

The best farmer does not bother about getting ahead of his neighbor; his great business is to get ahead of himself.

We must give to the people who live on the farm the same educational advantages for their children as those in the cities enjoy.

The country clergy is an agency of much potentiality because the rural life movement is religious as well as industrial and social.

There should be a social and industrial survey of every community. The pastor, the teacher and the school and church officials are they who should make the survey.

In a recent survey of a community in New England, the average annual income of 154 farmers who had a common school education was $289, while the average net income of 123 farmers of the same locality with a high school education was $482 annually. This was worth to each farmer who possessed it $258 each year.

RESOLUTIONS

Of Interest to Every Citizen of the County Adopted by Teachers' Institute.

The Committee on Resolutions appointed by the Chilton County Teachers' Institute reported the following resolutions:

1. We hereby express to our County Superintendent, W. T. Bean, our highest appreciation and heartiest thanks for his kindness and fairness manifested to the teachers of the county during the year.

2. We believe that the Teachers' Institute, as at present conducted, is of incalculable value to all who are teachers, or hope to be, but we believe that its value could be materially increased if it were held during the school term, and we believe the teachers should be paid for the time spent in attending.

3. We urge our Legislature to change the school year so that it will begin July 1st, thus making it possible for teachers to make contracts before school begins. (This will necessitate some changes, such as the election of trustees in March, etc.

4. We believe our districts should be consolidated, instead of being further divided, and to that end, we urge our [illegible] allowing [illegible] we urge our County Board to make no further division of districts, but to plan for consolidation.

5. We urge our Legislature to pass a law making some State funds available for the equipment of rural schools.

6. Realizing the necessity of an education for the masses of the people, we ask the Legislature to pass a compulsory attendance law.

7. We favor the elimination of all but two of the white Normal Schools. We favor the abolition of the District Agricultural Schools as such, believing that no distinctive agricultural schools will be needed if our County High Schools become increasingly Agricultural High Schools. We believe that the fertilizer tag tax should be appropriated to the rural schools.

8. We urge the adoption of a constitutional amendment providing greater revenue for school purposes, and we suggest the following provisions: A State tax of five mills, a County tax not to exceed three mills, levied by vote of the people of the county.

A district tax for construction, repairs and equipment, to be levied by vote of the people of the district.

9. We heartily approve of the course of study outlined by the Teachers' Reading Circle, and pledge ourselves to adopt said course.

10. Whereas, our efficient County Board of Education has taken steps to secure the adoption of the Reading Course.

Be it Resolved, That we endorse such action of said Board as will require the presentation of a Reading Circle Certificate with the last monthly report for the school Year beginning Oct. 1, 1914.

11. We wish to go on record as favoring a more complete and systematic organization of the teachers of Chilton county.

12. We, the teachers of Chilton county, pledge ourselves to organize at least one Agricultural Club and a School Improvement Association in our respective communities during the next school year.

13. We favor the elimination of all high school subjects from one and two room schools, believing that the teaching of such subjects in these schools can only be done by robbing the smaller children of the teacher's time which belongs to them. We believe that the consolidation of districts and larger revenue for school purposes will make possible the placing of at least a junior high school within reach of every country boy and girl.

14. We believe no teacher can do his best work in a community during his first year, and therefore we urge our district trustees and our teachers to work for longer terms of service.

15. We express our gratification at the fact that our county has secured a County High School, and that the building is in course of construction, and we hope for mutual co-operation between the teachers of the county and the County High School in the upbuilding of the public school system of the county. We request that our next Institute be held in the County High School building.

16. We endorse the action of the County Board of Education and the Commissioners' Court in helping to secure the services of a Red Cross Nurse for Chilton county, and we urge every teacher in the county to co-operate heartily in the movement for better health.

17. We wish to thank the Sheriff for his generous service in cleaning up the court room for the spelling bee.

18. We are much indebted to the good people of Clanton for their generous hospitality while in their midst, and especially to Mrs. J. H Middleton and others who assisted in entertaining us so splendidly at the Social, to Mrs. Johnson for opening her home for the cooking demonstration, to the blacksmith shops and planing mill for furnishing places for the manual training classes, and to the business men for their generosity in providing so generously for the cost of the Social and prizes for the spelling bee.

We wish especially to thank Mr. J. J. Pickens and his efficient committees for their untiring efforts which contributed so largely to the success of the Institute Social and the spelling bee.

We feel further indebted to Miss Rosa Strickland and Mr. T. W. Smith for their faithfulness in conducting the Institute, and to the visitors who added to its pleasure and value for we feel that this has been the most successful Institute yet held in the county.

S. H. HERBERT, Chm.,
(Miss) LOTTIE JOHNSON, Sec.
Committee on Resolutions.

The Chairman of the Committee would be glad to receive from readers of this paper any comments on the resolutions as adopted. The desire in drawing up the resolutions was not to express the feelings of the committee, but of the body of teachers as a whole.

The Land of Broken Promises

A Stirring Story of the Mexican Revolution

By DANE COOLIDGE
Author of "The Fighting Foo," "Hidden Waters," "The Trespasser," Etc.

(Copyright, 1914, by Frank A. Munsey)

SYNOPSIS.

Bud Hooker and Phil De Lancey are forced, owing to a revolution in Mexico, to give up their mining claim and return to the United States. In the border town of Gadsden Bud meets Henry Kruger, a wealthy miner, who makes him a proposition to return to Mexico to acquire title to a very rich mine which Kruger had blown up when he found he had been cheated out of the title by one Aragon. The Mexican subsequently spent a large sum in an unsuccessful attempt to relocate the vein and then allowed the land to revert for taxes. Hooked and De Lancey arrive at Fortuna, near where the mine, known as the Eagle Tail, is located. They engage the services of Cruz Mendes, who has been friendly to Kruger, to acquire the title for them, and get a permit to do preliminary work. Aragon protests and accuses them of jumping his claim. Bud discovers that matrimonial entanglements prevent Mendes from perfecting a valid title. Phil, who has been paying attention to Aragon's daughter, Gracia, decides to turn Mexican and get the title in his own name. Bud objects to Phil's attentions to Gracia. Aragon fails in his attempt to drive them off the claim. Rebels are reported in the vicinity.

CHAPTER XI—Continued.

"It is the desire o. the Yaquis," he had said, when rebuked for serving under the hated flag of Mexico, "to kill Mexicans. And," he added grimly, "the federals at this time seem best able to give us guns for that purpose."

But it had been a year now since Bule had passed his word and, though they had battled valiantly, their land had not been given back to them. The wild Yaquis, the irreconcilables who never came down from the hills, had gone on the warpath again, but Bule and his men still served.

Only in two things did they disobey their officers—they would not stack their arms, and they would not retreat while there were still more Mexicans to be killed. Otherwise they were very good soldiers.

But now, after the long campaign in Chihuahua and a winter of idleness at Agua Negra, they were marching south toward their native land and, in spite of the stern glances of their leaders, they burst forth in weird Yaqui songs which, if their words had been known, might easily have caused their Mexican officers some slight uneasiness.

It was, in fact, only a question of days, months, or years until the entire Yaqui contingent would desert, taking their arms and ammunition with them.

"Gee, what a bunch of men!" exclaimed Bud, as he stood off and admired their stark forms.

"There's some genuine fighters for you," he observed to Phil; and a giant Yaqui, standing near, returned his praise with a smile.

"Why, hello there, Amigo!" hailed Bud, jerking his head in a friendly salute. "That's a feller I was making signs to up in Agua Negra," he explained. "Dogged if I ain't stuck on these Yaquis—they're all men, believe me!"

"Good workers, all right," conceded De Lancey, "but I'd hate to have 'em get after me with those guns. They say they've killed a lot of Americans, one time and another."

"Well, if they did it was for being caught in bad company," said Hooker. "I'd take a chance with 'em any time—but if you go into their country with a Mexican escort they'll kill you on general principles. Say," he cried impulsively, "I'm going over to talk with Amigo!"

With a broad grin on his honest face he advanced toward the giant Yaqui and shook hands ceremoniously.

"Where you go?" he inquired in Spanish, at the same time rolling a cigarette and asking by a sign for a match.

"Moctezuma," answered the Indian gravely. Then, as Bud offered him the makings, he, too, rolled a cigarette and they smoked for a minute in silence.

"You live here?" inquired the Yaqui at last.

"Come here," corrected Bud. "I have mine—ten miles—over there."

He pointed with the flat of his hand, Indian fashion, and Amigo nodded understandingly.

He was a fine figure of a man, standing six feet or better in his well-cut sandals and handling his heavy Mauser as a child would swing a stick. Across his broad chest he wore a full cartridge belt, and around his waist he had two more, filled to the last hole with cartridges and loaded clips. At his feet lay his blanket, bound into a tight roll, and a canteen and coffee cup completed his outfit, which, so far as impedimenta were concerned, was simplicity itself.

But instead of the cheap linen uniform of the federals he was dressed in good American clothes—a striped shirt, overalls, and a sombrero banded with a bright ribbon—and in place of the beaten, hunted look of those poor conscripts he had the steady gaze of a free man.

They stood and smoked for a few moments, talking quietly, and then, as the Yaquis closed up their ranks and resumed on to make camp for the night, Bud pressed his [illegible] leaving a great silence where all had been bugle-calls and excitement, and then the first fugitive came in from down below.

He was an old Mexican, with trembling beard and staring eyes, and he told a tale of outrage that made their blood run cold. The red-faggers had come to his house at night; they had killed his wife and son, left him upon the ground for dead, and carried off his daughter, a prisoner.

But later, when the comisario questioned him sharply, it developed that he lived not far away, had no daughter to lose, and was, in fact, only a crazed old man who told for truth that which he feared would happen.

Notwithstanding the denouement, his story stirred the Mexican population to the depths, and when Bud and Phil tried to hire men to push the work on the mine, they realized that their troubdes had begun. Not only was it impossible to engage laborers at any price, but on the following day Cruz Mendez, with his wife and children and all his earthly possessions on his burros, came hurrying in from the camp and told them he could serve them no more.

"It is my woman!" he explained; "my Maria! Ah, if those revoltosos should see Maria they would steal her before my eyes!"

So he was given his pay and the fifty dollars he had earned and, after the customary "Muchas gracias," and with the faithful Maria by his side, he went hurrying off to the store.

And now, in crowded vehicles, with armed men riding in front and behind, the refugees from Moctezuma and the hot country began to pour into town, adding by their very haste to the panic of all who saw them.

They were the rich property owners who, having been subjected to forced contribution before, were now fleeing at the first rumor of danger, bringing their families with them to escape any being held for ransom.

In half a day the big hotel presided over by Don Juan de Dios Brachamonte was swarming with staring-eyed country mothers and sternly subdued families of children; and finally, to add eclat to the occasion and compensate for the general confusion, Don Cipriano Aragon y Tres Palacios came driving up to the door with his wife and the smiling Gracia.

If she had been in any fear of capture by bold marauders, Gracia Aragon did not show it now, as she sprang lightly from the carriage and waited upon her lady mother. Perhaps, after a year or more of rumors and alarms, she had come to look upon impending revolutionary conflicts as convenient excuses for a trip to town, a long stop at the hotel, and even a dash to gay Gadsden in case the rebels pressed close.

However that may be, while Don Juan exerted himself to procure them a good room she endured the gaze of the American guests with becoming placidity and, as that took some time, she even ventured to look the Americans over and make some comments to her mother.

And then—or so it seemed to Bud—the mother glanced up quickly and fixed her eyes upon him. After that he was in less of a hurry to return to the mine, and Phil said they would stay inside for a week. But as for Don Cipriano, when he came across them in the crowded lobby he stared past them with sublimest insolence and serenely twirled his mustache.

As La Fortuna by virtue of the love [illegible]

"The gentleman suggests to do that?" exclaimed Don Juan heatedly.

"He had best think go to hell!" replied De Lancey, straightening up like a coiled spring; "I'm singing to his daughter."

At that Don Juan came down off the porch in his slippers and they engaged in a protracted argument.

"What, don't I get a word?" demanded Phil grievously, "not a pleasant look from anybody? Sweetest honey-bee, be sweet to me!" he pleaded, turning pathetically to the lady's balcony; and then, with a sudden flourish, a white handkerchief appeared through the crack of the shutters and Gracia waved him good night.

"Enough, Don Juan!" he cried, laying down the guitar with a thump; "this ends our evening's entertainment!"

After paying and thanking the stolid musicians Phil joined Bud and the pair adjourned to their room, where, in the intervals of undressing, Phil favored the occupants of the adjoining apartments with an aria from "Beautiful Doll."

But for all such nights of romance and music there is always a morning afterward; and a fine tenor voice set to ragtime never helped much in the development of a mine. Though Bud had remained loyally by his friend in his evening serenade he, for one, never forgot for a moment that they were in Fortuna to work the Eagle Tail and not to win the hearts of Spanish-Mexican senoritas, no matter how attractive they might be.

Bud was a practical man who, if he ever made love, would doubtless do it in a perfectly businesslike way, without hiring any string bands. But at the same time he was willing to make some concessions.

"Well, go ahead and get your sleep, then," he growled, after trying three times in the morning to get his partner up; "I'm going out to the mine!"

Then, with a saddle-gun under his knee and his six-shooter hung at his hip, he rode rapidly down the road, turning out from time to time to let long cavalcades of mules string by. The dead-eyed arrieros, each with his combined mule-blind and whiplash swinging free, seemed to have very little on their minds but their pack-lashings, and yet they must be three days out from Moctezuma.

Their mules, too, were well loaded with the products of the hot country—fanegas of corn in red leather sacks, oranges and fruits in hand-made crates, panoches of sugar in balanced frames, long joints of sugar-cane for the dulce peddlers, and nothing to indicate either haste or flight.

Three times he let long pack-trains go by without a word, and then at last, overcome by curiosity, he inquired about the revoltosos.

"What revoltosos?" queried the old man to whom he spoke.

"Why, the men of Bernardo Bravo," answered Bud; "the men who are marching to take Moctezuma."

"When I left Moctezuma," returned the old man politely, "all was quiet—there were no revoltosos. Since then, I cannot say."

"But the soldiers!" cried Bud. "Surely you saw them! They were marching to fight the rebels!"

"Perhaps so," shrugged the arriero, flaying the lash of his cuyoyo across the rump of a mule; "but I know nothing about it."

"No," muttered Bud, as he continued on his way; "and I'll bet nobody else does."

Inquiry showed that in this, too, he was correct. From those who traveled fast and from those who traveled slow he received the same unsatisfactory information—the country might be filled with revoltosos, but, as for them, they knew nothing about it.

Coffee Ails Vanish Before Postum.

It seems almost too good to be true, the way headache, nervousness, insomnia, and many other obscure troubles vanish when coffee is dismissed and Postum used as the regular table beverage.

The reason is clear. Coffee contains a poisonous drug—caffeine—which causes the trouble, but Postum contains only the food elements in choice hard wheat with a little molasses.

A Philadelphia man grew enthusiastic and writes as follows:

"Until 11 months ago I used coffee regularly every day and suffered from headache, bitter taste in my mouth, and indigestion; was gloomy and irritable, had variable or absent appetite, loss of flesh, depressed in spirits, etc. My attributing these things to coffee became since I quit it and have drank Postum I feel better than I had for 20 years; am less susceptible to cold, nerve gained 30 lbs. and the symptoms have disappeared—vanished before Postum."

COTTON OUTLOOK IS CLEARING UP

Bill Now Before Congress Providing For Government License of Cotton Warehouses.

INSURANCE FOR U. S. SHIPS

And Their Cargoes Is Solution Reached by Representative Business Men in Conference

Washington.—A decidedly more optimistic feeling existed among the members of the cotton conference who have been holding a two days' session in Washington. Senator Hoke Smith has introduced in the senate and Representative A. F. Lever in the house a bill which has been perfected by the officials of the department of agriculture for the government licensing of cotton warehouses so as to give added value and security to warehouse receipts as security at bank.

Government Insures U. S. Ships.

Washington.—Government insurance against war risks of American registered ships and their cargoes was the solution offered by sixty-two representative business men for the stoppage of American over-sea commerce because of the European war. The committee began drafting a bill, to be presented to congress immediately and pressed for passage, with a view to having a government insurance bureau in operation as soon as possible after the pending measure modifying restrictions on American registration of foreign-built ships goes into effect.

French Victory in Alsace.

London.—The official press bureau of the war office and admiralty has given this account of a French success in the Vosges mountains, Alsace: "After a successful resistance lasting five days at the passes of Sainte Marie-Aux - Mine - Le - Bonhomme, the French troops have occupied the region of the Saale pass, which commands the valley of the Bruche, an affluent of the Rhine. At Saale Nux desertions of German troops are noticed. The French have taken many prisoners and captured some machine guns."

Guns of Fort Mow Soldiers Down.

London.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company from its Brussels correspondent says Fort Pontisse and neighboring forts of the city of Liege are resisting well the fierce attack of the Germans. The Germans have been trying to rush Pontisse by main force, no longer relying on siege artillery. They have been unable, however, to get beyond the glacis of the fort, where they have been mowed down by the fire of the defenders.

Turkey Called Upon to Explain.

London.—Great Britain, France and Russia have sent a sharp demand to Turkey for the immediate repatriation of the officers and crews of the German cruisers Goeben and Breslau. It is reported that the two cruisers were met by Turkish vessels outside and escorted into the Dardanelles. There is no official confirmation of the actual purchase of the cruisers by Turkey, but the report to that effect is generally credited.

Battered Warships at Hong Kong.

London.—Evidences of a sharp sea fight in Chinese waters were brought to Hong Kong, when two battered warships, either French or British, arrived there with many wounded. The telegraph, apparently censored, did not identify the warships, but said they were reported to have been in action with the German cruisers Gneisenau and Scharnhorst.

Ship Blown Up—150 Killed.

London.—About 150 of the passengers and crew of the Austrian Lloyd steamer Baron Gautsch were killed or drowned when the vessel was blown up by a mine off the Island of Lussin, on the Dalmatian coast, according to a Reuter dispatch from Trieste.

Prince of Wales' Relief Fund.

London.—The Prince of Wales' relief fund for the distressed families of British soldiers and sailors attained a total of over five million dollars.

War News Suppressed in Berlin.

New York.—All Berlin newspapers have been suppressed and war news is unobtainable in the German capital, according to information that came by wireless from Berlin through the powerful station at Tuckerton, N. J.

Highwayman Get $15,000.

Roanoke, Va.—Two guards bearing fifteen thousand dollars to pay miners at Glen Alum, West Va., were shot to death and robbed near there by a band of highwaymen.

Opposition to Shipping Bill.

Washington.—Serious opposition to the provision of the conference report on the emergency shipping bill that would open the coastwise trade to foreign built ships admitted to American register, was voiced in the senate by both Democratic and Republican senators.

FRENCH AND GERMANS CLASH

ALSACE-LORRAINE IS THE SCENE OF A MOST BITTER STRUGGLE.

Bodies of German Soldiers Killed at Liege Are Cremated by Their Comrades.

Paris.—The French troops along the entire front are in contact with the Germans. At Mangiennes and northeast of Verdun, the Germans attacked the French. The French, reinforced by reserves, then took the offensive and repulsed the Germans with considerable losses. A German battery was destroyed by the French artillery fire, and another was captured, with three gatling guns and ammunition.

A regiment of German cavalry suffered seriously. Near Moncel, a German battalion, with artillery, was repulsed. The German losses are said to have been heavy.

Reported German Officer Killed Self.

London.—The Brussels correspondent of the Star says a Belgian officer who escaped from Liege brought details of the death of Gen. Von Emmich. The officer declared Von Emmich committed suicide. The correspondent says it is stated that Gen. Von Emmich's unlimited confidence in the German army and its style of fighting was shattered by the events around Liege. He is to be succeeded by Gen. Von Der Marwitz.

Tolstoi's Widow Attends Wounded.

London.—German wounded are beginning to arrive at Moscow, says a Reuter dispatch from St. Petersburg, and they are being well cared for. Several members of the Tolstoi family, including Tolstoi's widow, have offered their services to the government for Red Cross or other work. The Austrian and German consuls have left Riga.

Dutch Soldiers Want to Fight.

Paris.—An official communication says the Dutch troops in the provinces of North Brabant and Limburg are manifesting discontent against the Germans whom they accuse of being responsible for the actual situation.

Montenegrin Coast Blockaded.

Vienna, via London.—An effective blockade of the Montenegrin coast has been established by the Austro-Hungarian fleet, according to an official announcement here.

Norfolk Has Heavily Mined.

Washington.—Mining the North sea as part of the plan of the European war not only may close some of the northern European ports to navigation, but the gold-laden cruiser Tennessee, the cruiser North Carolina and several passenger vessels bearing Americans from Europe will be confronted with new dangers.

Wire on Stockings.

Washington.—Official notice of America's declaration of war on Montenegro was received by the state department.

Matter-of-Fact Serelda's Two Good Reasons for Hesitating About Setting the Day.

The Blanks' maid of all work was a practical young woman of about twenty-seven years. One day when her mistress was making some plans for the future the matter-of-fact Serelda said:

"I don't know, ma'am. It might be that I won't be with you much longer, an' then mebbe I will. I ain't sure yet."

Knowing that a young man had called a good many times to see Serelda, her mistress said:

"Are you thinking of getting married, Serelda?"

BABY HAD SCALP TROUBLE

Carthage, Texas.—"My little girl had some kind of breaking out on her head that came in white blisters and when the blisters burst they formed some thing like scales. If I washed her head and combed the scales off they would come again in just a few days. The trouble looked something like dandruff but was hard and scaly and when the scales would come off all of the hair came also and would leave the head raw.

"I had tried salves which only softened the scales so I decided to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I washed her head with warm water and Cuticura Soap and then applied the Cuticura Ointment and let it remain over night. I used only one box of Cuticura Ointment and one bar of Cuticura Soap and her head was well." (Signed) Mrs. Luella Biggs, Jan. 28, 1914.

WELL, HE MADE THEM LAUGH

Speaker at Banquet Intended to Be Humorous, and Guests Unconsciously He Was.

Henry returned from the dinner and faced his expectant wife with a proud and smiling face.

"Yes, thank you, my dear," he said, in answer to her anxious inquiry. "The dinner was most pleasant, and my speech was the success of the evening."

"What did you say, darling?"

"Oh, well, I can't remember exactly, you know. But until I spoke all the speech had fallen rather flat, so I thought I would give them a little humor. And I succeeded, too! I had hardly said more than six words when there was a pleased giggle round the huge table. In a few minutes I had them all rolling about with laughter, and when at last I sat down the applause was tremendous—tremendous!"

At this point Henry removed his overcoat.

"I am glad your speech was such a success, dear," answered his wife, dutifully. "But next time you have to speak in public would it not be better to put a waistcoat under your dress-coat, especially when you wear a dickey?"

No Menace in Sanatorium.

Dr. Edward L. Trudeau, who built the first tuberculosis sanatorium in the United States in 1885, says:

"When I bought the first land on which the Adirondack Cottage sanatorium is built, I paid $25 an acre for it, but the price was then thought absurdly high. My last purchase of five acres cost me $5,000. To my knowledge, there has never been an employe who came to the sanatorium in sound health who developed tuberculosis while there; and a sanatorium can no more endanger the health of the neighborhood in which it is built, even if the residences are at its very gates, than it could if it were placed on top of a high mountain miles away from habitation."

Invitation and Answer.

Mr. F. C. Phillips in his book, "My Varied Life," tells how the late Sir George Honeyman, an infamous writer, sent down from the bench to a friend of his, a leading Q. C., a little note. Not able to make head nor tail of it, the barrister scribbled something equally undecipherable upon a half-sheet of notepaper, and passed it up to the judge. Sir George looked annoyed, and when the court rose, said to his friend: "What do you mean by this? I asked you to come and dine with me tonight."

"Yes," said the barrister, "and I replied that I should be extremely glad to do so."

Possible Chance.

A young man who last month received his diploma has been looking around successively for a position, employment and a job. Entering an office the other day he asked to see the manager, and while waiting for that gentleman to become disengaged he said to the office boy:

"Do you suppose there is any opening here for a college graduate?"

"Well, dere will be," was the reply, "if de boss don't raise me salary to t'ree dollars a week by termorrer night."—Boston Evening Transcript.

WOULD MAKE A POLITICIAN

Little Willie's Capacity for Sticking to One Idea Singularly Like Way of Rapid Partisan.

"The late Adlai E. Stevenson," said a Republican leader of Bloomington, "hadn't, after all, much use for politics. He once explained to me why this was.

"He said that party politicians believed their side to be always right, and the other side to be always wrong. Whatever the other side advocated, it was horrible and infernal; whatever their own side advocated was holy.

"He said the partisan couldn't understand that you might arrive at the right thing by more ways than one—and thus the partisan was like the urchin whose teacher said:

"'Willie, what does six plus four make?'

"'Eleven.'

"'No. Try again.'

"'Twelve.'

"'No.'

"'Thirteen.'

"'No, no, no. You're just guessing. But why couldn't you have guessed that six plus four makes ten?'

"'Because it don't make ten,' said Willie. 'Five and five makes ten—I remember that.'"

Teacher's Boast.

A teachers' meeting was in progress and it was decided that the more difficult subjects should come in the morning, and those that required less application later in the day. History was last on the list, and Miss Wheeler, the young teacher, protested.

"But it certainly is easier than science or mathematics," the principal insisted.

"As I teach it," replied the young teacher, "no subject could be more difficult and confusing."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Continuing the Argument.

"You prefer swords to pistols when you engage in a duel?"

"Yes," replied the Frenchman. "Swords enable you to get in more gestures."

Backache Is a Warning

Nature always gives fair warning whenever anything is going wrong inside the body. When warned of kidney weakness by an aching back or disordered urination, give the kidneys prompt help and avoid more serious troubles.

Kidney trouble is a dangerous thing, because the kidneys are the blood filters, and weak kidneys soon upset the healthiest system, causing rheumatic attacks, gravel, dropsy and Bright's disease.

Doan's Kidney Pills is a most reliable kidney remedy. Doan's are used successfully all over the civilized world and publicly recommended by thousands of grateful people.

An Alabama Case.

Mrs. David Gibson, 610 W. 18th St., Anniston, Ala., says: "Backache kept me in misery and I was stiff and lame. The kidney secretions were in awful shape and one of my limbs swelled to twice its natural size. My joints were stiff and I had awful rheumatic pains all through my body. After five doctors failed, I used Doan's Kidney Pills. They restored me to good health and I haven't had any trouble since."

What is Castoria

CASTORIA is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic, all Teething Troubles and Diarrhœa. It regulates the Stomach and Bowels, assimilates the Food, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

We call the attention of our readers to some resolutions adopted by the Teachers' Institute in session last week which will be found in another place in this issue. These resolutions offer some valuable suggestions, which should be of interest not only to the teachers but to everyone. Those touching upon proposed legislation as a means of bettering the school interests of the state should be of vital concern to all citizens.

Our friend, the Union-Banner, is making quite a fuss because the election officers and school enumerators have not received their pay for this year. We would like to ask our friend who, in his own imagination, has Solomon skinned a city block when it comes to wisdom, and who seems to know more about the county's affairs than any other man in it, when it was that these officials were ever paid before the November term of Commissioners' Court?

For unmitigated gall, commend us to a little handfull of disgruntled politicians meeting in a convention to ask the people of this great State to vote for men who have never created a political reform, whose National and State organization isn't worth a baubee, who have done nothing for the people and who are as changeable as the wind, whose dominant purpose is for political greed and power. Every fair-minded citizen should ask himself the question "What has this bunch ever done to entitle them to my vote?"

The Union-Banner says that the Progressive platform tells you what you are voting for? Now wouldn't the audacity of that assertion jar a speckled hen off the roost? Suppose the "platform" does say so, is that any guarantee that it is correct? Now dear reader, in all candor do you believe this, in the light of what has transpired in this county in the past? We don't [illegible] tell where they are "at." They claim to be Progressives now, but God only knows what they will dub themselves by the time November rolls around. Yes, sir, they would make a kangaroo ashamed of himself. Then tell us a man would know what he was voting for! But what's the use? They've got about as much chance putting this "platform" into effect as a man would have flying over the moon in a balloon.

Life is just one thing after another, but while we are living let us have some good roads so we can visit our neighbors and friends. We dislike to see counties like Perry, Shelby and Chilton, with not near the resources of Bibb, making a ring around us in the way of progress and road advancement. If the corporations are willing to pay eighty per cent of the expense of building good roads, the merchants, farmers and business men should be willing to bear the other twenty per cent.—Centreville Press.

The Union-Banner, in its issue of August 6th, propounded some questions to us, and we are going to answer them as they come, in a "plain and open" way, as follows:

"Doesn't the county owe at this time six or seven thousand dollars on road work?" NO.

"Doesn't the county owe three thousand dollars on one of the road machines?" NO.

"Doesn't the county owe over a thousand dollars to the managers and clerks of the elections that have been held this year and to school enumerators?" YES, and the Union-Banner is fully aware that for the years 1908, 1910 and 1912 these officers were not paid until the November term of the court, except one year—1908—they did receive payment in part for their services. Yes, we repeat that the Union-Banner knows as well as does every well informed man, that it has been the custom of the court to pay these officials, at the November term.

"Doesn't the county owe its own current expenses for the last four or five months?" YES, of course it does, and any man with any intelligence whatever is fully aware that the county at this time of the year, with the Commissioners' Court meeting only once each quarter, has always owed its current expenses for the preceding quarter. We say again that the current debt of the county during Judge Deason's administration has always been paid without issuing interest-bearing warrants, or by levying an additional tax upon the people, as was the case in 1906.

"Will not all the above amount to about fifteen thousand dollars, and perhaps more?" NO, not half of it.

"Is it not a fact that there is not a dollar in the general funds of the county?" YES, we admit the money has been expended, but there is something to show for it, which certainly can't be said of the preceding administration.

Old residents of the county will tell you the present administration has built more roads than has been constructed before in the last fifty years. The Commissioners have spent the people's money in a wise and economical manner, and any man with an ounce of fairness will give them credit for having done what they conscientiously believed was for the best interests of the county.

"Do you know whether or not there is being held from the Commissioners several thousand dollars worth of claims as there was during the campaign of two years ago, paid after the [illegible] levied to meet these expenses; tell them who who got the interest on several of these warrants; tell them how much road work was done.

Now of course, Mr. Union-Banner man, this will be bitter medicine for you to dish out; the "Powers that be" don't care about the people being reminded about these things and they are going to raise a mighty howl, but we are going to expect you to give us the benefit of your vast storehouse of information without any evasion whatever. These are matters of public record, and the people are certainly entitled to the facts. So come, now, "Shell down the corn" and tell us what was "Rotten in Denmark" in 1906, and thereby prove to the people of this county that you will no longer be misled and deluded by these bosses who are only after a little more pie. Show them that you are a real sure-enough "GUARDIAN," one worthy of the name, of the 18 karat variety.

THE GOVERNMENT MUST COME TO THE RESCUE

Elsewhere on this page we are expressing the hope—and it seems to be well founded—that the European war will be comparatively brief. In any case, it seems safe to say that before Spring the war should be over, and the survivors of the present struggle ready to resume their wonted occupations. While all the nations will suffer heavily in money as well as in men, the people will have to be clothed—and cotton will continue to be the cheapest clothing folks can wear.

While for a few weeks, therefore the cotton trade will be seriously upset—both by reason of the deranged commerce of Europe and by reason of the fact that European ships will not be available for carrying our cotton abroad—the hopeful fact is that within a few months, anyhow, the world must have our present 1014 cotton crop, and must pay a fair price for it.

The only question is to whom the world will pay—the farmer or the speculator. At present it seems certain that a golden harvest is going into the hands of the speculators, unless something is done.

Until the war is settled, cotton, if marketed in the usual early autumn quantities, will certainly be a drag on the market and will not bring anywhere near its worth. The problem is as to whether our farmers are going to be forced to sell under such conditions and literally hand over to the speculative classes millions of dollars the toiling classes have created.

In the face of such a disaster—as genuine and as serious as if caused by flood, famine or earthquake—it seems to us imperative that the National Government should lend its aid. The Government should furnish sufficient money to enable every Southern farmer to borrow very nearly the value of his cotton and so hold it until conditions become normal. And what is more, the Government must so control and manage its help as to make sure that it goes directly to the man it is intended for, without forcing him to pay high interest rates or excessive banking charges.

It is our hope that even before this issue of the Progressive Farmer reaches our readers something effective will be done, and if it is any case, our Farmers [illegible] what we have [illegible]

COLORED LAW AND ORDER LEAGUE TO ORGANIZE

Rev. I. N. Fitzpatrick of Atlanta, Ga., president of the Law and Order League of America, is in Clanton for the purpose of organizing the league in this city. Fitzpatrick comes highly endorsed by some of the white people of the South; judges of courts, solicitor generals, mayors of cities, ministers of the gospel, professional and business men, county and State press speak in highest terms of his work. Every member who joins the league, swears on bended knees to cultivate friendly relationship between the white and colored races, and to live an honest, industrious, peaceful, law-abiding citizen, and to help to prevent crime, and at all times aid in upholding the strong arm of the laws of the State and of the general government; also not knowingly to shield, aid nor hide in his house any criminal. He is also teaching his race that the Southern white man is the negro's best friend and that the Southland is the best place for his race.

Fitzpatrick is to speak in the court house to-night (Thursday) to his race, and asks that he be accorded that privilege; that the county and city officials and the white people of Clanton attend the meeting.

The Press hopes that the good people of Clanton will encourage this laudable movement.

UNION SPRINGS CHURCH

(WEST CHILTON)

Prof. M. V. Lawley, of Montevallo, closed his music school at this place on the 13th inst. The interest was good all the time. It was well attended by both old and young. Mr. Lawley's chief work in his schools is teaching the songs of the church—the songs of Zion—the songs that have cheered the church in her pilgrimage through many decades of the past. It is a noble work. Preserving the songs of the church should interest all earnest church people. Permitting this church music to fall into disuse is probably one of the causes of the spiritual decline in the churches at the present. The people were quite liberal in visiting Mr. Lawley's school. He is very much beloved by his people.

FRUIT GROWERS' PICNIC

The people of Thorsby and vicinity laid aside their regular occupations Tuesday and turned out en-masse at the annual picnic of the Thorsby Fruit and Truck Growers Association, held on the campus of Thorsby Institute. This organization now numbers upwards of 100 members, who with their families and friends made a large gathering, not the least among them being a considerable contingent of the boys and girls who in the season are depended on to gather the big crops as they mature. The Thorsby Brass Band under the leadership of Mr. J. O. Johnson, furnished music which was greatly appreciated. Several good speakers were provided for the occasion, and after a bountiful dinner in the grove the afternoon was given over to sports, among them being finding a quarter hidden in a pan of flour, which must be accomplished by rooting for it with the face and picking it up in the mouth—great fun for the boys. An egg race for the girls; a tug of war; a sack race and a base ball game. The day was simply perfect, and so full of enjoyment that many remained for supper on the ground.

Thorsby Institute will open for the school year 1914-15 on Tuesday, September 8th. There is a good prospect for a largely increased attendance, and conditions will be more favorable than ever. A strong faculty has been employed, grounds and buildings have been improved, and there is an air of general prosperity quite noticeable.

Miss Hoopes, matron of the Dormitory and teacher of Domestic Science, who was so seriously ill soon after school closed, has fully recovered and is already superintending preparations for the reception of students.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

BIG COTTON CROP IS THE PREDICTION

SOME COUNTIES REPORT PRESENCE OF BOLL WEEVIL.

GENERAL ALABAMA NEWS

Staley Cotton Mill at Speigners to Close Down Indefinitely.

Birmingham.—This year's cotton crop has been variously estimated at from 13,000,000 to 15,000,000 bales. Alabama has made a bumper crop, and despite boll weevil ravages in some counties this state will produce, it is thought, not less than 1,500,000 bales, and some observers and statisticians think the Alabama crop will not be far short of 1,600,000.

Looking back over a period of ten years, Alabama's cotton crop multiplied by 10 has given approximately the total of the entire crop of the country. This rule may not hold good this year, for weather conditions in Alabama were especially favorable, while in some parts of Texas and in some other states conditions were not altogether favorable.

With a normal market situation the farmers could have counted on selling their cotton at 13 or 14 cents, but the European war has made trouble for the cotton south. Western grain farmers will get large prices for their crops this year because of the war, but in order to maintain a market for cotton the government must aid. As President Harvie Jordan of the Southern Cotton Association says: "United effort on the part of all the people is imperative at this time." He urges most earnestly a large attendance at the general conference to be held in New Orleans August 27-28.

"The cotton situation," says President Jordan, "while grave, can be handled with safety to the growers of the south if prompt and systematic plans for financing the crop temporarily are adopted and put into execution throughout the 800 cotton-growing counties."

Politics Livens Up.

Huntsville.—The race for City Commissioner, which has been lagging during the last two or three weeks, has been enlivened by the entry of a fifth candidate, John T. Jones, a well known insurance man. The other four candidates are M. M. Cantrell, Humes C. Laughlin, William T. C. Mitchell and Ed C. Betts.

Red Cross Asks Aid.

Montgomery. — Montgomery has been asked to donate $1,500 to be used in paying expenses for one month of Red Cross workers in the European war. W. A. Gunter, Jr., president of the City Commission, has submitted the appeal to citizens and has urged that contributions be as large as possible.

The Merchants' Convention.

Birmingham.—The second annual meeting of the Alabama Merchants' Association to be held in this city August 26-27 promises to be largely attended. The wholesale committee of the Chamber of Commerce is receiving information from every part of the State to the effect that many of the merchants will be accompanied by their wives and that the visitors will remain several days beyond the convention limit.

Prisoners Make Crop.

Jasper.—Two men convicted at the May term of the Federal Court for violating the prohibition law were permitted to return to their homes to make crops. W. F. Farris, of Wipsey, reported at the expiration of his term to begin his sentence which was 60 days in the county jail. The other, W. J. McDaniel, was sentenced to thirteen months in the state prison. Instead of serving out their terms and getting the crops they were said to expect to make, Deputy

CONVICT LEAPS FROM TRAIN.

Negro Jumps Through Window of Limited in Baldwin, Making Escape.

Bay Minette.—Sheriff O. B. Richerson of this county received notice from a sheriff who was passing through this place on No. 4 of the Louisville and Nashville railroad to the effect that a negro prisoner who was being taken to a convict camp had jumped out of the car window while the train was running at high speed.

The local sheriff and deputies made a hasty trip to the supposed place where the negro jumped, but failed to find any trace of him or any marks that would indicate where he had landed on the ground. It is understood that he was handcuffed and that he should be able to escape is considered little less than miraculous.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Z. D. Foster Was Killed in Trying to Alight From Passenger.

Dothan.—Z. D. Foster, 18 years old and agent for the Southern Express Company at Slocomb, was instantly killed there, when, in trying to alight from a rapidly moving Central of Georgia passenger train, he fell under the wheels, his skull being crushed. The accident occurred at the depot and was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators, among whom was J. S. Foster, the young man's father. The train had previously stopped at the depot and discharged passengers and baggage. It that the train would either stop or then backed down the track, it is said, to a siding, where two cars were attached. Foster apparently thought slow down in passing the station. It did neither, but went by at a rapid rate. He tried to alight from the moving train, but fell face down and his head across the rails, and the wheels rushed over him.

REQUISITION PAPERS ISSUED.

Alleged Cow Thief Will Be Brought Back to Answer Grand Larceny Charge.

Montgomery.—C. A. Reville, who was arrested in Atlanta, Ga., at the request of Chief of Police W. H. Taylor, of this city, will be brought back to Alabama to answer a charge of grand larceny. Requisition papers were issued at the office of Governor O'Neal. Reville is alleged to have killed cattle belonging to W. A. Gunter, Jr., president o fthe Montgomery City Commission, and to have marketed the meat. Requisition papers have been issued directed to Governor John M. Slaton of Georgia, and a Montgomery officer will go to Atlanta to bring back the alleged thief.

Richardson and Adair Indicted.

Jasper.—The Walker county grand jury, which was in session here, returned 36 indictments. Two of these were for murder, Bert Richardson of Cordova, who was arrested in Birmingham a short time ago and attempted to commit suicide, was indicted for murder in the first degree for killing Monroe Rutt, night marshal of Cordova. W. C. Adair, deputy sheriff of Dora, was indicted for murder in the second degree for killing Will Tucker while under arrest. This murder occurred in Jefferson across the line, the first part of last June. After making a partial report the grand jury adjourned to meet again August 31.

Lee County Reports Good Peach Crop.

Opelika.—This county this year produced one of the largest peach crops probably in its history. Peach trees by the roadsides, in fence corners and everywhere are loaded with the beautiful fruit, and on account of such bountiful production the local market is overstocked. But many farmers are drying and canning the fruit for home consumption. Besides, sun-dried and home canned peaches always find a ready market at any time at fancy prices, and in this way farmers will utilize thousands of bushels that would otherwise go to waste.

AT THE STATE'S CAPITAL

Interesting News Budget of Happenings in Various Departments of State.

—Montgomery.

Interest in the next legislature now centers in a dispute about the authority to appoint standing committees of the senate. Thomas E. Kilby, lieutenant governor-to-be, and prohibitionist, claims he has authority to name the committees. Local optionists maintain the president pro tem is the person clothed with such prerogative. Mr. Kilby says he will appoint the committees and local optionists say he will not. Thus has the fight begun.

Each side is backed by precedents. When the new constitution was adopted in 1901 Russell M. Cunningham was lieutenant governor. He contended that the distinction between executive and legislative departments of government should be maintained and for that reason would not appoint standing committees. This duty passed into the hands of the president pro tem.

Henry B .Gray succeeded Mr. Cunningham as lieutenant governor. He attacked the former position and won. Standing committees were appointed by him, and in order to make certain that they were legal the senate adopted a resolution ratifying his action. This gave prohibitionists the precedent they are relying upon now.

Walter D. Seed, a member of the same political faith as Gray, was elected lieutenant governor, but he made no fight to maintain the position of his predecessor, and Hugh Morrow, president pro tem, named the committees. The senate then adopted a rule providing that the president pro tem shall appoint standing committes.

This rule is still a senate provision, and says: "The president pro tem of the senate shall appoint the chairmen and members of the standing committees, and he shall appoint all other committees of the senate, both special and joint." But this rule is for the senate which will no longer exist after November. Each senate has power to make its own rules and regulations, and has authority to disregard any former action.

The question is purely for consideration of the senate. If prohibitionists control Lieutenant Governor Kilby will appoint. If they do not, the president pro tem will select the personnel of committees. Local optionists realize that all may be gained while nothing can be lost. If they don't fight they know one of an opposite political belief will select committees that best serve the cause he represents. They have convinced themselves that they have a majority in the senate and that they will elect a president pro tem.

Rains Improve Crops.

Good rains during the past week and a general improvement in the cotton crop are reported in the weekly summary of weather and crop conditions issued by the weather bureau.

The report states, however, that the complaints of rust and shedding are considerable. The report follows:

"In the cotton states east of the Mississippi river, good rains caused general improvement and the cotton crop progressed satisfactory. Early planted cotton is opening rapidly and picking has begun, but somewhat delayed in some portions by rainy weather.

"There are considerable complaints of rust and shedding. West of the Mississippi river beneficial showers occurred in Arkansas and Louisiana and the crop made satisfactory progress. In most of Oklahoma the weather has continued dry. Early planted cotton made some progress, but late planted deteriorated. Heavy rains broke the drought in Texas, and the outlook is much improved.

"In the trucking districts of the south, good, general rains greatly benefited citrus fruits and late crops."

In Executive Session.

Members of the state railroad commission are in executive session in connection with some matters of the department. Secretary Sam P. Kennedy said the nature of the meeting would be given out later. It was suspected at the capitol that the meeting had to do with the question of adjusting freight rates on the Louisville and Nashville railroad.

Pythian Home Certain.

The committee named by the grand lodge of Knights of Pythias last May to investigate the feasibility of establishing a Pythian widows' and orphans' home in Alabama and to receive proposals for the location, will meet in Birmingham early in September to adopt final plans for subission to the next grand lodge, according to the announcement of Grand Chancellor L. G. Waldrop of Anniston here.

Four of the 13 Pythian district conventions which have met thus far have unanimously endorsed the movement. The Chambers of Commerce of Gadsden, Anniston, and Montgomery have submitted tentative propositions in an effort to obtain the home. The committee is composed of Jacob D. Bloch, Mobile; Herman Beck, Birmingham, and A. G. Patterson, Decatur.

Incorporation Papers Filed.

Articles of incorporation were filed in the office of Cyrus B. Brown, secretary of state, by six Alabama corporations. The Southern Mining and Milling company of Tuscumbia was the largest company formed, its capital being $100,000, of which $60,000 is paid in. This company will engage in the mining business in Colbert and other North Alabama counties. H. W. Green, E. W. Bishop and others are the incorporators.

Other companies incorporated were the Marengo Cotton Oil company of Faunsdale, capital stock $7500; the Branchville Bottling Works, Branchville, $2000; Spiro and Merrill Heating and Roofing Company, Birmingham, $7000; Dallas Cotton Gin Company, Selma, $1770, and the Pickens County Land and Development Company, Carrollton, $1000.

Take up Montgomery Tax Cases.

The state tax commission will go over the heads of county boards of revenue that refuse to docket cases of tax assessments brought by county tax commissioners, according to John S. Mooring, chairman, who declared that the commission will take up Montgomery county cases which the county board of revenue refused to consider.

The refusal of the Montgomery county board of revenue to take up the cases brought before it by Tax Commissioner Frank Peabody will have no effect on the ultimate action of the state commission, Mr. Mooring said. As soon as its work in other parts of the state is finished the work in Montgomery will be taken up.

K. of K. Committee to Meet.

Announcement of the findings of a special Knights of Pythias committee, appointed to determine the feasibility of establishing a widows' and orphans' home in Alabama, will be made at a meeting of the committee in September. E. G. Waldrop, grand chancellor of the order, made this statement here.

Montgomery, Gadsden and Anniston have made application for the home. It is expected that other towns will make application.

The committee is composed of Herman Beck of Birmingham, A. G. Patterson of New Decatur and Sol D. Block of Mobile.

Oil Painting for State.

An oil painting of Judge Alexander Clitheral, register of the treasury of the Confederacy, was presented to the state department of archives and history by Judge J. J. Willett of Anniston. Judge Willett's father was a law partner of Judge Clitheral at one time. The painting has been in the Willett family more than 50 years.

Organization of a second bank at Berry, in Fayette county, has been announced in an application from J. C. Shephard, a merchant of that place and one of the organizers. The application was forwarded to the state banking department.

JAPAN SENDS ULTIMATUM

LOOKS LIKE WHOLE EASTERN HEMISPHERE WILL GET ENVOLVED

ULTIMATUM IN FULL SENT

Japan Minister Says American Interests Will Be Safeguarded.

Japan sent an ultimatum to Germany demanding the withdrawal of German warships from the Orient and the evacuation of Kiau-Chau.

Takaaki Kato, Japanese foreign minister, simultaneously with the dispatch of the ultimatum, conferred with George W. Guthrie, American ambassador, and made to him a broad statement calculated to assure the United States that American interest in the far east would be safeguarded and the integrity of China upheld.

Owing to doubts whether communications with Berlin were assured, Japan, to insure the arrival of the ultimatum, forwarded it to Berlin by six channels, including Washington, London and Stockholm. The government also notified Count Von Rex, German ambassador to Japan, and likewise retarded the time limit for a reply until August 23.

The Ultimatum Issued by Japan.

"We consider it highly important and necessary in the present situation to take steps to relieve the causes of all disturbances of the peace in the far east and to safeguard the general interests as contemplated by the agreement of an alliance between Japan and Great Britain.

"In order to secure a firm and enduring peace in eastern Asia, the establishment of which is the aim of the said agreement, the imperial Japanese government sincerely believes it to be its duty to give the advice to the imperial German government to carry out the following two propositions:

"1. To withdraw immediately from Japanese and Chinese waters German men of war and armed vessels of all kinds, and to disarm at once those which cannot be so withdrawn.

"2. To deliver on a date not later than September 15 to the imperial Japanese authorities without condition or compensation the entire leased territory of Kiau-Chau, with a view to the eventual restoration of the same to China.

"The imperial Japanese government announced at the same time that in the event of it not receiving by noon on August 23, 1914, an answer from the imperial German government signifying its unconditional acceptance of the above advice offered by the imperial Japanese government Japan will be compelled to take such action as she may deem necessary to meet the situation."

News of Ultimatum in Washington.

Washington.—The Japanese ambassador, Baron Chinda, delivered to Secretary Bryan the written announcement of Japan that an ultimatum had been addressed to Germany, requesting the latter's withdrawal from her field of activity in China. At the same time he communicated Japan's assurances to the United States that the utmost endeavor would be exercised to safeguard interests of this country and all others not immediately concerned in the present operations.

The United States, it became known after Baron Chinda's call on Mr. Bryan, does not intend to be drawn in any way into the controversy, regarding it as a matter purely between Germany and Japan. The American government considers satisfactory the promise of Japan of "eventual restoration to China" of the territory of Kiau Chau.

Battle in Adriatic Sea.

A naval battle between French and Austrian warships took place off Budua, Austria, in the Adriatic. The French squadron, coming from the southwest, attacked the Austrian warships. Two Austrian ironclads were sunk, one was set on fire, and a fourth fled northward toward Cattaro. The fight lasted over an hour."

Aliens Cannot Be Taken.

Washington.—In answer to many appeals for information from naturalized citizens and foreign residents as to conditions under which they may be returned to their native lands for military service, Secretary Bryan today issued a statement saying the United States was not a party to any treaties under which such persons might be compelled to return for military service and saying there was no way in which they might be forced to join the armies so long as they remain in the United States.

NAMES FAMOUS IN WAR ANNALS

The names familiar to the students of the great wars of 100 years ago are appearing daily in current dispatches. Konigsberg, Allenstein, Lodz and Kalisch recall the campaign of 1806-7, when French and Russians met as enemies and what was left of the Prussian army co-operated with the czar's troops. Belfort has been a notable name in the French military annals for more than two centuries, while Verdun, Longwy, and Toul are almost as celebrated for battle or siege. Belgium is part of what in old times was called "the cock-pit of Europe." Politics change from generation to generation, but strategy does not. Points that are strategically valuable figure in war after war. Hence we see Germany entering Belgium in an effort to repeat the flank march that carried her armies to Paris in 1815, after Napoleon.—Boston Transcript.

OLD BATTLE GROUND

Belgium Has Been Scene of Many Bloody Campaigns.

Her People Have Struggled for Centuries for Independence and Neutrality—War Strength Largely Increased Last Year.

The determined stand made by the Belgians to keep their eleven thousand square miles of territory, slightly larger than the state of Maryland, from becoming a battle ground for other nations, rests on an experience of similar conditions dating back to the days of Charlemagne and the early Frankish empire.

The greater part of what is now Belgium was, in the early history of Europe, governed by Teutonic people. Flanders, the remainder of Belgium, was under French rule. The progress of the people of this land up to the early nineteenth century was gained only through constant struggles to escape from encroachment of other European nations. Holland, France, Germany, Austria and Spain, in that nation's glory, all have tried their hand at holding and governing the Belgian people. The neutrality which Belgium is trying to maintain was guaranteed in 1832 by a concert of the powers, after Belgium had gained its independence, by severe fighting, from the Dutch. Even then it took a French and English blockade of the Dutch coast to firmly establish Belgian freedom.

Belgium is the most thickly populated country in Europe. It has an area of 11,400 square miles with a population of seven and one-half million. Maryland, with an area of 12,327 square miles with a population of 1,294,450.

This density of population in the little kingdom has enforced the cultivation of small farms. The number of farms of less than one and one-quarter acres is more than a half million, with only a few thousand of 50 to 125 acres. The number of larger farms is now on the increase, partly because of the growth of the stock raising industry.

Other causes of prosperity are the coal mines and the textile and iron and steel industries. Because of the presence of a great mass of industrial workers the cause of Socialism is strong.

The capital of the kingdom is Brussels, with a population, including suburbs, of 720,000. The nation has no navy, but does a large importing and exporting trade, with a fair sized merchant marine. The chief seaports on the North Sea are Ostend, Heyst and Nieuport. The only colony of the country is the Belgian Congo, Africa, where rubber is the chief export.

Belgium's war strength up to last year was estimated at 180,000. Almost as if in some forehanded knowledge of the turn of European affairs, a new law was passed increasing the war strength to 340,000. This is divided into 150,000 for field service, 60,000 for auxiliary service and 130,000 for garrisons. The large garrison force is made necessary by the large number of fortresses on the several frontiers.

SHORT AND DECISIVE WAR

But Not the Last the World Will See, Predicts the Army and Navy Journal.

That the war in which the great European powers are now engaged will be short and decisive, and that it will not be so terrible as to make wars impossible in the future, is the editorial expression of The Army and Navy Journal. The Journal says:

"The present war in Europe will not be the last war, as some are rashly predicting. As long as racial prejudice exists and until there is universal brotherhood wars will occur. The treaties that will be signed at the close of the war will last until the vanquished have gained sufficient strength to attempt to regain their lost honor and territory. The war will be a short and decisive war. More men may be killed in battle, but the percentages of the casualties will generally be larger than in larger wars. Owing to improved methods of mobilization and in training soldiers the number of days from [illegible] will be reduced to a minimum. Democratic "Discord" Really Makes for Unity.

Proves the Vitality of the Party—Bickerings and Differences of Its Opponents Are Lasting if Not Irreconcilable.

Those who rejoice or grieve at evidences of Democratic discord are poorly advised. Democratic discord means Democratic life. The Democratic party is never so terrible to its opponents as when it is in a fighting humor.

Only once in its long history did the Democratic party go to pieces, and the result was civil war. In the matter of plain politics, Democratic contention is significant of Democratic power. Even in the days of free silver, the unrest which developed some strange theories prepared the way for popular victories that have since been won.

Democrats who are satisfied are not true Democrats. To be at rest and have no further aspirations is to be like Mark Hanna, and Mark Hanna was a Republican.

Bossism has a great deal to do with political activity or inactivity. Nobody ever bossed the Democratic party except in spots. Jefferson and Jackson were accused of it, but the charge was false. Democrats followed them, as they follow Wilson today, because they rejoiced in their leadership. Now, as then, those who are disposed to be quarrelsome or to make threats mean only that they wish to be heard. In due time they will all be made comfortable in the old household.

Wholly different is the situation on the other side of the main party line. There we behold standpatters. Progressives, Prohibitionists and Socialists, to say nothing of I. W. W.'s. Every mothers' son of them is a Republican, but they cannot go to the polls together as Democrats of all shades, made amiable by controversy and an occasional black eye, always do, and they know it.—New York World.

PROSPERITY ON THE COAST

Los Angeles Broke All Records During the Year—No Calamity Howlers Are Listened to There.

The Los Angeles Tribune says:

"The fiscal year ended June 30 and its termination served to spell prosperity for all of Southern California.

"From every channel of finance—from the government's sources of revenue, from the city's mart where money comes and goes, the clearing house, from the coffers of the merchants, small and large—come the tidings at the close of day that the period of time which commenced on the first day of last July has been richer and busier than at any other time in the history of the city. Los Angeles simply is entering today upon what promises to be its most genuinely prosperous season, at least if the announcements made recently are to be regarded with any degree of significance.

"Internal revenue, above all, established its efficiency as a money-maker for Uncle Sam. The total for the fiscal year amounted, according to the statement made by the collector, to $1,886,086.80. This presents evidence of a remarkable increase over the revenue derived for the fiscal year ending a year ago, when the total was $1,389,985.67.

"The bank clearings since the first of January, 1914, total $609,401,525 and clearings for the month of June aggregated $98,923,979, or an increase of $3,789,179 over the corresponding month of last year. This also is a gain of more than $4,000,000 over June, 1912. The total for June, 1914, also shows a favorable advance over that of May."

Fusion Not to Be Thought Of.

The rather foolish talk of fusion between Democrats and Progressives in this state is more than matched by the remarkable G. O. P. suggestion in New Hampshire that if the Democrats will not oppose the return of that veteran standpatter, Doctor Gallinger, to the United States senate, the Republicans and Progressives will support the two Democratic congressmen for re-election. The Progressive share in the deal is to be the governorship. There is nothing to be gained by Democrats through such dickers. If their principles, as embodied in tariff reform legislation, mean anything, they cannot consistently vote for such a hardshell old reactionary as Gallinger, who stands for everything anti-Democratic. It would be better to go down in defeat with flags flying than to treat high offices as plums to be parceled out in this fashion.—Philadelphia Record.

The Bull Moose crowd ought to investigate the claim of that Chicago physician who says he can make dwarfs grow.—Washington Herald.

Canton Forgets His Own Part.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon has certainly lost sense of the nerve. Here he is blamed Taft for a large part of the Progressive outbreak, and entirely ignoring the big part he himself played by his autocratic course as speaker all the house. What can Democrats hope from [illegible] Republicans in congress [illegible]

"My Mother—A Prayer."

The following article from the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, entitled "My Mother—A Prayer," is by Tom Dillon, one of the most talented and popular writers on the Pacific coast. It is a beautiful tribute, that will find a fervent response in the heart of every real man:

MY MOTHER—A PRAYER.

For the body you gave me, the bone and the sinew, the heart and the brain that are yours, my mother, I thank you. I thank you for the light in my eyes, the blood in my veins, for my speech, for my life, for my being. All that I am is from you who bore me.

For all the love that you gave me, unmeasured from the beginning, my mother, I thank you. I thank you for the hand that led me, the voice that directed me, the lap that rested me. All that I am is by you, who nursed me.

For your smile in the morning and your kiss at night, my mother, I thank you. I thank you for the tears you shed over me, the songs that you sung to me, the prayers you said for me, for your vigils and ministerings. All that I am is by you, who reared me.

For the faith you had in me, the hope you had for me, for your trust and your pride, my mother, I thank you. I thank you for your praise and your chiding, for the justice you bred into me and the honor you made mine. All that I am you taught me.

For the sore travail that I caused you, for the visions and despairs, my mother, forgive me. Forgive me the peril I brought you to, the sobs and the moans I wrung from you; and for the strength I took from you, mother, forgive me.

For the fears I gave you, for the alarms and the dreads, my mother, forgive me. Forgive me the joys I deprived you, the toils I made for you, for the hours, the days, and the years I claimed from you, mother, forgive me.

For the times that I hurt you, the times I had no smile for you, the caresses I did not give you, my mother forgive me. Forgive me for my angers and revolts, for my deceits and evasions, for all the pangs and sorrows I brought to you, mother, forgive me.

For your lessons I did not learn, for your wishes I did not heed, for the counsels I did not obey, my mother, forgive me. Forgive me my pride in my youth and my glory in my strength that forgot the holiness of your years and the veneration of your weakness, for my neglect, for my selfishness, for all the great debts of your love that I have I have not paid, mother, sweet mother, forgive me.

And may the peace and the joy that passeth all understanding be yours, my mother, forever and ever. Amen.

No, I don't believe in three men dictating to the county what to do —neither do I believe in one small fellow trying to blow a "big horn."

Now I am too busy at work to write much and really there is nothing in his letter that calls for a reply but thought I would write a few lines to let the people know I was still living and still fighting for the right, and only want to let the people know that I am sick, tired and disgusted with these "pie hunters," willing to sacrifice any good cause for their own personal gain. I commend anyone who aspires to any lofty position in life, I am ready, willing and anxious to help those who are seeking fame through and by honest means; our country, state and county need more such men to fill their offices, and I believe that the day is not far distant when all the political schemers and tricksters will be discarded and the people will turn the influences to higher and more lofty planes, and then, and then only will our county prosper and take its place among the topmost counties of the state, where it rightfully belongs.

Very truly,

J. F. GOODGAME.

PARCEL POST EXHIBIT AT THE COUNTY FAIR

Clanton's efficient Postmaster, F. O. Dudley, has secured permission from the post office department to have an exhibit at the Chilton County Fair, to be held at Clanton October 26-31, 1914. A booth will be erected on the grounds, and the purpose of this exhibit will be to direct the attention of patrons to the great benefits to be derived from this branch of the postal service. Mr. Dudley hopes to make this exhibit one of the leading features of the Fair, and bring the people in closer touch with the parcel post system. Exhibits of parcel post shipments of food products and manufactured articles, with the weight of each sample and rate of postage to various points will prove most interesting to all who attend the Fair.

NEW CORPORATION.

Articles of incorporation were filed in the office of the Judge of Probate on August 21, incorporating Reliable Shoe Company in Clanton. The incorporators are S. M. Adams, J. B. Downs, E. M. Pinckard, H. F. Chandler, and M. A. Gore. The capital stock is $10,000.00. The Company will be engaged in the shoe and general mercantile business.

DO GOOD ROADS PAY?

Some farmers when asked to lend their aid in a movement to improve the nearby roads inquire what there is in it for them. The best answer to such a querry may be given by citing studies made by the Department of Agriculture in Virginia. Conditions in Spotsylvania county were investigated with particular care and the results have proved surprising. In 1909 the county voted $100,000 to improve forty miles of roads. Two years after the completion of this work the railroad took away in 12 months from Fredericksburg, the county seat, 71,000 tons of agricultural and forest products hauled over the highways to that town. Before the improvement of the roads this total was only 49,000 tons annually. Still more interesting, however, is the increase shown in the quantity of dairy products. In 1909 these amounted to 114,815 pounds; in 1914, 273,028 pounds, an increase of practically 140 per cent in two years. In the same time the shipments of wheat increased 39 per cent, tobacco 31 per cent, and lumber and other forest products 48 per cent. In addition the cost of hauling each ton of produce was materially reduced. It is estimated that the $100,000 spent in improving the roads in the county saved the farmers of that county alone $41,000 a year in transportation alone.

In Dinwiddie county, Va., where peanuts is the staple crop, the average load for two mules on a main road was about 1,000 pounds before the road was improved. After the improvement the average load was found to be 2,000 pounds, and the time consumed in hauling the larger load to market was much reduced. In other words one man with a wagon and two mules could do more than twice as much work with the improved road than with the unimproved road. This is the explanation of the extraordinary rise in the total output of agricultural products in a county with a good road system.—Montgomery Journal.

REVIVAL SERVICES

SCHOOL TEACHERS.

A school teacher is a person who teaches things to people when they are young. However, it would be unfair to accuse her of teaching them what they know when they grow up. She only teaches them what they have forgotton by that time.

The teacher comes to school at 8:30 o'clock, and when she has got enough children for a mess in her room she teaches them reading, writing, geography, grammar, arithmetic, music, drawing, cooking, board sawing, crocheting, deep breathing, bird calls, scientific eating, patriotism, plain and other sciences too numerous to mention. When school is out she stays behind with five or six of her worst scholars and tries to save the state the job of reforming them later on. After that she hurries home to make herself a new dress and scratch a hasty supper before going back to attend a lecture by an imported specialist on the history of tribal law in Patagonia, which the superintendent thinks may give her some information which may be useful in her school work some day. A great many lecturers roam the country preying on school teachers, and some of them are very cruel, talking to them so long that the poor things have to sit up until morning when they get home to get their daily test papers corrected.

School teachers' salaries range from $20 a month up—but not far enough up to make them dizzy. On her salary the teacher must dress nicely, buy herself things for her work which the city is too poor to get, go to 99 lectures and concerts a year, buy helpful books on pedagogy, pay her way to district, county and state institutes and enjoy herself during a three month's vacation which her salary takes every year. In addition the teacher is supposed to hoard away vast sums of money so that when she becomes too nervous and cross to teach, at the age of 50 or thereabouts, she can retire and live happily ever after on her income.

There is a popular superstition to the effect that great financiers can be found in Wall Street, and that they gather there every morning; but they don't. They gather in the schoolhouse of the land every morning, and as they teach the children of the nation twice as much as they will ever remember, they figure out new ways of dividing $45 in a month's board, a new dress, a trip to the county seat, a pair of shoes, two entertainment tickets, and insurance assessment and a deposit in the savings bank.—Geo. Fitch.

REPUBLICAN HOPE OF SUCCESS OVER DEMOCRATS IS GONE

Washington, Aug. 26, 1914.

Once on a time a sage remarked, "Twenty-four hours is an age in politics," and in this nation the republicans and progressives in Washington are basing what they hope they can obtain in the control of Congress [illegible] storm and would be drenched in a downpour of opposition votes. Which sounds poetical, but was practical in the minds of the opposition. Now, however, the clouds have rolled away from the democratic side of the field and the republicans and progressives are enshrouded in gloom.

The feelings of the opponents of the democratic administration generally are set forth by Representative Hinebaugh of Illinois, for years the supreme commander of the republican machine in his district, but now chairman of the progressive congressional committee. Hear him:

"Well, it looks as though the game were up and the democrats would retain control of Congress. And, speaking of luck, this administration ought to be prosecuted for maintaining a monopoly in that commodity. Six weeks ago the opposition had everything—business was bad, the south was in revolt, the administration was ridiculed at home and abroad for its Mexican policy and the democratic party itself was rent with discord in New York and several other states.

"Now, presto! The Mexican situation seems to have straightened itself, tremendous crops are reported from all parts of the country, opportunities for business expansion are opening in every direction and democratic discord is changing into a very fair semblance of harmony. The south is jubilant over the rise in the price of sugar, and the south bade fair to be a progressive stronghold, and the European war has so diverted the public mind from politics that it will be hard for the critics of the administration to find sympathetic audiences."

Six weeks ago a political Lloyd's would have demanded a heavy premium for insuring a substantial democratic victory in November. Now, few observers think it worth while to spend money for such insurance.

Compared with Frank P. Woods, chairman of the republican congressional committee, the oyster is a loquacious bird; under present political conditions Woods doesn't talk to even himself. But, he looks unutteruble things.

On the whole, belief prevails here that the democrats will come pretty near holding their present margin of control. The republicans may gain a few seats through defeat of progressives, of whom only a half dozen seem sure to be returned, such as Hinebaugh, Kelly of Pennsylvania, who pried John Dalzell out of the House; Woodruff of Michigan and Nolan, Bell and Stephens of California.—Age Herald.

Don't endure the needless pain and torment of rheumatism, aggravated as it is by the hot weather. W. T. Hutchens, Nicholson, Ga., says: "I suffered the aches and pains of rheumatism, swolen feet, irregular painful bladder action, but Foley Kidney Pills fixed me up quickly." Foley's are the best.—Alred Drug Co.

MUSIC TEACHER FOR THORSBY INSTITUTE

Miss Ruth Lassfolk of Chicago, Ill., has been secured as music teacher for Thorsby Institute for the coming school year. Miss Lassfolk is a graduate of the High School at Benton Harbor, Mich., and has studied both vocal, and instrumental music for several years at Kalamazoo College. She has also spent a year at the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago, taking work in Bible Study and Sacred Music. She is very highly spoken of by those who know her, both as a musician and as a woman of pleasing personality and high Christian character. She will give instruction on the organ and piano, and will also conduct classes in sight-singing, harmony, and the leading of choruses. All who desire to take special work in music will find an excellent opportunity here. School begins on Tuesday, September 8th.

New Ruling Gives Tobacco Customer Until October 25th to Discount Bills.

President Percival S. Hill, of the American Tobacco Company, has sent the following notice to all the company's customers in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas:

"We have become aware of the embarrassment brought on the cotton growing sections by the European war, and the resulting inability to market cotton crops. We earnestly hope and believe that this embarrassment is temporary. We are earnestly anxious, though, to contribute, so far as we can, to the relief of it. On that account we will permit our customers in the States above mentioned to discount their bills, on account of purchases made hereafter, within ten days after October 15th, 1914. This applies to all purchases of all our lines, and whether of drop shipments or stock shipments."

JEWELRY AUCTION SALE

It seems that the greatest centers of attraction for Clanton these days is Higgins, the Jeweler's auction sale of watches, jewelry, silverware, cut glass, china ware, etc. Last Saturday Higgins offered many cheap prices on a lot of his fine articles and many sales were made of the many fine articles Higgins had and let go so awful dirt cheap. We all now agree that it pays to attend these sales, the best proof being that some of the oldest and stingiest citizens in town are buying Higgins' the Jeweler's goods at such sacrifice prices as Higgins is now offering. Next great auction sale starts Saturday morning at 10 a.m and lasts till 12 p.m. next Saturday night, Aug. 29. Better get your wedding presents and nice gifts at once at this place.

A Stirring Story of the Mexican Revolution

SYNOPSIS.

Bud Hooker and Phil De Lancey are forced, owing to a revolution in Mexico, to give up their mining claim and return to the United States. In the border town of Gadsden Bud meets Henry Kruger, a wealthy miner, who makes him a proposition to return to Mexico to acquire title to a very rich mine which Kruger had blown up when he found he had been cheated out of the title by one Aragon. The Mexican subsequently spent a large sum in an unsuccessful attempt to relocate the vein and then allowed the land to revert for taxes. Hooker and De Lancey arrive at Fortuna near where the mine, known as the Eagle Tail, is located. They engage the services of Cruz Mendez, who has been friendly to Kruger, to acquire the title for them, and get a permit to do preliminary work. Aragon protests and accuses them of jumping his claim. Bud discovers that matrimonial entanglements prevent Mendez from perfecting a valid title. Phil, who has been paying attention to Aragon's daughter, Gracia, decides to turn Mexican and get the title in his own name. Bud objects to Phil's attentions to Gracia. Aragon fails in his attempt to drive them off the claim. Rebels are reported in the vicinity. Stories of rapine and bloodshed are brought in. Bud and Phil begin work in earnest on their claim.

CHAPTER XIII—Continued.

It was slow work; slower than they had thought, and the gang of Mexicans that they had hired for muckers were marvels of ineptitude. Left to themselves, they accomplished nothing, since each problem they encountered seemed to present to them some element of insuperable difficulty, to solve which they either went into caucus or waited for the boss.

To the Mexicans of Sonora Bernardo Bravo was the personification of all the malevolent qualities—he being a bandit chief who had turned first general and then rebel under Madero—and the fact that he had at last been driven out of Chihuahua and therefore over into Sonora, made his malevolence all the more imminent.

Undoubtedly, somewhere over to the east, where the Sierras towered like a blue wall, Bernardo and his outlaw followers were gathering for a raid, and the raid would bring death to Sonora.

He was a bad man, this Bernardo Bravo, and if half of the current stories were true, he killed men whenever they failed to give him money, and was never too hurried to take a fair daughter of the country up behind him, provided she took his fancy.

Yes, surely he was a bad man—but that did not clear away the rock.

For the first week Phil took charge of the gang, urging, directing and scolding them, and the work went merrily on, though rather slowly. The Mexicans liked to work for Don Felipe. He was so polite and spoke such good Spanish; but at the end of the week it developed that Bud could get more results out of them.

Every time Phil started to explain anything to one Mexican all the others stopped to listen to him, and that took time. But Bud's favorite way of directing a man was by grunts and signs and bending his own back to the task. Also, he refused to understand Spanish, and cut off all long-winded explanations and suggestions by an impatient motion to go to work, which the trabajadores obeyed with shrugs and grins.

So Don Felipe turned powder-man and blacksmith, sharpening up the drills at the little forge they had fashioned and loading the holes with dynamite when it became necessary to break a rock, while Bud bossed the unwilling Mexicans.

In an old tunnel behind their tent they set a heavy gate, and behind it they stored their precious powder. Then came the portable forge and the blacksmith shop, just inside the mouth of the cave, and the tent backed up against it for protection. For if there is any one thing, next to horses, that the rebels are wont to steal, it is giant powder to blow up culverts with, or to lay on the counters of timorous country merchants and frighten them into making contributions.

As for their horses, Bud kept them hobbled and hobbled, close to the house, and no one ever saw him without his gun. In the morning, when he got up, he took it from under his pillow and hung it on his belt, and there it stayed until bedtime.

He also kept a sharp watch on the trail, above and below, and what few men did pass through were conscious of his eye. Therefore it was all the more surprising when, one day, looking up suddenly from heaving at a great rock, he saw the big Yaqui soldier, Amigo, racing down at him from the east bank.

Yes, it was the same man, but with a difference—his rifle and cartridge belt were absent and his clothes were torn by the brush. But the same good-natured, competent smile was there, and after a few words with Phil he leaped nimbly down to the creek bed and took up the work. They pulled together, and the hombre that had called Bud's guns of marksmanship slowly for the life of them.

Then Amigo [illegible] however, slipped it [illegible] from a [illegible] Phil [illegible]

If he was hungry he showed it only by the cigarettes he smoked, and Hooker, studying up the chances he would take by hiring a deserter, let him wait until he came to a decision.

"Oyez, Amigo," he hailed at last, and, rubbing his hand around on his stomach, he smiled questioningly, whereat the Yaqui nodded his head avidly.

"Stawano!" said Hooker, "ven." And he left his Mexicans to dawdle as they would while he led the Indian to camp. There he showed him the coffee-pot and the kettle of beans by the fire, set out a slab of Dutch-oven bread and a sack of jerked beef, some stewed fruit and a can of sirup, and left him to do his worst.

In the course of half an hour or so he came back and found the Yaqui sopping up sirup with the last of the bread and humming a little tune. So they sat down and smoked a cigarette and came to the business at hand.

"Where you go?" inquired Bud; but Amigo only shrugged enigmatically.

"You like to work?" continued Bud, and the Indian broke into a smile of assent.

"Muy bien," said Hooker with finality; "I give Mexicans two dollars a day—I give you four. Is that enough?"

"Si," nodded the Yaqui, and without more words he followed Bud back to the cut. There, in half a day, he accomplished more than all the Mexicans put together, leaping boldly up the bank to dislodge hanging boulders, boosting them by main strength up onto the ramshackle tram they had constructed, and trundling them out to the dump with the shove of a mighty hand.

He was a willing worker, using his head every minute; but though he was such a hustler and made their puny efforts seem so ineffectual by comparison, he managed in some mysterious way to gain the immediate approval of the Mexicans. Perhaps it was his all-pervasive good nature, or the respect inspired by his hardihood; perhaps the qualities of natural leadership which had made him a picked man among his brother Yaquis. But when, late in the afternoon, Bud came back from a trip to the tent he found Amigo in charge of the gang, hearing and struggling and making motions with his head.

"Good enough!" he muttered, after watching him for a minute in silence, and leaving the new boss in command, he went back and started supper.

That was the beginning of a new day at the Eagle Tail, and when De Lancey came back from town—whither he went whenever he could conjure up an errand—he found that, for once, he had not been missed.

Bud Was Doing the Blacksmithing.

Bud was doing the blacksmithing, Amigo was directing the gang, and a fresh mess of beans was on the fire, the first kettleful having gone to reinforce the Yaqui's backbone. But they were beans well spent, and Bud did not regret the raid on his grub-pile. If he could get half as much work for what he fed the Mexicans he could well rest content.

"But how did this Indian happen to find you?" demanded Phil, when his partner had explained his acquisition. "Say, he must have deserted from his company when they brought them back from Mootezuma!"

"Mayn't think," commented Bud. "He ain't talking much, but I notice he keeps his eye out—they'd shoot him for a deserter if they could ketch him. I'd hate to see him go that way."

JAPAN AT WAR WITH GERMANY

Germany's Failure To Respond To The Japs' Ultimatum Results In War Declaration

AUSTRIANS MEET DEFEAT

Russians Report Success in Their Campaign Against the Germans in East Prussia.

Tokio.—The emperor of Japan has declared war on Germany. This action was taken at the expiration of the time limit of Japan's ultimatum to Germany demanding the surrender of Kiao-Chow.

The Japanese government has ordered the beginning of operations on land and sea.

The imperial rescript officially inaugurates hostilities in the Far East as a result of Germany's failure to reply to the Japanese ultimatum.

The proclamation of the emperor sent a thrill through the country. Japan's entrance upon the fulfillment of her obligations to her ally, Great Britain, responds to the popular will from one end of the land to the other. Cheering crowds assembled before the buildings occupied by the department of foreign affairs and the administration of the navy. There were lantern processions through the street. The popular manifestations, however, do not approach the enthusiasm which preceded the war with Russia.

Brilliant Victory for Servia

London.—A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram company from St. Petersburg says:

"After a brilliant Servian victory at Matschwa, the Austrians fled toward the bridges of the Drina, pursued by the Servians, who captured rich booty and a large number of prisoners, including officers. They took forty guns, most of them Howitzers; horses, ammunition and field, hospital and military kitchens, which were abandoned by the Austrians."

According to a Central News dispatch from Rome, many Austrians were drowned in their flight to the Drina river. The Servian artillery annihilated the survivors.

The correspondent says 25,000 Austrians were killed or wounded and 10,000 taken prisoners.

Germans Retreat From Prussia

London.—Announcement is made in St. Petersburg that the Germans are in full retreat and crossing the river Angerapp in East Prussia, according to the St. Petersburg correspondent of the Reuters Telegraph company. The correspondent adds that the passage across the river near Barkehmen is in the hands of the Russians. To the west of the Masar lakes the Russians occupied Johannisburg, Ortelsburg and Wilenberg.

Germany and Austria Make Last Call

Berlin.—Both Germany and Austria have called the Landstrum—their last reserve of troops—to the colors.

If the news of a great Servian victory, which comes from many sources, be true, Austria-Hungary, which must be reeling under the smashing blow delivered by her small adversary, will need every available man.

The Russian army on the eastern frontier of Germany gradually is emerging from the mist and in such force as will soon demand more attention.

May Confiscate German Property

Vancouver, British Columbia.—The British Columbia government is considering confiscating $9,000,000 worth of timber limits and other interests in this province owned by Baron Alvo Von Alvensleben and other wealthy Germans.

The government is understood also to be preparing for the confiscation of all German interests held under the crown, because of the reported confiscation of British interests in Germany by the imperial government.

Food Is Cheap in Paris

Paris.—Cheap living is an anomaly of the present situation in Paris. Meats sold at the lowest prices in twenty years, and at the central markets vegetables were abundant and comparatively cheap. This in spite of the fact that some merchants have raised their prices at the risk of boycott and prosecution.

American Minister's Narrow Escape

London.—The Central News says Doctors Lord and Laidlaw, two American clergymen who were delegates to the Carnegie peace conference at Constance, have arrived in London after trying experiences, including four days spent in a German jail.

Belgian Commander Captured

London.—Official sources confirm the reports that General Leman, the Belgian commander of the forts at Liege, is a prisoner of the Germans and en route for Cologne.

France and England Help Belgium

London.—A dispatch to the Havas agency from Paris says that France and Great Britain have agreed to advance Belgium 500,000,000 francs ($100,000,000), to enable her to face the necessities arising from the war. France and Great Britain will each provide one-half of this sum.

Belgian Reservists Reach France

London.—A Central News dispatch from Ostend, Belgium, says that 20,000 reservists from the French colonies have reached France.

ENGLAND BEGS FOR FOOD

U. S. SHIPPERS FEAR THEIR DRAFTS WILL NOT BE HONORED PROMPTLY

Ships Leaving New York Are Not Carrying Half of Their Capacity.

New York.—Every ship that sails out of New York for English ports these days sail light, though England is begging for food.

The liner Celtic left with 5,000 tons of foodstuffs in her hold, when she might have carried 16,000 tons. The Kroonland left with 4,500 and room for 8,000 more. The Adriatic, St. Paul, New York, Philadelphia and others of the thirteen ships of the international mercantile marine which have departed for England since the war started, have carried light cargoes. Other lines tell the same story.

The storage warehouses in and around New York are choked with supplies for which England is offering fancy prices.

The reason none of this food is going to England, officials of the trans-Atlantic lines assert, is because American shippers have no assurances that their drafts will be honored in England promptly. Tons of merchandise, these officials say, are held up until arrangements are made to enable purchasers to pay promptly in gold for American supplies.

Although in need of foodstuffs generally, for the moment, England is almost oversupplied with grain, according to estimates made by the officials of the international mercantile marine. This is due, they say, to the diversion to British ports of large cargoes in bottoms bound for continental ports at the outbreak of the war.

Great Britain needs sugar more than any other article. For the first time in years, British merchants are importing direct from New York. The bulk of England's sugar came, before the war, from Germany and central Europe. Nearly 1,500 tons were on the Celtic, and 1,350 tons were aboard the Kroonland.

Capture of German Flag Described

Paris.—An officer of the French rifle regiment gives to the Petit Troyon the following account of the capture of the first German flag:

"The engagement of the French troops with the Ninety-ninth brigade of Germans lasted from 5:30 a. m. to 2 p. m.

"The military combat was terrible. The French 75-millimeter guns made havoc among the German horses and then reduced the heavy German guns to silence. The gunners were decimated by the French fire and they abandoned their pieces, which fell into French hands."

Great Britain Warns America

Washington.—The British government will consider it a direct violation of American neutrality if the Cramp steamer Minneapolis docked exclusively at San Francisco is permitted to sail with coal for the warships now in Canadian or the British exclusively have taken the matter up with the state department. It was intimated that the question was friendly under consideration by the department and some phases of it may be the subject of inquiry.

MOTHER OF SCHOOL GIRL

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Daughter's Health.

Plover, Iowa.—"From a small child my 13 year old daughter had female weakness. I spoke to three doctors about it and they did not help her any. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had been of great benefit to me, so I decided to have her give it a trial. She has taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound according to directions on the bottle and she is cured of this trouble. She was all run down when she started taking the Compound and her periods did not come right. She was so poorly and weak that I often had to help her dress herself, but now she is regular and is growing strong and healthy."—Mrs. MARTIN HELVIG, Plover, Iowa.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old remedy.

If you are ill do not drag along and continue to suffer day in and day out but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a woman's remedy for woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

HERE IS A GOOD WAY TO GET RID OF PIMPLES

Bathe your face for several minutes with resinol soap and hot water, then apply a little resinol ointment very gently. Let this stay on ten minutes, and wash off with resinol soap and more hot water, finishing with a dash of cold water to close the pores. Do this once or twice a day, and you will be astonished to find how quickly the healing, antiseptic resinol medication soothes and cleanses the pores, removes pimples and blackheads, and leaves the complexion clear and velvety. All druggists sell resinol soap and resinol ointment.—Adv.

Every man who realizes his responsibility for the general welfare and does his part, is a true citizen. It is by just such men that a community is built up and prospers.

As usual, the Bull Moose in the Ninth district have had another split. The meeting of the Committee in Birmingham Tuesday resulted in a row, and meetings were held by both factions.

The mosquitoes have caught the war spirit and have "mobolized" in large numbers. We have issued our ultimatum and if the pesky things don't evacuate we are going to sic the Kaiser on them.

The speculator is reaping tremendous benefits as a result of the present European conflict. Sugar has gone almost out of reach. The U. S. government, in keeping with its policy to protect the people's interests, is making a rigid investigation of the course pursued by these sharks, in their efforts to swell their coffers while the masses suffer, and it is to be hoped the guilty perpetrators will be vigorously dealt with.

Judge Reynolds, with his characteristic style, as Cane Creek Monday night in his desperation to bolster up a weak cause, "went after" the Board of County Commissioners and arraigned them severely for what he termed their utter and reckless disregard for the interests of the "dear people." He also paid his respects to the Press. He was so busy pouring out his wrath, abuse and innuendo that he neglected to inform his auditors what went with the county's money while he was on the throne.

public announcement of his withdrawal of his endorsement of the Hinman candidacy is an admission that the first step in his plan of seizing the Republican party and reuniting it with the Progressive party for the campaign of 1916 had failed.

Senator Hinman adopted the ambiguous course of being both a candidate, both in the Republican and Progressive primaries. At the Republican conference they cornered him and after so long a time wrung a statement from him that if defeated in the Republican primaries he would not run as a candidate of any other party. For that, Roosevelt cut loose from him.

The Hinman candidacy was the peg on which Roosevelt hung his first fusion scheme. Having declared again and again, that under no circumstances would he countenance fusion with the Republicans he urged Hinman to enter the Republican primaries and endorsed him as a Progressive Republican, on the one hand and on the other he endorsed him as a candidate for the Progressive nomination. In his trip through New England Roosevelt encountered a strong sentiment among the Progressives against any sort of fusion, and he tacked in his course.

Without Hinman Roosevelt stands but little chance of taking over the Republican party. Fusion died in the borning. Roosevelt will have to turn a new trick to get both the Republican and Progressive parties behind his candidacy for the Presidency.—Montgomery Advertiser.

The Political Speaking at Cane Creek as Seen by a Press Reporter.

Though some fairness was displayed by some of the speakers, much was said by the Roosevelt of Chilton (L. H. Reynolds) which tends to poison the minds of the people and fill them with prejudice. Instead of telling the people how to meet the present crisis brought on by the European conflict, he is howling calamity and ruin. He would repeal every law enacted by the present Congress, and build a tariff wall around the United States so high that foreign competition would be impossible, and thereby add many millions to the wealth of the fifty men who own half of our nation's wealth at the expense of the common people. He would have the people believe that their tax money has not been spent to good advantage, and that the Democrats are thieves and robbers, when the fact can be well established that in proportion to the number who hold office in Alabama the Republican-Progressive party hold the honor of having the greatest number of grafters and absconders. He would have the people believe that Chilton county is a ruined county and that the Democrats did it, though the majority of the offices in Chilton county are filled by men of the Republican-Progressive party, especially the office of County Commissioners, who are the financiers of the county. That is alright if the county does owe some on its roads and road machines, the county has something to show for it, namely: several miles of good roads, good bridges, better schools and many handsome school buildings, as well as other improvement. Now will the good prophet tell the dear people where the money went during his administration?

WOODMEN RESOLUTIONS

Hall of Clanton Camp No. 322, Woodmen of the World,
Clanton, Ala., Aug. 10th, 1914.
To the Consul Commander and Sovereigns of Clanton Camp:

We, the undersigned committee of three heretofore appointed to draft and present resolutions upon the death of our late Sovereign, Ernest Mahan, beg leave to submit the following.

Sovereign Mahan was born in Chilton County, Alabama, near Clanton on September 2nd, 1887, and died at his residence in Clanton, Ala., on the 8th day of June, 1914.

Sovereign Mahan became a member of our order while residing in the State of Texas, and united with this camp by card. The insurance certificate was issued to Sovereign Mahan prior to his marriage and was payable to his neice.

On January 20, 1914, Sovereign Mahan was married to Miss Knowlton Marcus who survives him.

At the time of his death Sovereign Mahan was a member of our Camp in good standing and was buried at the cemetery in Clanton with full honors of our fraternity.

Therefore be it resolved, that in the death of Sovereign Mahan this camp has lost a worthy member, that his wife has lost a loving and affectionate husband, and our community a good citizen.

Be it further resolved, that we extend to the widow of our departed Sovereign our heartfelt sympathy and commend her to the Sovereigns as one worthy of their care and good will.

Be it furthermore resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be published in each of the county papers, that a copy be furnished his widow and that they be spread upon the minutes of this Camp.

Respectfully submitted,
G. W. Willis,
J. P. Crumpton,
W. F. Culpepper,
Committee.

To the Consul Commander and Sovereigns of Local Camp No. 322, Woodmen of the World:

We, the committee appointed by you to draft resolutions on the death of Sovereign Rudolph Cleckler, report as follows:

1st. Resolved, whereas God has seen fit to remove from this forest one more of its trees, whose branches shelter the weak and helpless. Though this tree decayeth the emblem of Woodcraft will ever mark the place where it has fallen.

2nd. Resolved, that Clanton Camp No. 322, has lost one of its faithful members, his wife an affectionate husband, his children a kind and loving father; the community in which he lived a friend and neighbor.

3rd. Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be furnished his widow and children; that they be published in each of the county papers, and a copy be spread upon the minutes of this camp.

4th. Resolved, though Sovereign Cleckler was a member just two short months, he was in good standing and his family is entitled to, and will receive all the benefits his policy calls for, and a monument will be erected by the Woodmen of the World to his memory.

E. F. Sartor,
G. W. Willis,

Iowa Man Stuck With Pitchfork.

A farmer living in the Northern part of Iowa stuck himself in the leg with a pitch fork. The wound would not heal, and for two years he had a running sore. He tried all the common salves and liniments and sometimes the sore would heal, but it always broke open again. Finally he healed it up to stay healed with Allan's Ulcerine Salve.

This salve is one of the oldest remedies in America and since 1869 it has been known as the only salve powerful enough to cure chronic ulcers and old sores of long standing.

Allan's Ulcerine Salve acts by drawing out the poisons and healing the sore from the bottom up. It is so powerful that it heals new cuts and sores in one third the time that common salves and liniments take. And it heals burns and scalds without a scar. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co., and other leading druggists.

Hen in Ostrich Class.

Even the hens of Winsted like to do unusual things. Rolland Wilson has a Rhode Island red with an especial dislike for the old-fashioned life. The other day this hen, which is a year old, made up her mind not only to win fame for herself, but to add new fame to the village of her birth. She achieved her purpose by laying an egg the like of which never has been seen here.

As a matter of actual measurement the egg's two circumferences are eight and one-fourth and seven and one-fourth inches. It weighs five ounces. Poultry authorities will move to Missouri before they pass on any contentions for this record as the mark for the year.—Winsted (Conn.) Dispatch to New York World.

Meeting the Emergency.

One day Jones lost a button from his serge coat, and on leaving for the office on the following morning he asked little bridie if she wouldn't repair the damage during the day. Little bridie, of course, sweetly promised.

"Where are you, Harry?" called the young wife on hearing hubby rambling around the house that evening. "What are you looking for?"

"I am looking for my blue serge coat," answered Harry. "Did you sew on that button?"

"No, dear," came the startling rejoinder of wifey. "I couldn't find the button so I sewed up the buttonhole."

Every Weber Wagon We Sell Is Inspected Four Times

Instead of waiting until you need a wagon and then taking the first that's offered you, find out in advance which wagon will give you the best service. Buy the wagon that will stand up for the longest time and be easiest on your horses.

That wagon is a Weber. Here's why. Each Weber wagon is thoroughly inspected. The lumber used is selected from large purchases of first grade oak and hickory for wheels and gears, the finest yellow or bay poplar for box sides, and long leaf yellow pine for bottoms.

Every piece of this lumber is carefully inspected, and each part cut from it is again inspected when it is shaped and ironed. The third inspection is made just before the wagon is painted, and insures [illegible] of every part. The final inspection is made when the [illegible] delivery. Prof. Pickens Offers Good Advice to Students.

Clanton, Ala., August 24, 1914

Dear young friend:—

Do you know that there are only three classes of people in the world? The few who lead, the great masses who follow, and the crowd who are driven by the bidding of the first—not because the few find satisfaction in driving, but because the latter lack vision and are therefore incapacitated for taking any initiative. The question for you to answer is in which of those three classes are you going to stand? The first class, of course. Well, let us see. You are a graduate of the Seventh Grade. That will give you one chance in nine thousand to be one of the ten thousand leaders in this great American life. Then your chances are small. But if you attend the Chilton County High School for four years, you will have one chance in four hundred for leadership and distinction. You say "that sounds good," but that you are not able. Let us see again. The financial side to an education is one of the minor prerequisites. Self-confidence, courage, energy, grit, hope, enthusiasm, ambition, endurance, and then a surplus of these are the things in which one should invest, would he prepare himself for successful leadership. Hesitation, doubt, timidity, fear and discouragement are the qualities of which he should rid himself. Acquire and use the former, reject and overcome the latter, and you will truly be a leader.

The Russell Sage Investigating Committee found Alabama at the foot of the list of states educationally, the State Department of Education tells us that Alabama's grown up white illiterates are seven out of every one hundred, but that Chilton county's grown up white illiterates are nine to every hundred —a sad fact—Chilton at the foot. What are we going to do? Are we to stand dumb as the convicted criminal without a word to say, or are we to accept this unwelcome fact as a challenge to our enterprising pride and go out and battle against it as the patriot does when his home is attacked by a foreign foe?

Then young man prepare yourself for leadership in this struggle by entering the Clanton High School on Monday, September 7th, and then be transferred to the County High School on January 1st without losing any time or lessons. The L. & N. trains run so that you can get a school ticket and stay at home if you are within three miles of any station. Should you live further than that you can come in on Monday morning and go back on Friday afternoon, thereby having to board only about half of the time. You will be charged no tuition in the county school—only $2.50 per term or $5.00 per session for incidentals. Our building is now going up and when completed it will be one of the best in the State Visit it when in Clanton. We have twenty acres of land for play grounds and farm demonstration purposes, and are equipping the building for manual training and domestic science.

While we are crowded in our town school, we will be glad to serve you as best we can until the county school opens.

Yours very truly,

ALABAMA STATE FAIR'S REPUTATION FOR HIGH CLASS AMUSEMENTS VERY WIDE

Biggest Annual Event of Alabama Comes Off This Year September 28 to October 10—Colossal Array of Amusements. Never Before Equalled in the Whole South.

The reputation of the Alabama State Fair for high class amusement at its every successive season is widely known—in fact, so widely known that the names of the Alabama State Fair and High Class Amusements are synonymous.

When the fair opens this fall—September 28 to October 10—there will be the biggest aggregation of high class shows that have ever been on the fair grounds at Birmingham.

There will be the Pleasure Plaza with 25 of the best midway shows that have ever been brought south—the Rice & Dore company, which is known from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from Canada to the last point in Florida, as a high class amusement company.

The free acts in front of the grandstand are not mere figureheads as many fairs have. These are real acts and are worth going miles to see just these acts themselves. A huge stage is maintained directly in front of the grandstand and all you have to do to see the biggest vaudeville show in the south is to go and sit in the grandstand.

And at night, in addition to the great vaudeville show of free acts, there will be presented the great pyrotechnical display of the Panama Canal. Warships passing through the canal in time of war with the vast fortifications of Uncle Sam vividly shown in wonderfully realistic effects will be shown in this spectacle. This is

SAM H. FOWLKES,

Acting Secretary Alabama State Fair, absolutely free as well as the free acts.

In the afternoons there will be the best races shown on any Southern track. Many horses widely and favorably known in the Grand Racing Circuit will be on this track and will race, adding zest to the already famous Alabama State Fair races. This has been one of the most successful features of the past years, however, and this season's racing is to be of a higher class than ever before.

Clanton High School

The Clanton High School will open its next session Monday, September 7. The course of study for the upper gradns is the same as that of the County High Schools, therefore pupils of such grades will be transfered without examination on January 1, to the county school. Tuition $1.50 to $2.50 per month for first four months; Board $10 to $15 per calender month.

TOO MUCH RAIN SAY FARMERS

Boll Weevil Is Held Responsible for Considerable Damage According to Bulletin of Captain Keith.

MARKET IS UNSATISFACTORY

Prices for Cotton Are Considerably Below What is Asked for the Staple.

Montgomery.—Complaint has been received at the state department of agriculture and industries that too much rain has fallen in certain sections of the state during the past week, while from other sections word has come that the boll weevil is doing considerable damage, according to the most recent weekly satement of the agricultural department.

The statement declares that prices for cotton are considerably below what is asked for the staple and that the market condition is most unsatisfactory.

According to the department's report the popularity of crimson clover is marked throughout the state. The report declares, however, that the European war has cut short the supply of seed.

"This has been a bountiful fruit year and the pantry of many a country home will bear splendid attest to this fact in supplementing the table supplies next winter when times will be even harder than now," says the report.

In conclusion the report says: "Of course, it is beyond the capacity of any one to foretell what the next few months will bring to the country and the world as a result of the European upheaval, but with due allowance for the gravity of the situation as it exists, the lot of the Southern farmer, all things considered, can be favorably compared with that of the people of the rest of the country and if the situation is not materially worse than now we can afford to pay our part of the penalty that an unusual situation has brought to the world."

AGAINST FEE SYSTEM.

Huntsville Civic League Will Ask the Legislature to Free County

Huntsville.—The Civic League of Huntsville has placed itself on record as being against the fee system in Madison County and will memorialize the state legislature to free Madison County from the system next year.

The league became acquainted with the operations of the fee system when the attention of some of the ladies were attracted to two young boys from a Western sate who had been arrested here as they were passing through the city on the "blind baggage" of a passenger train and put to work on the street gang. The organization made up a purse, paid the boys out and sent them to their homes.

Weevil Experts Visit Demopolis.

Demopolis.—Demopolis was visited by a delegation from the Business Men's League of Lafayette, Chambers county. These gentlemen came in automobiles, there being 14 in the party. They have been touring different parts of the state, and are particularly interested in the boll weevil situation in Marengo county. Chambers county, it is said, is a rival with Marengo for third place in the cotton production of Alabama, Montgomery and Dallas being first and second.

New Decatur May Change Name.

Decatur.—The ordinance authorizing the people of New Decatur to vote on changing the name of New Decatur to Morgan City is now a law without the signature of Mayor Robert H. Wolcott, and the vote on the question will be taken September 21, the date of the city election.

Hale Cotton Crop Damaged.

Greensboro.—Owing to a wet month the cotton has been damaged considerably, the boll weevil taking full advantage of the ideal weather for its progress. The crop that will be made is that already on the stalks. The army worm is reported to have made its appearance in some portions of Hale.

Cattle Shipment Made.

Athens.—C. E. Frost and brothers shipped 50 head of the finest cattle from their river plantation to Chicago that were ever loaded on a train in this section. They had plenty of fat steers that would weigh 1300, and all as slick as moles. These cattle were carried through the winter on silage, and then turned into fine pastures in the spring, and are largely profit to their owners. They have several hundred head of other fine cattle on their farm, and are making this industry profitable.

Going His First "Moonshining."

Montgomery.—Marion A. O'Daniel, a resident of Elmore county, a few days finished his first gallon of moonshine whiskey when revenue officers came upon him and destroyed his outfit, Internal Commissioner Blanton Hodges following hard on the heels of the grand jury. O'Daniel had put up two gallons of beer and was beginning to operate on his distillery when the officers came. He represented that he was poor and had been operating the plant only a few days when the officers appeared. They promised such would be his answer.

FARMERS' UNION COTTON PLAN

Resolutions Passed at Meeting of Body in Birmingham.

Birmingham. — "We, the Farmers' Union of the State of Alabama, in convention assembled, ask that you demand of the government that money be advanced to the farmers direct on cotton warehouse receipts and that the banks be allowed no discretion as to the rate of interest, nor as to the loans. We urge immediate action, as cotton is being sacrificed daily. "(Signed.) C. S. Barrett, national president; O. B. Ford, state president; Charles S. Gay, G. T. McElderry, J. F. Duncan, W. A. Morris, Dr. J. B. Vines and W. H. Conway."

The above telegram was sent to every Alabama congressman in Washington and a copy was sent to W. P. G. Harding, of the federal reserve board, the resolution so that effect having been adopted by the Farmers' Union at its session.

G. T. McElderry brought up the matter and fought it to a successful conclusion. The idea embodied in the resolution, which was presented by the committee on warehouses, is that the government lend money on all cotton stored in bonded warehouses, issuing a warehouse slip valued at $50 a bale, said slip to be used as a medium of exchange between farmers and those with whom they deal.

The legislative committee of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union presented resolutions which were adopted favoring the placing of all convicts upon the public roads; more rural school houses; abolition of the fee system; local taxation for schools and strongly indorsing the works of the various corn, tomato and pig clubs throughout the state. In addition to these recommendations the report suggested that the president of the union be empowered to appoint a legislative committee, headed by himself, to go to Mongomery, when the legislature meets, and work for the enactment of such laws. This, too, was adopted.

O. P. Ford of McCall and T. J. Kennedy of Birmingham again head the Alabama division of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union, being unanimously re-elected at the concluding session of the annual convention of the union.

Of unusual interest was the election of Mrs. Thomas M. Owen of Montgomery, wife of the state librarian and a daughter of Senator Bankhead, as a member of the executive committee. This honor is distinctive, Mrs. Owen being the first woman in the United States to be elected to an executive position in the Farmers' Union. She was congratulated by National President C. C. Barrett on her election, and thanked for her work as a delegate to the convention.

The other officers elected were:

Executive committee: J. N. Wyatt, Siluria, re-elected; E. W. Winslett, Dadeville; L. M. Duncan, Auburn, and R. C. Hicks of Bibb county.

G. W. Barrett of Macon county was elected vice president and E. J. Wooten state lecturer.

WILL HAVE FAIR EXHIBIT.

Methods of Packing Parcel Post Bundles Will Be Demonstrated.

Birmingham.—The local postoffice will have an exhibit at the Alabama State fair, according to Postmaster T. H. Aldrich. The plan was suggested in a letter from Washington received by the postmaster.

Demonstration of the proper method of packing eggs, butter, fruit, vegetables and other produce supplied through parcel post to Birmingham people, will be given in the booth. A clerk from the postoffice will be in charge of the demonstration. Boxes and packing cases of all kinds will be on display.

Users of Sugar Complain.

Birmingham.—Special agents of the government are already at work investigating the alleged conspiracy to boost the price of foodstuffs, and it is understood that information of alleged combinations in restraint of trade has been received by Judge Robert N. Bell, United States district attorney.

ALABAMA BREVITIES.

The crop conditions are extra good around Oneonta, it is reported, except that cotton is making too much stalk.

Extensive repairs will be made to the court house at Gadsden as a result of a decision reached by the county commissioners.

As a result of the revival at Union Grove Baptist church 15 have been added to the membership.

Joseph Tolbert is building a store at Hopsey.

MUST PROVE TITLE TO SCHOOL LANDS

Claimants of Unpatented Sixteenth Section Lands Must Show Title or Pay, Says State Land Agent.

NEWS LETTER FROM CAPITAL

Happenings in and About Alabama's State House Interestingly Told.

Montgomery. — Claimants of unpatented Sixteenth Section school lands in the State of Alabama who have failed to establish their title to these lands must pay the state for them, according to W. J. Martin, State Land Agent, who issued a statement that suit would be brought against the claimants immediately. Mr. Martin will act in accordance with instructions received from Governor O'Neal.

"Some time ago the governor gave instructions that all the unpatented Sixteenth Section lands in the state which were claimed and occupied by various persons should be recovered, by suit, if necessary, except in cases which might be compromised," said Mr. aMrtin.

"Following publication of this announcement hundreds of applications were filed and proof in support of the applicants' claims to the property was submitted. These cases are being compromised and settled, and, of course there will be no suit in any of them.

"In all other cases, where the parties claiming these lands have failed to respond to the notices sent them, it is taken for granted that they are unable to make proof as to sufficient possession to entitle them to the property, and action will be brought to recover the lands claimed by them."

CORPORATION LAWS CODIFIED.

Daniel W. Troy Prepares Handbook Dealing With Subject.

Montgomery. — Foreign corporation laws in Alabama have been codified and compiled in documentary form by Daniel W. Troy, special counsel for the state in foreign corporation cases. The volume is just off the press and it will supply a strong demand among the lawyers of the state.

Mr. Troy is considered one of the leading authorities in the state on every phase of the corporation law and his handbook has already met with much favor among the lawyers of the state.

GOVERNOR OFFERS REWARD.

Pomp Dickerson of Lee County is Charged With Brutal Killing.

Montgomery.—Details of one of the most horrible crimes ever committed in Alabama have been received at the office of Governor O'Neal from Lee County and as a result a reward of $100 was offered for the conviction of Pomp Dickerson, charged with wife murder.

It is alleged that Dickerson killed his wife and hid the body in a swamp where it was found a few days later. It was horribly mutilated. Dickerson disappeared.

The request that a reward be offered for the arrest of Dickerson was made by Sheriff G. P. Butler and Solicitor G. A. L. Samford.

Good Showing at Asylum.

Montgomery.—Books and accounts of the Bryce Insane Hospital, located at Tuscaloosa, are in excellent condition, and the institution is a model of its kind, according to Public Accountant J. T. Gorman in a report to the Governor of Alabama.

The report of the examiner covered a period extending from October 1, 1913, to July 31, 1914, during which period the total receipts from all funds amounted to $724,348.30, and disbursements $699,591.53.

Examiner Gorman declared that on August 1 last there were 1424 patients in Bryce Hospital and 775 patients in the Mt. Vernon Hospital, colored.

"No state in the United States has a better and more modern asylum for the treatment and protection of its unfortunate insane population than Alabama."

New Banks Begin Business.

Montgomery.—Papers reporting the incorporation of the Wilsonville State bank of Wilsonville, Shelby county, have been filed in the office of the secretary of state. The bank began business with a paid in capital of $10,000. A. H. Smith and several others are interested.

The Tuskegee State bank of Tuskegee, Macon county, is another new one. The new institution with $25 a paid in capital of $25,000.

Wallace Says Game Laws Should Be So Amended.

Montgomery.—Game laws of Alabama will be amended at the next session of the legislature so as to provide protection for fur-bearing animals, according to John H. Wallace, Jr., state game and fish commissioner. Mr. Wallace believes that a season for fur-bearing animals should be prescribed and that adequate punishment should be provided for those who disregard the law.

"No semblance of protection has ever been furnished even the most valuable of our fur-bearing animals, such as beaver, otter and mink," said Mr. Wallace. "They have been taken at will at all seasons of the year, regardless of the fact that during the spring, summer and early fall months the fur is practically worthless and now these valuable quadrupeds are nearing the point of extinction.

"Many states prohibit the taking of otter and beaver at any season of the year. The constantly diminishing resources of this state, as it consists in fur-bearing animals, should be protected by providing that these quadrupeds can only be taken during the winter months, and that those trapping for them on the lands of others cannot do so legally without first having had duly issued to them a trapper's license."

DESTROY INTEREST COUPONS.

Huge Sum Represented Interest on State's Debt in January.

Montgomery.—Destruction of interest bearing coupons for $60,955, representing the interest on the state's debt in January, has been reported to the governor by Examiner of Public Accounts J. T. Gorman, who verified the amount and payments and assisted Treasurer John Purifoy in burning the coupons.

The examiner reported that records of the state's debt are being properly kept. His investigation showed that $35,000 is credited to the bond redemption fund in the American National bank of New York.

Alabama Exhibit at Frisco.

Montgomery.—The European war will have no effect on the plans for Alabama representation at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, which will be held next year at San Francisco, according to a telegram sent by Lee Cowart, secretary of the Alabama exposition commission, to Charles C. Moore, president of the exposition. Mr. Cowart's telegram was sent in answer to a request from President Moore that Alabama's position and intention be outlined so that the information can be included in a statement to be issued soon by William Jennings Bryan, secretary of state.

"Our national government, through the department of justice, desires to proclaim to the world that there will be no postponement of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition," wires President Moore.

Suit Against Sheriff Filed.

Montgomery.—In a suit filed in the city court the State of Alabama claims $750 from Sheriff Horace Hood for funds alleged to have been illegally collected from the state by the officer's feed bills, which the state claims were irregular.

The suit grew out of a report made by Examiner Townes to Governor O'Neal, who charges irregularity in the feed bills and the illegal payment of such. Sheriff Hood denies owing the state any money and recently informed the state board of compromise that he would not pay any such amount unless ordered by the court.

Pope Given Respite.

Montgomery.—Governor O'Neal has granted a four weeks' respite to Ervin Pope, condemned negro murderer of Calhoun county, who was to have been executed Friday, August 21. Notice of the respite was telegraphed to the sheriff of Calhoun county and the prisoner has been transferred to the Jefferson county jail for safe-keeping.

Injunction Against Headland.

Montgomery.—An injunction to restrain the town of Headland, Ala., from enforcing its license tax of $500 against the Buckeye Cotton Oil company was granted the corporation by Judge Gaston Gunter in the city court in equity.

Road Contracts for Greene and Marion.

Montgomery.—Contracts for the construction of state-aid roads in Greene and Marion counties have been let by the state highway department. The new road in Greene county will cost $1500, of which amount the state will pay $[illegible]

FRENCH AND BRITISH SUFFER A REVERSE

Allies are Forced to Retire Following a Bloody Encounter With the German Army.

LOSSES REPORTED AS HEAVY

Offensive Plans Against the Kaiser's Troops Checked Along Long Battle Line.

Paris. — The French and British troops, opposing the invasion of the German army in Belgium have suffered a serious reverse, according to the official announcement issued by the French war office. In the battle line, which extends from Mons to the Luxemburg frontier, several army corps, composed of both British and French, took the offensive on Sunday against the Germans, but their plan of atatack failed, owing to the "unforeseen difficulties" as described by the official statement, and the troops retired on the covering positions.

The losses on both sides are reported as extremely heavy, and the French officials describe the Germans as being obliged to establish themselves in fresh positions in Lorraine.

The French have abandoned those portions of Alsace and Lorraine which they previously had occupied and now look for heavy fighting in French territory.

Detachments of German cavalry, operating on the extreme right, have reached Roubaix, a few miles north of Lille. This territory is defended only by reservists.

At Tsing-Tau, capital of Kiauchau, the German protectorate in China, the German forces have prepared for a bombardment by the Japanese fleet by dynamiting all the tall structures there which might be used there by the attacking forces as sighting points. They also have taken all possible measures to oppose the advance of a Japanese field army.

There is a report emanating from Rome and Avlona that the Albanian insurgents have entered Avlona and raised their flag.

Emperor Nicholas of Russia is reported to have gone to the headquarters of the Russian army which has taken the offensive in full strength and is said to be advancing rapidly in east and west Prussia.

A late dispatch from Copenhagen gives further reports from Austria that Emperor Francis Joseph is in a grave condition.

COTTON CONFERENCE HELD

Producer Must Be Assisted and Assistance Must Be Immediate—Southerners Attend.

SMITH BILL PASSES.

Washington. — The Senate, without roll call, passed the so-called cotton warehouse license bill, proposed by Senator Hoke Smith originally to add value to cotton warehouse certificates by means of government inspection and certification of the grades of cotton stored in licensed warehouses.

Washington. — Three points were emphasized above all others at the conference held here by Secretary McAdoo, the Federal reserve board and representatives of the cotton planters, manufacturers, merchants and bankers to discuss ways and means for carrying the cotton crop to the close of the European war.

First, the producer is the man to be assisted rather than the manufacturer, the banker, the merchant or, above all, the speculator.

Second, any help to be fully effective must be immediate.

Third, the planters are not asking for "rescue," but are to be entrusted as men capable of handling them, with the means of aiding themselves over the present period of emergency.

The first two points were brought out by representatives of the cotton interests in Alabama and the third was voiced by President Wilson in an address to the visitors at the White House.

Beyond this, Secretary McAdoo said the treasury was prepared to handle the situation and indicated that "with warehouse facilities, cotton warehouse receipts could be made the basis for the issue of the national bank circulation." With the federal reserve system in operation, he estimated that the banks of the south would be able to secure national bank currency to finance 4,000,000 bales of her 5 bale A total of $180,000,000.

"At Herbesthal we were searched and examined by German officers, and were then allowed to take a military train to Aix la Chapelle, from which place we got a cab to the Dutch frontier. At the village of Bear they told us that we could get a train to Maestricht. On arriving there we found the Dutch army mobilized, practically all the trains used for soldiers and the main roads and bridges blockaded to resist an army of 150,000 German soldiers just outside.

"We deemed it inadvisable to wait at Maestricht for a possible train, and the next day we hired an automobile. This broke down at ten o'clock that night. ILL ONLY FOR SHORT TIME

Alarming Symptoms Developed Early Wednesday Morning, Bronchial Trouble Direct Cause

Rome, August 20.—Pope Pius X died at 1:30 o'clock this morning. He had been ill several days, but alarming symptoms did not develop until recently.

Throughout the day Doctors Marchiafava and Amici devoted their utmost energies to stimulating their patient and keeping him alive.

The cardinals were notified of the pope's grave condition and some of them who entered the sick room describe the scene as heartrendering, especially when the pontiff, rousing himself from time to time, spoke. Once he said, "In ancient times the pope by a word might have stayed the slaughter, but now he is impotent."

Prayers were said by thousands and church bells sounded when the sacrament was exposed upon all the altars. When the court learned of the pope's condition there was the deepest concern. King Victor Emmanuel personally informed Queen Helena and the news was communicated to the queen mother.

Extreme unction was administered by Monsignor Zampini, sacristan to his holiness, amid a touching scene. The pope's sisters and his niece were overcome with grief. Cardinal Merry Del Val knelt by the side of his bed, where other cardinals joined him, members of the household intoning prayers.

The dying pope, in a moment of lucidity, said

"Now, I begin to think as the end is approaching that the Almighty in His inexhaustible goodness wishes to spare me the horrors Europe is undergoing."

Wednesday was one of the most anxious days in the history of the papacy. The whole world knew that the pope was indisposed, but it was supposed he was suffering from usual ailment, the gout. Up to noon even the members of the household were unaware of the seriousness of the developments. Almost without warning came the word that the pontiff was at death's door.

LATE WAR NEWS

Paris. — The official communication of the French war office says:

"The French troops have occupied all the region to the west of Fenestrange, 32 miles inside the German frontier in Lorraine. Our troops poured through from the valley of the River Seille, of which a number of passes have been evacuated by the Germans. Our cavalry is at Chateau Salins.

"We have conquered the majority of the valleys of the Vosges upon the slope of Alsace, from where we will soon attain the plain.

"To the south of Saarburg, in Lorraine, 40 miles east of Nancy, the enemy had organized in front of us, strongly fortied, in a position held by heavy artillery. The Germans retreated precipitately and our cavalry pursued them."

London. — A Reuter dispatch from Brussels says the Germans made another attempt to cross the Meuse by a bridge not far from Dinant, where cannon firing was resumed. The French artillery repelled the attack with considerable loss.

THORSBY DELEGATES ATTEND FARMERS UNION MEETING.

Prof. S. H. Herbert of Thorsby, who with County Secretary J. M. Smith and Rev. W. S. Cox attended the State meeting of the Farmers Union as delegates from Chilton County, reports a very interesting and profitable meeting. State Supt. Feagin, Mrs. Thomas M. Owen of Montgomery, National President Charles S. Barrett, and other speakers of note brought messages of inspiration and information, and many measures affecting the welfare of the farmer were discussed and acted upon. The Farmers Union promises to be more and more a force for good in this county and the state.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

WONDERS

The white man is a conqueror.

He has explored the bowels of the earth, the depths of the sea and the perils of the air.

He has discovered the North Pole and the South Pole; penetrated the jungles, traversed the deserts and scaled the mountains.

Men talk over wires, hear music from rubber discs, ride a thousand miles by train in 24 hours, cross the Atlantic ocean in five days, get wireless dispatches, send under-seas cables, read their daily newspapers, transmit thoughts on typewriters, ride on the subway under a river a hundred feet deep, mount office buildings 60 stories high via the elevator in a few minutes, fly in the air, send wireless messages and cruise under the sea.

A majority of these and many other things have become commonplace.

They are wonders!

They demonstrate the determination of man to conquer. They tell the story of heroic struggle, sleepless nights, concentrated effort, self-sacrifice, years of study and generations of preparation.

In spite of it all scientists tell us we are in the infancy of accomplishment. That generations yet unborn, will make even greater advances than generations that have passed.

We are told that inter-communication between the inhabited planets is a matter of not far distant accomplishment. That children now living will ride in flying machines as we now ride in buggies and automobiles.

Such accomplishments and assertions from authoritative sources should stimulate the imagination and ambition of every man and woman.

The L. & N. writes of these things because it is trying to keep step with the feverish pace of accomplishment. It needs the kindly consideration and intelligent co-operation of the people.

The territory through which the L. & N. operates is wonderfully rich in possibilities. It deserves the best to be had in railway facilities. That is what the L. & N. is supplying.

But we are not content with existing conditions. We want to accomplish in our sphere what the scientists are seeking to accomplish in theirs.

We can do it only through mutual understanding, mutual good-will, mutual effort, consisting of the people and the L. & N.

Interest yourself to think of the future and the great possibilities it holds. Then help us [illegible]

"The negro political question is one we cannot throw off at will. In fact, it will be a live question for many years, yea, for many decades in the future history of this country, but it is a question that all strong men must meet with fairness and justness to all concerned.

"It was silly for the special committee to have taken the action they did for the reason that there possibly would have been few colored men elected to the convention. They as a rule are not in sympathy with us as a party, although many individuals among them are enthusiastic about the colonel. It is not incumbent on the white men to vote for them as delegates in their respective counties, but it was incumbent on the special committee to keep within the bounds of reason and justice to all sections of our electorate in calling the convention.

"In 1910 I was a republican nominee for governor of Alabama, I was advertised as adversely as possible by the democratic press as being too friendly to the negro. Still I received 9000 more votes (they came from the democratic party) than the balance of my ticket who had not been too friendly to the negro. The 9000 votes came from the church people of the state. The people who have it in mind to oppose the organized democracy are not going to decline to do so forsooth because the opposition party merely treats decently a section of our people.

"I am writing you to suggest that you call your committee together at the earliest possible time and definitely define its position on this question; so definitely that a fool though he run may read." —Birmingham Age Herald.

To the Churches of the Unity Baptist Associations.

Dear Brethren:

I have been appointed to represent the Foreign Mission Board in your association, and the meeting of the association is near at hand. Of course I have no way of knowing what the churches have done until the association meets in October, but I am very anxious for our association to make a good showing. I am writing to ask that the pastors and churches do their very best through September, for that is our last chance this year. I want the pastors to see that every church has an opportunity to make an offering before the association meets. Remember that this is the Lord's work and we are the Lord's people. He blesses according to what we do. So brethren do your best.

MR. POUNDS ON THE POLITICAL SITUATION

Clanton, Ala., Aug. 24, 1914.

Editor Clanton Press.

Dear Sir:

As an onlooker, also a citizen and tax payer of this county I wish to express my views on the present political situation, and the methods of campaigning, indulged in by a certain class of people, who are evidently seeking selfish ends, who claim to be the people's friends, and the supporters of all that is truthful and true. If one should listen to them, and at the same time, not know the facts, you of course would conclude that they were great patriots and heroes, in championing the rights and liberties of the people and tax payers of the county. But happily for the people they are beginning to find them out, to learn who they are, and to understand the real cause of their great zeal for the interest of the dear people, whom they would so zealously guide in the channels of political safety; all of which is but to throw dust into the eyes of those who come under their influence, that they (the pretended friends of the people) may themselves ride into office—when in fact they really care nothing for the people more than to fool them, fleece them, and skin them.

Those really in the lead have been dyed with all political colors, from democrat to populist, to republican to so called progressive, or bull moose, with a white wash of prohibitionist, but always with a low and subtle cunning, by which to fool the folks, so as to capture the pie and pelf. As an onlooker and observer, it is strange to me that the voters and tax payers fail to see into the games and tricks as they play them. Some of which we will mention, for instance they keep up an incessant hew and cry about the awful condition that the county is in financially, the extravagance and mismanagement of the county's funds, the high tax rate, and nothing to show for what it is used, and etc., and so on. These things and others they are continually howling over, and making all sorts of pathetic appeals to the people to save themselves from the awful doom that hangs so threateningly near—the remedy they of course prescribe is to keep their crowd in office.

Well, let us look at the facts just as they are, and see just what real truth, if any there be, in all this noise, they are making, and if conditions are as bad as they claim them to be, why then the people ought to know the truth about it, and hold the guilty ones to account for it, either by persecuting them in the courts, or refusing any more to elect them to office. Let the individuals and political party that put them in office be held accountable for those things if they be true.

So now let us admit for argument's sake, that their charges be true, then of course the next move is to find out really who is responsible for the wrongs of which they complain.

So now Mr. Editor by your permission, I propose to make a thorough probe into the matter by going back some years and come on up to the present time, and I promise you some interesting reading. [illegible] bigger [illegible] brought [illegible]

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

Editor Press:

Please permit me to say a few words through the columns of your paper.

I asked in a straightforward manner for the nomination for the office of Sheriff of Chilton county in the Democratic primary, which I was honored with. I am now asking the voters of the county to elect me to the office for which I have been nominated, promising if elected to devote my entire time and attention to the office, and to use every honorable means to discharge the duties of the same to the satisfaction of every citizen of the county.

I have not done or said anything unfair or that could be construed by any fair minded man to indicate a wish upon my part to thwart the wishes of a majority of the people of the county, or take unfair advantage of anyone. Neither will I do so. I will appreciate the support of everyone who may accord me the same, and will be grateful for the support of my friends in any section of the county.

Respectfully,

B. E. JONES

REPLY TO "UNCLE PETE"

Clanton, Ala., Sept. 1, 1914

Editor Clanton Press:—

I am so much amused after reading the letter of "Uncle Pete" in the Union-Banner of last week, that I cannot refrain from writing [illegible] by saying he is in "favor of peace and quiet among all the people" and in the very next breath he jumps on the Democrats of the county with both feet and abuses them for everything that has happened since "Woodrow" (I suppose he refers to President Wilson) was elected. How on earth does he expect to have peace and quiet with such criticism heaped upon us? We are a part of the people of this county and expect fair treatment and anything to the contrary will ever be resented. He says "The Press criticises the works of the Progressives in the county." The Commissioners' Court, the only body of men in authority, is composed of four men—three Progressives and one Democrat—and I have never seen one line of criticism written by the Press man about what these men have done, but on the other hand he endorses their actions in every move they make for the good of the county. Now you cannot deny this fact. Is this criticising the Progressive party, say? How often do you read an editorial in your official organ—the Union-Banner—suggesting a plan whereby the people would be benefitted or endorsing the works of the Progressive Commissioners Court? No, not one word, but on the other hand you find articles in abundance [illegible] like Roosevelt and rich of this country of some old defeated politicians whose [illegible] ambition is to [illegible] county [illegible] mislead them into the belief that the whole earth and all the people in it were going to h— if we elect a Democrat in Chilton county. If I am not mistaken, and I don't think I am, "Uncle Pete" will hear the voice of the mighty democratic hosts about the 3rd day of November of this good old year, that will echo victory by the largest majority ever yet.

I see that the so-called Progressives are having several speakings about over the county and that some of our Progressive officers are spending a great deal of their time attending these meetings. Their subjects are "Democratic extravagance," an empty treasury, etc." If the treasury is empty, who emptied it? What was the money spent for and what have we got to show for it? These speakers, in their efforts to bolster up a weak cause, never cease abusing the Commissioners' Court, hence the people only hear one side of the question. We give here a few of the things for which the people's money has been spent:

1st. More than twenty miles of graded road in the county.

2nd. The finest fire-proof vault for the safekeeping of the county's records in the South.

3rd. A jail recently repaired, which fills all the requirements of the State Health department, thoroughly sanitary and fitted with all modern conveniences.

4th. Two of the very latest traction engines, equipped with all necessary graders, etc. Have worked more roads than was ever done before and are still doing the same thing.

5th. The Court finances, in part, the expenses of the Girls' Tomato Club of the county, which is of inestimable value to the young ladies of our county. No one will deny this fact.

6th. The Red Cross Society has a trained nurse in the county, which is proving a great blessing to the people and is endorsed by all our physicians and leading men. This expense is borne, in part, by the county.

7th. The county each year appropriates a sufficient sum to defray the expenses of several of our boys to the Farmers' School to better prepare them for agricultural pursuits.

8th. Last, but not least, the county appropriated one-fourth ($4,000) toward the building of the County High School which is now in course of construction. No one will deny that the Court could not have spent the money for a more worthy cause.

We hereby challenge them (the speakers) to tell the people where and for what their money was spent during the former administration and what they have to show the people.

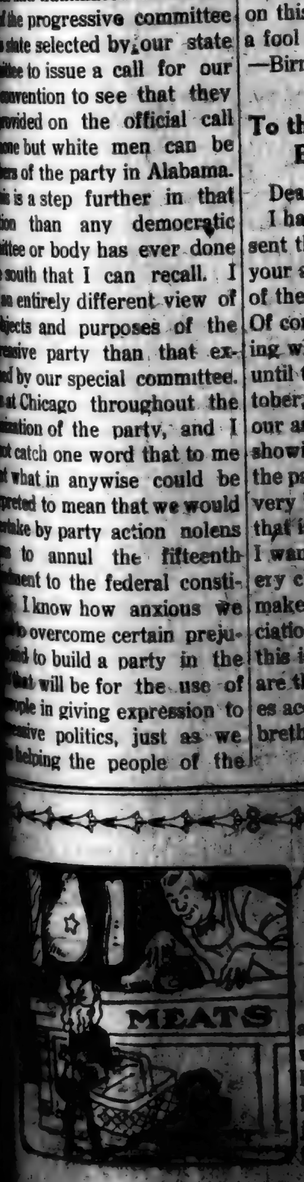
Gentlemen, the above are undeniable facts and as above stated, you who are flooding the county with eloquent (?) oratory, please tell the people and show them what you and your crowd done for them while they were in office and compare it with the above and let the people be the judges. That's all we ask of you.

Now we ask you to show up or shut up. Yours truly,

A DEMOCRAT.

MAPLESVILLE POSTMASTER RESIGNS

Maplesville, Ala., Sept. 1, 1914



The town of Maplesville is now interested in a contest for the office of postmaster at Maplesville. The postmaster, Mr. Ralph Calloway, a republican, has resigned and it seems to be time for candidates or prospective candidates to get busy. The candidate who seems to be considered in the lead is Mr. R. E. Fitts, of Stanton. Mr. Fitts lives in Stanton and is engaged in the mercantile business there. The town of Maplesville has a population of over 700, as shown by the census taken at the time the town was incorporated, and is a Democratic town, and there is a strong protest against the appointment of any man who is not a bona fide patron of the office. The mayor and aldermen of the town have signed a protest against the appointment of any man outside of the patrons of the office, and over 175 patrons of the office have signed a protest, and there seems to be more objections coming.

ED DRIVER AWARDED PLUMBING CONTRACT

The contract for the plumbing of the Chilton County High Shhool has been let to one of our home boys. The out-of-town bids did not come lower than $584, while J. E. Driver bid $610 and agreed to give $50 of that amount to the school, so the committee awarded the contract to Mr. Driver. This speaks well for Ed. The architect said he carried a good line of goods and would be able to do the work properly.

MASS MEETING.

There will be a mass meeting of the citizens of the town of Clanton at the Court House on Friday evening, Sept. 4, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of discussing matters of interest to the citizens and property owners of the town, and to nominate a Mayor and five Councilmen to be voted for at the election to be held on Sept. 21, 1914. Everybody is invited to come.

The Land of Broken Promises

A Stirring Story of the Mexican Revolution

By DANE COOLIDGE
Author of "The Fighting Foo!" "Hidden Waters" "The Tenderfoot," Etc.
Illustrations by Don J. Lavin

(Copyright, 1914, by Frank A. Munsey)

SYNOPSIS.

Bud Hooker and Phil De Lancey are forced, owing to a revolution in Mexico, to give up their mining claim and return to the United States. In the border town of Gadsden Bud meets Henry Kruger, a wealthy miner, who makes him a proposition to return to Mexico to acquire title to a very rich mine which Kruger had blown up when he found he had been cheated out of the title by one Aragon. The Mexican subsequently spent a large sum in an unsuccessful attempt to relocate the vein and then allowed the land to revert for taxes. Hooker and De Lancey arrive at Fortuna near where the mine, known as the Eagle Tail, is located. They engage the services of Cruz Mendez, who has been friendly to Kruger, to acquire the title for them, and get a permit to do preliminary work. Aragon protests and accuses them of jumping his claim. Bud discovers that matrimonial entanglements prevent Mendez from perfecting a valid title. Phil, who has been paying attention to Aragon's daughter, Gracia, decides to turn Mexican and get the title in his own name. Bud objects to Phil's attentions to Gracia. Aragon fails in his attempt to drive them off the claim. Rebels are reported in the vicinity. Stories of rapine and bloodshed are brought in. Bud and Phil begin work in earnest on their claim. They make a rich strike of gold and stop work on the claim until the title can be perfected.

CHAPTER XIV—Continued.

It was through some chicanery, he knew—some low-down trick on the part of Aragon—that his pardner had been imprisoned, and he swore to have him out or know the reason why. Either that or he would go after Aragon and take it out of his hide.

It was outside Bud's simple code even to question his pardner's innocence, but, innocent or guilty, he would have him out if he had to tear down the jail.

So he slapped his saddle-gun into the sling, reached for his quirt, and went dashing down the canyon. At a turn in the road he came suddenly upon Aragon and the rural, split a way between them, and leaned forward as Copper Bottom burned up the trail.

It was long since the shiny sorrel had been given his head, and he needed neither whip nor spurs—but a mile or two down the arroyo Bud suddenly reined him in and looked behind. Then he turned abruptly up the hillside and jumped him out on a point, looked again, and rode slowly back up the trail.

Aragon and the rural were not in sight—the question was, were they following? For a short distance he rode warily, not to be surprised in his suspicion; then, as he found tracks turning back, he gave head to his horse and galloped swiftly to camp.

The horses of the men he sought stood at the edge of the mine-dump, and, throwing his bridle-rein down beside them, Bud leaped off and ran up the cut. Then he stopped short and reached for his six-shooter. The two men were up at the end, down on their knees, and digging like dogs after a rabbit.

So eager were they in their search so confident in their fancied security, that they never looked up from their work, and the tramp of Hooker's boots was drowned by their grubbing until he stood above them. There he paused, his pistol in hand, and waited grimly for developments.

"Ha!" cried Aragon, grabbing at a piece of quartz that came up, "Aqui lo tengo!" He drew a second piece from his pocket and placed them together. "It is the same!" he said.

Still half-buried in the excavation, he turned suddenly as a shadow crossed him, to get the light, and his jaw dropped at the sight of Bud.

"I'll trouble you for that rock," observed Bud, holding out his hand, and as the rural jumped, Aragon handed over the ore. There was a moment's silence as Bud stood over them—then he stepped back and motioned them out with his gun.

Down the jagged cut they hurried, awed into a guilty silence by his anger, and when he let them mount without a word the rural looked back, surprised. Even then Bud said nothing, but the swing of the Texan's gun spoke for him, and they rode quickly out of sight.

"You dad-burned greasers!" growled Bud, returning his pistol with a jab to its holster. Then he looked at the ore. There were two pieces, one fresh-dug and the other worn, and as he gazed at them the worn piece seemed strangely familiar. Aragon had been comparing them—but where had he got the worn piece?

Once more Bud looked it over, and then the rock fell from his hand. It was the first piece they had found—the piece that belonged to Phil!

CHAPTER XV.

When the solid earth quakes, though it move but a thousandth of an inch beneath our feet, the human brain reels and we become dizzy, sick and afraid. So, too, at the thought that some trusted friend has played us false, the mind turns back upon itself and we doubt the stability of everything—for a moment. Then, as we find all the props straight up, the world intact, and the hills in their proper places, we—and then his mind straightened itself and he remembered that Phil was in jail.

What more natural, then, than that the rurales should search his pockets and give the ore to Aragon? He stooped and picked up the chunk of rock—that precious, pocket-worn specimen that had brought them the first promise of success—and wiped it on his sleeve.

Mechanically he placed it beside the other piece which Aragon had gouged from the edge, and while he gazed at them he wondered what to do—to leave their mine and go to his friend, or to let his friend wait and stand guard by their treasure—and his heart told him to go to his friend.

So he swung up on his horse and followed slowly, and as soon as it was dark he rode secretly through Old Fortuna and on till he came to the jail. It was a square stone structure, built across the street from the cantina in order to be convenient for the drunks, and as Bud rode up close and stared at it, some one hailed him through the bars.

"Hello there, pardner," called Hooker, swinging down and striding over to the black window, "how long have they had you in here?"

"Two days," answered Phil from the inner darkness; "but it seems like a lifetime to me. Say, Bud, there's a Mexican in here that's got the jim-jams—regular tequila jag—can't you get me out?"

"Well, I sure will!" answered Bud; "what have they got you in for? Where's our friend, Don Juan? Why didn't he let me know?"

"You can search me!" railed De Lancey. "Seems like everybody quits you down here the minute you get into trouble. I got arrested night before last by those d——d rurales—Manuel Del Rey was behind it, you can bet your life on that—and I've been here ever since!"

"Well, what are you pinched for? Who do I go and see?"

"Pinched for nothing!" cried De Lancey bitterly. "Pinched because I'm a Mexican citizen and can't protect myself! I'm incomunicado for three days!"

"Well, I'll get you out, all right," said Hooker, leaning closer against the bars. "Here, have a smoke—did they frisk you of your makings?"

"No!" snapped De Lancey crossly, "but I'm out of everything by this time. Bud, I tell you I've had a time of it! They threw me in here with this crasy, murdering Mexican and I haven't had a wink of sleep for two days. He's quiet now, but I don't want any more."

"Well, say," began Bud again, "what are you charged with? Maybe I can grease somebody's paw and get you out tonight!"

There was an awkward pause at this, and finally De Lancey dropped his white face against the bars and his voice became low and beseeching.

"I'll tell you, Bud," he said, "I haven't been quite on the square with you—I've been holding out a little. But you know how it is—when a fellow's in love. I've been going to see Gracia!"

"Oh!" commented Hooker, and stood very quiet while he waited.

"Yes, I've been going to see her," hurried on Phil. "I know I promised; but, honest, Bud, I couldn't help it. It just seemed as if my whole being was wrapped up in her, and I had to do it. She'd be looking for me when I came and went—and then I fixed it with her maid to take her a letter. And then I met her secretly, back by the garden gate. You know they've got some holes punched in the wall—loopholed during the fight last summer—and we'd—"

"Sure, I'll take your word for that," broke in Hooker harshly. "But get to the point! What are you pinched for?"

"Well," went on De Lancey, his voice quavering at the reproof, "I was going to tell you, if you'll listen to me. Somebody saw us there and told Aragon—he shut her up for a punishment and she slipped me out a note—well, I couldn't stand it—I hired the string band and we went down there in a hack to give her a serenade. But this cad, Manuel del Rey, who has been acting like a jealous ass all along, stooped down on us with a detachment of his rurales and took us all to jail. He let the musicians out the next morning, but I've been here ever since."

"Yes, but what are you charged with?" demanded Bud truculently.

"Drunk," confessed Phil, and Bud grunted.

"Huh!" he said, "and me out watching that mine night and day!"

"Oh, I know I've done you dirt, Bud," wailed De Lancey, "but I didn't mean to—and I'll never do it again."

"Never do what?" shouted Bud roughly.

"Why, never touch another piece of [illegible]

"Well," inquired De Lancey, "Have you—"

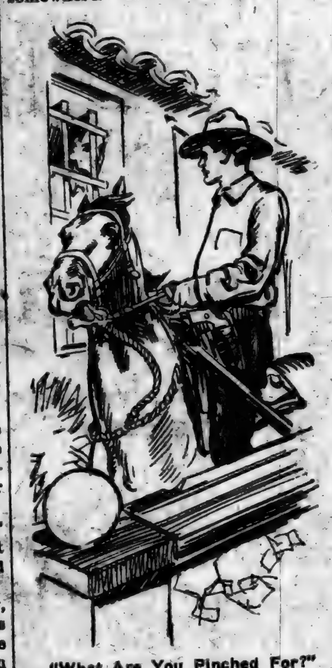
"You know your promises!" reminded Bud.

"Yes; I know. But—oh, Bud, if you knew how loyal I've been to you—if you knew what effort I've exercised—the mine stands in my name, you know."

"Well?"

"Well, Aragon came around to me last week and said if I'd give him a half interest in it he'd—well, never mind—it was a great temptation. But did I fall for it? Not on your life! I know you, Bud, and I knew you're honest—you'd stay by me to the last ditch, and I'll do the same by you. But I'm in love, Bud, and that would make a man forget his promise if he wasn't true as steel."

"Yes," commented Hooker dryly, "I don't reckon I can count on you much from now on. Here, take a look at this and see what you make of it." He drew the piece of ore that he had taken from Aragon from his pocket and held it up in the moonlight. "Well, feel of it, then," he said. "Shucks, you ought to know that piece of rock, Phil—it's the first one we found in our mine!"



"No!" exclaimed De Lancey, starting back; "why—where'd you get it?"

"Never mind where I got it!" answered Hooker. "The question is: What did you do with it?"

"Well, I might as well come through with it," confessed Phil, the last of his assurance gone. "I gave it to Gracia!"

"And I took it away from Aragon," continued Bud, "while he was digging some more chunks out of our mine. So that is your idea of being true as steel, is it? You've done noble by me and Kruger, haven't you? Yes, you've been a good pardner, I don't think!"

"Well, don't throw me down, Bud!" pleaded Phil. "There's some mistake somewhere. Her father must have found it and taken it away! I'd stake my life on it that Gracia would never betray me!"

"What Are You Pinched For?"

"Well, think it over for a while," suggested Bud, edging his words with sarcasm. "I'm going up to the hotel!"

"No; come back!" cried De Lancey, clamoring at the bars. "Come on back, Bud! Here!" he said, thrusting his hand out through the heavy irons. "I'll give you my word for it—I won't see her again until we get our title! Will that satisfy you? Then give me your hand, pardner—I'm sorry I did you wrong!"

"It ain't me," replied Hooker soberly, as he took the trembling hand; "it's Kruger. But if you'll keep your word, Phil, maybe we can win out yet. I'm going up to find the comisario."

A brief interview with that smiling individual and the case of Phil De Lancey was laid bare. He had been engaged in a desperate rivalry with Manuel del Rey for the hand of Gracia Aragon, and his present incarceration was not only for singing rag-time beneath the Aragon windows, but for trying to whip the captain of the rurales when the latter tried to place him under arrest.

And De Lancey was the prisoner not of the comisario, but of the captain of the rurales. Sore at heart, Bud rode up through the Mexican quarters to the cuartel of the rurales, but the captain was inexorable.

"No, senor," he said, waving an eloquent finger before his nose, "I cannot release your friend. No, senor!"

"But what is he charged with?" persisted Bud, "and when is his trial? You can't keep him shut up without a trial."

At this the captain of the rurales lifted his eyebrows and one closely waxed mustachio and smiled mysteriously.

"Y como no?" he inquired. "And why not? Is he not a Mexican citizen?"

"Well, perhaps he is!" chimed in Bud, suddenly rising to his full height, "but I am not! I am an American, senor capitan, and there are other Americans! If you hold my friend without a trial I will round and [illegible] your jail down—and the whole [illegible] shot up, either!"

Wounded Bird Upsets Canoe.

A maimed sparrow, which fell upon Mrs. Floyd Nesbitt's hat, and got entangled in the trimmings, nearly caused her death by drowning on Lake Oscawana, New York state, one day recently.

She was paddling alone in a canoe, when the bird landed on her hat and was caught. Mrs. Nesbitt, frightened, jumped to her feet and overbalanced the canoe. Her husband, who was on shore, swam out and brought her to safety.

Must Pass Examination.

Every child in the city of Philadelphia, under the age of sixteen, will hereafter be required to take a physical examination before being granted a certificate to work. Henry J. Gideon, chief of the bureau of compulsory education, says that the object is to prevent the physically unfit from beginning work at a tenderage. The examinations will be conducted under the auspices of the state department of labor.

SISTER'S TRICK
But It All Came Out Right.

How a sister played a trick that brought rosy health to a coffee fiend is an interesting tale:

"I was a coffee fiend—a trembling, nervous, physical wreck, yet clinging to the poison that stole away my strength. I mocked at Postum and would have none of it.

"One day my sister substituted a cup of piping hot Postum for my morning cup of coffee but did not tell me what it was. I noticed the richness of it and remarked that the 'coffee' tasted fine but my sister did not tell me I was drinking Postum for fear I might not take any more.

"She kept the secret and kept giving me Postum instead of coffee until I grew stronger, more tireless, got a better color in my sallow cheeks and a clearness to my eyes, then she told me of the health-giving, nerve-strengthening life-saver she had given me in place of my morning coffee.

"From that time I became a disciple of Postum and no words can do justice in telling the good this cereal drink did me. I will not try to tell it for only after having used it can one be convinced of its merits."

Ten days' trial shows Postum's power to rebuild what coffee has destroyed.

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled 15 and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A heaping teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both forms is about the same.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

GERMANS REPORTED DEFEATED BY ALLIES

50,000 Germans Defeated By General Pau According to Antwerp Dispatch to Reuters Company.

French Troops Meet Partial Reverses, But Take the Offensive at Intervals.

London. — The correspondent of the Express at The Hague wires his paper that Emperor William has gone to the Russian front.

London. — An Antwerp dispatch to the Reuters Telegram company says:

"It is reported here that General Pau has won a brilliant victory over 50,000 Germans near Peronnes, in the department of Somme"

Rome. — The Messagero publishes a telegram from Sofia, Bulgaria which says the Austrians have suffered an irreparable defeat at Zamose, in Russian Poland, 50 miles southeast of Lublin.

London. — Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, with her children, arrived in England.

Germans Continue Advance on Paris.

London. — Taken at its value, the French official announcement issued, which mentions that the progress of the German right wing has forced the allies to yield further ground, would seem to indicate that the Germans, notwithstanding repulses, are making daily advances toward Paris.

The statement of Field Marshal Sir John French, commander of the British troops, however, spoke of fighting on the French left, but this, according to one report, resulted in the German right being slightly turned.

The Austrian invasion of Russia in the Lublin district, which aroused the apprehension of the allies, has, if Russian dispatches are to be relied upon, been blocked and the Muscovites claim to have turned the Russian defensive into an offensive action. There is no confirmation of the report that the Russians are in Koenigsberg.

If silence means that there is nothing, Sir John French's statement that the British had not been molested since Wednesday, still holds good. Nothing is known by the public in London of new fighting, either in northern or eastern France.

From Canada, India, Australia and South Africa, the British army front will soon receive large reinforcements. Some of the troops are reported already to have landed in France.

In England the recruiting fever has not abated. At Liverpool a battalion of a thousand business men was filled within an hour and there was such an overflow that it was decided to enroll a second battalion.

The British government has started negotiations, through the American consul at Berlin, for an exchange with Germany and Austria of non-combatant prisoners.

Appalling Conditions in War Zone.

London. — A dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company from Ostend says that a small party, which has returned there from Liege, describes the destruction wrought by the war as appalling.

"All along the road to Vise," said one of the party, "there was nothing to be seen but walls blackened by smoke, the remains of burned factories, mounds of earth freshly dug—the sepulchres of the first Germans to fall.

"And then comes Vise. What a painful sight for those who knew the proud city, so typical of Walloon gaiety and now nothing but a mass of ruins while many of the inhabitants lie over the place, their chests riddled with bullets. I was told here that the natives were put to work building roads for the invaders from Vise to Aix La Chapelle.

"On the way to Argenteu we met a procession of able-bodied men marching four abreast and commanded by a non-commissioned officer, all carrying implements for road or trench building. These men have to submit to discipline Draconic in severity.

"Herstal, usually filled with the busy hum of activity in factories, coal mines and work shops, we found plunged into deathly silence. At last we entered Liege. The inhabitants stood at the threshold of their homes, silent and anxious, but afraid to speak. The streets in the middle of the town wore a deplorable aspect. Many houses had been abandoned. Their doors and windows were shattered and their contents had been removed. Nobody but soldiers were to be seen. The plage De L'Universite, the Rue Des Pitteurs and the Quai Des Pecheurs had been bombed."

Steamer Goes Down by Bombs.

New York. — The British steamship Holmwood has been sunk by a bomb, named Gerlach, dropped off the coast of South America, according to a telegram received here from Rio Janeiro by the agents of the line. Passengers and crew were saved.

BY NO MEANS A STRANGER

Not the First Time Lawyer Had Shared With the Companion of His Travels.

The new senator from Alabama, Francis Shelly White, is a lawyer and has a large practice in his state. Sometimes his work takes him out in the interior, and on one of these trips he was accompanied by his client, and client being a pious man, a deacon in the church to which White belonged.

It was late at night when the darky pulled up his span before the doors of the inn, which was presided over by a lady of generous heart and equal proportions. When he went to the desk to engage a room White was apologetically told that it was impossible, on account of the influx of visitors, to give him a separate chamber.

"I guess I can get a separate bed, then," said he. But to this the reply was the same.

"May I ask who is to be my bedfellow?" asked White, who did not relish the idea of sharing his couch with a stranger.

"Why," replied the landlady, "it will be the gentleman with whom you came."

"Oh, that's all right, then," said White, with a sigh of relief. "He and I are both deacons in the same church and have been sleeping together during the 11 o'clock sermon in the First Baptist church for 20 years."—Providence Journal.

Trials of Teaching.

Mrs. Hitch was having some trouble with a little fellow in her spelling class at Claysville.

"Yes'm."

"Well, c-a-t spells cat, d-o-g spells dog, and b-e-d spells— What did I tell you b-e-d spells?"

"Dunno."

"Don't you know! You don't know what b-e-d spells after all I've told you?"

"No'm."

"Well, once more, b-e-d spells what you sleep in. Now, what do you sleep in?"

"My drawers!" triumphantly exclaimed the urchin.—Cynthiana Democrat.

Rhodes and Rain.

Among the stories in the duchess of Aosta's book is one relating to the celebrated statue of Cecil Rhodes which stands in the main square of Bulawayo. The empire builder is figured in contemplation of his achievement, with head bared.

The whole district had been grievously plagued by drought for over a twenty-month, when the natives got up a great agitation and marched in enormous numbers to the square, and, thronging around the statue of Cecil Rhodes, insisted that it should immediately be given a top hat.

They said that "Heaven respects this great creator of empire too much to send the needed rain while he stands there bareheaded."

Two Perches.

Kathleen Jones, aged four, made mud pies on Mrs. Reed's steps.

"Run away dear," said that lady. "Go and play on your mamma's porch."

"But mamma has just scrubbed hers all nice and clean and she don't want me to dirty it up."

"Perhaps I like to keep my porch clean, too."

"Huh!" said Kathleen, "I didn't know your porch was clean ever."

BUMPS ITCHED ON BODY

While the Union-Banner man is looking up "General Acts" we would like for him to inform us what "General Acts" authorized his gang to "bust" the county in 1906.

Wonder how J. O. Thompson's vigorous protest against the committee's action in barring the negro from their conventions is going to act on the stomachs of the Bull Moose contingent in this county? It will no doubt be a solar-plexus blow to his cousin L. H.

The allusions thrust at the Editor of this paper by the Union-Banner man is not worrying us in the least; rest assured of that. We are aware of his position. He is such a "small potato" no matter what he may say it "cuts no ice." And what is more we are after the "Big Rats" in this game first, then we'll look after the "mice."

The Union-Banner man seems to have gotten peeved at the Press for saying he was led around by the bosses and having no head of his own. He's got a head alright, but he is like some goats, he can't butt with it. As proof of this we will ask him if he didn't state to one or two parties that he was in favor of locating the Chilton County High School in Clanton; but could not make a fight for the school in the columns of his paper because he had his hands tied?

Grandma Bush is very ill. Her children have been visiting her; Jim Bush, from Bonifay, Fla., Couts Bush, from Atmore; Mrs. Dukes from Bolling. All five of her children are hale and hearty. They weighed while here and the total weight was 11,444 lbs. Is there any other family in these parts can beat this? Grandma Bush is nearing the 74th mile post.—Andalusia Star.

We are reminded by the above of the man who prayed for the Lord to send him, among other things, a barral of pepper. After realizing how much a barrel of the fiery stuff really was, he said "no, Lord, Bustle. Just send pepper."

There is too much [illegible]

We are publishing this week the first of a series of articles by Mr. L. B. Pounds. Mr. Pounds, like a good many citizens, is disgusted with the political conditions in this county, and he propoes to show these pie hunters up in their true light. He is a fluent writer, and is possessed of a good supply of "inside dope" and his exposition of their nefarious practices will prove to be most interesting reading.

"The editor of the Union-Banner does not care a flip of his finger whether warrants were issued or not in 1906."

What do you think of a man that will give utterance to an expression like this? We must admit he is nervy, to say the least. Of course he doesn't "care a flip of his finger what happened in 1906," neither does he care for the interests of the people now. As a matter of fact isn't his pretended interest in the people only a mere pretext to keep the "wool pulled over their eyes" in order that he and his crowd may feed under the plum tree? Looks like "Standing for the rights of the common people," doesn't it?

There is much being said at the present time about this county "being all stirred up." Why all this fuss, agitation and political turmoil anyway? Who is at the bottom of it all? Isn't it clear to all thinking and fair minded people that it's the same old crowd that have filled the minds of the people with prejudice in years past who are now appealing to their prejudices for no other purpose save that of feeding at the pie counter? What can the citizens of this county ever hope for so long as such methods are tolerated? We believe they are waking up to the game of these would-be leaders and that they had just as well pack their grips now for a nice little jaunt up "Salt river."

"We believe fully in the intiative, referendum and recall, and wish we had this law now. If we did our people would have more to say about county affairs."—Union-Banner.

The Press is at a loss to understand what our contemporary is driving at. Is it a fact that the Union-Banner has discovered something rotten that the Board of County Commissioners, (the very men they elected and put in office) have done? If you have knowledge that these men have not acted square with the people why in the world don't you turn on the searchlight that the public may know just what the real trouble is?

We learn from the Indian Journal, of Eufaula, Okla., that Hanna precinct in that State, has been annexed to McIntosh, County, of which Eufaula is the county seat. The fight for annexation was a hard fought and bitter one, the two contending cities being Eufaula and Checotah. Col. William A. Collier led the fight for Eufaula, and it was due to his able leadership that Eufaula won the victory by a majority of nearly 700 votes.

Col. Collier is well known to nearly every citizen of Chilton County and formerly resided in Clanton where he was for many years the leader of the Chilton county bar. His many friends here will be indeed glad to learn of the success he has attained in his adopted State.

"Why are the people not taken into the confidence of the plans which you Democrats propose in road building?"—Union-Banner.

The people! Are people the people? Why, say, how interested in the people! Who are the people anyway? Turns out that little crowd of the [illegible] not he elected its first president and his son, H. G. Reynolds, Secretary? Was there any man in Chilton County any more enthusiastic and zealous in his efforts to build this highway than this same L. H. Reynolds?

If these proposed warrants are issued to build this highway, please tell us how you figure the Democrats are to blame for not "taking the people into the confidence of these plans" when there is only one Democratic Commissioner as against three members of your own party? Your answer is anxiously awaited.

In its issue of June 4th, 1914, the Union-Banner published an article headed "Road Progress in Chilton." The article concludes with the following paragragh:

"After seeing the advantages that our present improved conditions afford over the bad roads we once had, no citizen can fail to be eager and zealous for even more improvement and better roads. Let us be on the lookout for any movement that will help to make our highways better, and at the first chance fall in behind it with all the force that we are able to give."

Consistency, thou art a jewel! We would like for the Union-Banner to please tell us how in the world it is going to reconcile the above statement of June 4th with the present attitude it has assumed in regard to road matters. You will notice he says "Let us be on the lookout for ANY movement that will help to make our highways better, and at the first chance fall in behind it with all the force that we are able to give."

Doesn't he say, in effect, to the Commissioners (the very men his crowd out in office) to proceed with whatever means they think best to give us better highways? And now is not this same paper raising the very devil because the Commissioners are doing what they think is best for the county? Where is the consistency in this sort of business, Mr. Union-Banner? Please tell us.

FIRE AT CLANTON

Wednesday morning, between two and three o'clock, the dwelling house occupied by Mr. Joe Morrow on the west side of town, was discovered to be ablaze. Church bells rang, whistles blew and fire arms were discharged and in a short while the entire citizenship was awakened from their slumber and rushed to the scene to render all possible assistance. But the fire had gained such headway that a fight against the flames was useless, and soon the house was reduced to ashes.

A defective stove flue is said to be the origin of the conflagration.

None of the members of the family were at home at the time, and the household effects were a total loss, as well as about fifty dollars in cash.

Mr. Morrow carried some insurance, though not near enough to cover his loss.

The dwelling, the property of Mr. T. A. Curry, was fully covered by insurance.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Clanton continues to forge to the front.

OBITUARY.

At 7 o'clock in the morning, July 2nd, 1914, the death angels claimed as their victim our dear brother, John Thomas Roper. It is so sad to know that no more on earth his face we'll see, and that the sixth chair for our brother's will on earth forever vacant be. But may the surviving members of our family live that when the last one is called to go, around the great white throne in heaven will be seen the family with father and mother will number fourteen. Oh, how we miss our brother now, but why should we grieve that he has gone to receive the heritage given him by his heavenly father. God in His infinite goodness wants all his children to come home. Many who start upon life's perilous journey get lost in the pitfalls and dangers of the pathway, and only after long years of weary heartache do they realize that God loves His rebellous children and then they fall at the feet of the Master, ready and willing to do His biddings. We feel sure that if brother could have been well he would not have exchanged his home for a place, but the Grim Reaper laid his hand upon him and after months of patient suffering the roses in his cheeks faded into white lillies of death, and the hands so quick to do love's bidding were clasped on the silent breast and the tired eyes were closed to open again with enraptured gaze upon the beauties of the heavenly land.

A Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank those who were so kind to Mrs. R. Fraser through her illness, also Dr. Sam Johnson, who did all that could be done for her relief.

SECURE A HOME
in Baldwin County, Alabama

¶Fertile lands, beautiful rolling country. Many farms as smooth as the prairies of Texas. All staple crops do well, such as corn, cotton, oats and all forage crops. Fine dairy country; creamery already established here at Loxley, which means money every week for the farmers who have good milch cows. Hog raising, at present prices, will soon make you independent. You can have green pasture here for your hogs all winter.

Hundreds of acres of Satsuma oranges coming into bearing this year. Plant an orange grove of five or ten acres on your Baldwin county farm, and, with good care, in four or five years your little "patch" of oranges should make you a net profit equalling the average 160 acre farm in general crops.

Plant a ten acre paper-shell pecan orchard for your old age and for your children. Pecans are as staple and as safe as cotton and corn, and you can go right ahead cultivating your crops between the trees while they are growing to bearing age.

Pears, peaches and all small fruits and berries do well. Sweet and Irish potatoes are staple money crops in Baldwin county.

Good climate and good water make good health. Hundreds of new settlers coming to Baldwin county every year and all indications point to a greater number coming this Winter than ever before. Prices of land sure to be much higher by Spring. The sooner you come and select your farm, the more money you will save.

Just now we have a few improved places, where you can step right in and go to work, but these places will be sold early.

80 acres, six miles from Loxley, two miles from station on P. M. & N. O. railroad. 20 acres cleared and in cultivation. 20 acres more easily tilled, balance fine pasture. School on corner. Rural mail delivery daily. Good, sound house of five rooms. Small barn and crib; Fine place for hog ranch; running water on place. Price $1,000, cash for whole thing, if taken in thirty days.

40 acres, 3-4 mile to Loxley depot; 28 acres in cultivation; all fenced with good wire; good house and barn, chicken house, brooder, etc; 20 hogs, 3 cows, horse, wagon, buggy, tools, etc., go with the place; one of choice places around Loxley; fine lot of pear trees in bearing; 150 oranges set out; 9 acres in crops. Price, $2,500, cash. Great bargain.

80 or 160 acres, unimproved; all good tillable land, within mile of station on P. M. & N. O. railroad, 8 miles east of Loxley; easily cleared, plenty of timber for posts; fine for general crops, oranges, pecans or other fruits. Price, $16 per acre, half cash, balance terms to suit.

¶Write us what size place you want to buy. State whether you want to engage in general farming, stock raising or fruit growing. In fact, tell us what you want and we will send you full description of something which will suit your needs.

COURT DECLINES TO SENTENCE MINTO

Long Fought Case of Montgomery Man Is Dismissed When He Is Arraigned Resentencing.

STATE CAPITAL HAPPENINGS

Doings in and Around the State House Chronicled for Our Readers.

—Montgomery.

After a sensational fight of two years through the courts of Alabama, Mike Minto will not have to serve sentence for keeping a gambling table in Montgomery. Judge Gaston Gunter dismissed the case against Minto and Jeames Adams, a negro convicted of the same offense, and declined to resentence the men.

It was announced that the Solicitor would confer with the Attorney General in regard to a writ of mandamus to compel Judge Gunter to carry out the order of the Court of Appeals in re-sentencing the men.

Judge Gunter rendered a lengthy opinion in the matter and set forth that the men had been in jeopardy and that it was against their constitutional rights to re-sentence them for an offense for which they had already served time and from which Minto had been released by habeas corpus proceedings.

Minto's case has been one of the most noted in the State and has attracted the attention of practically the entire bar of Alabama.

Minto was convicted together with the negro Adams, for keeping a gambling table, two years ago, and sentenced to six months in the penitentiary. The case was appealed to the Court of Appeals, where it was affirmed. A writ of habeas corpus was sued out last year on the grounds that Minto had been improperly sentenced in that he could not be sentenced to the penitentiary for a term of six months. He was discharged.

The State then appealed to the Court of Appeals from the decision in the habeas corpus proceedings and at the same time for a re-hearing in the case the court had affirmed. The appeal was granted and the case affirmed, but remanded to the City Court for proper sentence. The defendant then appealed for a new hearing on the grounds that the had been in jeopardy and had been discharged on habeas corpus proceedings.

Instruction Board Appointed.

Members of the Instructional Board of the Alabama National Guard were named in an order issued by Adjutant General Joseph B. Scully. The board is composed of Col. C. R. Bricken, 2nd Regiment; Col. G. J. Hubbard, 1st Regiment; Col. E. H. Graves, 4th Regiment; Lieut. Col. Francis G. Maddox, Lieut. Col. W. F. Weiss, Lieut. Col. Leon McCord, Major H. S. Chapman, Major B. F. Noble, Major L. S. Dorrance, Major Everett Jackson.

These officers will serve for the term commencing October 1, 1914, and ending April 25, 1915. They will meet as soon as practicable and recommend a course of practical progressive instructions and drill for the year 1914-1915.

Capt. William P. Screws and Lieut. B. M. Bailey of the United States Army will serve as ex-officio members of the bord.

Beeks Battery B Probe.

All charges against the members of Battery B, First Field Artillery, growing out of the alleged mutiny of that battery recently in Mobile, should be fully investigated, according to Capt. Sam Roswald, of Montgomery, commanding officer of the battery, who filed in the office of Governor O'Neal a formal request for such an investigation.

The request for the investigation will be submitted to the governor on his return from Tate Spring.

It is understood that Captain Roswald asks for the investigation in order that all the facts in connection with the case may be laid before the public. It is said that Captain Roswald desires an investigation which will include the conduct of all officers and men who took part on both sides in the alleged mutiny.

Dr. Prather Declines Job.

Another fight over the chairmanship of the Girard Excise Commission may be brought before Governor O'Neal for settlement. Word has been received at the office of the Governor that Dr. R. C. Prather, recently appointed as chairmen, has declined to serve. Two factions of Russell County citizens appeared before the Governor prior to the appointment of Dr. Prather, each faction having a candidate. The appointment of Dr. Prather was made as a compromise and both factions agreed to accept him.

Escaped Convict Captured.

Notice of the capture at Pratt[illegible] Miss., of Walter Winston, a white convict who escaped from Loyds Mines January 31, 1913, was received in the office of Rockwell Rodgers, secretary of the State Convict Department, [illegible] Winston was sentenced [illegible] for [illegible] and was [illegible] to the [illegible] Mines.

University Books Correct.

The books and accounts of Hooter C. Houser, treasurer of the University of Alabama, are accurately and correctly kept, and fine business capacity characterizes the financial management of that institution, according to Examiner of Public Accounts J. T. Gorman. The examiner filed in the governor's office a report covering his examination of the books of the university.

Examiner Gorman made an examination of 14 various funds of the university, the receipts from the maintenance fund for the period extending from September 1, 1913, to July 31, 1914, being $131,057.30. Disbursements were the same.

According to the examiner, the receipts from the endowment fund alone was $41,160.58, while receipts from other funds were as follows: Laboratory fund, $9,570.43; summer school fund, $17,619.68; medical college fund, $20,000, and building fund, $45,000. In all cases the disbursements equaled the receipts.

The university has two endowment funds, the first consisting in the proceeds from the sale of lands donated by congress, and the second consisting of items totaling $615,930.81.

In closing his report, Examiner Gorman asked if Alabama is doing her full duty for the university, and declared that the inadequacy of its revenue can be seen by a comparison with the universities of other states. Following is a table of ten leading universities of the United States showing the number of students and the amount of revenue of these institutions:

State—	Students.	Revenue
Illinois	4850	$2,225,000
Michigan	5800	1,750,000
Missouri	2700	1,350,500
Ohio	3750	1,100,000
California	4750	1,675,000
Wisconsin	4500	2,000,000
Minnesota	7000	2,150,000
Texas	2100	540,000
Virginia	800	295,000
Alabama	721	135,000

"The financial condition of the university deserves the careful attention and consideration of the next legislature.

"Much has already been accomplished, but all that is possible should be done for the magnificent University of Alabama," said the examiner.

Want Record of Cotton Purchases.

Passage of laws compelling warehousemen and other purchasers of cotton to keep a complete record of all their purchases and a list of the names of all persons from whom they purchase cotton will be urged before the next legislature by W. R. Brassell, member of the Montgomery City Commission. Mr. Brassell will urge that these laws be passed so that farmers may be protected from negroes who steal cotton and later dispose of it to the warehousemen or cotton buyers.

Mr. Brassell called attention to several instances where negroes had stolen cotton and later disposed of it to the warehousemen. When the owners of the cotton sought to identify it they found that identification was impossible because no record was kept of the names of the persons selling the cotton.

In many instances negroes will receive checks for cotton which they do not have to endorse, hence when an attempt is made to trace the cotton it usually results in failure, according to Mr. Brassell.

Stringent enforcement of the laws which prohibit the transfer of cotton "between guns" will be sought by Commissioner Brassell and W. A. Gunter, Jr., president of the City Commission.

Investigate Pure Food Violations.

Pure food law violations in Birmingham will be investigated by C. H. Billingsley, State Pure Food and Drug Clerk. It has been reported to the Pure Food Department that several parties in Birmingham have been violating the pure food laws and a rigid investigation will be made. Recently the Pure Food Department has been quite active in running down the violators of the pure food laws. In many instances it has been discovered that the violations resulted because of the acts of dealers in other states and in these instances the aid of the federal courts has been invoked by the State Pure Food Department.

Registrars Appointed for Baldwin.

C. H. Burns, of Bay Minette, I. S. Davis of Tensaw and J. B. Childers of Oak were appointed as members of the Board of Registrars of Baldwin County.

Marengo Will Have State-Aid Road.

Contracts for the construction of a $7,000 state-aid road in Marengo county have been let by R. P. Boyd, assistant state highway engineer. The state will pay one-half of the contract money and the county will pay the other half. Several other counties are preparing to let contracts for state-aid roads. Mr. Boyd has several engagements with the boards of county commissioners of [illegible] counties throughout the state, which he will fill [illegible]

COTTON GINS ARE BUSY IN ALABAMA

Reports Throughout State Show Planters are Devoting Their Attention to Picking and Ginning the Year's Crop.

CONDITIONS REPORTED GOOD

Question of Price is Causing Some Anxiety—Banks Adopt Liberal Policy.

Montgomery.—Reports from various sections show that cotton is opening rapidly and in most cases the farmers are devoting their time to picking and ginning. In most of the counties very little cotton has been offered for sale.

Most of the reports, as regards crop conditions, are good, although rain in some sections has been detrimental and injured the grade of the cotton. Some cases of damage from the weevil are reported.

In Calhoun County, the condition of the cotton crop is reported almost perfect. Barbour, Mobile, DeKalb and many other counties report that conditions are excellent and most of the other counties report good crops. DeKalb, in addition to reporting a fine crop, states that the crop was very inexpensive to make and the farmers are not afraid of the price.

Bibb, on the contrary, reports that the crop has gone from bad to worse and that now is the most gloomy period in farming circles in that section since the Civil War. They report slow ginning and no sales.

Escambia is suffering from continued rains but the farmers are putting forth every effort to gin their cotton. The fields are filled with pickers, and cotton is being ginned fast. In Houston and Blount counties cotton is opening fast but too much rain is causing some damage.

Baldwin reports that picking is being delayed by rains and that the work of the farmer is also being held up by a scarcity of pickers. Farmers in this county have had the weevil to contend with and considerable destruction from this source is reported.

Hale reports the presence of three forces that are working against cotton and states that the crop is suffering from rain, weevils and army worms.

These reports, however, are the most pessimistic. There are many other counties which send in a report of excellent conditions; the cotton crop of Alabama as a whole is considered to be good, and in most cases the crop yield is not troubling the farmer.

The business conditions that surround the crop are very uncertain and unsettled and naturally the question of price is creating anxiety throughout the State.

Most of the counties, however, report that the banks have adopted a liberal policy toward the farmer and are carrying over old debts and endeavoring to relieve the situation in every possible way.

In spite of the pessimism and doubt, many of the farmers seem to be confident that by government legislation or otherwise money will be provided to relieve the tensity of the situation.

In very few cases has the pessimism been so great that the farmer is leaving his cotton in the seed, and the gins are running every day to put the cotton in marketable shape.

TUSCALOOSA OFFICER KILLED.

W. G. Thrower Shot By Tossie King, Who Surrenders.

Tuscaloosa.—In front of a negro restaurant in the Alston quarters, Tossie King, nephew of former Chief of Police Henry King, and connected with other prominent people in this section, shot and instantly killed Policeman W. G. Thrower.

Shortly after the fatal affair, King surrendered to Deputy Sheriff W. A. Connell and with the admission that he took the life of the officer, was imprisoned in the county jail.

The deceased who was comparatively a young man, is survived by his widow and two little children.

GOVERNOR NAMED FOR GOVERNOR

Parsons and Culli Named for Supreme and Appellate Court Court Justices.

SHIELDS MAY DECLINE.

Birmingham.—The republicans are experiencing great difficulty in securing a nominee for governor.

O. D. Street, who was first named, retired for reasons of business, and Judge John B. Shields, who was nominated at a meeting of the State executive committee held here, is quoted in a Jasper dispatch as saying in effect that the honor had been thrust upon him.

Birmingham.—At a meeting of the republican state executive committee held here Judge James B. Shields of Jasper was nominated for governor of Alabama on the republican ticket in lieu of Oliver D. Street, who was nominated at the recent republican state convention for that office.

Mr. Street, who was formerly United States attorney for the northern district of Alabama, notified the committee that for business reasons it was impossible for him to stay on the ticket and asked that his name be withdrawn.

The committee received the withdrawal of Mr. Street's name with regrets and at the meeting Judge Shields' name was substituted, and he will head the republican ticket of the state. He was notified of his nomination over long distance telephone and at once stated he would accept the nomination.

The committee also nominated George H. Parsons of Talladega for for chief justice of the supreme court, and P. E. Culli of Gadsden for judge of the court of appeals.

The commitee was called together by Pope M. Long, chairman, for the purpose of completing the republican ticket and to select a campaign committee. Of the 39 members of the state executive committee 30 were in attendance and were called to order by Chairman Long, with Charles B. Kennemer as secretary. After stating the purpose of the meeting the chairman appointed a committee on nominations. The committee had the names of four or five prominent republicans who had been mentioned for the nomination for governor and finally settled on Judge Shields. The report of the nominating committee was adopted unanimously and the nominee notified of their selection. With these three nominations the republican state ticket is now complete.

The matter of waging an active campaign for the election of the republican nominees was discussed and a campaign committee was authorized with Thomas J. Kennemer as chairman. He will select the members of the committee later. This concluded the business of the meeting of the executive committee and adjournment was had.

AEROPLANE DROPS BOMBS INTO PARIS

Aviator in Note States Germans are at Gates of Paris—Parisians Though Startled By Occurrence Remain Tranquil.

PARIS HOMES WILL BE RAZED

Official Order That Houses Within Zone of Action of Paris Forts Be Evacuated and Razed.

London.—A Paris dispatch to the Exchange Telegram Company, says:

"A German aviator flew over Paris and dropped five bombs, which fell in the most populous quarter of the city. In one case two women were wounded.

"One bomb fell in front of the shop of a baker and wine merchant at Rue Albuy and Rue Des Vinalgiers; two on Quai de Valmy, one of which did not explode, while the other struck the walls of the night refuge, behind St. Martin's hospital. Two others dropped in the Rue Des Recoletts and Rue Marcin, neither of which exploded.

"The aviator, who signed himself Lieutenant Von Heissen, dropped manifestos on which was written: 'The German army is at the gates of Paris; you can do nothing but surrender.'"

Paris.—A German aeroplane flying at the height of 6000 feet over Paris, dropped a bomb into the city at 1:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The bomb struck near L'Estrailway station, not far from the military hospital, but did no damage. Though startled by this threatening occurrence Parisians remained tranquil.

All have been gradually accustomed to consider much more serious events as possibilities and the people of the capital are equal to either fortune—hard won success in the north or a temporary reverse.

The official communication issued by the military governor Saturday night ordering that houses within the zone of action of the Paris forts be evacuated and razed has been the subject of much discussion and various rumors have spread throughout the city.

General Lacroix, military editor of the Temps, takes a hopeful view of the situation, saying:

"The Germans continue their turning movement on their right. We have replied by assuming the offensive at Novion Porcien and at Guise. The result is indecisive in the first direction, but our attack will be resumed."

The territory over which the German aeroplanist flew is in the northeastern part of Paris and scarcely a mile from the heart of the city. In the district are the big military hospital, the hospital St. Louis, St. Lazare prison for women, the Church of St. Laurent, which dates from the sixteenth century, the North railroad station, the magnificent curch of St. Vincent de Paul, the I aribosiere hospital, one of the largest in Paris, several colleges and several theatres.

Fighting Along Austrian Frontier.

London.—Desperate fighting continues along the Austrian frontier, says an official statement issued at St. Peterasburg, and telegraphed here by the correspondent of the Reuter Telegram Company.

"In east Prussia," says the Russian war office, "the garrisons and fortresses of Trorn and Graudenz (east of the Vistula) are taking part with a large number of siege guns. We have taken 3000 prisoners in the operations east of Lemberg (capital of Galicia).

"Near Pogers (just south of the Vistula) the enemy lost 300 men and we captured four guns, a number of caissons of ammunition and nine guns abandoned by the Austrians when they crossed the Solokia. North of Tomacheff we took 1000 prisoners and surrounded and defeated the Hungarian fifteenth division east of Tomacheef, entire regiments surrendering.

"The enemy is making his principal efforts in the direction of Lublin (in Russian Poland, 95 miles southeast of Warsaw), where the fighting is fierce."

Forts at Liege Still Hold Out.

London.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegram Company, from Antwerp says that the Belgian government declares officially that several of the forts at Liege are still resisting.

German Troops Go Back.

London.—One hundred and sixty railway trains loaded with German troops have passed through Belgium from the southwest toward the northeast, according to an Antwerp dispatch to The Reuter Telegram Company. This, it is added, indicates that the Germans are sending troops back on account of the Russian advance. The German forces at Brengels has been reduced to a battalion.

London.—Russia troops from India are now on their way to increase the British forces in France. This was announced by the Marquis of Lansdowne, [illegible]

Tires at Before-War Prices

Goodyear Prices
It is Folly Today to Pay More

30 x 3 Plain Tread	$11.70
30 x 3½ " "	15.75
34 x 4 " "	24.35
36 x 4½ " "	35.00
37 x 5 " "	41.95

There exists now a new, compelling reason for buying Goodyear tires. It results from War conditions.

These leading tires—built of extra-fine rubber, in the same way as always—are selling today at June prices.

You will find today a very wide difference between most tire prices and Goodyears.

Due to Quick Action

Early in August—when war began—the world's rubber markets seemed closed to us. Rubber prices doubled almost over night.

Men could see no way to pay for rubber abroad, and no way to bring it in. We, like others—in that panic—were forced to higher prices. But we have since gone back to prices we charged before the war, and this is how we did it:

We had men in London and Singapore when the war broke out. The larger part of the world's rubber supply comes through there. We cabled them to buy up the pick of the rubber. They bought—before the advance—1,500,000 pounds of the finest rubber there.

Nearly all this is now on the way to us. And it means practically all of the extra-grade rubber obtainable abroad.

Today we have our own men in Colombo, Singapore and Para. Those are the world's chief sources of rubber. So we are pretty well assured of a constant supply, and our pick of the best that's produced.

We were first on the ground. We were quick-est in action. As a result, we shall soon have in storage an almost record supply of this extra-grade of rubber.

And we paid about June prices.

Now Inferior Grades Cost Double

About the only crude rubber available now for many makers is inferior. In ordinary times the best tire makers refuse it. Much of it had been rejected. But that "off rubber" now sells for much more than we paid for the best.

The results are these:

Tire prices in general are far in advance of Goodyears. And many tire makers, short of supplies, will be forced to use second-grade rubber.

Be Careful Now

In Goodyears we pledge you the same grade tire as always. And that grade won for Goodyears the top place in Tiredom—the largest sale in the world.

And, for the time being, our prices are the same as before the war. We shall try to keep them there.

We accept no excessive orders, but dealers will be kept supplied. And we charge them, until further notice, only ante-bellum prices.

That means that Goodyears—the best tires built—are selling way below other tires.

A great crowd which had gathered outside, expecting possibly to see us executed, hooted us as we left the station.

"We were able to get a train to Cologne, however, into which city thousands of troops were pouring when we arrived. We got a train supposedly for Ostend, but we were stopped at Herbesthal on the Belgian border. We had to get out of the train at 10 p. m. It was raining and we had nothing to eat and no place to go.

"There was no chance to get another train, but about one o'clock the next morning I managed to get hold of a one-horse cart driven by a peasant who said he would take us to Verviers, where he thought we could get a train for Liege. He gave us some crusts of bread which was the first we we had to eat for 18 hours.

"On the road we passed the most pitiful procession of German refugees fleeing from Belgium. Some were in vehicles, but the majority were trudging in the dust, pushing or pulling their baggage in carts. Women with babies at the breast were walking in the noonday sun.

"From Verviers we proceeded by another cart toward Liege. We had not progressed three miles when we came upon a party of Belgian engineers mining the road. They had great piles of dynamite stacked there ready to plant in the ditches they were digging across the roadway.

"They advised us to go to Liege by another road; we hastened to do so.

"Two hours later another party of Americans were halted at that very spot by a skirmish between the Belgians and uhlans. They were forced to lie in a ditch while the Belgians fired over them. Next day 2,000 Germans were killed by the same mines we had seen the engineers planting.

"Soon after we got a train for Ostend. We did not see any of the fighting at Liege, but could hear the firing."

MISSIONARY SOCIETY ENTERTAINMENT.

An entertainment was given by the Missionary Society of the Methodist church Sunday night last. That the entertainment was highly enjoyed and appreciated was evidenced by the large audience, the auditorium of the church being well filled and every one remaining throughout the exercises.

The program consisted of songs, recitations, etc., a talk on missions by the Pastor, Rev. Chappelle, and an excellent portrayal of the heathen nations by several boys and girls dressed in the costumes of the different heathen lands. Their appeals to Christianized America for help, which was beautifully depicted by Miss Emmette Matthews, seemed to touch the hearts of many in the audience and awoke them to the great need of sending God's word to those who have it not.

Much credit is due Mrs. E. A. Matthews, the head of the Society, as well as the several boys and girls who took part in the exercises for this entertainment.

A CORRECTION.

We were informed, and so stated in our issue last week, that the bale of cotton brought to Clanton on Aug. 20th by Mr. Ben Edwards was ginned by the Planters' Gin & Warehouse Co. This was an error, the Chilton Fertilizer plant ginned this bale as well as the one brought to town the same day by Mr. John Popwell.

UNITY-CHILTON HIGH SCHOOL.

Editor Clanton Press.

Please announce in your paper this week that there will be public exercises on the opening day of our school. The executive committee of the Unity and the Chilton County Association are respectfully requested to be present that they may secure and put in proper shape data for making report of the work of the school to their respective associations. We want the associations to hear the brethren into whose hands they have placed their work. We have nothing to hide.

On September 9, our opening day, we assemble in our auditorium at 10 o'clock a.m., and hear several of the brethren address us along the different phases of our work. The afternoon will be given to organization and classification. All patrons and friends of the school are urged to be present.

We would like to drop a word of encouragement to those who are almost, but not fully, pursuaded. You may think those circumstances resulting from the great European war are in your way, and that you just cannot come. Well, it is a good time to try your manhood or your womanhood in overcoming obstactles. That boy or girl who overcomes obstactles in getting ready for life's battles is the one who overcomes in the actual conflict, and moves on to success and honor. Great things are in the future of this nation, but they will come only to those who are prepared for them. It is either educate or be a "hewer of wood and a drawer of water" for him who does.

Others may say I have a good "job" offered me; I must go to making money. The ruin of many a young man has been $1.50 a day You may ask about him twenty five years hence, and it will still be $1.50 or less, when it might as well have been $5 or $10 per day. The difference is a difference of preparation. This is merely the monetary side of the question—the one overmuch stressed at the present. But there is another side. Why should you be content to be a pint cup of enjoyment and usefulness when it is your high privilege to be a hogshead? Our high school course is second to none, and prepares you for both the above as far as high school work can do so, and at as reasonable figures or first class work can be done. Young man, young woman, give us a trial at making your life a success. Do it now. Delays are dangerous.

But you do not mean to be anything but a farmer or a farmer's wife. Then you need the very best equipment possible for you to secure. Then your farm will "blossom as the rose" and fruit as Lebanon.

From the fact that we have published no normal course and are in no sense running a normal school, it may be inferred that we give no attention to those things. This would be an erroneous inference. Pedagogic principles underlie all our work, and special attention is given those subjects most needed by the pupils who desire to pass the state examinations.

Allow us, in conclusion, to say that those girls who board with the president will furnish bed clothing and toilet articles on the regular dormitory plan.

Any further information concerning our opening or our work will be cheerfully given.

Yours truly,
JOHN A. POOL,
President Unity-Chilton Baptist High School, Thorsby, Ala.

Minnesota Traveling Man In Bad Shape

In an affidavit executed before a Notary in St. Paul, a traveling man swears to the following:

Had a scrofulous ulcer about two by three inches in size on the right side of neck over the jugular vein—a dangerous place. Was treated by many doctors, but no benefit. Allan's Ulcerine Salve cured the ulcer in six months.

This salve is one of the oldest remedies in America and since 1869 it has been known as the only salve powerful enough to cure chronic ulcers and old sores of long standing.

Allan's Ulcerine Salve acts by drawing out the poisons and healing the sore from the bottom up. It is so powerful that it heals new cuts and sores in one third the time that common salves and liniments take. And it heals burns and scalds without a scar. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co., and other leading druggists.

Cost Kept Down--Quality Kept Up.

No better medicine could be made for coughs, colds, croup, hoarseness, tickling throat, bronchitis, etc., than Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. PUBLISHED IN THE INTEREST OF CHILTON COUNTY AND HER PEOPLE

VOL. 5. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 10, 1914 NO. 22.

MR. POUNDS' LETTER

Pletcher, Ala., Sept. 7, 1914

Editor Clanton Press:

In pursuance of my proposition of last week to write-up some things of the past in regard to some people of the present, and since you have given me such permission, I now pull off my gloves and light into the ring.

Now you must not think for a moment that you Democrats are going to escape the knife, or the cudgel, for there be things of which the Democratic party and its leaders have been guilty in the past, and many things for which the party and its leaders stand that I do not endorse nor believe in.

Some things I can never forgive nor forget, although I will admit and believe that the rank and file of men—the common voters—are as honest in their support of their political beliefs, so also are the people who vote the Republican ticket.

You see it is mostly a matter of education or miseducation with the common voter, as to how he votes, as perhaps nine-tenths of the people vote according to their ignorance and prejudice. (If this were not the case, this same nine-tenths who are laboring men would vote the Socialist ticket.) Yes, I repeat with emphasis, that the people usually vote their ignorance and prejudice and do it with a vengeance.

Now I am sure that unless I hold up here a little, that some party-blind fool or fools will begin to cuss and rear and pull their hair. Well, if this were not true, how in the name of sense could some folks ever keep on flim-flamming the voters and keep them voting the same old duffers into office? Now this begins to lead me up to the main points that I wish to make. That is, that the politician, the office-seeker, the man or men with special interests and selfish ends to be subserved, will lay out their plans, raise false issues and begin to get the voters' right to hand him on election day. They set out to pump him as full of prejudice as his mind and hide will hold, then they feel sure of landing their fish, for when a man is mad he does not nor will not hear the truth about anything, it does not matter how clear and plain it may be put before him. This is very largely the case today in Chilton county. As one proof of this fact, let us revert to some things we mentioned last week, wherein we mentioned the great "hew and cry" emanating from a certain bunch of fellows about how the affairs are being so badly managed and the rights and privileges ro recklessly disregarded.

Well you remember that we said if such be the case let the guilty ones suffer and for God and humanity's sake don't be so sneaking and cowardly as to lay the blame for stealing the horse on the wrong fellow. Could anything be meaner or more cowardly and low down than to knowingly bring false accusation against any one? (Even the devil should have his dues.)

Well, L. H. Reynolds says that we have lost his grip on the affairs of the county, that the county's or people's money has been recklessly spent, and but little to show for it, and charges the trouble up to you Democrats. If you are guilty I for one want you to suffer for it; or whoever is guilty let him suffer, if this is true and sure this is [illegible] of lies—that means of [illegible] man of such [illegible] man who is a [illegible] that man who [illegible] and clean, that [illegible] it his business [illegible] with schools and people, boys and girls, how to be pure and upright (especially the country church people where he knows the voters go,) that man who is but a little different from George Washington, in that George could not tell a lie and L. H. R. can.

Well, Lewis Reynolds says the Demies got "der mon," and I reckon spent it just for fun.

But where was Uncle Moses Robinson, W. H. Shaw and Tommie Herrod, the men that the Bull "Mice" party so highly recommended and elected to the office of County Commissioner for the express and specific purpose of levying tax and using the "peopul's" money?

In the name of all that is true and just to the "peopul" and us, what have you gentlemen been doing anyhow, that you let the "darn" Democrats misuse all "that thar mon." You were highly recommended for your truth and veracity, for your ability and capability as among the very best men the county afforded, in which and to which to intrust the affairs of the people. You have been drawing your per diem, or pay, to look after these very things, besides the law clothes you with all power and makes it your especial duty to attend strictly to the financial affairs of this county, yet Reynolds says that since the Democrats got in power that all these calamities have come upon us. What do you say, gentlemen, are you Democrats and elected under the cloak of the Bull Moose? There seems to be something rotten up the branch.

Surely Lewis would not lie on you, because at the time you were elected I am sure he recommended you very highly to the "peopul." Will you please rise up in "meetin'" and tell us just how this matter stands and who is to blame? For you see Lewis and his valiant helpers are raising a terrible stench of this thing, and it do look like if you Democrats are not turned out immediately and the great "Bull Mouse" (L. H.) put back in charge of the money purse of the "peopul," that the whole thing will go to the "demnition" bowwows, and that soon.

You know he says the people should know and have a right to know, where every dollar of their money goes, and what for. In this I agree with him fully if not in anything else. So when I get time I will ask him to explain where all the money went and what for, when he was boss.

Hope to see you next week.

As ever,

L. B. POUNDS.

REPUBLICAN RING-RULE

Verbena, Ala. Sept. 8. 1914.

Editor Press,

Clanton, Ala.;

My Dear Sir:

After reading the article in last week's Union-Banner concerning the postoffice at Maplesville, the way in which the writer of said article accuses the Democrats of Chilton county of being responsible, that "this is a scheme of the Democratic rule" in Chilton," etc., I am reminded of an incident which happened at this place about five years ago.

The postoffice here was made vacant by the death of our postmaster, the office being one of the [illegible] class, [illegible] (about [illegible] mixture [illegible] the office [illegible] publican ring-rule "got busy" and, with the use of the wires, this appointment was held up at Talladega; the petition never got further than there, and, without the consent or knowledge of a single patron of this office, the then Republican ring-rule at Clanton had appointed a man, a total stranger to the patrons of the office, who did not live within five miles of the office, and but for the rural mail service, would not have been a patron of the office, as postmaster, who continued to serve as postmaster until recently.

I have no interest whatever in the postmastership at Maplesville, nor do I care who is appointed, but I believe in fair play.

The above is a closed incident, and but for the mention of "Democratic Rule," would never have been re-opened. Although now closed, it still lingers in the minds of all the people here as a reminder of those dark days of "Republican ring-rule," when the people's voices were thwarted and "a few dictated appointments." These are undeniable facts and you have but only to mention this to many people in the county of the people their full rights of the said "days gone."

GIANT ROLLER COASTER AT ALABAMA STATE FAIR.

GIANT ROLLER COASTER

Huge Framework 500 Feet in Length, Running Its Own Length Four Times, Making Total Trackway of Nearly Half a Mile.

One of the greatest things at the Alabama State Fair at Birmingham this fall is the huge roller coaster which has just been erected at a great cost. This giant trackway is 500 feet long and runs its entire length four times. In other words, the ride is 2000 feet, or nearly half a mile.

Think of it! A roller coaster track half a mile long. It is conceded to be the biggest, best and most substantial ever built in the south. It is braced and guyed everywhere there is a chance to brace it and guy it. There is not a chance for a mishap, like there is on so many others.

The man who built this one has built and owns twelve others throughout the south and has been running them for the past ten years. He says, and proves it, that he has never had a mishap of even the slightest kind.

It is situated right on the midway. You enter at the gate which fronts the west and get in the car which is built on solid lines and for comfort and safety. A strong cableway takes you to the top of the first incline, 100 feet high and then lets go. You dart up and down for 500 feet and then take a sudden turn to the left and immediately plunge into space. But wait! Just when you think you are gone, you go rapidly rising upward again and the first thing you know you are up in the air about 100 feet again. You pursue the same course for 500 feet when you take another turn and go through some more ups and downs and straight shoots and take another turn. After a 500 foot ride on "wheels," about a dozen of them, you straight on the platform from whence you started ten minutes ago, ready to go again.

The picture of it we give you here, with will give you a slight idea of what this big joy riding device looks like, but to fully appreciate it, you will have to come to the fair this fall, look at it and ride on it for yourself.

POULTRY WILL BE GREAT FEATURE OF BIG STATE FAIR

Superintendent Halstead Predicts Biggest Poultry Show Ever Held in South This Year.

If anyone else said it, it wouldn't be believed, but coming from Dr. Hal T. Halstead, superintendent of the poultry show of the Alabama State State Fair, the statement that this year's show will be by far bigger and better than that of last year, the fair officials are forced to accept it as a "sho nuff" fact.

Dr. Halstead has gotten in the habit of pulling off the biggest and best poultry shows anywhere about this country, and it seems that he outdoes himself by far every year. Last year it was thought that the genial doctor had outdone himself, but this year he says indications are that the fond dreams are to be exceeded, which, to use a street term, "is going some."

DON'T OVERLOOK THE REBATE BUREAU FEATURE OF THE FAIR

You can come to Birmingham and shake with certain merchants when you come in the fair and have your railroad fare refunded to you through the Rebate Bureau of the Business Men's League.

If you want a list of these merchants, or want to know something more about the working of the rebate bureau, drop a card to Sam H. Fowlkes, care the Alabama State Fair, and he will send you all the information you want.

ORGANIZATION OF BUSINESS MENS LEAGUE

Organization to be Permanent One

The Business Men's League of Chilton County, having as its members practically every merchant, banker and business man in the county, was organized at Clanton last Friday with W. L. Mullins as President, Guy Higgins as Secretary and E. M. Pinckard as Treasurer. The organization is to be a permanent one and its purpose is to furnish the means for co-operative work at such times as the present crisis, when there is no market for cotton and all business is more or less demorilized.

At the meeting Friday a committee, consisting of Dr. E. A. Matthews, John Patton, Jr. and W. A. Gulledge, were appointed to confer with bankers of Birmingham and Montgomery to see if some rangement can be made whereby cotton may be used as a basis for credit.

The League will hold a meeting at the Court House on next Friday, at ten o'clock a.m., at which time the farmers and general public are invited. At this meeting the cotton situation will be discussed, and possibly some plan announced for handling the crop.

The following resolution was offered by Judge S. M. Adams:

Whereas, all Europe is now engaged in war and bloodshed and

Whereas, our own country is threatened with busines stagnation, and, whereas, we are confronted with no market for cotton, and cotton being the only means through which we of the South get money to do business, and, whereas, the farmers and merchants, and indeed all business depends upon the sale of cotton.

Be it resolved, First: That we, the business men and merchants of Chilton county, most earnestly recommend that we do what we can to promote a system of co-operation among the bankers, business men and farmers to the end that we may obtain, through the warehouse system, as suggested by Congress, the means to handle the cotton crop, and

Be it further resolved, Second: That, in view of the grave and serious condition of our country on account of the war in the East, it is the sense of this convention of business men assembled, September 4th, 1914, that all political strife and agitation cease and that we turn our hearts and hands to the relief of all our people and all parties.

The foregoing resolutions met with opposition on the 4th, inst., and were withdrawn by the author. I did not intend, by the resolutions, to infertere with any individual's political views or that of any political party—and they speak for themselves. My only purpose was to suggest that all parties for the present cease firing until the question which is above all other questions at this time—the co-operation of the people in making some disposition of their cotton crop—for I fear that if the political battle that is now going on in this county is to continue, we can do but little in our efforts to co-operate together on this all important matter. Contending armies have been known to raise the flag of truce upon the battlefield and the firing of deadly weapons cease.

I did hope that while such a cloud of disappointment, in a business way, hangs over our people, that we could stop for a little while, until better things were attended to. That's all.

Sincerely,

S. M. ADAMS.

The Press is unable to understand why any man could object to the resolution offered above. Certainly there was nothing in the resolution to bridle any man's political views, and it was not a strike at any one political party more than to another, the only purpose being to promote co-operation of all the citizens in the handling of the cotton crop in the present crisis.

COUNTY COURT.

Probate Judge

September term of County Court convened Monday morning. There were a large number of cases, about 35, most of which were minor offenses, such as assault and battery and violations of the prohibition law. A night session of the court was held Monday night and the greater part of Tuesday was taken to clear the docket.

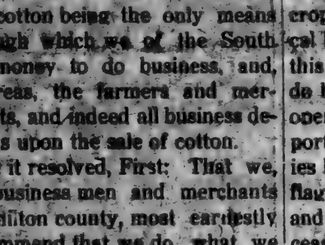
The most important case was that of J. M. DuBose, convicted in two cases for violating the prohibition law and fined $200.00 in each case and sentenced to six months hard labor. An appeal was taken in each case.

CITY OFFICERS NOMINATED.

At a meeting of citizens held at the Court house last Friday night, the following gentlemen were nominated for Mayor and Aldermen of the Town of Clanton to be voted for at the general municipal election to be held Sept. 21, 1914:

For Mayor—E. M. Pinckard.

For Aldermen—F. R. Woodyard, W. W. Fox, J. B. Downs, W. A. Kemp and W. L. Popwell.



Resolutions were unanimously adopted by the meeting pledging support to the ticket nominated.

Citrolax.

Users say it is the ideal, perfect laxative drink. M. J. Perkins, Green Bay, Wis., says: "I have used pills, oils, salts, etc., but were all disagreeable and unsatisfactory. In Citrolax I have found the ideal laxative drink." For sick headache, sour stomach, lazy liver, congested bowels, Citrolax is ideal.

The Land of Broken Promises

A Stirring Story of the Mexican Revolution

By RAWL COOLIDGE
Author of "The Flaming Foe," "Hidden Waters," "The Flames," Etc.

SYNOPSIS.

Bud Hooker and Phil DeLancey are forced, owing to a revolution in Mexico, to give up their mining claim and return to the United States. In the border town of Gadsden Bud meets Henry Kruger, a wealthy miner, who makes him a proposition to return to Mexico to acquire title to a very rich mine which Kruger had thrown up when he found he had been cheated out of the title by one Aragon. The Mexican subsequently had spent a large sum of money in an unsuccessful attempt to relocate the vein and then allowed the land to revert for taxes. Hooker and De Lancey arrive at Fortuna, near where the Eagle Tail mine is located. They engage Cruz Mendez to acquire the title for them and begin preliminary work. Aragon accuses them of jumping his claim. Hooker discovers that matrimonial entanglements prevent Mendez from acquiring a valid title. Phil, who has been paying attention to Gracia Aragon, decides to turn Mexican and acquire the title. Aragon fails in his attempt to drive them off the claim. Rebels are reported in the vicinity. A rich vein of gold is struck and work on the mine is stopped until the title can be perfected. Phil is arrested by Manuel del Rey, captain of the rurales and suitor of Gracia's. He is released on promise to stay away from Gracia.

CHAPTER XVI—Continued.

"I wonder where that dogged Indian went to," he said for the hundredth time, as the deep shadows gathered in the valley. "By Joe, Phil, if Amigo comes back I'm going to go ahead on that mine. I want to keep him around here, and we might as well get out some ore, if it's only for a grub-stake. Come on—what do you say? We'll open her up—there's nothing to hide now. Well, I'll do it myself, then—this setting around is getting on my nerves."

His far-seeing eyes, trained from his boyhood to search the hills for cattle, scanned the tops of the ridges as he spoke; and while he sat and pondered they noted every rock.

Then at last he rose up slowly and gazed at a certain spot. He waved his arm, beckoning the distant point of blackness to come in, and soon from around a point in the canyon the Yaqui appeared, bearing a heavy Mauser rifle on his arm.

Across his broad breast hung the same familiar cartridge-belt, two more encircled his hips, and he walked with his head held high, like the warrior that he was.

Evidently his flight had led to the place where his arms had been hid, for he wore the regulation knife-bayonet at his hip and around his hat was the red ribbon of his people, but Bud was too polite to ask him about his journey. Since his coming the Yaqui had always maintained a certain mystery, and now, though his eyes were big with portent and he smiled at the jests about his gun, he simply waved his hand to the south and east and murmured:

"Muchos revoltosos!"

"Seguro;" answered Bud jokingly; "but have you killed any?"

"Not yet!" returned the Indian, and he did not smile at that.

"I wonder what that Indian is waiting around here for?" remarked Phil in English. "He must have his eye on somebody."

"Yeah, I bet," agreed Bud, regarding his savage friend with a speculative interest. "Most of them Yaqui soldiers was farmhands in this country before they rounded them up. I reckon he's looking for the man that had him deported.

"Tired, Amigo?" he inquired in Spanish, and Ignacio gravely acknowledged that he was, a little.

"Then drink plenty coffee," went on Hooker. "Eat lots—tomorrow we go to work in the mine."

"Tomorrow?" repeated the Indian, as if considering his other engagements; "good!" He nodded a smiling assent.

After a month and more of idleness Bud and Amigo performed prodigies of labor in the cut, rolling down boulders, lifting them up on the tram, and clearing away the face of the cliff. Their tram was ramshackle, their track the abandoned rails from older workings, and their tools little more than their hands, but by noon the last broken fragments were heaved aside and the shattered ledge revealed.

A low cry of wonder escaped the Yaqui as he gazed at the rich vein of ore, and as he saw the grim smile on Bud's rugged countenance he showed his white teeth in sympathy.

"Que bueno!" he murmured. "How good!" gathering the precious fragments in his handkerchief.

At the camp they crushed the picked ore in a mortar and panned it in the creek, and for the moment De Lancey dropped his air of preoccupancy as he stared at the streak of pure gold. Like a yellow flag it ran along the edge of the last fine tailings, and when Bud, wondering, had left them, it gleamed like a jewel in the pan.

"By Jove, Bud!" he cried, "there's enough in that to send a dollar to the gold cup!"

"Some thing!" murmured Bud, [illegible]

PENSIONS GRANTED TO 667 APPLICANTS

Board Takes Favorable Action on That Number Out of 1,130, According to Report.

STATE CAPITAL NEWS ITEMS

Doings of the Various Departments of the Commonwealth Given for Our Readers.

—Montgomery.

Out of a total of 1,130 applications for pensions filed with the State Auditor, 667 were granted by the State Board of Pension Examiners at their meeting during the week of August 11, according to a report of the proceedings filed with the Governor's office Saturday by General Fred S. Ferguson.

The report showed that at present there were 15,500 names on the pension rolls of Alabama, being 1,977 less than reported July 1, 1913. The report states that this is the result of several causes and the action of the State Board in purging the rolls.

Out of 84 applications from Jefferson County the board accepted 66. Of this number 18 were placed in the list. The number of applications from Montgomery County was 36 and 23 of them were granted.

The board calls attention to the improvement on the part of the county officials in preparing applications for pensions and highly commends the systematic and intelligent work of its secretary, Walter B. Moore.

New Companies Mustered In.

The formation of new military companies at Birmingham and Florence has been approved by the State Military Department and Colonel C. R. Bricken of Luverne, commander of the 2nd Infantry, has been detailed as mustering officer for the two companies. The order was issued by the Adjutant General Saturday.

Captain D. S. Hudson has been detailed to assist Colonel Bricken in mustering in the new companies.

Civil War Time in Cemetery.

One pensioner who lived in a deserted graveyard to avoid the horrors of the civil war has been drawing a pension from the State of Alabama for services rendered during the war, according to information reaching the office of the State Pension Examiners. Furthermore, the informant says, after being dropped from the pension rolls of Tuscaloosa county the pensioner moved over into Bibb county where he was placed on the rolls by one official after the death of one who had refused to allow his claims.

The pensioner whose name is withheld, the letter says, received a furlough in 1863, and came back to his home where he retired to private life in the seclusion of a deserted cemetery. He had a companion whose name is now drawing a pension also for services rendered in the cemetery, also the Bibb county man. Another man in Jefferson county, the informant relates, is receiving a pension for civil war services while he lived in the swamps of Mississippi to dodge the conscript officer during the 60s.

"This is the truth, so help me God," the letter ends.

Burke Case November 12.

Ouster proceedings against Probate Judge R. I. Burke, of Cullman county, were filed in the supreme court by Attorney General Robert C. Brickell, following the receipt of the report of the Cullman grand jury, recommending Judge Burke's removal from office. Justice A. D. Sayre, as the senior presiding justice of the supreme court present in the city, set the hearing of the case for November 12. Judge Burke is charged with willful neglect of duty in that he failed to force J. D. Searcy, former treasurer, to make sufficient bond after a former grand jury had made such recommendation.

Searcy recetly absconded with a large amount of the county's money, and is now in jail in Birmingham on a charge of embezzling $35,000.

Postpones Meeting.

Capt. Reuben F. Kolb, commissioner of agriculture and industries, announced that he would not call a conference of southern commissioners of agriculture until later in the fall. Last week Captain Kolb wrote to the various commissioners and asked their opinions as to holding a conference for the purpose of discussing the cotton situation.

As the nature of the replies received Captain Kolb thought best to postpone the meeting for a few weeks.

Tour of Up-State.

State Highway Engineer W. H. Moore returned to Montgomery Saturday after completing a tour of north Alabama in the interest of the state highway project upon which the state is planning to present a bill to the legislature. Mr. Moore has been working on the report which he will present at once. His trip was a most successful one, and while away he visited every county seat in the state except two. The party was composed of Mr. Moore, Mr. [illegible] and Mr. [illegible] of the United States department of agriculture.

New Freight Tariffs.

New freight tariffs putting into effect schedules ordered by the Alabama State Railroad Commission were filed by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad company and the new rates are now in effect. The new freight rates apply to between 5,000 and 6,000 commodities of common use in Alabama.

With the filing of the new freight tariffs at the office of the Railroad Commission the fight which had continued for years between the commission and the railroad company was probably brought to a close. By accepting the terms of the commission the Louisville & Nashville signified its intention to try the new rates. Should the company find that any of the rates are too low it will apply to the commission for relief.

Citizens of nearly every section of the State will be benefited by the reduction in freight rates on the Louisville & Nashville lines inasmuch as the company's roads tap nearly all parts of the State. Many of the reductions are below the rates that have been in effect on the Southern railroad for many years under an agreement reached after the State Legislature made satutory rates.

Game Laws Conflict.

On account of the conflict in the previsions of the federal migratory bird law and the Alabama state game law, John H. Wallace, Jr., state game and fish commissioner, issued the following statement:

"Under section 6958 of the code of Alabama the open season on swans, geese, brant, duck, rails, coots, mudhens, sandpipers, woodcock and curlews, or other shore birds, begins September 1 and ends March 15, following. The federal migratory bird law provides that water fowl, including duck, swans, geese, brant, coots, mudhens and shore birds can be legally hunted between November 1 and February 1, following, and that the open season on woodcock begins November 1 and ends January 1. In all cases where a conflict occurs between the federal and the state statutes, the federal statute takes precedence, and therefore governs.

"Under the federal migratory bird law all song and insectivorous birds are protected at all times. The federal statutes for the conservation of birds and migratory water fowl was brought about for the reasons that state laws for the protection of these nomads differ widely. Some states not protecting them at all, hence a national demand arose for a uniform law for the preservation of all migratory wild life. In fixing the regulations for the taking of water fowl, the United States department of agriculture made an earnest effort to give to the sportsmen of the United States an equal open season at such a time when these birds were found most abundantly in a particular zone.

"The devastation wrought by insect pests, which have multiplied amazingly since the bird life of the continent has been depleted, is astounding. The cotton boll weevil costs the farmers $50,000,000 a year. The grasshopper, the cut-worm, the army worm, the wire worm and other insects cost the people of the United States $420,100,000 annually. This estimate has been compiled by the United States department of agriculture.

"There were formerly dozens of species of birds that were of vast value to the American people as insect destroyers; that were erstwhile slaughtered at will by wanton boys and reckless men. The agriculturists of the United States, therefore, demanded that Congress enact a statute that would save from extinction the natural enemies of the insect pests, the birds, that they might continue to labor for the farmers, without pay, and co-operate with them in securing bountiful harvests."

Commission for Florence.

The governor appointed C. E. Jordan, T. J. Phillips and M. M. Striplin members of the city commission of Florence, the chief executive's home city. The governor's appointees will compose Florence's first commission, since the question of whether or not the people of that city should have a commission form of government was not voted upon until last Monday. The members of the Florence city commission were notified of their appointment, their credentials having been sent to them with letters informing them of their selection.

Declares Accounts O. K.

The accounts of W. E. Copeland, clerk of the criminal court of Jefferson county, are kept in an exceedingly business-like manner and all monies are properly accounted for, says a report filed in the office of Governor O'Neal by W. H. Foster, examiner of public accounts. The examination covered the period of November 18, 1912, to July 30, 1914. The examiner reported also that the accounts of H. J. Miller, former county treasurer of Jefferson county, were in proper condition.

PSYCHOLOGY OF THE KISS

Famous Englishman Authority Classifies Osculation Into Two Distinct Types.

Into learned discussion as to kisses Sir Ray Lankester divides them into two classes. "One class takes the form of mere rubbing—each kiss giver rubbing his nose against that of the other. The second kind, which is that familiar to us, consists in pressing the lips against the lips, skin or hair of another individual and making a short, quick inspiration, resulting in a more or less audible sound. Both kinds are really of the nature of 'sniffing,' the active effort to smell or explore by the olfactory sense. The kissing of one another by grown-up men was abandoned in this country in the eighteenth century, but we have most of us witnessed it abroad, and perhaps been unexpectedly subjected to the process, as I once was by an affectionate scientific colleague. The Russians are the most profuse and indiscriminate of European peoples in their kissing. I have seen a Russian about to go on a journey devoured by the kisses of his relations and household retainers, male and female."

RASH ON CHILD'S HEAD

2127 Division St., Baltimore, Md.—"The trouble on my child's face and head appeared as a rash and then it got so that the skin looked drawn and water and blood would run out. That would cause a scab and her head and face were a mass of sores. They would crack and bleed and then her head began to get scaly and I thought it was dandruff. I started to take the scab off and found her head was a mass of them. When she would cry it seemed worse because the water would stream down her face and itch and she would dig and scratch. Her little head was bald as it was so sore that all the hair came out. My baby used to cry at night and I could not sleep.

"Then I decided to get Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I would make a lather of the Cuticura Soap but her face and head were so sore I hated to touch them so I would take a soft cloth and wash her head. After I dried it with a soft towel I would gently apply the Cuticura Ointment. With the first treatment I could see a change in my baby and before I used the whole treatment she was completely healed and her skin is beautiful." (Signed) Mrs. Lillie Owens, Jan. 31, 1914.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

An Optimist.

Ex-Police Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo, who established a policeman's public library that has been a great success, praised, at a luncheon in New York, New York's police system.

"It has especially been good since Mayor Gaynor's day," Mr. Waldo said, and then, in response to an objection:

"Oh, that's nothing. Be an optimist. Don't mind trifles. Look, like the henpecked husband, on the bright side of things.

"'By gosh,' a henpecked husband said, 'I hear some chaps kicking because their wives always have the last word. Now, for my part, to give my wife the last word never bothers me a bit.'

"'It don't!'

"'No, on the contrary, I always feel thankful when she gets to it.'"

A Short Stay.

"A tramp told me a curious hard luck story yesterday."

"What was it about?"

"He said he went to Mexico to work on a rubber plantation and he hadn't been there a week before he was bounced."

TO TAKE ELABORATE CENSUS

Statistics of the Prevalence and Possible Spread of Tuberculosis Will Be Ascertained.

A tuberculosis census of thousands of churches in various parts of the country will be taken in September, under the direction of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. The census will be part of the preparation for the fifth annual Tuberculosis day, to be observed during the week of November 30. The ministers of several thousand churches will be asked to report on the number of deaths from tuberculosis in the last year, the number of living cases in their parishes on September 1, the number of deaths from all causes, and the number of members or communicants. These figures will be made the basis of an educational campaign, which will culminate in the Tuberculosis day movement, for which occasion sermons and lecture outlines and other forms of tuberculosis literature will be distributed free to ministers.

Last year nearly 75,000 churches, schools and other bodies took part in the Tuberculosis day observance. The movement had the indorsement of leading church officials of every denomination. More than 1,200 anti-tuberculosis societies, scattered all over the country, will work this year to make Tuberculosis day a success.

NO EXCUSE FOR EARLY RISING

Man Who Gets Up at Dawn Is Stupid, Is Assertion Made by Father Dwight.

The arrogance of the man who arises to the minor heroism of a cold bath has been complained of by less heroic folk who arise to a tepid or warm one. To be set apart by the ability to stand the shock of cold water has seemed to less vigorous folk an unsubstantial claim to immortality. It lacks moral sufficiency and is too much made of by the cold bathers.

Another arrogance is given consideration by the Rev. Walter Dwight, S. J., in America. It is the arrogance of early risers. Father Dwight denies them heroism and enters into doubt as to their intelligence. As a rule he finds them a "notably arrogant set," appearing to believe that they move on a "higher ethical plane."

Every normal human being, not given ordinarily to early rising, but being on occasion tempted or forced into it, has felt the strange spiritual afflatus, the moral patting on the back in consequence thereof. The feeling that a good deed has been done for a naughty world is inexplicable, but supreme.

Father Dwight is remorseless. The early riser is the least intelligent of mankind.

GOODYEAR TIRES AT ANTE-BELLUM PRICES

The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. announce "No war prices on Goodyear Tires." Mr. F. A. Sieberling, president of the Company, thus explains their unique position.

"We advanced Goodyear prices, as others did theirs, when the rubber panic came. Almost in a day crude rubber rose in New York from 55 cents per pound to much over a dollar.

"The New York supply was too small to consider. We cabled our London people to buy up the pick of the rubber there. By acting quickly and paying cash they obtained 1,500,000 pounds of the finest rubber.

"That big supply of rubber is now nearly all on the way to the Goodyear factory in Akron. It constitutes the best of the London supply.

"We are using the same grade of rubber and the same amount of it as we always have used in these tires.

"We are running our factory with three shifts of men, twenty-four hours a day. So long as we remain in this fortunate position on rubber, we shall supply the users at before-war prices to the limit of our capacity."

Prudent.

"Sire, if you will show yourself along the line of battle your soldiers will be inspired to perform prodigies of valor."

"Perhaps so, my dear general, but the enemy's gunners might also be inspired to shoot. So they have never shot before."

Mr. L. R. Neel, a representative of the Southern Agriculturist, in company with Mr. Judson Strock, has recently made a trip through Chilton county. Mr. Neel has a well written article in the September issue of the Agriculturist and speaks in the highest praise of our county's advancement along all lines.

We wonder if our friends, the Progressives, contemplate getting National Committeeman J. O. Thompson to make any campaign speeches in "Old Chilton" during this campaign? It would seem from his last week's letter to George W. Perkins that he has re-entered politics.

"I do not remember at any time that any one had a warrant on the County Treasurer, while I was Judge, that he could not get his pay, neither do I ever remember holding back any bills because there was no money to pay them with."—L. H. Reynolds in last week's Union-Banner.

As the Judge seems to have such a treacherous memory, we quote the following from the minutes of the Commissioners' Court and Warrant Book, in order that he may refresh his recollection:

"It is ordered by the Court that L. H. Reynolds be allowed Eighty-seven and 46-100 dollars for carpet, telephone, freight and pine for Court House, interest on Warrants Nos. 379, 378, 386 and 380."

The above will be found on page 10, minutes of Commissioners Court No. 2.

WARRANT STUB.

$500. May 2, 1906

Payable to Wagoner & Dobson on Nov. 15, 1906, Five Hundred Dollars, at 8 per cent interest from date. Balance payment on erection of Court House.

Received by L. H. Reynolds.
Warrant No. 378.

There were several of these warrants, aggregating perhaps, a thousand dollars, and as the stubs in the warrant book show, L. H. Reynolds drew the interest.

Now the question is, if there was plenty of money in the treasury to pay the bills, as Judge Reynolds would have you believe, why in the name of all that is fair and right was it that the taxpayer had to pay the interest on these warrants?

"It seems that every time the Press gets into a tight and can't meet the issue it jumps on me personally."

These are the exact words of one L. H. Reynolds in last week's Union-Banner just before he dastardly assaulted one of Chilton's honorable citizens. The foregoing mentioned Reynolds must be "in a tight" and "cannot meet the issue," for if any one ever indulged in personalities it was he last week. But the worst of all, when the abused party approached him, he was helpless in his efforts to dodge "the issue;" therefore he lost his head, his temper and many other things. Too bad, Mr. Reynolds, but that is the price you had to pay for your insult to the truth.

The present Probate Judge of this county has been in office about 1327 days, and according to the records he has spent during this time about $81,000.00 more than the former administration spent for the same length of time. Therefore the Democratic administration in this county is costing the taxpayers about $60.00 a day more than the former administration cost them. Are the [illegible] of this county satisfied with such management of [illegible] live see the insult to his intelligence in the article? Mr. writer of the article, have you sense enough to know that the Democratic Judge has only untied two votes of the Commissioners while he has been in office? One of them did not concern the expenditure of money and the other was to stop a gross discrimination against the taxpayer of Chilton and his boy. Now point out the wrong in either of these. Again, are not three of the four men now financing the county those you praised in previous campaigns?

Every true man, no matter what his politics, should rise up and vigorously rebuke such reflections on his intelligence.

ENTERTAINED FOR MISS MORGAN

Mrs. Samuel Earle Johnson and Miss Lurline Harper were joint hostesses recently, complimenting Miss Estella Morgan, whose marriage to Mr. Grady Reynolds, takes place September 10th. The apartments used for entertaining presented a lovely setting with an artistic arrangement of pink roses; the mantels and chandeliers being festoonnd with white clematis and pink wisteria. Heart dice was played, the score cards being pink cupids, Mrs. Harvey chandler and Mrs. Arthur Johnson keeping score. The guest of honor was presented with a dainty hand embroidered apron in pink and white; a hand-painted toilet article was given Miss McGehee for the highest score; the consolation falling to Miss Maude Mullins—a cupid.

At the conclusion of the games a most enjoyable two-course buffet luncheon was served. The pink and white motif being further developed in the pink and white baskets used for the ices.

The invitation list included:

Misses Willie Reynolds, Bess Van Derveer, Winnie Reynolds, Emmette Matthews, L. E. Morgan, Mabel Thomas, Ruby Downs, Bess Thomas, Glennie Evans, Ellen Stanley, Alma Jones, Maude Mullins, Ada Faircloth, Myrtle Mullins, McGehee, Mary Daniels and Fannie Daniels. Mesdames Sallie Fuller Foshee, Earl Gowan, Arthur Johnson and Harvey Chandler.

RECEPTION AT THORSBY INSTITUTE

The Ladies Guild of Thorsby, have planned to give a reception to the trustees, the faculty, students and their parents and contributing friends of Thorsby Institute, at Bates Hall, Friday, September 11, from 7:30 to 10 p.m. This is following a precedent already begun last year and for the purpose of presenting [illegible] improvements installed during her absence.

Thorsby Institute opened Tuesday morning, with more than double the number of boarding students ever enrolled at the opening of the school.

SHOOTING NEAR CALERA

News reached Clanton Tuesday of the shooting of the eight-year old son of a Mr. Andereon by Bill Armstrong in the Mud Town community about two and a half miles south of Calera. We have been unable to ascertain the particulars but it seems that Mr. Armstrong lived on a private road and had placed a pole across the road to keep anyone from traveling the highway, and Tuesday night a party of men and boys were passing and removed the pole. Mr. Armstrong opened fire on the crowd with the result as stated above. Wh have been unable to learn the extent of the young man's wounds.

Warrants have been issued for Armstrong's arrest.

Jumps on Rusty Sidewalk Nail

While working on a well-digging machine, a Minnesota man jumped on a rusty sidewalk spike. The nail drove part of his black woollen sock far up into his foot. He removed as much of the sock as he could, put on Allan's Ulcerine Salve, and kept right on with his work. The salve drew out parts of the sock and all other poisons, and in a week his foot was healed up.

This salve is one of the oldest remedies in America and since 1869 it has been known as the only salve powerful enough to cure chronic ulcers and old sores of long standing.

Allan's Ulcerine Salve acts by drawing out the poisons and healing the sore from the bottom up. It is so powerful that it heals new cuts and sores in one third the time that common salves and liniments take. And it heals burns and scalds without a scar. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co., and other leading druggists.

MISS MATTHEWS ENTERTAINS FOR MISS MORGAN.

Miss Emmette Matthews entertained at a handkerchief shower on Wednesday morning, in honor of Miss Estella Morgan. An interesting contest was as follows:

The story of a little girl and boy, named Estella and Grady.

I knew a little girl
She always looked so fair,
Her auburn tresses always curled
You rarely saw such pretty hair.

Her eyes were sparkling bright
A little boy was just in sight;
She into a maiden grew,
He a gallant boy so true.

They came to know each other
He thought he loved her as a brother;
Alas, he found she loved him more,
She and she alone could he adore.

Cupid played his part so well,
They walked and talked, their thoughts were carried
They slept and dreamed of shady dell,
And very soon they will be married.

The words were all out of their proper places, and the one who untangled the mystery the most correctly, and produced the rhyme was awarded the prize, a pair of embroidery scissors. Miss Bessie Van Derveer was the lucky recipient. The bride was presented with a silver dinner bell which she will find useful in calling her "here" when he is hungry.

Little Mary Elizabeth Pow and Mary Sartor daintily gowned in white lingerie, with blue ribbons, and smiling faces, drew the overloaded blue cart of beautifully assorted handkerchiefs. While they were showering the bride a delightful salad course moulded into hearts with heart sandwitches and ice tea was served.

The guests were Misses Estella Morgan, L. E. Morgan, Ruth Kate Mullins, Maud Mullins, Bessie Van-Derveer, Ruby Downs, Lurline Harper, Willie and Winnie Reynolds, Lessie Reynolds, Carrie Mae Wilson, Mesdames Morgan, Reynolds, E. M. Pinckard, Hugh Jones, Barney Roberts, Amzi Gowan, J. Earl Gowan, J. H. Middleton, Robert Pow, G. H. Denson, Sam Johnson, S. C. Matthews.

BARRETT-CURLEE.

A pretty wedding took place at the home of Rev. J. D. Hughes at Cooper Sunday afternoon last when Mr. Philip O. Barrett and Miss J. Mae Curlee were happily united, Rev. Mr. Hughes performing the ceremony in the presence of a few friends and relatives. Mr. Barrett is one of Clanton's popular young business men, being assistant cashier of the Clanton Bank, and is highly esteemed by a large circle of friends. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Curlee of Cooper and is loved and admired by all who know her. After the ceremony the happy couple came to Clanton where they will in future reside. The Press extends congratulations and hope that their pathway through life will ever be strewn with roses.

ATHLETIC MEET AND FIELD DAY AT CLANTON.

The progressive school authorities and teachers of Clanton have determined upon a course of physical, as well as mental instruction for the youth of Clanton and the surrounding country.

The first step in this direction will be to hold an athletic meet at Clanton Saturday, September 19th at 1 p.m.

The following program of events have been arranged: Running high jump, standing high jump, running broad jump, standing broad jump, pole vault, shot put, base ball throw, potato race, tug of war, three legged race, wheelbarrow race, sack race, 50 yard dash, 100 yard dash, 220 yard dash, endurance race, relay race, and pick-a-back race. There will also be games for everybody, old and young; basket ball, volley ball, ball passing bean bag, and many other games.

The events and games are arranged for both sexes and it is the desire of the managers that girls and women enter heartily into the spirit of the occasion.

This is intended to be everybody's play day, and the success depends upon the number of people, old and young, participating, and not upon the "rooters" on the side lines. Come prepared to "play the game." Everybody invited. No admission. Put it down on your date book, athletic meet Clanton, Sept. 19th, 1914.

SWAMP SURVEYED.

Mr. H. J. Merwin, at the solicitation of a number of citizens of Clanton, has just completed a preliminary survey of the Johnson swamp just south of town. This is a movement in which all citizens should be interested. It is purposed to drain the swamp by digging a ditch 12 feet wide and from 3 to 5 feet deep as far as Dake's old pond with plenty of fall to carry the water. With this swamp drained the health of the town will be greatly subserved, and will prove a great blessing to the traveling public in the spring and winter months when the heavy rains set in.

REYNOLDS-MORGAN NUPTIALS.

The marriage of Miss Estella Morgan and Mr. Grady Reynolds will be an interesting event of Thursday evening, taking place at the Methodist church at 9 o'clock.

Yellow and white will be the color tone and the attendants will be Mrs. M. S. Whitfield of Montgomery, matron of honor; Miss L. E. Morgan, maid of honor; Misses Lurline Harper, Winnie Reynolds, Willie Reynolds and Bess Van Derveer, bride's maids.

Mr. Grady Reynolds will be attended by Mr. Brown Gaston of Montgomery as best man; Messrs. Sam Latham, Joe Van Derveer, Claude Reynolds, Hance Alred, Sam Hopkins of Greenville, and John F. Dillard of Montgomery, as groomsmen.

Little Mary Elizabeth Powe of Maylene will be the ring bearer, and Anne Whitfield of Montgomery and Francis Hopkins are to be the flower girls.

Miss Morgan has had a number of entertainments given in her honor, among them being the luncheon given by Mrs. Sam Johnson and Miss Lurline Harper, the kitchen shower given by Mrs. Hugh Simpson, the miscellaneous shower given by Miss Bess Van-Derveer, and the linen shower given by Mrs. J. Q. Wade.

Miss Morgan will entertain the bridal party after the rehearsal of Wednesday evening.

SINGING CONVENTION

The Chilton County Singing Convention at South Calera Saturday and Sunday was conceded the best in the history of the convention. Attendance was large, weather lovely; a goodly number of visitors were there, particularly from Birmingham. Misses Isabel and Bettie Jackson, of Birmingham, did some of the finest directing we ever saw. While Miss Isabel was on the floor she sang "Alabama" and "Jesus Died for Me"—wonderful. We never saw a convention so moved. Then our own Miss Lela Davis, of South Chilton, just charmed the people with her leading. Then we had the earnest T. C. Jackson, M. V. Lawley, of Montevallo, the polished Davis, of Birmingham, the skillful Blankenship, of Chilton and others, all doing fine work. It was a success.

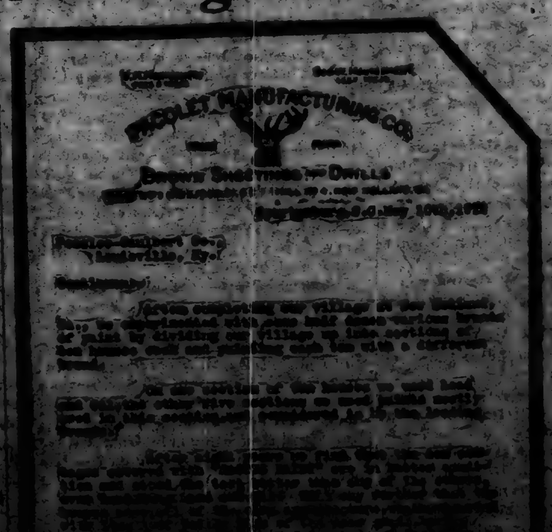
SECRETARY.

SMITH'S SCHOOL HOUSE

Hon. L. H. Sawyer Successfully Opposed L. H. Reynolds on Sept 3rd.

I must say that until Mr. Sawyer was introduced it seemed that the speaking would prove a Progressive success, since three of their speakers had used almost two hours in trying to point out the virtues of Progressiveism and denouncing the present administration. But, alas! our own L. R. Sawyer came to our rescue, and in most eloquent terms defended ably the Democratic party by proving to us that we had received more than mere promises at the hands of the present administration, and at the same time denounced the Progressive party and charged it with seeking personal interest and not to serve the interest of the common people. We are glad to sey that we have a man in the person of Roy Sawyer, who has the courage to meet these fellows and denounce their policy in trying to poison the minds of the people and prejudice them against the administration which has done so much for us. We take pleasure in recommending L. R. Sawyer to the voters of Chilton county for we have known him from childhood and he has beyond all doubt proven himself worthy of all he's asking at the hands of the voters of Chilton county.

Mr. Editor, we cannot vouch for the statements which the Press alleges L. H. Reynolds made in his speech at Cane Creek, but we do know he criticized the Press and gave the present administration h— (County Commissioners not excepted) in his speech at Smith school house on Sept. 3. Thanking you for this space, I am,



Yours truly,
R. B. IGO,

ALL DAY PRAYER MEETING.

Our meeting at Corinth on Aug. 30th was very well attended by brethren and friends, from some five or six churches, all expressing themselves as being greatful of the privilege of attending one all day prayer service in life. It seemed to create new inspiration in the people, and the day was one of much pleasure. Many able speeches were made and earnest prayers offered for the cause of Christ and salvation of the lost. Try it brethren, see if many will not go far to take a part in the sweet hour of prayer.

WORLD MAY BE DRAWN INTO WAR

Peace Agreement of Triple Entente May Draw Entire World Into European War

GERMANS BEING SURROUNDED

Second Army of British and Russians is Closing in on Rear of German Army

When officials of the United States learned that the triple entente comprising England, France and Russia had signed an agreement in which neither of these countries would enter into a peace agreement unless all three had previously accepted the agreement, they were considerably worried and it is the general belief that this means a long drawn out war and may include the entire world before the end is reached.

The British war office has made the announcement that the casualties of the British army in France up to September first was 15,000. This, however, it was stated by the British officials, is hardly one-third of the losses of the Germans. Another call has been made by both Great Britain and France for more soldiers and while France called for a quarter of a million Great Britain placed no limit on the number of recruits wanted.

The situation before Paris is becoming more complicated every day and it now begins to appear that the Germans will soon find themselves faced by an almost invincible army entrenched before the forts of Paris, while in the rear their retreat will be cut off by an army of 150,000 Russians, who are now on their way from England. A greater portion of the German army in North Belgium has been withdrawn and hurried into Galicia to assist the Austrians in their steady progress through Galicia.

Paris Prepares for Siege

Every preparation has been made for the last stand of Paris. The seat of government has been moved from Paris to Bordeaux, where the French officials, as well as the legations of other countries have fled with the exception of United States Ambassador Herrick. General Gallieni is the military governor of Paris. Through every possible channel troops are pouring into the French city to strengthen the garrison now on duty there. On the outside of the city the activities in preparation for defense against German invasion is even greater. All of the homes within the range of the third and second line of forts before Paris have been razed. Hundreds of thousands of men have been engaged in digging miles of trenches before the city.

The Japanese during the past week have been pouring thousands of soldiers into Lung Kow, China, and are assembling their forces for a desperate encounter with the German forces in China. Reports have been received that there are many other transports ready to sail and that their destination is unknown. The theory has been advanced that the Japanese will go to France to support their allies before Paris. However, a more probable suggestion is that the Japanese are preparing to protect the French and British interests in Asia and India.

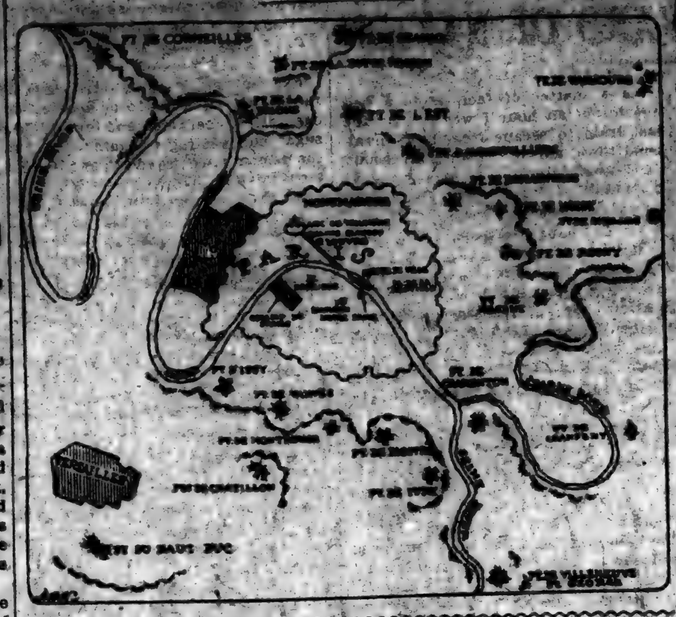
While the operations of the Russian armies in East Prussia against the German forces have been on the verge of a disaster and the Russian military authorities admit a demoralizing defeat, the news brought from the Russian army fighting its way through Austrian Galicia has been that of great victories. So overwhelming has been the defeat administered to the Austrian armies in Galicia by the Russians that it is not thought possible the Austrians will be able to interfere but very little with Russian progress.

With the capture of Lemberg, the capital and strategic point in Austrian Galicia and the complete rupture of the Austrian forces in Galicia, the Russians will now be able to continue their march on Berlin with even greater speed. The kaiser has been aware that a great danger lies in that direction, and has been withdrawing troops from the northern portion of Belgium and hurrying them to reinforce the German troops already on duty on the Russian and Austrian frontiers.

Australians to Reinforce British.

Vancouver, B. C.—It is known here that large numbers of Australian and New Zealand volunteers are on the water bound for Vancouver and then across Canada to Europe. Shipment of Russian forces from Vladivostok via Vancouver is being considered.

So far as known here, the British government has no intention of transporting East Indian troops by way of Canada. The distance between Bombay and England via the Suez canal is much shorter. No East Indian or Russian troops have been landed at Vancouver.



U. S. Censor on Radio Station.

Washington.—President Wilson issued an executive order directing the navy department to take over the Tuckerton, N. J., wireless station and operate it on equal terms for the use, protection and location of all belligerents and neutrals. Code messages will be handled under strict censorship.

Montgomeries Germany Attacks

Rome.—A telegram from Montgomeri, in Algeria, says that Montgomeris Pasha, who is directing Mohammedan troops, has declared that the Mohammedans have declared war against Germany.

FORTIFICATIONS OF PARIS AND VICINITY

London.—Driven back slowly but steadily by the great war machine of the kaiser, the allies of the triple entente are standing with their backs almost at the walls of Paris. That they will retreat no farther is the confident belief of England.

Years ago the engineers of France, foreseeing the inevitable conflict with the Germans, mapped out the arena for the titanic struggle they knew must some day be staged. It lies not far beyond the outer walls of Paris, where hills and forests and streams give the advantage to the defenders. If France must fight, said her ministers of war, she would fight on the ground of her own choosing.

Triple Entente Will Stand Together.

London.—Russia, France and Great Britain have signed an agreement that none of the three would make peace without the consent of all three nations.

Following is the text of the protocol signed by representatives of Great Britain, France and Russia:

"The undersigned, duly authorized thereto by their respective governments, hereby declare as follows:

"The British, French and Russian governments mutually engage not to conclude peace separately during the present war. The three governments agree that when the terms of peace come to be discussed, no one of the allies will demand conditions of peace without the previous agreement of each of the other allies.

"In faith whereof the undersigned have signed this declaration and have affixed thereto their seals.

"Done at London, in triplicate, this fifth day of September, nineteen hundred and fourteen.

(Signed)

"E. Grey, British Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

"PAUL CAMBON, French Ambassador to Great Britain.

"BENCKENDORFF, Russian Ambassador to Great Britain.

Germans Depart for North Belgium

Amsterdam, Holland.—The Antwerp correspondent of Telegraph sends the following dispatch:

"A strong German force left Brussels in a northwesterly direction, having probably been ordered to cut communication between Antwerp and the coast. They marched by way of Merchtem, Buggenhout and Dendermonde. They set fire to several houses and the railway station at Buggenhout, and cut the telegraph wires. A German patrol cut communication between Ghent and Antwerp by way of Dendermonde.

"The country surrounding Antwerp now has a remarkable appearance as the dikes to the southwest of Malines were opened by the Belgians and the entire district was flooded. This took the Germans completely by surprise. They worked heroically waist deep in water under fire of the Antwerp forts to extricate their guns and suffered severe losses."

Austrians Flee to Mountains

Geneva.—Reports reaching here from Italy declare the entire Austrian army has been flung back on the Carpathians. Their retreat, the reports say, is becoming a rout, with Cossacks pursuing the Austrians.

Rheims Taken by Germans

Berlin.—Rheims has fallen into German hands without resistance. The army of Buelow has captured 12,000 men, 250 heavy, 150 light, guns, six colors.

German official dispatches admit that the fortress still remains in the hands of the French.

French Reinforcing at Maubeuge

London.—According to reports current in military quarters in London, a portion of the British expeditionary force is at Maubeuge, a French fortress of the first class in the department du Nord, neighboring the French

Paris.—Paris again showed its remarkable adaptability to circumstances. Though all allusions to such a contingency had been strictly forbidden in the newspapers, that the government will be transferred to Bordeaux was an open secret several days ago among journalists and public officials and in military circles.

Among these persons the effect of the announcement had been largely discounted. The public, after its first surprise, is viewing the situation with composure and there seems to be a better feeling all around.

Military secrets are being so well guarded that all reference to them is largely speculation; but it is a reasonable supposition that General Joffre prefers to accept a decisive battle against the Germans in front of the forts and the entrenched camp of Paris.

An immense and complicated system of entrenchments is being constructed outside the city. It is reported that the engineers in charge of the work are keeping several hundred thousand men busy.

It is officially announced that General Gallieni, commander of the army defending the city, issued the following proclamation to the inhabitants of Paris:

"The members of the government of the republic have left Paris in order to give a new impetus to the defense of the nation. I have been ordered to defend Paris against the invader. This order I will defend to the end.

(Signed) "GALLIENI,
"Military Governor of Paris, Commanding the Army of Paris."

Poincare Arrives at Bordeaux

Bordeaux, France.—President Poincare and the members of the French cabinet arrived here and were greeted by immense and cheering crowds.

President Poincare has taken a residence in the prefecture. The ministry of war is located in one of the buildings of the University of Bordeaux. Offices for the other ministries have been found in various public buildings.

Turkey Barrs U. S. Cruiser

Washington.—Turkey has declined to grant the request of the United States for permission to send the cruiser North Carolina through the Dardanelles to Constantinople to deliver $150,000 in gold deposited here for the relief of Americans.

The grand vizier has informed the American government that the waters of the Dardanelles are mined and that it would be unsafe for a vessel as large as the North Carolina to go through the straits. He declared also that it might establish a precedent for the passage of other foreign warships and suggested that the American naval yacht Scorpion, on duty in Turkish waters, be sent to sea to meet the North Carolina.

Agreement Means a Long War

Washington.—Officials and diplomats here believe the agreement just signed by Great Britain, France and Russia not to make peace except by mutual consent, meant the war would be fought to a decisive end. On all sides the announcement was accepted as meaning inevitable prolongation of the struggle. President Wilson and Secretary Bryan were said to have been depressed by the news.

British Cruiser Reported Sunk

New York.—The German cruiser Karlsruhe has engaged and badly disabled the British cruiser Bristol off the coast of Hayti, according to H. H. Weissner, a lieutenant of the German army and leader of seventy-eight Germans who arrived here on the Clyde line steamship Algonquin from Puerto Colombia on their way to John the outbreak.

CARDINAL DELLA CHIESA IS SUCCESSOR TO POPE PIUS X

Archbishop of Bologna, Italy, Elected to Papacy at Conclave in Rome.

TAKES NAME OF BENEDICT XV

New Pontiff Was Made a Cardinal May 25 Last—Born in Genoa and Was Formerly Assistant to Papal Secretary of State.

Rome, Italy.—Cardinal Giacomo Della Chiesa, archbishop of Bologna, Italy, on Thursday, was elected supreme pontiff of the Catholic heirarchy in succession to Pope Pius X, who died August 20. He will reign under the name of Benedict XV.

The conclave of the sacred college, whose duty it is to elect the pope, went into session the evening of Monday, August 31. The announcement of the outcome of its deliberations was made Thursday morning shortly after eleven o'clock. Nine ballots were taken.

American Cardinals Absent.

Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore and Cardinal O'Connell of Boston were on board the steamer Canopic, which reached Naples the day after the election was held. They were on their way to attend the conclave. Consequently neither of them participated in the election of the new pope. Cardinal Farley of New York arrived here several days ago.

Prince Chigi-Albani, one of the assistants to the throne in the pope's household, was notified at 11:16 that Cardinal Della Chiesa had been elected. At 11:20 Mgr. Misciatelli, subprefect of the sacred palaces and governor of the conclave, received a communication from the new pope asking that the gratings of the Basilica of St. Peter be opened, because he intended in a short time to issue his proclamation.

Crowds Cheer Announcement.

At this same hour—11:20—the master of ceremonies appeared on the central balcony of St. Peter's and spread out the red carpet. The crowd below, which had been waiting for hours in the square in the expectation of an announcemet as to the outcome of the deliberations of the sacred college, understood that a selection had been made. The people applauded vigorously.

The pontiff pronounced the apostolic benediction to the kneeling crowd below and immediately afterward withdrew and entered his apartments.

It is asserted on good authority in Rome that the new pope will appoint Cardinal Domenico Ferrata his secretary.

With the creation of thirteen new cardinals in May, Pope Pius X brought the college up to 64; only four fewer than the maximum number allowed under the laws of the church and three more than participated in his own election in 1903, when there was a record attendance of 61 cardinals.

Nearly All Nations Represented.

While the sacred college is not a representative body in a strict sense of the word, this year nearly all the countries were represented. South America, the United States, Canada, England, Ireland, Holland, Belgium, Portugal, Germany, Austria-Hungary, Italy, France and [illegible] of the Orient [illegible] or Europe. Austria-Hungary having six and Germany two, as against a total of twelve, which might be said to represent the "allies" in the European war.

Facts About the Cardinals.

Cardinal Serafino Vannutelli, dean of the sacred college, spent almost a quarter of a century in Mexico, Munich, Central and South America. Belgium and Vienna; his brother, Cardinal Vincent Vannutelli, passed 29 years in Holland, Belgium, Constantinople and Lisbon; Cardinal Agliardi spent three years in India and four in Vienna; Cardinal di Piero was for ten years in Argentina, Brazil, Munich and Madrid; Cardinal Gotti lived for three years in Brazil; Cardinal Ferrata has filled diplomatic offices in Switzerland, Belgium and France; Cardinal Martinelli was second apostolic delegate to the United States; Cardinal Falconio was the third and became a naturalized American citizen; Cardinals Rinaldini, Lorenzelli, Gasparri, Vico, Belmonte and Serafini all had years of experience outside of Italy.

The only cardinals in curia; that is, attached directly to the head of the church in Rome, who have not spent part of their lives abroad, are Cardinals De Lai, Cassetta, Della Volpe, Cagiano, Bisleti, Pompili, Giustini, Lega and Aecchi, all of whom have passed their lives in various offices in the Roman curia.

Takes Title of Benedict.

It has been 174 years since the time of the last Pope Benedict. On his election to the papacy in 1740 Cardinal Prospero Lambertini assumed that title. It is an interesting fact that the new pope was archbishop of Bologna, while Pope Benedict XIV was born in Bologna.

It was at the age of twenty-four that the new pope was ordained in the priesthood. He soon attracted the attention of Cardinal Rampolla, later secretary of state for Pope Leo XIII. When Cardinal Rampolla was made nuncio to Madrid he took Mgr. Della Chiesa with him as secretary of nunciature.

On Cardinal Rampolla's return to Rome to become secretary of state for the Vatican, Mgr. Della Chiesa entered the secretariat of state as one of the "minutamfi" or minor officials, until 1901, when he was appointed substitute of the secretariat and also secretary of the cypher.

Made Bologna Archbishop.

As secretary to the secretary of state, Cardinal Della Chiesa was brought into notable prominence throughout the Catholic hierarchy, but his position was not at that time of cardinalist rank. On the accession of Pope Pius X, Mgr. Della Chiesa continued in the secretariat until December 16, 1907, when Pius X gave him a noted promotion to the position of archbishop of the important see of Bologna.

For seven years he administered the see of Bologna with notable success, until on last May Pope Pius X named him as one of the 13 members of the hierarchy to receive the red hat. Archbishop Begin of Quebec was among the other cardinals named at that time, the others being prelates of Spain, France, Austria, Germany and Italy.

The full title of the new pope, in addition to Benedict XV, will be Pope Bishop of Rome and Successor of St. Peter, Supreme Pontiff of the Universal Church, Patriarch of the West, Primate of Italy, Archbishop and Metropolitan of the Roman Province, Sovereign of the Temporal Dominion of the Holy Roman Church.

Washington Hears of Choice.

Washington.—Word of the choice of the new pope reached the apostolic delegation through press sources and great interest was manifest.

It is pointed out that Cardinal Della Chiesa has had wide experience as administrator of the important see of Bologna. He is described as a man of great spiritual character and one of the most highly esteemed in the hierarchy. He is about average height, of stocky build and rather quiet and reserved manners.

The pope held his first consistory on Tuesday, when he conferred the red hat on Cardinal Anthony Mendes Bello, patriarch of Lisbon, and Cardinal Guisasolay Mendendez, archbishop of Toledo, Spain. Both were created cardinals by Pope Pius X at the consistory last May.

The pope delivered on Tuesday his first allocution, which gives to the world the program of his pontificate.

One of the brothers of the pontiff is an admiral in the Italian navy, and another is a captain in the Italian navy.

The first appointment made by the pope was that of Monsignor Farolfi, nephew of Pius X, to be canon of St. Peter's.

It is officially announced that Cardinal Dominic Ferrata has been appointed papal secretary of state under the new pope, Benedict XV. Cardinal Ferrata was born in 1847 at Montefiascone, Italy. Rare Minerals in Tasmania.

The number of rare minerals found to exist in Tasmania is constantly being added to, and the latest addition is molybdenite, which is used in the manufacture of "molybdenum steel," to which it gives a special hardness and toughness that makes it suitable for use in propeller shafts, guns and boilers. It is also used, to lesser extent, in the making of pottery glaze and other things. The price of molybdenite is now $2,500 a ton, or nearly four times the present price of tin.

1. That mosquitoes only bite once.
2. That mosquitoes only live one day.
3. That mosquito bites won't itch if you don't scratch 'em.
4. That if you hold your breath you can catch a mosquito and slay it.

My experience is that mosquitoes only bite once (in the same place); that they only live one day (at a time); that their bites won't itch if you don't scratch 'em (but rub 'em with sandpaper and the edge of a hand saw instead); and that if you hold your breath you can catch a mosquito and slay it (provided you have a shotgun in each hand and are a good shot).

A prominent Georgia physician was through a food experience which he makes public.

"It was my own experience that first led me to advocate Grape-Nuts food and I also know, from having prescribed it to convalescents and other weak patients, that the food is a wonderful rebuilder and restorer of nerve and brain tissue, as well as muscle. It improves the digestion and sick patients gain very rapidly, just as I did in strength and weight.

"I was in such a low state that I had to give up my work entirely, and went to the mountains of this state, but two months there did not improve me. In fact, I was not quite as well as when I left home.

"My food did not sustain me and it became plain that I must change. Then I began to use Grape-Nuts and within two weeks I could walk a mile without fatigue, and in five weeks was at work to my home and practice taking up hard work again. EARLY RELIEF PREDICTED.

Bulletin of Department of Agriculture Marked by Optimistic View.

Montgomery.—"While the cotton situation as it has appeared since the beginning of the European war has not been fully met, and while cotton is still without a market, it is felt that, from the earnest and united action everywhere being given to the subject, within a short while conditions will be not only considerably improved, but very largely fashioned on their normal basis," says the weekly cotton bulletin of the Department of Agriculture.

The bulletin in this issue deals altogether with the crisis which the cotton situation has met and has a touch of optimism all through it. It gives accounts of the earnest action being taken by the different States and organizations and thinks this effort can result only in a solution of the problem.

INDIVIDUALS BANK STATE DEBT

Both Words and Specie Deposited Slowly Since Throughout Two Months.

Washington.—Every citizen of Alabama, any Uncle Sam's mathematician owes $9.95 as his or her share of the state's debt—or did on June 30, 1913. If this is dear enough for all practical purposes, which is just $1.57 above the average per capita of all the states of the nation.

According to figures just compiled, the total debt of Alabama is $12,125,375, or 2.1 per cent of the aggregate indebtedness of all the 48 states, which runs to $425,796,525. Of the state debt $12,044,697 is funded at interest rates running from 3 to 5 per cent, and $488,276 is of the floating variety. The debt on the Agricultural and Mechanical College, however, carries 8 per cent interest, as does that of the university, according to the government report.

The total funds and investments of the state are placed at $3,949,149, of which $262,062 is in cash and $3,375,087 in securities. No sinking fund appears in the foremost figures set forth by Uncle Sam.

Although the per capita indebtedness of Alabama is a trifle over the average, it looks small in comparison with Massachusetts at $32.78, or Arizona at $12.20. On the other hand, Pennsylvania has a surplus, while each citizen of Oregon owes 4 cents on his state debt and of Iowa 16 cents. The per capita of Mississippi is $1.41 and of Georgia $3.57.

Speaking of Alabama, Uncle Sam's authorities say that the funded debt consists of bonds and special debt obligation to public trust funds, the latter being "obligations of the state to the various educational funds, the principal of which has been used for meeting the general expenditures of the state." The school indemnity land fund is described as representing "the proceeds of land certified to the state by the United States government for the use and benefit of the townships in which the amount of land originally certified to the state for school purposes was inadequate." This fund is held by the state, but no interest is allowed thereon.

The surplus revenue fund of the state consists of "Alabama's share of the 'unavailable funds' of the United States treasury, which, in 1836, by act of Congress, were placed on deposit with the various states." The principal of the fund has been used by the state, but an amount equal to 4 per cent interest upon the same is devoted, according to law, to the maintenance of the public schools.

An inspection of the accounts shows that both bonds and special debt obligations to public trust funds have remained nearly constant throughout two decades, although fluctuations in the public debt are noted.

In the 10-year period prior to 1890, the per capita debt was reduced from $9.80 to $8.22; during the next decade in 1900, it was further reduced to $6.91, and by 1910, it was only $5.88. A slight increase is noted for 1912, because of the corresponding increase in the floating debt.

The national debt is $2,916,204,914.

ADVANCE OF GERMANS LIKE MOVING FORWARD OF NATION

[illegible] Correspondent.

Paris.—When I deserted from Amiens, before the tunnel was broken up, and the Germans entered into possession of the town on August 28, the front of the allied armies was in a crescent from Abbeville, south of Amiens, on wooded heights, and thence in a irregular line to south of Montdidier.

The British forces, under Sir John French, were at the left of the center, supporting the heavy thrust forward of the main German advance, while the right was commanded by General Pau.

A Million on the Move.

On Sunday afternoon fighting was resumed along the whole line. The German vanguard by this time had been supported by a fresh army corps, which had been brought from Belgium.

At least 1,000,000 men were on the move, pressing upon the allied forces with a ferocity of attack which has never before been equaled. Their cavalry swept across a great tract of country, squadron by squadron, like the mounted hordes of Attila, but armed with the dreadful weapons of modern warfare.

Their artillery was in enormous numbers and their columns advanced under cover of it, not like an army, but rather like a moving nation—I do not think, however, with equal pressure at all parts of the line. It formed itself into a battering ram with a pointed end and this was thrust at the heart of the English wing.

Impossible to Resist.

It was impossible to resist this onslaught. If the British forces had stood against it they would have been crushed and broken. Our gunners were magnificent and shelled the advancing German columns so that the dead lay heaped up along the way which was leading down to Paris; but, as one of them told me:

"It made no manner of difference. As soon as we had smashed one lot, another followed, column after column, and by sheer weight of numbers. We could do nothing to check them."

After this the British forces fell back, fighting all the time. The line of the allies was in the shape of a "V"; the Germans thrust their main attack deep into the angle. This position remained the same until Monday, or rather had completed itself by that date, the retirement of the troops being maintained with masterly skill and without undue haste.

River Choked With Dead.

Meanwhile General Pau was sustaining a terrific attack on the French center by the German left center, which culminated on (date omitted). The River Oise, which runs between beautiful meadows, was choked with corpses and red with blood.

From an eye witness of this great battle, an officer of an infantry regiment who escaped with a slight wound, I learned that the German onslaught had been repelled by a series of brilliant bayonet and cavalry charges.

"The Germans," he said, "had the elite of their army engaged against us, including the Tenth army corps and the imperial guard, but the heroism of our troops was sublime. Every man knew that the safety of France depended upon him and was ready to sacrifice his life, if need be, with joyful enthusiasm.

Gave Great Punishment.

"They not only resisted the enemy's attack, but took the offensive, and, in spite of their overpowering numbers, gave them tremendous punishment. They had to recoil before our guns.

"Hundreds of them were bayoneted and hundreds were hurled into the river. The whole field of battle was outlined by dead and dying men whom they had to abandon. Certainly their losses were enormous, and I felt that the German retreat was in full swing and that we could claim a real victory for the time being."

Pau Compelled to Yield.

Nevertheless the inevitable happened, owing to the vast reserves of the enemy, who brought up four divisions, and General Pau was compelled to give ground.

On Tuesday German skirmishers with light artillery were coming southward, and the sound of their field guns greeted my ears. Presently I saw the figure of a French dragoon, with his carbine slung behind his back. He was standing by the side of a number of gunpowder bags. A little farther away were little groups of soldiers at work by two bridges over [illegible] a stream and canal over a pond. They were working very calmly and I could see what they were doing. They were mining the bridges to blow them up at a given signal.

As I went further I saw the streets were strewn with broken [illegible] littered with wire [illegible] and [illegible] and carefully made.

Troops Far Outnumbered.

It was obvious that the [illegible] were [illegible] and [illegible] soldiers were [illegible] for [illegible] happened. At the evening [illegible] By [illegible] the [illegible] were [illegible] a [illegible]

As a matter of fact, after a half quarter of an hour I was put on the last train to escape from this threatened town, and left it with the sound of German guns in my ears, followed by a dull explosion when the bridge behind me was blown up.

Escape Narrowly.

My train, in which there were only four other men, skirted the German army and by a twist in the line almost ran into the enemy's country, but we rushed through the night, and the engine driver laughed and put his oily hand up to salute when I stepped out to the platform of an unknown station.

"The Germans won't get us, after all," he said. "It was a little risky, all the same."

The station was crowded with French soldiers, and they were soon telling me their experiences of the hard fighting in which they had been engaged. They were dirty, unshaven, dusty from head to foot, scorched by the August sun, in tattered uniforms and broken boots, but they were beautiful men for all their dirt, and the laughing courage, quiet confidence and unbragging simplicity with which they assured me that the Germans would soon be caught in a death trap and sent to their destruction filled me with admiration which I cannot express in words.

All the odds were against them. They had fought the hardest of all actions—the retirement from the fighting line—but they had absolute faith in the ultimate success of the allied arms.

Germans Are Reckless.

London.—A Chronicle correspondent writing from an unarmed town says:

"The Germans are displaying extraordinary recklessness, flinging away thousands of lives in the hope of ultimately gaining their end. No doubt the rapid advance of the Russians in eastern Prussia has something to do with this, and is responsible for the frantic and insane haste which characterizes the German attempt in northern France to smash the thin khaki line which so valiantly bars the road toward Compeigne, Soissons and Paris.

"That stories of German atrocities are not one whit exaggerated may be gathered from the story told me by a sergeant who was wounded in the action near Mons Sunday a week ago.

"As he lay helpless on the ground and the German infantry swept by he could hear, from the imploring cries of the wounded in his front, that they were being ruthlessly put to death by their foes.

Ordeal Is Terrible.

"Closing his eyes and simulating death, the wounded sergeant lay perfectly still. As the Germans passed him he received a violent blow in the chest from the butt end of a rifle which broke one of his ribs. He bore the pain unflinchingly and never moved a muscle. Another Prussian stabbed a wounded man with his bayonet as he went past.

"The sergeant's ordeal was a terrible one and he expected every moment to be his last. Ultimately the German advance was broken and their infantry came rolling back, shattered and disordered, leaving behind a trail of dead and wounded. The wounded sergeant was picked up by British stretcher bearers and conveyed to the base hospital, where he is now fast recovering.

English Are Cheerful.

"Freshly arrived troops from England, who had been pushed forward, arrived in time to participate in the battle. These British reinforcements had been carrying out strategic movements in troops trains for several days, and in the expressive phraseology of Tommy Atkins, 'they were fed up with the whole thing' and were all eagerness for a brush with the enemy.

"Their chance came yesterday. Many were reserves with South African experience, and they marched to the front cheering the French and growling for 'William the Weed,' somehow confusing the emperor with William (of Wied) of Albania. French and English flags were borne at the head of each company.

"They were in fine fettle. 'Are we downhearted?' would shout some one from the ranks, 'no, but William the Weed will be down-hearted by the time we finish with him.'"

Paris.—The American embassy here is daily in receipt of letters written by dying soldiers, forwarded on it by the French government for transmission to Germany.

One is from a German soldier who had fallen into the hands of the French. The man wrote:

WAYS OF MAKING LEMONADE

Variations of Usually Accepted Methods of Preparing the Thirst Quenching Beverage.

Egg lemonade is both nutritious and refreshing. It is made by beating an egg until almost thick and then adding sugar and beating it again. To this the lemon juice is added, and there is more beating. Add now ice-cold milk, beat again and pour the mixture into a glass having a little cracked ice in the bottom. Grate nutmeg on the top and serve immediately. If one prefers only the white of the egg may be used.

In Italy they make a lemonade that is especially palatable. For a gallon of it pare two dozen lemons thinly, and press out the juice, which is then poured over the peels and allowed to remain for about twelve hours. Add to this two pounds of granulated sugar, three quarts of boiling water, a quart of white wine and later a quart of boiling milk. Strain the whole through cheesecloth or a jelly bag, cool, and when serving pour in tumblers having a bit of shaved ice in the bottom.

English Lemonade.—Like the Italian, goes to prove that foreigners take trouble in preparing their beverages, and is made by paring two oranges and six lemons thinly and steeping them in a quart of hot water for four hours. Boil one and one-quarter pounds of granulated sugar in three pints of water and add to these two liquors the juice of six oranges and lemons and stir well. Strain through a jelly bag and serve ice cold.

Lemonade to which has been added grape juice is a change from the ordinary lemonade and is very good indeed.

For sea foam mix the pieces of one pineapple and one lemon with four spoonfuls of mint leaves; cut into bits and add half a cupful of sugar. Beat the whites of four eggs stiff, and gradually whip in the fruit juices. Add four cupfuls of carbonated water and serve.

CHEAP SAVORY MEAT DISHES

Effective Substitutes for the Higher Priced Cuts Are at the Command of All.

Stewed Lambs' Tongues. — Four lambs' tongues, one-half pint of young onions and one large onion cut fine, one bunch of young carrots scraped, one pint of stock or water, one bay leaf, a bunch of sweet herbs and celery, two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour; salt and pepper. Boil the tongues in clear water for 1½ hours. Throw them into cold water. Remove the skins. Put the sliced onion into a saucepan with the butter. Add flour and stir until brown, then add stock or water to cover and the seasoning. Add the skinned tongues and simmer very gently, covered, for two hours. Have the young carrots and onions ready boiled separately (any left-over fresh vegetables may be used). Put the tongues on a hot platter. Strain the gravy, bring it again to the boiling point, heat the vegetables in it, place them around the tongues and pour the gravy over the meat. This is a delicious dish.

If lambs' tongues are not available the lamb stew may be substituted or a curry of lamb.

Some other cheap and savory meat dishes to use instead of sirloin and porterhouse steak and lamb chops are fried brains and panned tomatoes, served with hominy au gratin, lettuce, French dressing; sponge cake and coffee for dessert; or minced beef cakes with fried bananas, potato hash, lettuce and cream cheese balls, crisp wafers, a custard or whipped cream and coffee for the finish.

Summer Pudding.

Line a mold neatly with thin slices of white bread. Stew one pound of black currants, half a pound of raspberries, and a few strawberries with one gill of water and about half a pound of sugar until quite tender, and pour it at once while very hot into the mold. Cover the top with bread, put a plate and a weight on the mold and set it aside until quite cold. Then turn out in a glass dish and cover the top with cones of whipped cream.

Fudge Sandwiches.

Two cupfuls of brown sugar, three-fourths of a cupful milk, butter size of a walnut, third cake of melted chocolate. Boil seven minutes and beat until thick and creamy. Spread thickly between butter thins or any plain crackers. They are delicious.

Ice-Cold Water Without Ice.

Fill an unglazed earthenware jug with cold water and stand it in a deep plate of water. Then soak a clean kitchen towel in cold water and wrap over the jug, allowing the cloth to rest in the deep plate of water. It will keep ice cold.

GERMANS RETREAT FRENCH VICTORIOUS

Imperial Guard Under Crown Prince Frederick William Is Reported to Have Been Annihilated.

MILLION MEN ENGAGED IN FIGHT

Teutons Turn Heels After Vigorous Action With Allies, Says Official Report.

Paris. — It was officially announced that the Germans are retreating from the line of Nanteuil-Le-Hardouin to Verdun after a vigorous action with French and British troops.

London. — A Boulogne dispatch to the Evening News says a telegram has been received from General Pau, announcing a victory by the allied forces as Precy-sur-Oise. The Imperial Guard, under Crown Prince Frederick William, is reputed to have been annihilated by the British force which opposed them.

London. — A Reuter dispatch from Antwerp confirms earlier dispatches of a German repulse Friday at Cappelle-au-Bois, and says they left 3000 dead on the field. Many Germans, the dispatch adds, returned to Brussels.

London. — The official bureau says: "General Joffre's plans are being steadily carried out. The allied forces, acting on the offensive, have been successful in checking and forcing back in a northeast direction the German forces opposed to them."

The Evening News dispatch says: "A telegram has been received from General Pau announcing a victory by the allied forces under Field Marshal Sir John French, commanding the British, and General D'Amade, at Precy-sur-Oise, about 25 miles north of Paris.

"The allies were drawn across the northern line with the center at Precy. The English troops were on the left and the French on the right. The former had in front of them the Imperial Guard, under Crown Prince Frederick William.

Allies Successful on Both Wings.

"On both wings, it is reported, the allies were successful. The German left was held by the French and retired to the north.

"The Imperial Guard, who were ordered to surrender, were annihilated by the British. It is reported that the crown prince was in the midst."

The British official bureau has received no confirmation of this message.

Nearly a Million Men Engaged.

Paris. — Unofficially it is estimated that nearly 1,000,000 troops are engaged in the fighting which is proceeding to the east of Paris.

An earlier official statement given out in Paris, said that a general action had started on the line from Nanteuil-Le-Hardouin. Unofficial advices from Berlin also have indicated that a battle of tremendous importance was being fought in the territory described.

French Forces on German Flank.

London. — The news contained in the French official communications that the Germans had fallen back before the vigorous advance by the allied troops on the line from Nanteuil-Le-Haudouin to Verdun indicates that the Anglo-French forces have got on the flank of the German right wing, which passed by Paris north and was marching eastward to join with the crown prince's army coming south.

It has been suggested by military experts that General Von Kluck's movement to the southeast was taken as a matter of precaution before the movement by the allies from the coast. It is possibly this new army which has reached Nanteuil-Le-Haudouin, thus getting on General Von Kluck's flank. The engagement took place Sunday and that evening the Germans began their retirement.

Russian Troops Tak Czernowitz.

Petrograd. — A dispatch from Bucharest, via Odessa, announced the entry of Russian troops into Czernowitz.

An earlier dispatch from London reported that the Russians had entered Czernowitz unopposed. The city is the capital of Bukowina, Austria-Hungary, and is 144 miles southeast of Lemberg.

Austrians Defeated.

Petrograd. — The following official announcement was given out:

"The Austrian army corps between the River Vistula and the River [illegible] are retreating with enormous losses.

"The pursuit of the enemy has been broken. There are evidences of the panicking of a routing [illegible]

PUBLIC FAVOR

Public approval is absolutely essential to the successful operation of a public utility corporation.

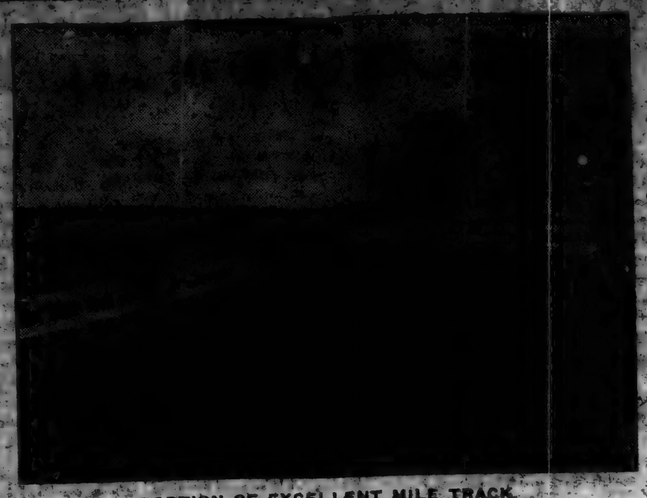
The business can not be conducted without the public consent, called a "franchise." Franchises must from time to time be granted, extended, and renewed.

A franchise having been granted, the public must regard the enterprise with sufficient favor to invest its money, because there is no individual, or small group of individuals, sufficiently wealthy to finance the construction and equipment of a great railroad.

Once the franchise is granted and the construction and equipment is financed, a group of people—in many instances a very great many people—must regard the enterprise with sufficient favor to undertake its operation. These individuals constitute officials and employees.

Put into operation, the enterprise must be regarded with sufficient public favor to gain public patronage, for without patronage the enterprise is destined to failure.

Having gained public patronage, the enterprise must render a specific service for which the public is favorably disposed to pay a fair price.



The enterprise itself must be favorably disposed, not only towards the individuals who constitute its patrons, but towards the virgin, or undeveloped, territory through which its lines operate.

The L. & N. writes of these things because public favor, or approval, is the keynote of success. The L. & N. calls attention to the fact, to advise the people that the L. & N. places a proper, a profound, value on public approval. We are striving in every possible way to merit public favor.

Our service is second to no railroad in the country. Our equipment is all that could be demanded by a critical people. Our rates are fair and just. Our disposition is one of mutual interest with the people for co-operative development of the territory through which our lines operate.

We solicit your freight and passenger patronage, and through the service rendered hope to merit and maintain your favorable opinion.

LOUISVILLE AND NASHVILLE RAILROAD COMPANY

PORTION OF EXCELLENT MILE TRACK, Alabama State Fair.

Races at the Alabama State Fair—September 28 to October 10—will so far eclipse anything ever before offered in the south that there is positively no comparison on any score.

The Alabama State Fair at Birmingham will give away $10,300 in prizes for races. There will be four stake races of $1000 each, to say nothing of numerous open purse races. And then $2000 will go to running races. Already more than two carloads of running horses have entered for the events.

The Alabama State Fair has the best mile track in the south, and its races are positively the best going. Many horses well and favorably known on the Grand Circuit will be here this year.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO PAY R. R. FARE TO BIRMINGHAM.

The Birmingham Rebate Bureau Bears Your Expense If You Live Over 25 Miles from There.

One of the most pleasant features of coming to the Alabama State Fair is that your railroad fare is refunded to you if you live over 25 miles from Birmingham. Of course, every family has to lay in its supply of winter clothes and the like, and Birmingham furnishes the best market in the south for anything the family needs and wants.

Just put off your fall and winter buying until you come to the fair and do it here at that time. Say, for instance, if you live thirty miles from Birmingham and come to the fair and while in Birmingham you spend $30, your railroad fare both ways is given back to you by the rebate bureau, which is situated in the downtown office of the Alabama State Fair. But on the other hand, say you live thirty miles from Birmingham and while at the fair spend $50 with members of the rebate bureau, you not only get your railroad fare refunded, but one per cent of the remainder, or twenty cents besides.

FINE DOGS ON EXHIBITION AT ALABAMA STATE FAIR.

Birmingham Kennel Club Has Charge of One of the Most Extensive Canine Exhibits in the South.

Not a single feature has been overlooked by the officials of the Alabama State Fair to make this festival season the most perfect in the entire south. The fancier of fine dogs will be in his glory at the bench show on the fair grounds.

Each year the Birmingham Kennel Club has a bench show and they have decided in recent years to make it a part of the Alabama State Fair. Toward that end the Alabama State Fair has constructed a large, well ventilated building for the exclusive use of the dog show.

About 500 dogs were entered last year and more are expected this year. All kinds of dogs adaptable to this section of the country and many rare ones are shown in this building. The dog show alone is worth coming from the opposite end of Alabama to see.

A ROOK PARTY

Mrs. J. E. Mattison entertained at a rook party on last Monday evening, complimentary to Miss Ethetyne Bondurant, of Birmingham, Ala., and Miss Willie Mae Parnell, of Stanton, Ala. Progressive rook was the feature of the evening. At a late hour, light refreshments were served. Those who accepted the hospitality of Mrs. Mattison were: Misses Ethetyne Bondurant, of Birmingham, Willie Mae Parnell, of Stanton, Hattie Johnson, Zada Friday, Isla Wiley, Bessie Goodger, Lou and Xyr Reynolds, Mabel Sanderson, of Plantersville, Lillie Moore and Eloise Mattison. Messrs. C. H. Bowen, Horace and Dawson Friday, Levins Rollins and Pratt Mattison.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reynolds spent the week end with the parents of the latter, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Arnold, at Six Mile, Ala.

Mrs. Clyde Moore and children of Centreville, were the guests of her sisters last week. Mrs. Moore will be remembered by her friends as Miss Ida Reynolds.

Miss Ethetyne Bondurant, of Birmingham, Ala., is the house guest of Miss Eloise Mattison at Oakdale Farm.

Dr. Boykin, of Wilcox county, arrived last week to take the practice of the R. E. Jackson Lumber Company. Dr. Boykin and family will occupy the residence of Dr. D. A. Mason.

Mrs. Ellis, of Baltimore, Md., is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Pleas Gay.

Mrs. W. H. Hay, of Birmingham, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. P. M. Parker.

Dr. Mason, who was succeeded by Dr. Boykin as [illegible] R. E. Jackson Lumber Company, has moved to Thorsby.

MR. POUNDS' LETTER

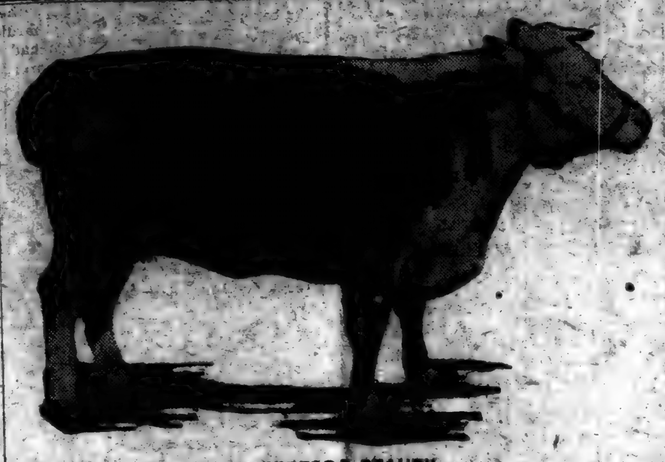
Pletcher, Ala., Sept. 14, 1914

Editor Clanton Press:

As I stated last week, I wish to ask L. H. Reynolds to tell the public or the people just where and when every dollar went and what for while he was "Boss," as he says they have a right to know, and that is where I agree with him. But since I have considered the matter a little, and seeing that he is so busy attending his appointments and public speakings, that he holds mostly at night, where he piles it up so heavily on poor old Bro. Moses, Will Shaw and others, that he once recommended so highly to the dear "peopul," and carrying that great load of figures to show how they were flung away the peopul's money, why sir, I just haven't the heart and gall to demand that he make a full and detailed report of where every dollar went when he was boss, but am willing to let him off for the present, if he will just tell us who paid for the famous detective service that was employed by him and W. M. Adams and Sheriff Catts, when they imported some two or three drunken thugs from Birmingham and paid them from the public treasury, (the "peopul's" money) contrary to law, contriving with Democrats to loot the treasury, to pay for so-called private detective work in order to swell the county court docket, where they (the three) were the chief beneficiaries. No law for it, yet it was some how smuggled through and the "peopul's" money paid the bill. Now, "Jedge," when you get a little spare time, and feel like you can let up on Uncle Mose, Shaw and Herrod, for spending so much money lawfully, please tell us about you and Will Adams and Sheriff Catts spending several hundred dollars unlawfully. The people have a right to know, you know. And when you have given a full and satisfactory explanation about this matter, then we have got a few more little crackers for you. Now don't push this aside by saying it is only a little thing, for even "Straws show the way the wind blows."

Now, Mr. Editor, whilst we are waiting for some sort of answer to the above and foregoing questions, I am going to haul you over the coals a bit. Why can't you let up on the Union-Banner man a little bit? For the Lord's sake can't you see what you have done? You have run him clean out of breath, and so over-wrought that his head is spinning like a whirlwind; you have caused him to waste nearly one whole page of his paper, trying to say what he didn't say he said, trying to show you how the wind had shifted, trying to make you understand that while L. H Reynolds was president of the great Speedway for the State of Alabama, that said Reynolds was then only playing to the galleries, getting himself into print, keeping himself in the limelight. And more, he was simpy stacking his cards for a final pull off in the game of "whirliburly" (politics of which he is a pastmaster in Chilton county).

Now you know that Mack is really a nice little boy and no doubt wanna well, but of course he is young, inexperienced, and consequently his head is full of envy and egotism, therefore he must have time to develop and come down to a normal condition. Besides, he has the heavy job on his hands of running a Bull Moose paper, the main purpose of which is to land "der Boss" back in the Probate office two "terms" (?) from now.



Did you say that would be a long job? Well, may be so, but that's the way the wind is blowing that is what makes the Boss so "active" in politics, that is the secret of his zeal, ambition and venom, the only way he knows to save the "dear peopul" (he the "peopul.")

Well, the Union-Banner sometime vomits up some things that look funny. For instance, when it gets to spewing over the initiative, referendum and recall (by the way, something they have stolen from us Socialists, for the Socialists were the first people in the world to originate and propose the system of the initiative, referendum and right of recall as the only means of controlling public officials.) But the "Bull Mouse" party has tried to steal the thing and have not sense enough to use it.

It is enough to make a horse laugh to hear them spout over the thing; they claim to have it, yet they can't find it. Now, if they really had the proposition, they would have a platform and every candidate pledged to that platform in written agreement to carry out faithfully its provisions or pledges to its constituency and at the same time, each candidate will have signed his resignation to the office to which he aspires in advance of his election, which resignation is held by a special committee for the purpose, so that when an officer of any rank or place fails or refuses to stand by his pledge, then all they have to do is simply for said committee to fill in the date, turn it in to the right authority and the said officer is out. Now, where and when have you so-called Progressives ever in this county gone to such lengths as this? We fail to see any account of your ever having done so. Then you are either ignorant of what you are talking about or you are lying to the people in order to fool them. So come, now, it is one way or the other and you have got to show up or shut up.

For this admirable plan and proposition really is one of the fundamental propositions of the socialist doctrine and by the eternal you chaps shall not steal it, drag it out of the back door and drag it in the mud, use it for a cloak of pretence to fool the folks. If you will actually use it decently and honestly we are willing to lend it to you—but you shall not steal our best coat for a false covering or cloak for hypocrisy. (On again, gone again, Flanigan.)

DR. HALSTEAD ADDRESSES LETTER TO POULTRY FANCIERS ABOUT ALABAMA STATE FAIR SHOW

Noted Poultry Expert Seeks to Impress Importance of Making Entries of Two, Three and Four Birds.—"You Never Know What You Have Unless You Exhibit Your Birds."

Dear Fellow Fancier:

This year the poultry show at the Alabama State Fair will be more for the buck lot, and farmers' chickens, and we are going to see that they have all the attention they deserve. If you have a few birds you think are good don't fail to enter them and you will be surprised when you find that your birds stand among the winners when you thought you had only medium good stock. One gets so used to looking at a bird that he sometimes overlooks their good points and the judge gives you a ribbon when you were not looking for it.

Start in right now and get them in condition and write me for a catalog, and if you do not know how to get them ready for the show room tell me the kind of birds you have and I will tell you all about it. It is not much trouble, and if you want to learn just what you have and what you should have this is the way to learn. You do not have to come with them—just send to me and I will see that they have the best of care. That is just what I am here for. Of course, if you can come it will be much better for you, for then you can see just what kind of birds win and you will know what kind to keep for next year.

It does not cost much to send them. Our charge is only 25c for entering them, and that includes feed and care for the whole ten days. The express charges are a mere trifle, and if you live close enough to bring them by hand you have practically no expense.

Our poultry building is thoroughly up-to-date and well ventilated, and we have the Spratts Patent people coop and feed the birds. They have an expert here to see that it is done according to the most up-to-date methods, so your birds will really have better care and attention than they would at home.

Now do not get the idea in your head that it is only the big poultry people that send us their birds. We have a nice lot of local birds and they always do some of the winning, too, and yours will stand just as good a show as the others. Just think how many more eggs you can sell if your neighbors know you have a prize winner or two in your flock, and they will surely buy from you instead of sending away for their eggs.

This is the third year I have been in charge of the show and some of the best birds I have seen have been brought there by people who had no more idea of what they really had than the man in the moon. They only knew, as they told me, that they had bought good eggs and thought possibly they might have some good birds. Had they left them at home they would have not had the advertising, nor would they have known what they had.

We have the best judge that money can secure this year—J. H. Drevenstedt, one of the oldest and most up-to-date in the business. He is a member of the revision committee to get out the new standard, the book by which all fowls are judged, and is considered one of the most reliable poultry authorities.

Our coops are the most up-to-date metal coops, and the whole place is thoroughly fumigated and sprayed twice a day by one of the best methods in existence, so there is no danger of their getting any disease. The birds are watched all the time, and should one show any symptoms of disease it is immediately removed and given the best of attention by an expert in that line. Send your birds along and I will guarantee you will not regret it.

Very truly yours,

DR. HAL F. HALSTEAD,

Superintendent Poultry Department

THE UNION-BANNER AND CONSISTENCY

Editor Clanton Press:

Several days since I happened to pick up a copy of the Union-Banner, a newspaper published at Clanton; and after reading its various and sundry deliverances on its editorial page in which it charged the Clanton Press with so many "changes of front" on the road question, of how it was at one time "against the Speedway" and how now it is "for the Speedway," and numerous other alleged inconsistences, I can imagine that I could see the youthful young Solomon who sits in the sanctum sanctorum of the Union-Banner, lean back, smack his loquacious lips and say, "There now, I have preached a sermon on 'Consistency thou art a jewel' that is shorely a knockout!" But the editor of the Union-Banner is young and [illegible] floated Republicanism, of the Joe Cannon brand at its mast-head, then, after a few years, it floated Democracy at its mast-head; then it arrayed itself in new garments, adopted a new name—the Union-Banner, and then flung its banners to the gentle breezes with the name Progressive gleaming thereon. In all these various changes of flag it changed its political principles and it now essays to preach the doctrine of CONSISTENCY to the people of Chilton county. Ye Gods and little fishes! But we must pardon the youthful editor of the Union-Banner, he did the best he could by himself and just did not know any better and those devoted "murderers" of the dear, sweet peopul, who helped the young editor to get up his sermon, did to the young editor just what they try to do to the voters of the county—put the most [illegible] tack their sails to catch every political breeze upon which they hope to ride into office, no longer have the ear or interest of the people.

OLD CITIZEN.

HON. L. R. SAWYER MAKES STATEMENT

I am now sending out 2,000 letters, which clearly state what I propose to do should I have the honor to represent Chilton county in the next Legislature, and that is, I simply promise to do right and to expend my very best efforts to subserve the highest interest of our people and to advocate every measure conducive to their welfare and oppose every effort that may tend to retard our progress or burden our people, regardless of political differences.

I wish to state further that I did, in 1911, declare [illegible] out roads. Still, if any one has a better method of road building why, I am with him, for I do want good roads above everything except my girl.

I oppose the method by which our school funds are appropriated because it only gives $2.84 per capita to those who attend the rural schools as against from $64.00 to $450 per capita to those who attend high schools, and State colleges. If I am elected to serve the people of Chilton county I propose to do all I can to secure an equal distribution of the general school fund, for I believe it is right.

I believe that all officers should be elected by the people, and that no measure should be enacted into law that would infringe upon the rights of men or tend to increase their burden without first submitting it to a vote.

I have ever stood for prohibition, my experience as Foreman of our last Grand Jury has strengthened my belief in prohibition, since two-thirds of the indictments found could be charged to whiskey. Again, it makes liars of boys who would otherwise be honest.

Stock law is another thing I do not advocate, neither do I want it.

I believe that the present Grand Jury law should be amended, in that a juryman could be had from each Beat on every Grand Jury.

I do not advocate higher taxes, but the economic spending of that which we now receive.

Mr. Editor, this is intended for the voters of Chilton county and it is my sincere wish that it will meet with their approval. But if the Union-Banner wishes to make issue of any statement I have made, I challange it to have my opponent, W. E. Thomas, or L. H. Reynolds, the mouth piece of the Progressive party, to meet me at the court house in Clanton any day they wish and jointly discuss the pending issues with me.

Very respectfully,

L. R. SAWYER.

COTTON AT TEN CENTS PER POUND

Thorsby Institute Will Help to Set the Price.

The Trustees of Thorsby Institute believe that cotton is worth at least ten cents per pound; they believe that everyone who can should "buy a bale" at ten cents. The school is not in position to invest any money in cotton at present, but it will do what may be best for the farmer.

Thorsby Institute will accept properly certified cotton warehouse receipts for cotton, upon a basis of not less than ten cents per pound, middling cotton, in advance settlement of accounts for board and tuition for this school year, which began September 8, 1914.

This cotton will be held until January 15, 1915, and if at that time it can be sold for more than ten cents per pound, the original owners will receive the increase, less the cost of holding. If the cotton cannot be sold for as much as ten cents per pound at that time, the school will bear the loss. [illegible] that this plan will [illegible]

GOOD ROADS IN SHELBY

Following is that part of the report of the Shelby county grand jury regarding good roads and what they think of those who are constructing them:

"We have made inquiry into the condition of the public roads of the county. We find that some excellent new roads have been constructed and some under way of construction, while the construction of other roads of this character are under consideration by proper authorities. We unqualifiedly commend the officials who have charge of the construction of these roads, we think they should be encouraged in carrying on this work, and in constructing other roads of this character so far as they can practically do so. These roads are a credit to the county, and in our opinion, the authorities who have started and are carrying on this work should receive the commendation and encouragement of every good citizen of the county. We find that several of the public roads of the county and the smaller bridges thereon have been neglected and are in bad condition and need immediate repairs. We recommend that these repairs be made as early as possible, and if there are changes in the law that are necessary to keep these roads in repair we recommend that such amendment be made to the law as will enable a better condition to arise."

The gentlemen who constitute the Board of Revenue are the officials who are responsible for the construction of these roads, and, as the Review has so often stated, deserve proper credit for their labors. They are men who see the needs of the county and have the business acumen to grasp the conditions and build for today and the future. It is also a lamentable fact that there has not been complete harmony among the members of the Board, one member voting "no" to all or nearly all questions on building better roads. Whether this is from ignorance or merely disgruntled spite we are unable to say, but we do say that we would not like for our name to go on record as the one who tried and is trying to put a block in the way of the most popular progressive movement of today. The Board is composed of five men and four of these men work in complete harmony and as the grand jury has done so will the entire county do—compliment these men.

Shelby county needed good roads and the roads that are being built are the highways that are mostly traveled and cross the county from east to west and north to south. One of these highways is part of the highway that runs from Birmingham to Montgomery and is of vital importance to Shelby county and all other counties through which it passes, and this county is to be congratulated that it had men on the Board of Revenue who had the foresight to see the importance of this highway and build it.

All of this is of great importance to the farmers of this county. They are the ones that will be mostly benefitted for it will enable them to go to market in much less time and carry much larger loads, and their property will more than double in value and should they want to sell buyers can be found. It is more than gratifying to The Review to know that the grand jury has [illegible]

The Land of Broken Promises

A Stirring Story of the Mexican Revolution

By DANE COOLIDGE
Author of "The Fighting Foot" "Hidden Waters" "The Trespass," Etc.

Illustrations by Dan J. Lavin

(Copyright, 1914, by Frank A. Munsey)

SYNOPSIS.

Bud Hooker and Phil De Lancey are forced, owing to a revolution in Mexico, to give up their mining claim and return to the United States. In the border town of Gadsden Bud meets Henry Kruger, a wealthy miner, who makes him a proposition to return to Mexico to acquire title to a very rich mine which Kruger had blown up when he found he had been cheated out of the title by one Aragon. The Mexican subsequently had spent a large sum of money in an unsuccessful attempt to relocate the vein and then allowed the land to revert for taxes. Hooker and De Lancey arrive at Fortuna, near where the Eagle Tail mine is located. They engage Cruz Mendez to acquire the title for them and begin preliminary work. Aragon accuses them of jumping his claim. Hooker discovers that matrimonial entanglements prevent Mendez from acquiring a valid title. Phil, who has been paying attention to Gracia Aragon, decides to turn Mexican and acquire the title. Aragon fails in his attempt to drive them off the claim. Rebels are reported in the vicinity. A rich vein of gold is struck and work on the mine is stopped until the title can be perfected. Phil is arrested by Manuel del Rey, captain of the rurales and suitor of Gracia's. He is released on promise to stay away from Gracia. Phil is forced to enlist in the rurales. He asks Bud to take care of Gracia. The rebels are defeated in a fierce battle near Fortuna.

CHAPTER XVII—Continued

"What, senor!" she bantered; "you do not speak? Surely, then, your friend De Lancey was wrong when he said you would save me! For look, Mr. Hooker, I am promised to marry dear Phil; but how can I manage that when Manuel del Rey is watching me? It is impossible, is it not?"

"Seems so," muttered Bud, and in the back of his head he began to think quickly. Here was the fountainhead of his misfortunes, and if she had her way she would lay all his plans in ruins—and even then not marry Phil. In fact, from the light way she spoke, he sensed that she did not intend to marry him. Her grudge was against Manuel del Rey who drove away all her lovers.

"Well," he ventured, "there's no rush, I reckon—Phil's enlisted for five years."

"Ha!" she cried contemptuously; "and do you think he will serve? No! At a word from me he will flee to the border and I shall join him in the United States!"

"What?" demanded Bud; "Phil desert?"

In a moment he saw what such a move would mean to him—to Kruger and the Eagle Tail—and he woke suddenly from his calm.

"Here now," he said, scowling as he saw that she was laughing at him, "you've made me and Phil enough trouble. You let that boy alone, savvy?"

He stooped toward her as he spoke, fixing her with masterful eyes that had tamed many a bad horse and man, and she shrank away instinctively. Then she glanced at him shyly and edged over toward the open door.

"I will do what I please, Mr. Hooker," she returned, balancing on the verge of flight.

"All right," Bud came back; "but don't you call me in on it. You've made a fool of Phil—I suppose you'd like to get me, too. Then your father would grab our mine."

"What do you mean?" she challenged, turning back upon him.

"I mean this," responded Hooker warmly. "Phil holds the title to our mine. If he deserts he loses his Mexican citizenship and his claim is no good. But you don't need to think that your father will get the mine then, because he'll have to whip me first!"

"O-ho!" she sneered; "so that is what you are thinking of? You are a true gringo, Mr. Hooker—always thinking about the money!"

"Yes," returned Bud; "and even at that I believe your old man will best me!"

She laughed again, with sudden capriciousness, and stood tapping the floor with her foot.

"Ah, I see," she said at length, gazing at him reproachfully; "you think I am working for my father. You think I got poor Phil into all this trouble in order to cheat him of his mine. But let me tell you, Senor Gringo," she cried with sudden fire, "that I did not! I have nothing to do with my father and his schemes. But if you do not trust me—"

She turned dramatically to go, but when Hooker made no effort to stay her she returned once more to the attack.

"No," she said, "it was because he was an American—because he was brave—that I put my faith in Phil. These Mexican men are cowards—they are afraid to stand up and fight! But Philip dared to make love to me—he dared to sing to me at night—and when Manuel del Rey tried to stop him he stood up and made a fight!

"Ah, that is what I admire—a man who is brave! And let me tell you, Senor Hooker, I shall always love your friend! If I could run away I would marry him tomorrow; but this way, Manuel del Rey, stands in the way. Even my own father is against me, and I fear Manuel—and so you think you are not my friend!"

true beauty, with no uneasy thoughts of treachery to poison his honest love.

"I believe you, lady," he said. "And I'm glad to know you," he added, taking off his hat and bowing awkwardly. "Anything I can do for you, don't hesitate to ask for it—only I can't go against my partners on this mine."

He bowed again and retreated toward the door, but she followed him impulsively.

"Shake hands," she said, holding out both her own, "and will you help me?"

"Sure!" answered Bud, and as her soft fingers closed on his he took them gently, for fear that he might crush them and never know.

CHAPTER XVIII.

A month of weary waiting followed that day of days in Fortuna, and still there was no word from Phil. Bernardo Bravo and his rebel raiders passed through the mountains to the east, and news came of heavy fighting in Chihuahua. Don Cipriano Aragon moved his family back to his hacienda and Gracia became only a dream.

Then, one day, as Hooker and the Yaqui were industriously pounding out gold, a messenger came out from town with a telegram in his hand.

Am in Gadsden. No chance to hold mine. Kruger says quit.—P.

"No, I'll be 'sarned if I do!" muttered Bud. Then he sat down to think.

"Amigo," he said to the Yaqui, "are you a Mexican citizen? Can you get title to mine?"

"Me a Mexican?" repeated Amigo, tapping himself on the chest. "No, senor! Seguro que no!"

"All right then," observed Bud bitterly, "here goes nothing—nowhere! I'll turn Mexican myself!"

He passed the messenger on the way to town, took out his first papers as a citizen, picked up the mineral agent's expert on the way back, and located the Eagle Tail in his own name. Before riding back to camp he wired to Kruger:

Have turned Mex and relocated claim. HOOKER.

It was his last card, and he did not expect to win by it. Fate had been against him from the first, and he could see his finish, but his nature drove him to fight on. All that Aragon had to do now was to have him summoned for military service, and Del Rey would do the rest.

Then he could take over the mine. A mere formality—or so it seemed—but between Aragon and his mine stood the Texas blood. Hooker had been crowded to the wall, and he was mad enough to fight.

The news of De Lancey's desertion followed quickly after his flight—it came over the federal wires in a report to Manuel del Rey—but by the time it got to Aragon that gentleman was too late. They rode into camp the next day—Aragon and the captain of the rurales—and at the first glimpse of that hated uniform Amigo was off like a buck. Bud went out sullenly to meet them, his black mood showing in his lowering eyes, and he halted them by the savagery of his cursing.

"You cock-eyed old reprobate," he snarled, advancing threateningly upon the paling Aragon, "this makes three times you've come into my camp and brought your gun with you! Now take it off!" he yelled, dropping suddenly into Spanish. "Take that gun off—do you understand!"

So violent and unexpected was his assault that it threw Aragon into a panic, and even Manuel del Rey softened his manner as he inquired into the cause.

"Never mind," answered Bud, smiling crustily as Aragon laid aside his arms; "I know that hombre well! Now what can I do for you, capitan?"

"Be so kind as to take your hand from your belt," replied Del Rey with a smile that was intended to placate. "Ah, thank you—excuse my nerves—now I can tell you the news. I regret to inform you, senor, that your friend, De Lancey, has deserted from my command, taking his arms and equipment with him. In case he is captured he will be shot as a deserter."

"Your news is old, capitan," rejoined Hooker. "I knew it two days ago. And you can tell Mr. Aragon that it is no use for him to try to get this mine—I became a Mexican citizen yesterday and located it myself."

"So we learned," responded the captain suavely. "It was part of my errand today to say if you would not enlist in my company of rurales."

"Muchas gracias, capitan," answered Hooker with heavy irony. "I do not care to!"

"But your friend—" protested Manuel del Rey with an insinuating smile.

"My friend was in jail," put in Hooker, "the last time I saw him. He was in the act of escaping. But now, senor, you can go in peace. Further—"

Hooker squatted by the fire and poured out a cup of coffee, still brooding over his thoughts—then, with a swift gesture, he laid open his shirt and pointed to a scar along the ribs.

"He shot me there," he said.

"And so you have come to kill him?" "Yes," answered Amigo; "but not now. Tomorrow I go to my people—I must take them my money first."

"Have you got a wife?" asked Hooker, forgetting for once his assumed reserve.

"No," grumbled Amigo, shaking his head sadly, "no wife."

"Oh, you take your money to your father and mother."

"No. No father—no mother—nada!" He threw up his open hands to signify that all were gone, and Hooker said no more. For three months and more he had worked alongside this giant, silent Yaqui and only once had he caught him napping; and he had no intention that they should.

A conspiracy had sprung up to get rid of him, to keep him out of the country, and behind it was Aragon. But now, with the big Yaqui blowing, Aragon would have against the flames. And soon, as quiet as a fox, the Yaqui appeared from the gloom.

"Take That Gun Off, Do You Understand?"

"Did he come for me?" he asked, advancing warily into the firelight, "that capitan?"

"Yes," answered Bud, "and for me, too. But you must have known him before, Amigo—he seems to be afraid of you."

A smile of satisfaction passed over the swarthy face of the Indian at this, and then the lines became grim again. His eyes glowed with the light of some great purpose, and for the first time since he had been with Bud he drew aside the veil from his past.

"Yes," he said, nodding significantly, "the rural is afraid. He knows I have come to kill him."

He squatted by the fire and poured out a cup of coffee, still brooding over his thoughts—then, with a swift gesture, he laid open his shirt and pointed to a scar along the ribs.

"He shot me there," he said.

"And so you have come to kill him?"

"Yes," answered Amigo; "but not now. Tomorrow I go to my people—I must take them my money first."

"Have you got a wife?" asked Hooker, forgetting for once his assumed reserve.

"No," grumbled Amigo, shaking his head sadly, "no wife."

"Oh, you take your money to your father and mother."

"No. No father—no mother—nada!" He threw up his open hands to signify that all were gone, and Hooker said no more. For three months and more he had worked alongside this giant, silent Yaqui and only once had he caught him napping; and he had no intention that they should.

A conspiracy had sprung up to get rid of him, to keep him out of the country, and behind it was Aragon. But now, with the big Yaqui blowing, Aragon would have Trinidad, a man who could do all things to all proprietors a good hotel keeper should—and after he altered his opinion a little, for the letters were from Phil. He read them over in the crowded plaza, into which the first refugees were just beginning to pour, and thumped as he skimmed through the last.

All threats and vain protestations of devotion there was enough and to spare, but nothing about the mine. Only in the first one, written on the very day he had deserted, did he so much as attempt an excuse for so precipitately abandoning their claim and his Mexican citizenship. Phil wrote:

My mail was being sent through headquarters and looked over by Del Rey, so I knew I would never receive the papers, even if they came. I hope you don't feel hard about it, pardner. Kruger says to come out right away. I would have stayed with it, but it wasn't any use. And now, Bud, I want to ask you something. When you come out, bring Gracia with you. Don't leave her at the mercy of Del Rey. I would come myself if it wasn't sure death. Be quick about it, Bud; I count on you.

The other letters were all like that, but nothing about the mine. And yet it was the mine that Bud was fighting for—that they had fought for from the first. The railroad was torn up now, and a fight with Gracia was hopeless, but it was just as well, for he never would abandon the Eagle Tail.

In two months, or three, when the rebels were whipped off, his papers might come. Then he could pay his taxes and transfer his title and consider the stealing of Gracia. But since he had seen her and touched her hand something held him back—a grudging reluctance—and he was glad that his duty lay elsewhere. If she was his girl now he would come down and get her anyway.

But she was not his girl and, gazing back grimly at the seething plaza and the hotel that hid her from sight, he rode somberly down the road. After all, there was nothing to get excited about—every revolteso in the country was lined up around Agua Negra and, with four hundred soldiers to oppose them and artillery to shell their advance, it would be many a long day before they took that town.

Twice already Agua Negra had fallen before such attacks, but now it was protected by rifle-pits and machine guns set high on mud roofs. And then there were the Yaquis, still faithful to Madero. They alone could hold the town, if they made up their minds to fight. So reasoned Hooker, mulling over the news that he had heard. But he watched the ridges warily, for the weather was good for raiders.

A day passed, and then another, and the big whistle blew only for the shifts; the loneliness of the hills oppressed him as he gazed out at the quivering heat. And then, like a toad after a shower, Amigo came paddling into camp on the heels of a thunderstorm, his sandals hung on his hip and his big feet squelching through the mud.

Across his shoulders he wore a gay serape, woven by some patient woman of his tribe; and in the belt beside Bud's pistol he carried a heavy knife, blacksmithed from a ten-inch file by some Yaqui hillman. All in all, he was a fine barbarian, but he looked good to the lonely Bud.

"Ola, Amigo!" he hailed, stepping out from the adobe house where he had moved to avoid the rains; and Amigo answered with his honest smile which carried no hint of savagery or deceit.

Try as he would, Bud could not bring himself to think of his Yaqui as dangerous; and even when he balanced the Indian's murderous bowie-knife in his hands he regarded it with a grin. It was a heavy weapon, broad across the back, keen on one edge, and drawn to a point that was both sharp and strong. The haft was wrapped with rawhide to hold the clutch of the hand.

"What do you do with this?" queried Hooker. "Chop wood? Skin deer?"

"Yes, chop wood!" answered Amigo, but he replaced it carefully in his belt.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

CHAPTER XIX.

It was June and the windstorms which had swept in from the southeast died away. No more, as in the months that had passed, did the dust-pillar rise from the dump of the Fortuna mill and go swirling up the canyon.

A great calm and quiet settled over the harassed land, and above the far blue wall of the Sierras the first thunder caps of the rainy season rose up till they obscured the sky. Then, with a rush of conflicting winds, a leaden silence, and a crash of flickering light, the storm burst in tropic fury and was gone as quickly as it had come.

So, while the rich landowners of the hot country sat idle and watched it grow, another storm gathered behind the distant Sierras; and, as empty rumors lulled them to a false security, suddenly from the north came the news of dashing raids, of railroads cut, troops routed, and the whole border occupied by swarming rebels.

In a day the southern country was isolated and cut off from escape and, while the hordes of Chihuahua insurrectos laid siege to Agua Negra, the belated Spanish Residentados came scuttling once more to Fortuna. There, at least, was an American town where the courage of the Anglo-Saxon would protect their women in extremity. And, if worst came to worst, it was better to pay ransom to red-flag generals than to fall victims to bandits and looters.

As the lazy roar of the great whistle reverberated over the hills Bud Hooker left his lonely camp almost gladly, and with his hard-won gold-dust safe beneath his belt, went galloping into town.

Not for three weeks—not since he received the wire from Phil and located the Eagle Tail mine—had he dared to leave his claim. Rurales, outlaws and Mexican patriots had dropped in from day to day and eaten up most of his food, but none of them had caught him napping; and he had no intention that they should.

A conspiracy had sprung up to get rid of him, to keep him out of the country, and behind it was Aragon. But now, with the big Yaqui blowing, Aragon would have Evidence That People of the Stone Age Did Not Live Exclusively on Animal Food.

There is nothing to indicate that the men of the later stone age did not have buckwheat pancakes for breakfast. It has been learned that not only buckwheat but many other grains of the present day, such as corn, barley, flax, rye and oats, formed an important part of the daily bread consumed by the people of the latter half of the stone age, known as the neolithic epoch.

It is generally admitted that the men of the age of hewn stone were hunters. With Asiatic invasions the manner of living changed. The neolithics began to raise domestic animals and to cultivate certain species of plants, the remains of which are still to be found.

Corn is the most ancient plant known. Scientists have discovered samples of it in the prehistoric layers of the Mississippi valley and of the Swiss lake region.

EN. FRENCH TELLS HOW STRATEGY SAVED BRITISH FROM ANNIHILATION

London.—Many English breakfasts went untasted while the people read the graphic account by Field Marshal Sir John French of the heroic fight made by the British expeditionary force to keep from being annihilated. Like a wildcat pursued by hounds, the little force backed stubbornly toward the River Oise, constantly showing its teeth, but realizing that it must reach the river or perish.

Text of the Report.

The report is published in the London Gazette, the official organ. It is as follows:

"The transportation of the troops from England by rail and sea was effected in the best order and without a hitch. Concentration was practically completed on the evening of Friday, August 21, and I was able to make dispositions to move the force on the following Saturday to positions I considered most favorable from which to commence the operations which General Joffre requested me to undertake.

"General French then described in detail the position taken up by his troops at and on the east and west of Mons and the retirement of the army behind Mons on Sunday, August 23. He continues:

Surprised by Joffre's Message.

"Meanwhile, about five in the afternoon I received a most unexpected message from General Joffre by telephone telling me that at least three German corps were moving on my position in front and that another corps was engaged in a turning movement from the direction of Tournai. He also informed me that the two reserve French divisions and the Fifth French army corps on my right were fighting, the Germans having on the previous day gained possession of the passage of the Sambre between Charleroi and Namur.

Had Reserve Position Ready.

"In view of the possibility of my being driven from the Mons position I had previously ordered a position in my rear to be reconnoitered.

"When the news of the retirement of the French and the heavy German outflanking on my front reached me I endeavored to confirm it by aeroplane reconnoissance and as a result of this I determined to effect a retirement to the Maubeuge position at daybreak on the 24th.

Fighting on the 24th.

"A certain amount of fighting continued along the whole line throughout the night and at daybreak on the 24th the second division from the neighborhood of Harmignies made a powerful demonstration as if to retake Mons. Under cover of this demonstration the Second corps retired on the line of Dour, Quarouble and Wasmuries. The third division on the right of the corps suffered considerable loss in this operation from the enemy who had retaken Mons.

"The Second corps halted on this line, where they intrenched themselves, enabling Sir Douglas Haig with the First corps to withdraw to the new position and he effected this without much further loss, reaching the line from Bavay to Maubeuge about noon in the evening.

"About 7:30 in the morning General Allenby received a message from Sir Charles Fergusson, commanding the fifth division, saying he was very hard pressed and in urgent need of support. On receipt of this message General Allenby drew in his cavalry and endeavored to bring direct support to the fifth division.

Re-Enforcements Brought Up.

"The Nineteenth infantry brigade, which had been guarding the line of communications, was brought by rail to Valenciennes on the 22d and 23d. In the morning of the 24th they were moved out to a position south of Quarouble to support the left flank of the Second corps.

"With the assistance of cavalry Sir Horace Smith Dorrien was enabled to effect his retreat to a new position, although having two corps of the enemy on his front and one threatening his flank. He suffered great losses in doing so.

"At nightfall a position was occupied by the Second corps to the west of Bavay, the First corps to the right. The right was protected by the fortress of Maubeuge, the left by the Nineteenth brigade in positions between Jenlain and Bruay and by cavalry on the outer flank. The French were still retiring and I had no support except such as was afforded by the fortress of Maubeuge, and determined efforts of the enemy to get around my flank assured me that it was his intention to hem me against that place and surround me.

Not a Moment to Be Lost.

"I felt that not a moment must be lost in returning to another position. The retirement was resumed in the early morning of the 26th to a position in the neighborhood of LeCateau and the rear guard was ordered to be west of Maubeuge and Bavay by 9:30 a. m. Two cavalry brigades, with the divisional cavalry of the Second corps, covered the movement of the Second corps, and the remainder of the cavalry division, with the Nineteenth brigade, the whole under command of General Allenby, covered the right flank.

"The fourth division commenced its detrainment at LeCateau, the [illegible] and by the afternoon of the 26th all battalions and [illegible] with the [illegible] available for support.

"Although the troops had been ordered to occupy the Cambrai-Le Cateau-Landrecies position and ground had, during the 25th, been partially preparing and intrenched, I had grave doubts—owing to information I had received as to the accumulating strength of the enemy against me—as to the wisdom of standing there to fight.

"Having regard to the continued retirement of the French right, my exposed left flank, the tendency of the enemy's western corps to envelop me, and, more than all, the exhausted condition of the troops, I determined to make a great effort to continue the retreat till I could get some substantial obstacle, such as the Somme or the Oise, between my troops and the enemy, and afford the former some opportunity for rest and reorganization.

"Orders were therefore sent to the corps commanders to continue their retreat as soon as they possibly could toward the general line of Vermand, St. Quentin and Ribemont, and the cavalry under General Allenby were ordered to cover the retirement. Throughout the 26th and far into the evening the First corps continued to march on Landrecies, following the road along the eastern border of the forest of Mormal, and arrived at Landrecies about ten o'clock.

Enemy Allows No Rest.

"I had intended that the corps should come further west, so as to fill up the gap between Locateau and Landrecies, but the men were exhausted and could not get further in without a rest.

"The enemy, however, would not allow them this rest, and about 8:30 that evening the report was received that the Fourth Guards brigade in Landrecies was heavily attacked by troops of the Ninth German army corps, who were coming through the forest to the north of the town. This brigade fought most gallantly and caused the enemy to suffer a tremendous loss in issuing from the forest into the narrow streets of the town. This loss has been estimated from reliable sources at between 700 and 1,000.

"At the same time information reached me from Sir Douglas Haig that his first division was also heavily engaged south and east of Marilles."

Two French divisions assisted the First corps to retire in the night of the 25th. Second corps took position between Caudry and LeCateau.

Attacked by Four Corps.

"At daybreak it became apparent that the enemy was throwing the bulk of his strength against the left of the position occupied by the Second corps and the fourth division. At this time the guns of four German army corps were in position against them, and Sir Horace Smith Dorrien reported to me that he judged it impossible to continue his retirement at daybreak, as ordered, in the face of such an attack.

"I sent him orders to use his utmost endeavors to break off the action and retire at the earliest possible moment, as it was impossible for me to send him support, the First corps being at the moment incapable of movement.

"The French cavalry corps under General Sordet was coming up on our left rear early in the morning and I sent him an urgent message to do his utmost to come up and support the retirement of my left flank, but owing to the fatigue of his horses he found himself unable to intervene in any way.

Outnumbered Four to One.

"There had been no time to intrench the position properly, but the troops showed a magnificent front to the terrible fire which confronted them. The artillery, although outmatched by at least four to one, made a splendid fight and inflicted heavy losses on their opponents.

"At length it became apparent that if complete annihilation was to be avoided retirement must be attempted and the order was given to commence it about 2:30 in the afternoon. The movement was covered with most devoted intrepidity and determination by the artillery, which had itself suffered heavily, and the fine work done by the cavalry in the further retreat from the position assisted materially the final completion of this most difficult and dangerous operation. Fortunately, the enemy had himself suffered too heavily to engage in an energetic pursuit.

"The retreat was continued far into the night of the 26th and through the 26th and the 27th, by which date the troops halted on the line from Noyon, Chauny and LaFere, having cast thrown off the weight of the enemy's pursuit.

Work Wonders for Kidneys

Many symptoms, such as backache, annoying urinary disorders and a dull, dragging, discouraging feeling. Worst symptom, dizziness, sudden attacks, when kidney action is cramped or irregular, work is cramped positions; work amid the fumes of turpentine; constant riding on jolting vehicles, is especially hard on the kidneys.

Taken in time kidney trouble isn't hard to stop; neglected it is dangerous. As a kidney pain, there is no other medicine so well recommended, so widely used and so universally successful as Doan's Kidney Pills.

HAS NO INJURIOUS EFFECT

Strong Denial That Presence of Tuberculosis Sanatorium Is Detrimental to Adjoining Property.

Convincing proof that tuberculosis sanatoriums or hospitals are not a menace to the health nor a detriment to the property of those living near such institutions is given in a pamphlet issued recently by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. In an extended study of the subject the association has not been able to find a single instance where a tuberculosis sanatorium has had an injurious effect on the health of anyone living near it, nor where it has had any lasting effect upon property values.

The pamphlet, entitled, "The Effect of Tuberculosis Institutions on the Value and Desirability of Surrounding Property," reviews all the available data on the subject, taking up court decisions bearing on the question and quotations from the many articles and investigations of typical hospitals and the opinions of prominent men. Nearly one hundred and fifty different institutions are studied. In all these institutions not one case could be found where the assertions of opponents to their location, that a tuberculosis sanatorium would spread disease and injure property, could be substantiated. In fact, a number of instances were found where the presence of the sanatorium or hospital promoted outdoor living, tending to lower the death rate, and increase the market for produce and labor, thereby benefiting the community.

Memories of Old Luxemburg.

Luxemburg, whatever its claims to the protection of Great Britain, possesses one strange association with England that dates back 12 centuries. It is connected with the cult of St. Willibrod, the variously-spelled Saxon saint who helped to convert the Germans to Christianity—very imperfectly, as an Oxford don once dryly remarked. Every Whit Tuesday the memory of our English saint is honored at Luxemburg by a procession and religious dance which rank among the most curious survivals of medieval pageantry. Luxemburg is also a place which appeals to British naturalists, for one of the commonest birds in the public park there is the charming little black redstart, which is a rare winter visitor to England.—Daily Chronicle.

5 Women Avoid Operations

For years we have been stating in the newspapers of the country that a great many women have escaped serious operations by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it is true.

We are permitted to publish in this announcement extracts from the letters of five women. All have been recently received unsolicited. Could any evidence be more convincing?

1. Hodgdon, Me.—"I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached and I was so nervous I could not sleep, and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation, but I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman."—Mrs. Hayward Sowers, Hodgdon, Me.

2. Charlotte, N. C.—"I was in bad health for two years, with pains in both sides and was very nervous. I had a growth which the doctor said was a tumor, and I never would get well unless I had an operation. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I gladly say that I am now enjoying fine health."—Mrs. Rosa Sims, 16 Winona St., Charlotte, N. C.

3. Hanover, Pa.—"The doctor advised a severe operation, but my husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I experienced great relief in a short time. Now I feel like a new person and can do a hard day's work and not mind it."—Mrs. Ada Wilt, 196 Stock St., Hanover, Pa.

4. Decatur, Ill.—"I was sick in bed and three of the best physicians said I would have to be taken to the hospital for an operation as I had something growing in my left side. I refused to submit to the operation and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and it worked a miracle in my case, and I tell other women what it has done for me."—Mrs. Laura A. Griswold, 2300 Blk. East William Street, Decatur, Ill.

5. Cleveland, Ohio.—"I was very irregular and for several years my side pained me so that I expected to have to undergo an operation. Doctors said they knew of nothing that would help me. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I became regular and free from pain. I am thankful for such a good medicine and will always give it the highest praise."—Mrs. C. H. Griffith, 7305 Madison Av., Cleveland, O.

The election of a Mayor and five Aldermen for the Town of Clanton takes place next Monday, Sept. 21.

Will the official organ of the Bull Moose party in this county tell us whether or not they endorse the recent letter of J. O. Thompson to Geo. W. Perkins?

The "Buy a Bale of Cotton" movement has been inaugurated in a number of cities and towns of the South, and is already spreading like wild fire. If every man who can would buy a bale direct from the farmer at 10 cents, it would be a great help to the tiller of the soil, and would be a wonderful stimulas to business conditions during the present financial crisis. This is a great movement to prevent the surplus crop of the south's greatest staple from being sacrificed and we hope every city and town in the south will join in the movement.

We are overcrowded with matter this week, and as a consequence some communications and editorials are unavoidably left out of this issue.

CHILTON COUNTY BUSINESS MEN'S LEAGUE.

At a well attended meeting of the Business Men's League of Chilton county, all farmers were invited to become members of the League without payment of membership dues or fees. The plan was approved by the meeting, and all farmers are included as members.

The cotton situation was discussed and a number of good talks were made and plans suggested.

The farmers pledged themselves to pick and gin their cotton and to store in the warehouses at Clanton, turning their receipts over to their merchant or banker on a basis of eight cents per pound, the $40 to be placed to the credit of their account and the cotton to be held four months.

A resolution was passed authorizing a committee to go to Montgomery to make complaint to the U. S. District Attorney that the cotton seed oil mills of Alabama had entered into a conspiracy to depress the price of cotton seed and to increase the price of the manufactured article.

A number of prominent Montgomery business men attended the meeting.

THORSBY NEWS

Thorsby Institute opened Tuesday, Sept. 8th, with chapel service at 10 a.m. Addresses were made by Miss Helen C. Jenkins, Mr. A. K Horn, and Principal S. H. Herbert. Special music was furnished by a quartet of young women.

The enrollment the first day was forty-one. Others have come in since, so that the enrollment now is as great as the entire enrollment for last year. The dormitories are busy places, with the largest number of boarding students the school has ever had at the opening of the term. These students come from ten different counties.

The reception given by the Ladies' Guild to the students, teachers, and trustees of Thorsby Institute last Friday night was a delightful affair. Over one hundred people were present, and all seemed to enjoy themselves fine. Speeches were made by Mrs. H. M. Gerald, Mr. John Patton, Miss Jenkins, Rev. E. W. Butler, and Principal S. H. Herbert. Miss Lassfolk and some of the young ladies furnished some very pleasing music. Refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake were served to the guests of the evening by the Ladies' Guild.

Rev W. H. Hopkins, of Atlanta, Ga., preached at the Congregational Church Sunday morning and evening and Monday evening. He spoke to the students of Thorsby Institute at the chapel service Monday morning and gave a Bible Study in the Book of Acts Monday afternoon. His addresses were much enjoyed, and were very helpful.

The lots formerly occupied by the Foss residence, which was destroyed by fire last January, are being thoroughly cleaned up. This is part of the work of beautifying the Institute campus which will be carried on during the coming year under the direction of the Department of Landscape Gardening of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The Girls' Dormitory yard is already much improved in appearance as the result of work done last spring and this summer.

The waterworks pipes have been extended to the end of Chilton Avenue, and from thence to the Boys' Dormitories. Several new customers are taking water now that the supply can be depended on.

The opening meeting of the Helen Keller Literary Society will be held in Bates Hall Friday night, Sept. 18th, at 7:30 p. m. Election of officers for the coming year will be the main business of the evening, but something of the nature of a program will be presented. All former members of the society are invited to be present.

The Thorsby public school opened Monday with great prospects for a good school.

After the singing of "America" Mr. Soberg, one of our noble trustees, introduced Mr. Crumpton, who conducted the Devotional exercises and made a strong appeal to teachers, patrons and pupils for their hearty co-operation. The teachers were then introduced and the principal of the school, Mrs. M. [illegible] introduced the pupils.

A great number of the patrons were present and several expressed themselves in favor of an [illegible] school for a [illegible] school.

The [illegible] session of [illegible] Monday, [illegible] Miss [illegible] Brown, [illegible] W. L. Bailey [illegible].

HARDWARE STORE BURGLARIZED

Sometime Tuesday night burglars entered the store of the Clanton Hardware Co. and carried off about one hundred dollars worth of pistols and razors. The entrance to the building was made through the rear door, which was secured by a heavy bar, and nothing was known of the robbery until Wednesday morning when the store was opened for the day's business. Whether anything else was taken besides the pistols and razors, the officials of the firm are just unable to determine.

The election of a Mayor and five Aldermen for the Town of Clanton takes place next Monday, Sept. 21.

Will the official organ of the Bull Moose party in this county tell us whether or not they endorse the recent letter of J. O. Thompson to Geo. W. Perkins?

The "Buy a Bale of Cotton" movement has been inaugurated in a number of cities and towns of the South, and is already spreading like wild fire. If every man who can would buy a bale direct from the farmer at 10 cents, it would be a great help to the tiller of the soil, and would be a wonderful stimulas to business conditions during the present financial crisis. This is a great movement to prevent the surplus crop of the south's greatest staple from being sacrificed and we hope every city and town in the south will join in the movement.

We are overcrowded with matter this week, and as a consequence some communications and editorials are unavoidably left out of this issue.

CHILTON COUNTY BUSINESS MEN'S LEAGUE.

At a well attended meeting of the Business Men's League of Chilton county, all farmers were invited to become members of the League without payment of membership dues or fees. The plan was approved by the meeting, and all farmers are included as members.

The cotton situation was discussed and a number of good talks were made and plans suggested.

A resolution was passed in which the farmers piedged themselves to pick and gin their cotton and to store in the warehouses at Clanton, turning their receipts over to their merchant or banker on a basis of eight cents per pound, the $40 to be placed to the credit of their account and the cotton to be held four months.

A resolution was passed authorizing a committee to go to Montgomery to make complaint to the U. S. District Attorney that the cotton seed oil mills of Alabama had entered into a conspiracy to depress the price of cotton seed and to increase the price of the manufactured article.

A number of prominent Montgomery business men attended the meeting.

THORSBY NEWS

Thorsby Institute opened Tuesday, Sept. 8th, with chapel service at 10 a.m. Addresses were made by Miss Helen C. Jenkins, Mr. A. K Horn, and Principal S. H. Herbert. Special music was furnished by a quartet of young women.

The enrollment the first day was forty-one. Others have come in since, so that the enrollment now is as great as the entire enrollment for last year. The dormitories are busy places, with the largest number of boarding students the school has ever had at the opening of the term. These students come from ten different counties.

The reception given by the Ladies' Guild to the students, teachers, and trustees of Thorsby Institute last Friday night was a delightful affair. Over one hundred people were present, and all seemed to enjoy themselves fine. Speeches were made by Mrs. H. M. Gerald, Mr. John Patton, Miss Jenkins, Rev. E. W. Butler, and Principal S. H. Herbert. Miss Lassfolk and some of the young ladies furnished some very pleasing music. Refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake were served to the guests of the evening by the Ladies' Guild.

Rev W. H. Hopkins, of Atlanta, Ga., preached at the Congregational Church Sunday morning and evening and Monday evening. He spoke to the students of Thorsby Institute at the chapel service Monday morning and gave a Bible Study in the Book of Acts Monday afternoon. His addresses were much enjoyed, and were very helpful.

The lots formerly occupied by the Foss residence, which was destroyed by fire last January, are being thoroughly cleaned up. This is part of the work of beautifying the Institute campus which will be carried on during the coming year under the direction of the Department of Landscape Gardening of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The Girls' Dormitory yard is already much improved in appearance as the result of work done last spring and this summer.

The waterworks pipes have been extended to the end of Chilton Avenue, and from thence to the Boys' Dormitories. Several new customers are taking water now that the supply can be depended on.

The opening meeting of the Helen Keller Literary Society will be held in Bates Hall Friday night, Sept. 18th, at 7:30 p. m. Election of officers for the coming year will be the main business of the evening, but something of the nature of a program will be presented. All former members of the society are invited to be present.

The Thorsby public school opened Monday with great prospects for a good school.

After the singing of "America" Mr. Soberg, one of our noble trustees, introduced Mr. Crumpton, who conducted the Devotional exercises and made a strong appeal to teachers, patrons and pupils for their hearty co-operation. The teachers were then introduced and the principal of the school, Mrs. M. Manning, spoke many words of encouragement to the patrons and pupils.

A great number of the patrons were present and several expressed themselves in regard to the present outlook for a splendid school.

The faculty consists of Mrs. M. Manning, principal; Miss Mabel Swan, intermediate grades; Mrs. W. L. Holder, primary work.

School opened with an enrollment of eighty-seven, and we have great prospects for a standard school for another year.

MOUNTAIN CREEK NEWS

The Chilton Mining & Mfg. Co. are rushing the completion of the dam across the west branch of Mountain Creek stream for a supply of water for their smelting plant. The narrow-gage railroad leading out from Morganville is to be extended to ore property recently purchased by the mining company.

Postmaster Speer has had another lot of lock boxes put in the office and all have been sold.

Thos. J. Henderson, a rural mail carrier, has a new auto that he uses in delivering the mail on his route.

Judge Graff Sims and W. W. Cobern say their three-gin cotton plant is getting practically all that it can do.

Judge Mayfield and family, of Montgomery, have moved into the Elmore property, which they recently purchased.

NOTICE.

I hereby forbid any one in Alabama to employ or feed my boy, Martin Wright. He is under age, and if I hear of any one giving him employment, I will prosecute them to the full extent of the law.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS
FOR BACKACHE KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

HARDWARE STORE BURGLARIZED

Sometime Tuesday night burglars entered the store of the Clanton Hardware Co. and carried off about one hundred dollars worth of pistols and razors. The entrance to the building was made through the rear door, which was secured by a heavy bar, and nothing was known of the robbery until Wednesday morning when the store was opened for the day's business. Whether anything else was taken besides the pistols and razors, the officials of the firm are yet unable to determine.

It appears that if the night marshal would make a round of the business part of town at least once every hour during the night, burglaries would be known before the following morning and possibly some clue could be gotten where by the guilty party or parties would be captured.

Every Weber Wagon We Sell Is Inspected Four Times

Instead of waiting until you need a wagon and then taking the first that's offered you, find out in advance which wagon will give you the best service. Buy the wagon that will stand up for the longest time and be easiest on your horses.

That wagon is a Weber. Here's why. Each Weber wagon is thoroughly inspected. The lumber used is selected from large purchases of first grade oak and hickory for wheels and gears, the finest yellow or bay poplar for box sides, and long leaf yellow pine for bottoms.

Every stick of this lumber is carefully inspected, and each part cut from it is again inspected when it is shaped and ironed. The third inspection is made just before the wagon is painted, and insures perfect fitting of every part. The final inspection is made when the wagon is ready for delivery. Four inspections to make sure that you get just what you pay for when you buy a Weber wagon.

Drop in the next time you come to town and look over our line of Weber wagons. We are proud of them.

Miss Marguerite Chappelle returned home Saturday last from an extended visit to friends at Marion and Jackson, Ala.

Cost Kept Down--Quality Kept Up.

No better medicine could be made for coughs, colds, croup, hoarseness, tickling throat, bronchitis, etc., than Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. That's when they can't improve the quality, and war or no war, the price remains the same. No opiates. Don't take substitutes, for Foley's Honey and Tar is the best. Alred Drug Co.

Mrs. Arkie Roper has returned to her home in Montgomery, after a pleasant visit to her parents here.

The following marriage licenses have been issued this week: Mr George D. Cooper and Miss Lula Parker; Mr. Grady Reynolds and Miss Estella Morgan; Mr. W. I. Mims and Miss Bivian Wyatt.

The southern end of the B. and M. Highway, extending from Cooper to Clanton, a distance of seven miles, has been completed. Dr. J. E. Gowan, in company with Messrs. J. C. Taylor of Illinois and Wm Fitzsimmons of Decatur, were the first to make the trip over the highway, which was made last Thursday in the Doctor's car. Dr. Gowan says the road is in excellent condition.

A Lame Back-Kidney Trouble Causes It.

And it will give you even worse if not checked. Mrs. H. T. Straynge, Gainesville, Ga., was fairly down on her back with kidney trouble and inflamed bladder. MR. AND MRS. PINCKARD ENTERTAIN

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Pinckard was the scene of much merryment on Saturday night notwithstanding the inclement weather, when they entertained for Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Pinckard, and Mr. and Mrs. George Stevenson of Gadsden, at a delightful informal affair. Mrs. Pinckard has many friends here to whom she has indeared herself at former visits. This was Mr. Pinckard's first visit here in some time. He spent many agreeable moments renewing old acquaintanees who gave him a hearty welcome. Mr. Stevenson had never visited Clanton before, but his affable manner made him many friends who wish for his speedy return. They motored back to Gadsden Monday morning.

REYNOLDS-MORGAN

Brilliant and beautifully arranged in every detail was the marriage of Miss Estella Morgan and Grady Reynolds, which took place at 9 o'clock at the Methodist church Thursday evening last at Clanton. The decorations of the church were characterized by charming simplicity, ferns and smilax formed a background for the beautiful yellow chrysanthemums and candelabra held aloft tapers which shed a soft light over the altar.

A program of music was rendered while the guests assembled, the organ being presided over by Mrs. J. H. Middleton. Mrs. Amzi Gowan sang, "Because I Love You, Dear," and Percy Pitts, of Columbiana gave two solos, "At Dawning," and "For You." The songs were accompanied by Miss Emmette Matthews on the violin.

The bridal party entered to the music of Mendelssohn's Wedding March. The bride's attendants were Misses Bessie Van Derveer, Lurline Harper, Winnie and Willie Reynolds, Mrs. M. S. Whitfield, of Montgomery, was her matron of honor, and her sister, Miss L. E. Morgan, acted as maid of honor. Her matron and maid of honor were attired in pearl trimmings. They carried bouquets of white carnations.

The maids wore white crepe with pearl and lace trimmings and carried yellow daises. Little Misses Anne Whitfield and Francis Hopkins as flower girls were dainty in lace frocks with yellow ribbons and Mary Elizabeth Pow was in lingerie bearing the ring in a lily.

The bride was attired in a Russian green cloth and velvet tailored gown, with hat to match. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley and entered with her brother, John T. Morgan, who gave her away.

The groom was attended by Brown Gaston, of Montgomery, as best man and John Fuller Dillard, of Montgomery; Dr. Sam Hopkins, of Greenville; Sam Latham and Claude Reynolds as groomsmen. Joe Van Derveer and Hance Alred performed the part of ushers.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds left on their bridal tour and will visit several cities after a ten days stay at the Isle of Palms.

Many beautiful presents attested to the popularity of the young couple. Mrs. Reynolds is a rare type of beauty, having titian hair and large brown eyes. Mr. Reynolds is a lawyer, having graduated at the State University, where he was quite popular in his fraternities.

The ceremony was impressively performed by Rev. L. H. S. Chappelle and Rev. H. W. Fancher.

OBITUARY

On last Sunday morning at eleven o'clock our hearts were made sad by the death of our esteemed brother J. L. Neeley, whom we had known so long and had learned to love so much. He had a severe stroke of paralysis about four days prior to his death, and all that human skill could do was without effect. He did not seem to be conscious of his suffering. Brother Neeley was born in South Carolina October 18, 1844. We wish we could command words to express our appreciation of Brother Neeley. It was my pleasure to meet him in December, 1886, in Coosa county, Alabama, where we lived neighbors and about a year later I united with the Baptist charch of which he was a member. Our personal associatioa was indeed pleasant; his council in Christ in hours of gloom and sadness was consoling. Bro. Neelev joined the Baptist church when quite young at Olive Branch church, in Coosa county, Ala. About twenty years ago he was ordained to the work of the ministry. It was the writer's pleasure to help do the work as one of the presbytery, and it was then that we had the pleasure of calling him our pastor for two years. he made a faithful servant in his Master's cause, always ready to make peace in times of strife. But, alas, he has gone where there is no strife, but all is peace, joy and love. In 1902 his first wife was called away by the kind hand of Providence. Shortly after he was married to sister Mattie Cannon, a good faithful Christian, an obedient wife and a fond mother. They lived happily together till the end came and he peacefully yielded up his life to God who gave it. He leaves a wife and seven children, a number of grand children and a host of friends and relatives to mourn his departure. It was our sad lot to write the memorial words of his first wife. At that writing there were eight children, at this one there are only six, so we can see we are fast, fast passing away, one by one.

The bereaved family has our deepest sympathy in their sad bereavement, and grant that they may live the life their father lived. They can never take dear father into council in the toils of this life, but grant that when that trying hour comes they may be able to say, as we feel sure their dear father could say:

"O, death, where is thy sting?
O, grave, where is thy victory?

W. Y. KEEL.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

YOUNG SMITH CAUGHT

Frank Smith, the young man who it is alleged stole a thousand dollars from the safe of the Southern Express Company at Thorsby last week, was captured in Nashville Monday and brought to Birmingham and lodged in jail.

Deputy Sheriff Ed Smitherman went to Birmingham Wednesday morning and returned with Smith, who was lodged an jail at Clanton to await a preliminary hearing of the serious charge against him.

NEIGHBORS-MOON

A beautiful wedding was solemnized at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Moon on Tuesday evening, September the eighth, at six o'clock, when their daughter, Nell, plighted her troth to Mr. Thomas Herbert Neighbors in the presence of a large crowd of friends and relatives.

In the entrance hall Mrs. Samuel Henry Pope served punch from a bowl buried in a mass of pink roses and pond lillies.

Ivy, ferns and pink and white carnations made a lovely setting for the ceremony. The scheme in the dining room where the wedding gifts were displayed was charmingly worked out in Southern smilax and brown-eyed susans.

The bride and groom, unattended, entered the room to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Mattie Neighbors, sister of the groom. Humoreske was softly played during the ceremony.

Rev. J. Henry Bush pronounced the words that made them man and wife.

The bride wore her going-away gown and carried Killarney roses.

Many beautiful gifts attested the popularity of the young couple.

After the wedding trip which will be to points on the Atlantic coast unknown to their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Neighbors will be at home at Clanton, Ala.—Goodwater Enterprise.

Notice.

We understand that a good many of our customers are under the impression that we no longer give them credit for ginning, bagging and ties, but demand the cash when the cotton is ginned. That is not true. We have our same old rules for ginning, but observe them more closely. We will gin your cotton just as cheaply as anyone else in town and allow you until the cotton is sold or until you wish to haul the bale from the warehouse to pay for the ginning. Having had our machinery put in first class condition, and being operated by old and experienced men, we can assure you perfect satisfaction. We also pay the highest cash price for cotton seed.

GERMAN NATION IN DEEP GLOOM

People Demand Truth Concerning Fate Of German Army---Defeat On Every Hand

RAY OF HOPE FOR TEUTONS

Their Main Army Is Intact—Lorraine Provides Opportunity for Last Desperate Stand

There appears at the present time only one ray of hope for the fast retreating German armies. The main German army is still intact and it must be crushed by the allies before the victory is complete.

It is also noted by military experts that on the German left lies Metz, the capital of Lorraine and the chain of forts lying between Metz and Diedenhofen. This, together with the dense forests along the course of the Moselle river and the strategic roads, provides an excellent location for a defensive action on the part of the Germans, should the French follow the pursuit this far.

Germans Fleeing From France

From the news of the fighting in the north of France, it appears that the rout of the kaiser's army is complete. The allied armies are steadily pushing the Germans back, and within a short time there will be no Germans on French soil. The ranks of the Germans are fast thinning and though no accurate estimate can be obtained, it is expected the casualties will reach far into the thousands.

Gloom Hangs Over Germany

News of the reverses met by the German troops in France have filtered into Germany through Switzerland. The entire nation is in deep gloom. "Tell us the truth!" is the cry that is going up from the lips of the people of Germany. They have also heard of the great victories of the Russians in Galicia. This has added to their despair.

Ranks of Germans Demoralized

The condition of the German army, according to dispatches, is critical in the extreme. The allied armies have succeeded in destroying the last remnants of their cavalry and a large part of their mobile artillery and ammunition trains have been taken. It is also reported that the German army is suffering greatly for lack of food. With these conditions facing them, it is hardly expected that they would be able to do more than to reach Germany in safety.

Three Million Men Fighting

This is the world's greatest battle. The fighting extends from within a few miles of Paris to as far as Nancy close to the Lorraine border, a distance of nearly one hundred and twenty miles. It is estimated that nearly three million men, both active and those held as reserves, are engaged in the conflict. So constant has been the fighting that it has been impossible to get any reliable information regarding the casualties, but the numbers are expected to reach far into the thousands.

Allies Hold Favored Positions

This battle is being fought on the same ground that Napoleon fought in 1814 with entrenched wings on both sides and in the center. The odds are in favor of the allies. It now appears that their previous retreat before the German hosts was purposely planned in order to give them the opportunity to choose their own ground to fight on. Now that they are taking the aggressive their armies occupy the most favored positions. The lines of the allies are unbroken. Their ranks are strongly reinforced with fresh troops.

Russian Victories in Galicia

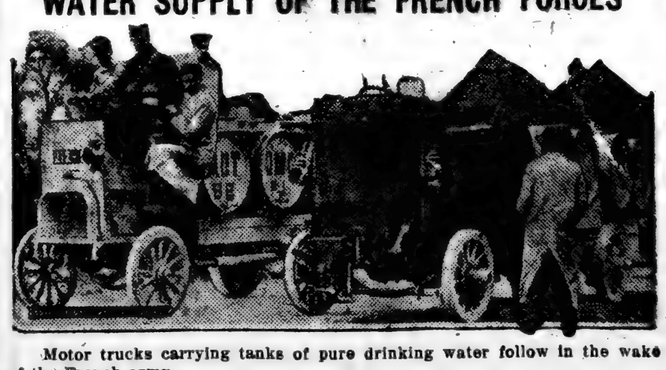
The messages that come from the other theaters of war in East Prussia, Galicia and Russian Poland are no more encouraging to the German people than the news that is filtering through to them from France. In Galicia, particularly, a great disappointment was meted out to the Germans when the Austrian forces failed to hold the advance of the Russian hosts. For a time the Austrians did keep the Russians from Galicia, but this was because of the poor railroad facilities in Russia for transporting troops to the border.

Exchange of Prisoners Arranged

London.—A Reuter's Telegram company's dispatch from Amsterdam says that an agreement has been reached whereby France and Germany will exchange an equal number of prisoners, officers and men, who may rejoin their respective armies.

German Fleet Is Located

Copenhagen.—A dispatch from Raumo, Finland, says that according to statements by pilots and fishermen, a German fleet has been cruising for the last two days in the Aland islands.



Spain Will Remain Neutral

Paris.—A dispatch to the Havas agency from Madrid says that Eduardo Dato, the Spanish prime minister, has made this statement: "Spain has contracted no engagement and will remain neutral until the end of the war."

France Issues "Defense" Bonds

Bordeaux.—President Poincare has signed a decree authorizing the issue of short term treasury bonds bearing 5 per cent. The bonds will be called "National defense bonds."

WATER SUPPLY OF THE FRENCH FORCES

Motor trucks carrying tanks of pure drinking water follow in the wake of the French army.

"Tell Us the Truth," Cry the Germans

Geneva, Switzerland.—News of the German retreat, despite every precaution, has passed through Switzerland to the north and caused profound depression in Germany. According to advices received here people have gathered in the streets in various German towns, shouting: "Tell us the truth! Give us the news!"

Newspaper offices at Munich have been closed, as disorders are feared.

Along the Swiss-German frontier, the full extent of the German retreat is known. People are crying: "If the French have beaten us, what will the Russians do?"

Wilson Sends Peace Message

Washington.—The knowledge that Emperor William for several days has been considering a message from the United States government inquiring, in effect, if Germany desired to discuss peace measures set official and diplomatic Washington on the alert for a possible exchange of peace terms between the belligerents. No reply from the emperor had reached Washington.

It had not been a matter of general knowledge that beginning with the dinner in New York a week ago attended by Count Von Bernstoff, the German ambassador, and Oscar Strauss, American member of The Hague peace tribunal, an informal movement was under way to learn Germany's attitude toward peace.

British Winning in Africa

London.—A Reuter's dispatch from Nairobi, British East Africa, says a strong force of Germans from German East Africa crossed the border at Mohoru and occupied Karangu and are advancing on Kisii.

"British forces," the correspondent says, "have been dispatched from Kisampu and from Port Florence, on the northeastern shore of Lake Victoria, Nyanza, to check them.

"The German force on the Tsaio river is retreating and is in conflict with troops sent from Bura and Mtoto Andei. Full details of the fighting are not obtainable, but the capture of two German officers and some native troops is confirmed. Another German officer has surrendered.

Austrian Situation Grave

London.—A Reuter dispatch from Rome says: "News from the Austrian frontier describes even in darker colors the situation of the Austrian army, especially since Germany has notified her ally that she is unable to send more reinforcements into Galicia, owing to graver conditions on the western front.

"It even is asserted that the German contingents which reached Grodek to help the Austrians may be recalled to Germany, as Germany wishes to center all her efforts against the allies."

Communication of Germans Cut

London.—A Bordeaux dispatch to Lloyd's Weekly News says the line of communications used by the Germans has been cut and they cannot make use of the lines east of the Argonne forest, owing to the rapid advance of the allies on the center and right. They, therefore, must try the line through the Meuse valley and Luxemburg.

South Africa Loyal to England

Capetown, Union of South Africa.—The senate and assembly of the Union of South Africa have adopted an address to King George in which the express approval of the action taken by Great Britain "in defense of the principles of liberty and justice and of the integrity and sanctity of international obligations."

Japan Friendly to Russia

Petrograd.—Japanese officers have told a Russian journalist that the whole of Japan is in favor of an alliance with Russia.

Balkans Unite Against Turkey

London.—Telegraphing from Rome a correspondent of the Daily Telegraph declares he has learned from diplomatic sources that Roumania, Greece and Bulgaria have signed an agreement which may be regarded as a real alliance under the terms of which these three nations engage to interfere whenever necessary in order to prevent Turkey's aiding Germany and Austria in the present war. If Turkey remains neutral, however, those three states will do the same.

Belgian Commission Arrives

New York.—Bringing many Americans and the king of Belgium's commission, which will place before President Wilson accounts of alleged German atrocities in Belgium and of German's violation of Belgium's neutrality, the White Star line steamship Celtic arrived at Quarantine from Liverpool and Queenstown. The Belgian commission, in a statement given out, explained that pending its visit to Washington it did not feel free to make a statement.

London.—The sixth week of the war between Germany and France, Great Britain and Belgium has brought a vast transformation. The pursued are now the pursuers. The irresistible sweep of seven German armies through Belgium into France met an immovable force at the river Marne.

The army of Gen. Von Kluck, which so long battled to turn the allies' west flank, was slowly and steadily outflanked. Its retirement before the small but hardy British army turned the tide of battle.

Germans Retreating Rapidly

If French official reports are correct, all the German armies except that facing Verdun and a few miles southwest, are retreating. Gen. Von Kluck's army, which a week ago was a few miles southeast of Paris, has retired more than sixty miles to the northeast, while on the extreme right the army of the Bavarian crown prince, which was attacking the French eastern line from Nancy to Epinal, has fallen back to the frontiers of Lorraine, permitting the French to reoccupy Luneville and several other towns.

General Joffre, French commander-in-chief, pictures the retreat as hurried, if not disorderly, with the Germans abandoning prisoners, wounded and supplies.

Victory of Allies Assured

Paris.—The following communication from General Joffre, commander-in-chief of the French army, has been made public:

"The battle of the last five days has ended in an undeniable victory. The retreat of the first, second and third German armies is hastening before our left and at our center, in turn, the fourth German army is commencing to fall back to the north from Vitry-le-Francois and from Sermaize-Les-Bains—in the province of Marne, seventeen miles east of Vitry-le-Francois.

"Moreover the enemy has left upon the battlefield many wounded and quantities of munitions of war. Also in gaining ground we have made many prisoners. Our troops show evidences of the intensity of the struggle and the extraordinary efforts made by the Germans in their attempt to resist our vehemence.

"Our vigorous retaking of the offensive has determined the success. Every officer, subaltern and soldier has responded to my call. All merit well from the fatherland."

Austro-German Armies Crushed

New York.—A cablegram received here by Col. Nicolai Golejewski, military attache of the Russian embassy, from the Russian general staff in Petrograd, read as follows:

"Operations in the region of Krasnik and Tomaszow have ended in our complete victory over the northern Austrian armies, which have been driven beyond the river San. Great successes also have been attained in the fighting west of Lemberg, between Rawa Russka and the river Dniester. The capture of over two hundred officers and 30,000 men and a great number of guns and machine guns has been reported."

Colonel Golejewski also received from the imperial Russian general staff an official account of the battles in Galicia, including operations against the Austrian and Austro-German armies. It is dated from Petrograd, and is as follows:

"The total strength of the Austrian troops engaged in the east battle in the region of Lublin and Tomaszow is estimated as 1,000,000 men and 2,500 guns. The main force of the enemy, about six hundred thousand strong, deployed on the line from Zavihost to Tomaszow in order to advance the front Lublin-Holm. The right flank of these armies was protected by an army of more than two hundred battalions in the region of Lwow

Three Million Men in Battle Line

London.—The crucial battle of the war in France has not reached any decisive result.

Field Marshal Sir John French, commander of the British forces, reported that the Germans had been driven back all along the line; that the British had crossed the river Marne; that the Germans had suffered severely, and that their men were supposed to be in an extremely exhausted condition.

Notwithstanding this report, military experts do not rush to sweeping conclusions.

Kaiser Watches Soldiers in Action

London.—The Geneva correspondent of the Express hears from a German source that Emperor William watched the attack on Nancy from a hill outside the range of the French artillery.

Standing alone with the glasses glued to his eyes, he followed the progress of his first battle for several miles, while his staff, consisting of several high officials, remained distinctly in the background.

The emperor departed alone in a waiting motor car.

WANT FLOUR MILL AT MONTGOMERY

Alabama Land is Adaptable to Growing of Wheat, and Capt. Kolb Points Out Advantages.

STATE CAPITAL HAPPENINGS

Doings in and Around the State House Chronicled for Our Readers.

—Montgomery.

Farmers of Central Alabama are evincing much interest in the proposition made by Richard Hobbie, of Montgomery, to build a flour mill in this city with a capacity of 50,000 bushels of wheat, according to Captain Reuben F. Kolb, commissioner of agriculture. In Mr. Hobbie's proposition he agrees to install the flour mill provided the farmers in this section of the State will agree to raise 50,000 bushels of wheat to supply the mill. The proposition was published during the week by Captain Kolb, and he has already received several replies from prominent farmers in which they stated that the 50,000 bushels can be raised in Central Alabama.

Captain Kolb seeks to interest five hundred farmers located within a radius of 50 miles of Montgomery in the proposition, these farmers to agree to plant ten acres of land in wheat. This plan would enable the farmers to plant 5,000 acres in wheat which would yield the 50,000 bushels necessary to supply the mill.

"Alabama's land is adaptable to growing wheat," said Captain Kolb. "A farmer near Tallassee in Elmore county last fall planted three acres in wheat and threshed out 155 bushels. At the present price of wheat this would net an income from the three acres of $162.

Other instances of successful wheat growing in Alabama were cited by Captain Kolb. He has received letters from many farmers in which they state that Alabama's soil will grow fine wheat. In Montgomery county W. H. Lawson, M. B. Houghton, T. L. Head and C. E. Crenshaw have agreed to plant from ten to fifty acres in wheat.

The wheat that must be planted in this section must be of the rust proof variety of soft winter and must be planted late in October or early in November according to Captain Kolb. Any persons interested in the matter can obtain information concerning the growing of wheat from the department of agriculture.

Mr. Hobbie has assured Captain Kolb that the proposed mill can easily grind 100,000 bushels of wheat. This would approximate 25,000 barrels of flour, and would mean that $125,000, the value of this flour would be kept at home instead of being sent to the Middle West never to return, according to Captain Kolb.

New Rules Governing Trusties.

New rules for trusties at the State prison and convict camps have been adopted by the State Convict Board, and have been published in cardboard form. These cardboards will be posted at the various camps and prisons. The rules were adopted at a meeting of the board which was attended by Hartwell Douglass, President, Dr. J. M. Mastin and Len F. Greer, associate members, and Governor O'Neal.

Hereafter no convicts will be made "trusties" until they have served a certain length of time in proportion to the length of the sentence. Convicts sentenced to terms longer than ten years must serve two years before being allowed the privileges accorded trusties. Convicts under sentence from five to ten years must serve one year, and convicts under sentence from one to five years must serve six months before they are permitted to me made trusties.

Wardens who desire to have any convicts made trusties must forward to the State convict board certain information concerning the convict's offense, his conduct, character and a short biographical sketch. Uniforms must be worn by trusties, the description of which appear in the new rules.

Convicts who are leased out and who become trusties will not be permitted to go at large during their sentence.

Protest Against Raise.

Protests against the raise in coal rates from Birmingham to the Anniston-Gadsden-Talladega districts, as requested by the Louisville and Nashville, Southern and other railroads, were made before the State railroad commission by delegations from several cities of North Alabama at the regular monthly meeting of the commission. Delegations came from Birmingham, Gadsden, Anniston, Talladega and Sylacauga. A large number of cases were on the docket for consideration.

Covington Cases Up.

The State tax commission began the hearing of about 125 tax assessment cases in Covington county on November 18. Covington is the third county in which the tax commission will hear cases by reason of the refusal of the county board of revenue to docket them. Marengo county was the first to refuse to docket a large number of cases and Montgomery county followed the same plan. In Montgomery county the board of revenue was asked to docket something like 1000 cases.

Replies Are Discouraging.

Apparently the conference of Southern governors, as suggested for Montgomery on Septmeber 24-25, by Governor O'Neal, will not be held. Messages from five of the twelve executives show it unlikely that they will be able to attend at that time for various reasons.

Governor Slaton of Georgia, wires that he has written a letter to the Southern governors suggesting a conference to be held in Atlanta and is awaiting the answers to these communications before he can answer Governor O'Neal.

Governor Brewer, of Mississippi, suggests that the conference be held in New Orleans during the month and Governor Colquitt asks that it take place in Texas, where the Legislature is now in session.

Previous engagements prevent Governor Trammell of Florida and Governor Major of Missouri, from attending at the time suggested.

Percentage of Potash Reduced.

Commercial fertilizer men from all parts of Alabama held a conference at the capitol discussing the shortage of potash as a result of the war in Europe, and decided on the manufacture of a complete fertilizer by increasing the per centage of phosphoric acid and nitrogen. The conference was called by Capt. Reuben F. Kolb, commissioner of agriculture, and was attended by many fertilizer manufacturers and dealers.

Under the fertilizer laws of the State it has been necessary in the past for the manufacturers to put 2 per cent of potash in commercial fertilizer, but in view of the shortage caused by the war, it is claimed that it will be practically impossible for the manufacturers to continue with this per centage of potash; hence a substitute was sought by which a complete fertilizer could be made with a smaller quantity of the imported ingredient.

It was decided that during the progress of the war the manufacturers should use one-half of 1 per cent of potash instead of 2 per cent and a sufficient quantity of phosphoric acid and nitrogen to make a fertilizer containing 14 per cent plant food. Two per cent ammonia is also necessary to make a complete fertilizer.

Delegates Named By Capt. Kolb.

Twenty-two delegates to represent Alabama at the Southeastern Food Corps Conference to be held in Atlanta October 5 and 6, were named by Capt. R. F. Kolb, commissioner of agriculture. There will be four delegates from the state-at-large and two from each congressional district.

The following were selected:

From the State-at-Large: R. F. Kolb, Montgomery; J. A. Wade, Alexander City; J. T. Watt, Auburn; R. R. Poole, Uniontown.

First—Sam R. Bethea, Faunsdale; E. P. Chapman, Grove Hill.

Second—C. P. Deming, Evergreen; C. G. Abercrombie, Montgomery.

Third—S. H. Dent, Eufaula; John Canty, Fort Mitchell.

Fourth—C. W. Hooper, Selma; Judge E. B. Deason, Clanton.

Fifth—J. C. Wright, Roanoke; A. Hohenberg, Wetumpka.

Sixth—John A. Rodgers, Gainesville; Judge W. W. Brandon, Tuscaloosa.

Seventh—Frank V. Tilford, Cullman; Judge L. L. Herzberg, Gadsden.

Eighth—Hector D. Lane, Courtland; W. H. Johnson, Huntsville, R. No. 5.

Ninth—W. W. Lavender, Centerville; M. C. Allgood, Chapultapec.

Plans for Good Roads Meet.

Plans looking to the entertainment of at least 3000 delegates to the annual session of the Alabama Good Roads Association, which meets in Montgomery on October 21-23, are being made by the Montgomery Chamber of Commerce, which has joined the association in an effort to make the coming meeting the greatest convention of its kind ever held in Alabama.

State Cotton Mill Resumes Work.

The State cotton mill at Speigners which is operated by convict labor has resumed operations, after a shut down of three weeks. The mill was closed in order that the usual annual repairs might be made.

It was announced at the office of Hartwell Douglass, president of the State convict department, that an ample supply of cotton is on hand at the mill.

Tax Settlements Made.

Final tax settlements with the state auditor have been made by every county in Alabama, according to an announcement made by State Auditor Brooks Smith. The latest settlement with the auditor was made by Tax Collector J. F. Moseley of Madison county, whose final report was delayed pending the settlement of several legal complications. The law requires that final reports shall be made by July 1, but several tax colectors were given additional time because of unavoidable delays.

Cowart to Mobile September 20.

Lee Cowart, commissioner of immigration, and head of the Alabama Panama-Pacific Exposition commission will go to Mobile on September 20 to appeal to the citizens of that city to aid in the movement to erect an Alabama building at the San Francisco exposition. Mr. Cowart is now in San Francisco, but will return to Alabama in time to go to Mobile for the conference. Mobile has pledged her support to the movement, but no organized effort has been started.

PIMPLES ON SCALP ITCHED

Lewisburg, Tenn.—"Four years past I had a very bad scalp trouble that commenced with itching. Later my hair got thin and my scalp sore and I could not sleep for scratching at times. I did not get the sleep that was restful and refreshing. I was losing my hair fast. I had pimples on my scalp which itched and burned so that I scratched and irritated them. I had dandruff which scaled off and showed on my clothes.

"I tried almost every noted scalp remedy and hair tonic without success. Then I commenced using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and was relieved of the itching and sore scalp after three shampoos and applications of the Ointment. After using both the Cuticura Soap and Ointment for three months I was completely cured." (Signed) F. B. Lewis, Jan. 1, 1914.

Titles and Taxes in Spain.

In Spain titles of nobility are taxed in the same way as houses or land. Moreover, each separate title is taxed, and for this reason certain members of ancient families in which a number of titles have accumulated drop some in order to save money. Owing to the system long prevalent in Spain by which women of noble birth transmit their title not only to their children but to their husbands—so that a plebeian marrying a duchess becomes a duke, Spanish titles rarely become extinct unless the holders deliberately discard them.

Delays.

"Do you prefer an automobile to a horse?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Chuggins.

"Because it goes faster?"

"Not exactly that. But somehow I enjoy hanging around a repair shop more than loafing and looking on in a livery stable."

Encouraging.

"Did you catch any fish?" asked the woman who is always encouraging.

"Not one," replied her husband. "We got a couple of nibbles and then there was nothing doing all day."

"Well, even if you didn't catch any I'll bet you gave them an awful scare."

The man who marries a pretty girl is apt to get the short end of it if he takes her at her face value.

LEARNING THINGS

We Are All in the Apprentice Class.

When a simple change of diet brings back health and happiness the story is briefly told. A lady of Springfield, Ill., says:

"After being afflicted for years with nervousness and heart trouble, I received a shock four years ago that left me in such a condition that my life was despaired of.

"I got no relief from doctors nor from the numberless heart and nerve remedies I tried, because I didn't know that coffee was daily putting me back more than the doctors could put me ahead.

"Finally at the suggestion of a friend I left off coffee and began the use of Postum, and against my expectations I gradually improved in health until for the past 6 or 8 months I have been entirely free from nervousness and those terrible sinking, weakening spells of heart trouble.

"My troubles all came from the use of coffee which I had drunk from childhood and yet they disappeared when I quit coffee and took up the use of Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Many people marvel at the effects of leaving off coffee and drinking Postum, but there is nothing marvelous about it—only common sense.

Coffee is a destroyer—Postum is a rebuilder. That's the reason.

Look in pkgs. for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

Germans Retreating Rapidly

If French official reports are correct, all the German armies except that facing Verdun and a few miles southwest, are retreating. Gen. Von Kluck's army, which a week ago was a few miles southeast of Paris, has retired more than sixty miles to the northeast, while on the extreme right the army of the Bavarian crown prince, which was attacking the French eastern line from Nancy to Epinal, has fallen back to the frontiers of Lorraine, permitting the French to reoccupy Luneville and several other towns.

General Joffre, French commander-in-chief, pictures the retreat as hurried, if not disorderly, with the Germans abandoning prisoners, wounded and supplies.

Victory of Allies Assured

Paris.—The following communication from General Joffre, commander-in-chief of the French army, has been made public:

"The battle of the last five days has ended in an undeniable victory. The retreat of the first, second and third German armies is hastening before our left and at our center, in turn, the fourth German army is commencing to fall back to the north from Vitry-le-Francois and from Sermaize-Les-Bains—in the province of Marne, seventeen miles east of Vitry-le-Francois.

"Moreover the enemy has left upon the battlefield many wounded and quantities of munitions of war. Also in gaining ground we have made many prisoners. Our troops show evidences of the intensity of the struggle and the extraordinary efforts made by the Germans in their attempt to resist our vehemence.

"Our vigorous retaking of the offensive has determined the success. Every officer, subaltern and soldier has responded to my call. All merit well from the fatherland."

Austro-German Armies Crushed

New York.—A cablegram received here by Col. Nicolai Golejewski, military attache of the Russian embassy, from the Russian general staff in Petrograd, read as follows:

"Operations in the region of Krasnik and Tomaszow have ended in our complete victory over the northern Austrian armies, which have been driven beyond the river San. Great successes also have been attained in the fighting west of Lemberg, between Rawa Russka and the river Dniester. The capture of over two hundred officers and 10,000 men and a great number of guns and machine guns has been reported."

Colonel Golejewski also received from the imperial Russian general staff an official account of the battles in Galicia, including operations against the Austrian and Austro-German armies. It is dated from Petrograd, and is as follows:

"The total strength of the Austrian troops engaged in the east battle in the region of Lublin and Tomaszow is estimated as 1,000,000 men and 2,500 guns. The main force of the enemy, about six hundred thousand strong, deployed on the line from Zawihost to Tomaszow in order to advance the front Lublin-Holm. The right flank of these armies was protected by an army of more than two hundred battalions in the region of Lwow.

Three Million Men in Battle Line

London.—The crucial battle of the war in France has not reached any decisive result.

Field Marshal Sir John French, commander of the British forces, reported that the Germans had been driven back all along the line; that the British had crossed the river Marne; that the Germans had suffered severely, and that their morale was supposed to be in an extremely exhausted condition.

Notwithstanding this report, military experts do not seem to [illegible] conditions.

WOMEN FLOUR MILL AT MONTGOMERY

Alabama Land Is Adaptable to Growing of Wheat, and Capt. Kolb Points Out Advantages.

STATE CAPITAL HAPPENINGS

Doings In and Around the State Capital Chronicled for Our Readers.

—Montgomery.

Farmers of Central Alabama are evincing much interest in the proposition made by Richard Hobbie, of Montgomery, to build a flour mill in this city with a capacity of 75,000 bushels of wheat, according to Captain Reuben F. Kolb, commissioner of agriculture. In Mr. Hobbie's proposition he agrees to install the flour mill provided the farmers in this section of the State will agree to raise 50,000 bushels of wheat to supply the mill. The proposition was published during the week by Captain Kolb, and he has already received several replies from prominent farmers in which they stated that the 50,000 bushels can be raised in Central Alabama.

Captain Kolb seeks to interest five hundred farmers located within a radius of 50 miles of Montgomery in the proposition, these farmers to agree to plant ten acres of land in wheat. This plan would enable the farmers to plant 5,000 acres in wheat which would yield the 50,000 bushels necessary to supply the mill.

"Alabama's land is adaptable to growing wheat," said Captain Kolb. "A farmer near Tallassee in Elmore county last fall planted three acres in wheat and threshed out 155 bushels. At the present price of wheat this would net an income from the three acres of $162.

Other instances of successful wheat growing in Alabama were cited by Captain Kolb. He has received letters from many farmers in which they state that Alabama's soil will grow fine wheat. In Montgomery county W. H. Lawson, M. B. Houghton, T. L. Head and C. E. Crenshaw have agreed to plant from ten to fifty acres in wheat.

The wheat that must be planted in this section must be of the rust proof variety of soft winter and must be planted late in October or early in November according to Captain Kolb. Any persons interested in the matter can obtain information concerning the growing of wheat from the department of agriculture.

Mr. Hobbie has assured Captain Kolb that the proposed mill can easily grind 100,000 bushels of wheat. This would approximate 25,000 barrels of flour, and would mean that $125,000, the value of this flour would be kept at home instead of being sent to the Middle West never to return, according to Captain Kolb.

New Rules Governing Trusties.

New rules for trusties at the State prison and convict camps have been adopted by the State Convict Board, and have been published in cardboard form. These cardboards will be posted at the various camps and prisons. The rules were adopted at a meeting of the board which was attended by Hartwell Douglass, President, Dr. J. M. Martin and Lee F. Greer, associate members, and Governor O'Neal.

Hereafter no convicts will be made "trusties" until they have served a certain length of time in proportion to the length of the sentence. Convicts sentenced to terms longer than ten years must serve two years before being allowed the privileges accorded trusties. Convicts under sentence from five to ten years must serve one year, and convicts under sentence from one to five years must serve six months before they are permitted to me made trusties.

Wardens who desire to have any convicts made trusties must forward to the State convict board certain information concerning the convict's offense, his conduct, character and a short biographical sketch. Uniforms must be worn by trusties, the description of which appear in the new rules.

Convicts who are leased out and who become trusties will not be permitted to go at large during their sentence.

Protest Against Sale [illegible]

Protests against the [illegible] rates from Birmingham to the Anniston-Oxford-Talladega districts, as requested by the Louisville and Nashville Southern and other railroads, were made before the State railroad commission, by delegations from several cities of North Alabama at the regular monthly session of the commission. Delegations came from Birmingham, Gadsden, Anniston, Talladega and Sylacauga. A large number of [illegible] were present for the hearing.

Governor to Confer.

Governor O'Neal, it is stated, will confer with the governors of Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee and Florida relative to the proposed conference of governors, to be held in Montgomery on September 20-25, by Governor O'Neal, will not be held. Messages from five of the twelve executives show it unlikely that they will be able to attend at that time for various reasons.

Governor Slaton of Georgia, wires that he has written a letter to the Southern governors suggesting a conference to be held in Atlanta and is awaiting the answers to these communications before he can answer Governor O'Neal.

Governor Brewer, of Mississippi, suggests that the conference be held in New Orleans during the month and Governor Colquitt asks that it take place in Texas, where the Legislature is now in session.

Previous engagements prevent Governor Trammell of Florida and Governor Major of Missouri, from attending of the time suggested.

Percentage of Potash Reduced.

Commercial fertilizer men from all parts of Alabama held a conference at the capitol discussing the shortage of potash as a result of the war in Europe, and decided on the manufacture of a complete fertilizer by increasing the per centage of phosphoric acid and nitrogen. The conference was called by Capt. Reuben F. Kolb, commissioner of agriculture, and was attended by many fertilizer manufacturers and dealers.

Under the fertilizer laws of the State it has been necessary in the past for the manufacturers to put 2 per cent of potash in commercial fertilizer, but in view of the shortage caused by the war, it is claimed that it will be practically impossible for the manufacturers to continue with this per centage of potash; hence a substitute was sought by which a complete fertilizer could be made with a smaller quantity of the imported ingredient.

It was decided that during the progress of the war the manufacturers should use one-half of 1 per cent of potash instead of 2 per cent and a sufficient quantity of phosphoric acid and nitrogen to make a fertilizer containing 14 per cent plant food. Two per cent ammonia is also necessary to make a complete fertilizer.

Delegates Named By Capt. Kolb.

Twenty-two delegates to represent Alabama at the Southeastern Food Corps Conference to be held in Atlanta October 5 and 6, were named by Capt. R. F. Kolb, commissioner of agriculture. There will be four delegates from the state-at-large and two from each congressional district.

The following were selected:

From the State-at-Large: R. F. Kolb, Montgomery; J. A. Wade, Alexander City; J. T. Watt, Auburn; R. R. Poole, Uniontown.

First—Sam R. Bethea, Faunsdale; E. P. Chapman, Grove Hill.

Second—C. P. Deming, Evergreen; C. G. Abercrombie, Montgomery.

Third—S. H. Dent, Eufaula; John Canty, Fort Mitchell.

Fourth—C. W. Hooper, Selma; Judge E. B. Deason, Clanton.

Fifth—J. C. Wright, Roanoke; A. Hohenberg, Wetumpka.

Sixth—John A. Rodgers, Gainesville; Judge W. W. Brandon, Tuscaloosa.

Seventh—Frank V. Tilford, Guilman; Judge L. L. Herzberg, Gadsden.

Eighth—Hector D. Lane, Courtland; W. H. Johnson, Huntsville, R. No. 5.

Ninth—W. W. Lavender, Centerville; M. C. Allgood, Chapultapec.

Plans for Good Roads Meet.

Plans looking to the entertainment of at least 3000 delegates to the annual session of the Alabama Good Roads Association, which meets in Montgomery on October 21-23, are being made by the Montgomery Chamber of Commerce, which has joined the association in an effort to make the coming meeting the greatest convention of its kind ever held in Alabama.

State Cotton Mill Resumes Work.

The State cotton mill at Speigners which is operated by convict labor has resumed operations, after a shut down of three weeks. The mill was closed in order that the usual annual repairs might be made.

It was announced at the office of Hartwell Douglass, president of the State convict department, that an ample supply of cotton is on hand at the mill.

Tax Settlements Made.

Final tax settlements with the state auditor have been made by every county in Alabama, according to an announcement made by State Auditor Brooks Smith. The latest settlement with the auditor was made by Tax Collector J. F. Moseley of Madison county, whose final report was delayed pending the settlement of several legal complications. The law requires that final reports shall be made by July 1, but several tax collectors were given additional time because of unavoidable delays.

Titles and Taxes in Spain.

In Spain titles of nobility are taxed in the same way as houses or land. Moreover, each separate title is taxed, and for this reason certain members of ancient families in which a number of titles have accumulated drop some in order to save money. Owing to a system long prevalent in Spain by which women of noble birth transmit their title not only to their children but to their husbands—so that a Spanish beian marrying a duchess becomes a duke, Spanish titles rarely become extinct unless the holders deliberately discard them.

Delays.

"Do you prefer an automobile to a horse?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Chuggins.

"Because it goes faster?"

"Not exactly that. But somehow I enjoy hanging around a repair shop more than loafing and looking on at a livery stable."

Encouraging.

"Did you catch any fish?" asked the woman who is always encouraging.

"Not one," replied her husband. "We got a couple of nibbles and that's there was nothing doing all day."

"Well, even if you didn't catch any I'll bet you gave them an awful scare."

The man who marries a pretty girl is apt to get the short end of it if he takes her at her face value.

FARMERS URGED TO PLANT MORE OATS

Crops of Grains and Grasses Considered of Prime Importance by Agricultural Department.

DIVERSIFICATION OF CROPS

Only Hope of the Farmers of Alabama, The Bulletin Says.

Montgomery. — Necessity of planting an abundant oat and winter clover crop is pointed out in the latest weekly bulletin of the State department of agriculture and industries.

"Owing to the shortage of last year's corn crop, together with the depressed condition of the cotton market, the planting of a large acreage in oats and grains is considered by the department to be of prime importance.

"Alabama is particularly adapted to the growing of oats and crimson clover, according to the department's bulletin, and the coming year will show an advance in these farm products in all parts of the State.

"The bulletin of the department is as follows:

"The cotton situation may be summed up in the expression 'what can we do with it?' While the financiers, business men and spinners, together with the leading exponents of the farming interest of the south, are struggling with the proposition, it is evident upon those whom the situation most vitally affects to turn their attention to other things of present moment. This bulletin will be devoted to impressing upon the farmers the necessity of planting an abundant crop of winter clover crop.

"The shortage of last year's corn crop together with the depressing condition of the cotton market, makes the planting of a large acreage in oats and grains a thing of prime importance. Particularly does this appeal at this season, for we are on the eve of planting time for most of these products. Already many farmers have started their fall breaking and the sowing of early oats and rye will soon become general. Sowing should not take place too early because of the liability of the plants going to seed before frost if the fall is open and unusually warm. In this latitude the seeding can usually take place if the soil is in proper condition any time from September 1 to November 1, but usually the best time is during October and November. Care should be taken to treat the oats with formalin before planting and the best variety of seed should be chosen.

"The qualities of seed that should be most considered in selecting a variety for planting are resistance of disease and insect enemies, adaptability to local conditions, weight of grain, kind and amount of hull and the weight and color of grain. These are qualities generally known by the farmers, but it is opportune to repeat them now. The European war has had the effect of restricting the supply of crimson clover which comes from Germany and for this reason, and this reason alone, a smaller acreage of that crop will be planted; however, previous to the war the question of a large planting of crimson clover had been agitated and great interest and enthusiasm created in it and in its seeding, and the result will be recognized in a large area devoted to it for the coming year.

"This is in line with a modern idea of progressive farming and it is bound to be attendant of splendid results in the crop economy of Alabama. One demonstrator reports that in his section conditions are causing farmers to plant more clover and oats and corn than ever before and this statement is typical of what is occurring everywhere. Of course it is understood that in advocating a larger planting of these things than cotton, that wheat, oats, and, in fact, all crop diversities adapted to our soils are included. The hope and promise of our farming future in Alabama depends upon this diversification of crops that our experience with cotton this year has made an inevitable necessity."

Mills Run Day and Night.

Eufaula — The use of cotton by the mills continues to maintain the demand for the staple to some degree in Eufaula. Just now, the Cowikee Cotton Mills are running day and night, too, to keep up with the demand. They are producing shirting cloth, as the demand for cotton goods has dropped off considerably during the past month. Only small quantities of cotton are being used in other mills, and there is no need for the compress at Eufaula somepresently.

SALTPETRE IN JACKSON COUNTY

Cullman Resident Buys Property Containing Great Quantity.

Attalla. — Announcement was made by E. H. Wallace of Cullman that he has purchased property in Jackson county on which there is a cave containing nearly 2,000,000 tons of saltpetre. He intends to organize a company at once and start mining operations at the earliest date possible. The discovery of such a large quantity of saltpetre in Alabama will be welcome news to farmers of this State who have been worried over their inability to purchase German kainit, as the saltpetre will be refined and distilled and a fertilizer far superior to the best German kainit will be obtained.

Borings were recently made in different parts of the cave by Ross Chester Wallace, the noted chemist and mining engineer of Philadelphia, who estimates there is at least 1,750,000 tons of saltpetre in the deposit.

The cave is known locally as the "Bat Cave," and is said to be the home of countless thousands of bats. It is estimated that in addition to the saltpetre, the cave contains at least 1800 carloads of guano or bat manure. An analysis of this manure shows that it contains 9.87 per cent. ammonia, 2.64 per cent. phosphoric acid and 1 per cent. potash, making a fertilizer in every way equal to the famous Peruvian guano which is used so extensively by Northern farmers.

Bibb Graves Talks of the Coming Election.

Birmingham. — Gen. Bibb Graves, of Montgomery, chairman of the State Democratic executive committee, while in Birmingham, announced that the State campaign Democratic headquarters will be established in Birmingham and that within the next few days he will announce appointments of the State campaign committee as authorized by the executive committee.

"With the attention of the people turned to the war, I have not seen the need for early action," said Gen. Graves. "In my opinion short campaigns are better for the State and the party. In many of the doubtful States the tickets have not even been selected. However, we expect to make a fight in every doubtful county. The people are becoming more and more alive to the importance of selecting the best men for the Legislature and for Congress."

42,600,000 BUSHELS CORN.

This Is Amount Estimated for Alabama By Bureau of Crop Estimates.

Washington. — In a report on the corn crop in Alabama, the bureau of crop estimates gave the condition on September 1 as 76 as against 69 on August 1, and a ten year average of 78. The forecast, based on conditions in September, was 42,600,000 bushels as against a five-year average of 49.1 [illegible]. The price per bushel, September 1, is given as $1.01, or 5 cents more than in September, 1918, and an average price of 93 cents for five years.

The corn condition throughout the country was given as 71.1 on September 1 forecast, 2,898,000,000 bushels; price, 81.5 cents as against a five-year average of 71.2 cents.

ABANDON DEFENSIVE POSITIONS IN FRANCE

Germans are Making a Stand on River Aisne—Kaiser's Forces Prepare Front and are Ready to Fight.

MAKE STUBBORN RESISTANCE

On the Heights to the Northwest of Rheims, Retirement Continues Between Argonne and the Meuse

Paris.—The French official statement issued says that French troops have reoccupied Amiens, but that the Germans are making a stand on the River Aisne. The statement is as follows:

"On our left wing we have everywhere caught up with the rear guards and even the main body of the enemy.

"Our troops have re-entered Amiens, abandoned by the German forces.

"The enemy appears to be making a stand on a prepared front along the River Aisne.

"On the center, similarly, it would seem as if the enemy intends to resist on the heights to the northwest and to the north of Rheims. In the region between Argonne and the Meuse he continues to retire.

"On our right wing, in the Wavre district, we have succeeded in relieving the fort of Troyon, which has been attacked time and time again during the last few days. (Troyon, is 12 miles southeast of Verdun.)

"In Lorraine our pursuing detachments are keeping, as everywhere else, in touch with the Germans.

"The morale and sanitary condition of our armies continue excellent."

London.—Except for the army which has been attacking Verdun, the German forces in France have fallen back all along the line, according to the French official report.

From Nancy to Vosges they have withdrawn from French territory, while on the extreme right General Von Kluck and General Von Buelow continue to retreat to the northeast before the French and British, even giving up the defensive position on the River Aisne, between Compiegne and Soissons.

Further west the German detachments that held Amiens have moved northward to try to rejoin the German army of the right at St. Quentin. It is possible all the Germans in northwest France have done likewise, otherwise they would be in danger of being cut off in the center.

Another defensive position behind Rheims has been given up and in the Argonne region a general retreat is taking place toward the forests of Belnotte and Triancourt.

The allies are pushing their advantage and doing their utmost to turn the retreat into a disaster by a stern pursuit on perhaps the broadest scale yet known in war. On the right they are in good position to continue the offensive, if the men and horses are not too tired for further effort. They are based on a strong line running from the Marne to the fortresses through the hilly country south of Argonne.

While the allies left, composed largely of fresh troops with a heavy force of cavalry, under General Pau, is wheeling around so as to drive General Von Kluck and General Von Buelow towards Ardennes and Luxemburg, General Pau's army, by a few more marches by Lafere and Laon, might cut communications between the retreating Germans and Belgium.

The British, who have taken nearly all the crossings on the River Aisne and captured many prisoners, are north of that river and are pushing the attack that would assist in forcing the Germans to evacuate Rheims. The center, somewhere between Chalons and Rheims, is making an effort to recapture the latter city, which would be one of the most peculiar victories that could be announced to the Frenchmen.

Should these movements be crowned with success and Laon and Brieims again fall into the hands of the allies, the Germans would have only one line of communication with Germany, through Rethel, and even that might be cut.

The British war office issued a long dispatch from Field Marshal Sir John French, covering more completely than the previous summaries the seven days' fighting from September 4 to September 10, inclusive. According to this report the German reserve to the southeast of Paris is accounted for by General Von Kluck's decision that the British, who had been so heavily engaged in the retreat from the Belgian frontier, could be ignored and that he could proceed with his plan of enveloping the main French army.

The new army, which came out from Paris, however, upset this calculation, and, while the attack threatened, the German general had to withdraw [illegible] which also [illegible] communications [illegible] the north.

THE AIABAMA STATE EXPOSITION

Steady preparations continue to make the 1914 Alabama State Exposition, October 12-17, the greatest ever held in the State. With the most elaborate array of exhibits ever secured, livestock displays from over one hundred dealers in the Southern States, and splendid exhibits of poultry, swine, woman's work, manufacturers' articles, merchants' goods, and everything pertaining to the farm, school, home and store, the officials are ready to announce the greatest exhibition of educational benefit to the people of Alabama ever seen in the South.

Every department has been pitched on a high plane and special superintendents, men of the highest business standing in the section are pushing forward each department with a view to aiding every visitor to the exposition.

The amusement features have not been overlooked and every little detail to amuse young and old, male and female, had been planned by the officers of the association. The midway attractions, sixteen in number, have been secured through special arrangement with the Rice & Dorman Shows, Inc., and Carnival Company. This concern has a nation-wide reputation for furnishing first class productions and thus guaranteed the State Exposition Association the best repertoire of carnival shows now in action. Two brass bands, Atlebury's Scotch Highlander band and the Ward's Marine band, will furnish two concerts daily during the exposition.

COTTON REPORT

There were 67 bales of cotton ginned in Chilton county from the crop of 1914, prior to September 1, 1914, as compared with 212 bales ginned prior to September 1, 1913.

IN LOVING MEMORY

On September 5, 1914, death came into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jno B Yeargan and took from that home a little infant daughter, aged one month and two days.

Most of that short life was so calm, so sweet, so good that our hearts were entwined in its life, but He that doeth all things well has severed those earthly ties and carried our minds and our hearts affections to a higher and better world than this.

Now, dear parents, commit thy way unto the Lord and he shall bring it to pass; trust also in Him and He shall give thee the desire of thine heart.

Little babe, so calm, so sweet,
Lying on its mother's breast;
Yielded to the call of God,
Whose way, we know, is always best.

And now its laid into the tomb,
Where nothing can at all molest;
Waiting for another call
From Him, whose way is always best.

Now, dear parents, be resigned,
Let it be known to all the rest;
That you do fully trust the hand
Of Him, whose way is always best.

Written by her Grandfather, R. F. Yeargan, for the parents and their families.

CRITICISES MR. ROOSEVELT

Boston Republican Paper Does Not Think He is Fais toward the President.

The New York World is always ready to find a peg on which to hang condemnation of its pet personal aversion, Col. Roosevelt, but discounting ingrained prejudice, there is some sober and sound significance in a situation thus noted by The World:

"Another reason why the Bull Moose party is going to die may be found in the fact that its leader is the only man in America who in these days of sorrow and perplexities, is capable of assuming a bullying tone towards the President of the United States."

The United States is now about the only great nation which is not involved in the European horror. Woodrow Wilson is the chief executive officer of this nation. He stands, in this crisis of the world's history, not as a Democrat, or as any party man, but as our President. Through him this nation is interpreted before the world. He is conducting his office and representing the nation with dignity, honesty and the courage which is calm. It is neither patriotic nor honest to fail in respect for him or support of him. Theodore Roosevelt cannot afford, as a politician or a gentleman, to occupy the unique position mentioned by The World.—Boston Record (Rep)

CRIMSON CLOVER AS A FERTILIZER

Nitrogen, in the form of nitrate of soda and cotton-seed meal, costs from 15c to 20c per pound, and is by far the most expensive fertilizing element the Southern farmer has to buy. 25,000 tons of atmospheric nitrogen lies above every acre of land in the South. Crimson clover has the power to deliver and store this nitrogen in the soil, at the rate of from 50 to 100 pounds to the acre. Starting practically nine out of ten seeds germinate, and the harvesting value of 700 pounds of nitrogen, or more than 3500 pounds of nitrate of soda, or 3000 pounds of cotton seed meal.

The expense of seeding [illegible] acre of crimson clover [illegible] 15 or 20 cents per acre.

Forty or fifty pounds [illegible] 5,072 pounds, [illegible] pounds of nitrogen, [illegible] pounds of potash, [illegible] pounds of phosphoric acid, [illegible] pounds of lime, [illegible] pounds of organic matter.

[illegible] very important to cure it in shocks about a week before putting it into barns or stacks.

The hay, if heavy, should be tossed into the windrows by a tedder or, by hand forks, as soon as it has lain in the sun a few hours. It should be raked into windrows as soon as it is fairly withered and before the leaves are dry enough to shatter off. The shocking follows immediately after the rake. Never allow rain to catch hay in the windrow. If too green to rake, rain will not hurt it and if dry enough to rake, it is dry enough to shock. Make the shocks small at first (6 or 7 feet high) and after standing thus for one or two days, put several shocks together into large shocks about six feet high. If these are well put up they will shed rain like a duck and warm up enough inside to cure the hay.

The chief difficulties in saving crimson clover hay lies in the usually cool, moist weather conditions prevailing at the time the hay is ready to mow and press of other farm work at this period. For these reasons, unless hay is very scarce, it is often advisable to turn under the entire crop to enrich the soil.

Crimson clover furnishes excellent grazing for all kinds of livestock during the late Winter and early Spring. For this purpose it is much superior to rye oats or any other non-leguminous Winter cover crop.

Minneapolis Lady Badly Scalded While Cooking

While preparing dinner a young Minneapolis wife had the misfortune to scald her hand so badly that over half the skin came off. She was alone at the time and rushed over to her neighbor's for help. This neighbor promptly applied Allan's Ulcerine Salve, and in ten days the hand was completely healed without a scar.

This salve is one of the oldest remedies in America and since 1869 it has been known as the only salve powerful enough to cure chronic ulcers and old sores of long standing.

Allan's Ulcerine Salve acts by drawing out the poisons and healing the sore from the bottom up. It is so powerful that it heals new cuts and sores in one third the time that common salves and liniments take. And it heals burns and scalds without a scar. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co., and other leading druggists.

Malaria or Chills & Fever

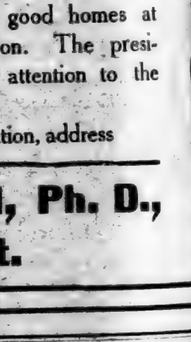
A Lesson in Real Economy

Take two houses—both alike—
Spend about $50 to MASTIC-PAINT one—
Let the other go unpainted—

Offer them both for sale—
You'll wonder why the unpainted house finds no buyer at even $500 less than the MASTIC-PAINTED house will bring.

At the beginning both houses represented equal value.



The Lesson: A few gallons of MASTIC PAINT properly applied at the right time greatly increases the value of your property.

Your building needs painting Right Now, but don't use keg-lead or hand-mixed paints. It may be cheaper at the start, but is costly and unsatisfactory in the end.

REPUBLICANS BLUE OVER MAINE RESULT

The Maine election has cast a election. The Star's leading editorial was on the result. Following is an extract from that mournful editorial.

STILL INTACT, THOUGH

The Bull Moose slump in Maine was heavy. Still, a Bull Moose party remains in the, and answers the purpose of a Democratic asset. A union of the forces subscribing to the policies long known as Republican would have swept everything into the Republican basket yesterday with ease.

Mr. Roosevelt visited the State a short while since and must have been informed of the true situation. He must have known when he quitted the State of the change that has occurred since 1912.

His friends, however, under his advice, kept up their work. Those who voted the Bull Moose ticket did so in the hope of aiding his presidental plans.

"This is the essence and meaning of Bull Moosery wherever it exists. The adjuration is to keep 1916 in mind. Continue the menace to the Republicans, and in the end they will be conquered by it. Will they? If they are it will be a remarkable occurrence."

As has frequently been asserted in this correspondence the game of Colonel Roosevelt, in dealing with the Republican party is "rule or ruin." The Colonel is billed for many speeches during the present campaign. The outlook is anything but hopeful for the Republicans. As things now look Democratic prospects are bright and encouraging.—Birmingham News.

NEGRESS KILLS HUSBAND AT MAPLESVILLE

Alice Robinson, a negro woman, shot and instantly killed her husband, Burl Robinson, at Maplesville Saturday night. The man was shot twice with a 38 calibre Smith & Wesson revolver and died instantly. Alice alleges Burl was fighting her and that she shot him in self defense. The victim was employed as a porter at the M & O depot and was regarded as one of the best negroes in Maplesville.

Deputy Sheriff Ed. Smitherman went to Maplesville Sunday and brought the slayer to Clanton, where she was lodged in jail. Her preliminary trial was set for Wednesday before Judge Benson of the County Court.

CLANTON ELECTION

The election Monday of a Mayor and five Aldermen for the Town of Clanton resulted as follows:

For Mayor—E. M. Pinckard.

For Aldermen—F. R. Woodyard, W. L. Popwell, J. B. Downs, W. A. Kemp and W. W. Fox.

Three tickets were in the field, the race for Mayor being between Dr. E. A. Matthews, present incumbent, E. M. Pinckard and Dr. J. E. Gowan. Keen interest was manifested in the election, almost the entire voting strength of the town turning out. 172 votes was the total number polled, the largest ever cast in Clanton.

The vote each man received for Mayor and Aldermen is as follows:

E. M. Pinckard 115.
E. A. Matthews 46.
J. E. Gowan 10.
F. R. Woodyard 115.

MOUNTAIN CREEK NEWS

Mr. C. W. White purchased for $1,300 the thirteen acres and improvements on the Chilton and Autauga county line and partly within the corporate limits and will in future make this home.

Judge Mayfield has purchased and moved into the splendid property formerly owned by Frank Elmore.

The cotton gin at this place is kept busy all the time, and as a rule the farmers are taking their cotton back home to hold for better prices.

A number of the old veterans at the Soldiers' Home are going to the Mobile reunion October 22-23.

CLANTON YOUNG LADY BUYS BALE COTTON

Miss Emmette Matthews was the first young lady in Clanton to "Buy a Bale of Cotton at Ten Cents per Pound" to help the farmer. This is a new bale and weighs 508 lbs. It was bought of Mr. George Willis, and Miss Matthews has the picture of Mr. Willis and the bale, just as he delivered it.

Now that this fair young lady has set the example, why can't others join in this laudable movement to assist the farmer?

AN INTERESTING LETTER FROM MR. WAGONER

Tangier Sound, Md.,
U. S. S. Texas.

Editor Clanton Press:

If you will allow me space in your paper I will write a few lines in regard to the battleship Texas—full power run, ship's inspection, drills, etc. On Thursday, September 3, we took on sixteen hundred tons of Black diamond coal and several thousand gallons of oil. I can't say just what we had on board, as to oil, but it is inside the full capacity of coal—2,200 tons.

On Friday afternoon we had fire, collision and general quarter drills. Everything proved successful. At the conclusion of the run we were in Tangier Sound, where we are now at anchor.

Well, today was the "big day." We fired the 14-inch guns, the first time a fourteen inch gun has been fired from a ship, and I can tell you when they began firing I got under way at once for the sand bed in the double bottoms. The first gun was fired straight off the stern of the ship, being over the deck, and bolts and rivets flew for five minutes. The third shot that was fired was the dirty work; it was fired off the starboard beam, the muzzle of the gun being within eight feet of the galley when the gun was fired; it tore the iron doors away from the galley, upset the stoves, tables and everything that was loose. In one compartment was a white boy and a colored boy, there being a 1-2 inch steel bulkhead between them and the gun. The compression from the gun ripped the bulkhead loose, knocked the white boy back on the colored boy, both were hurled head-first down a ladder narrowly escaping death. The colored boy said he was lightning-struck; I guess he was alright. It will take at least a month to repair the ship after firing the big guns. But, tomorrow is the day; we will fire all the 14-inch guns simultaneously, there being ten of this size on the Texas, and of course I will be in the double bottoms and I will be sure that every shot has been fired before I put my head above deck. After firing a salvo it might be a life belt and beach bound for mine. We go to Hampton Roads and coal, then we go for target practice. If we have good luck with the guns on the 15th, then for New York for minor repairs.

Well, I guess I have said enough for this time, as I will close by sending my regards to the Press and its readers, I am,

Yours respectfully,
J. WAGONER.

YOUNG SMITH BOUND OVER

The preliminary trial of Frank C. Smith, the 17 year old Thorsby boy, charged with stealing $1,000 from the safe of the Southern Express Company at Thorsby several days ago, was held last Saturday in Clanton before J. W. E. Gulledge, J. P.

Victor J. Heard, County Solicitor, and J. K. Shannon, Assistant Superintendent of the Southern Express Company, conducted the prosecution, the defendant being represented by W. M. Adams.

A number of witnesses were examined and after hearing the evidence, Mr. Gulledge bound the defendant over in the sum of one thousand dollars to await the action of the next Grand Jury, and in default of bail, he was remanded to jail.

Later: Smith has been released on bail.

MR. THORNE'S LECTURE

On the evening of the 15th Mr. Thorne reached the Waldrop School House from Birmingham and delivered a lecture on "a reasonable and an unreasonable view of the world's day of judgment." He said the unreasonable view regarded the day with dread, as a day of lightning, thunder, fire, tidal waves, and cyclones, when the whole race was to pass before the Great White Throne and be judged; the dead to return from Heaven and from eternal torment to be judged, and that the day was only twenty-four hours long.

But the reasonable view was that the day would be one thousand years long; a bright day, a day of grandeur and glory; a day when man's great enemy would be bound; when the dead would be awakened from death, taught and tried or judged, and all the worthy ones would have eternal life, while the wilfully wicked would get eternal death; that while it would be a glorious day, it would be ushered in with a trouble unparallelled. Mr. Thorne said he believed that trouble was beginning; that while he did regret the death of so many, he was glad it was here; it had to come and it was probably earth's last war. He is a fluent speaker, a good reasoner, a lovely man. The people came out in large numbers. On the 16th, he left for Selma and other points south.

SYNOPSIS.

Bud Hooker and Phil De Lancey are forced, owing to a revolution in Mexico, to give up their mining claim and return to the United States. In the border town of Gadsden Bud meets Henry Kruger, a wealthy miner, who makes him a proposition to return to Mexico to acquire title to a very rich mine which Kruger had blown up when he found he had been cheated out of the title by one Aragon. The Mexican subsequently had spent a large sum of money in an unsuccessful attempt to relocate the vein and then allowed the land to revert for taxes. Hooker and De Lancey arrive at Fortuna, near where the Eagle Tail mine is located. They engage Cruz Mendez to acquire the title for them and begin preliminary work. Aragon accuses them of jumping his claim. Hooker discovers that matrimonial entanglements prevent Mendez from acquiring a valid title. Phil, who has been paying attention to Gracia Aragon, decides to turn Mexican and acquire the title. Aragon fails in his attempt to drive them off the claim. Rebels are reported in the vicinity. A rich vein of gold is struck and work on the mine is stopped until the title can be perfected. Phil is arrested by Manuel del Rey, captain of the rurales and suitor of Gracia's. He is released on promise to stay away from Gracia. Phil is forced to enlist in the rurales. He asks Bud to take care of Gracia. The rebels are defeated in a fierce battle near Fortuna. Phil deserts and returns to the United States. Bud turns Mexican and takes steps to secure title to the mine in his own name.

CHAPTER XIX—Continued.

He looked the adobe house over thoughtfully, listened long to the news of the border and of the rurales' raid on their camp, and retired to the rocks for the night. Even Bud never knew where he slept—somewhere up on the hillside—in caves or clefts in the rocks—and not even the most pressing invitation could make him share the house for a night. To Amigo, as to an animal, a house was a trap; and he knew that the times were treacherous.

So indeed they were, as Hooker was to learn to his sorrow, and but for the Yaqui and his murderous knife he might easily have learned it too late.

It was evening, after a rainless day, and Bud was cooking by the open fire, when suddenly Amigo vanished and four men rode in from above. They were armed with rifles, as befitted the times, but gave no signs of ruffianly bravado, and after a few words Bud invited them to get down and eat.

"Muchas gracias, senor," said the leader, dismounting and laying his rifle against a log, "we are not hungry."

"Then have some coffee," invited Hooker, who made it a point to feed every one who stopped, regardless of their merit; and once more, the Mexican declined. At this Bud looked at him sharply, for his refusal did not augur well, and it struck him the man's face was familiar. He was tall for a Mexican and heavily built, but with a rather sinister cast of countenance.

"Where have I seen you before?" asked Bud, after trying in vain to place him. "In Fortuna?"

"No, senor," answered the Mexican politely. "I have never been in that city. Is it far?"

"Ten miles by the trail," responded Hooker, by no means reassured, and under pretext of inviting them to eat, he took a look at the other men. If they had not stopped to eat, what then was their errand while the sun was sinking so low? And why this sullen refusal of the coffee which every Mexican drinks?

Bud stepped into the house, as if on some errand, and watched them unseen from the interior. Seeing them exchange glances then, he leaned his rifle just inside the door and went about his cooking.

It was one of the chances he took, living out in the brush, but he had come to know this low-browed type of semi-bandit all too well and had small respect for their courage. In case of trouble Amigo was close by in the rocks somewhere, probably with his gun in his hand—but with a little patience and circumspection the unwelcome visitors would doubtless move on.

So he thought, but instead they lingered, and when supper was cooked he decided to go to a show-down—and if they again refused to eat he would send them on their way.

"Van amigos," he said, spreading out the tin plates for them. "Come and eat!"

The three low-brows glared at their leader, who had done what little talking there was so far, and, seized with a sudden animation, he immediately rose to his feet.

"Many thanks, senor," he said with a cringing and specious politeness. "We have come far and the trail is long, so we will eat. The times are hard for poor men now—plain trulys. Madero has made us all hungry. It is by him that we poor working men were driven to insurrection—and we hope that the Americanos are our friends. Yes, senor, I will take some of your beans—and thank you."

He filled a plate as he spoke, and lifted a blanket from the ground, muttering with his lips [illegible]

"That, in truth, is no jest to the Mexican people. This man has betrayed us all; he has ruined the country and set brother against brother. And now, while we starve because the mines are shut down, he gathers his family about him in the city and lives fat on the money he has stolen."

He ran on in this style, after the fashion of the revoltosos, and by the very commonplace of his fulminations Bud was thrown completely off his guard. That was the way they all talked, these worthless bandit-beggars—that and telling how they loved the Americanos—and then, if they got a chance, they would stick a knife in your back.

He listened to the big man with a polite toleration, being careful not to turn his back, and ate a few bites as he waited, but though it was coming dusk the Mexicans were in no hurry to depart. Perhaps they hoped to stop for the night and get him in his sleep. Still they lingered on, the leader sitting on a log and continuing his harangue.

Then, in the middle of a sentence, and while Bud was bending over the fire, the Mexican stopped short and leaned to one side. A tense silence fell, and Hooker was waked from his trance by the warning click of a gun-lock. Suddenly his mind came back to his guests, and he ducked like a flash, but even as he went down he heard the hammer clack!

The gun had snapped!

Instantly Hooker's hand leaped to his pistol and he fired from the hip pointblank at the would-be murderer. With a yell to the others, one of the Mexicans sprang on him from behind and tried to bear him down. They struggled for a moment while Bud shot blindly with his pistol and went down fighting.

Bud was a giant compared to the stunted Mexicans, and he threw them about like dogs that hang on to a bear. With a man in each hand he rose to his feet, crushing them down beneath him; then, in despair of shaking off his rider, he staggered a few steps and hurled himself over backward into the fire.

A yell of agony followed their fall and, as the live coals bit through the Mexican's thin shirt, he fought like a cat to get free. Rocks, pots and kettles were kicked in every direction, and when Hooker leaped to his feet the Mexican scrambled up and rushed madly for the creek.

But, though Bud was free, the battle had turned against him, for in the brief interval of his fight the other two Mexicans had run for their guns. The instant he rose they covered him. Their chief, who by some miracle had escaped Bud's shot, gave a shout for Statement Showing How the Proceeds of Sale of Red Cross Seals Are to Be Spent.

For the benefit of the numerous organizations who helped to sell nearly forty-five million Red Cross seals last year and for the general public, the American Red Cross and the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis have framed a definition of anti-tuberculosis work showing how the proceeds from these holiday stickers are to be used. The definition limits the expenditure of money only for the year ending April 30, 1915.

The definition was framed at a recent meeting of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis and states that the term "anti-tuberculosis work" as it relates to the expenditure of Red Cross money shall include the following activities:

1. The construction of hospitals or sanatoriums for the care of the tuberculous.

2. The maintenance of the tuberculous.

3. The provisions of day or [illegible] camps for the tuberculous; the provision and maintenance of dispensaries, visiting nurses, open air schools, open air classes, or preventoria for the prevention or treatment of tuberculous cases or for the prevention of the spread of tuberculosis.

4. The maintenance of educational or legislative activities which have as their object the prevention of infection with tuberculosis.

SICK DOCTOR
Proper Food Put Him Right

The food experience of a physician in his own case when worn and sick from sickness and when needing nourishment the worst way, is valuable.

"An attack of grip, so severe it came near making an end of me, left my stomach in such condition I could not retain any ordinary food. I knew of course that I must have food nourishment or I could never recover.

"I began to take Grape-Nuts and cream, three of Grape-Nuts and cream, three a day and for 2 weeks this was my only food. It tasted so good that I enjoyed it immensely and my stomach handled it perfectly the first mouthful. It was as [illegible] I was quickly built back to health and strength.

"Grape-Nuts is of great value to sustain life during the period in which the stomach is so weak it cannot digest and assimilate other foods.

"I am convinced that Grape-Nuts more widely used in sickness it would save many lives now otherwise lost from lack of proper food." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The most perfect [illegible] Trial of Grape-Nuts will prove it. "There's a reason."

"Look in pkgs. for the little book, "The Road to Wellville."

Inventor of the Airbrake.

Who really invented the airbrake? Certainly the automatic airbrake, the one that has proved practicable and of permanent value in modern railroading, was the product of the late George Westinghouse's ingenuity. His patent for the automatic brake was taken out in 1872, superseding the non-automatic or "straight" Westinghouse airbrake patented in 1869, and later the Westinghouse vacuum brake was invented. But, as in the case of most other inventions, there are several claimants for originality in this field. Thus Mme. M. Drouaud, daughter of M. Debringes of Paris, claims the distinction of priority for her father. The New York Times has a letter from State Senator William P. Fiero of White Plains containing a patent office declaration by his grandfather, Henry Miller, of a "new and useful improvement in the application of steam and compressed air to the purpose of operating railroad brakes," recorded January 2, 1855. Mr. Miller was doubtless a pioneer in the progress of airbrake invention.

Rays of Humor.

From underneath the war cloud little flashes of humor escape now and again.

Two Irish sergeants, brought wounded to Paris, are reported as saying that they did not know exactly where the battle was, but they had just been "fighting at Copenhagen." They probably meant Compeigne, but it made no difference in their willingness to fight.

The Paris Figaro pictures as a common sight on the streets two men reading their respective newspapers through to the end, and then exchanging a Figaro for a Matin, and absorbingly rereading in the second newspaper the identical official announcement which they had read in the first.

Life retains its shades of fun even in the darkest shadow of trouble.

PARADISE FOR THE ARTIST

Devotees of the Brush Are Accorded Accommodations Without Price at Inn at Capri.

Capri, beautiful in itself as a winter resort, offers an irresistible invitation to artists, since it has an inn where anyone, by painting a picture on the wall can get free board.

To the lovely island of Capri, with its perennial summer, its blue grotto, and its lemon groves, came, some fifty years ago, a ruined artist. He opened an inn, and died rich. In his will, leaving the inn to his heirs, he made these conditions:

"The charge per day, two bottles of red Capri wine included, is never to be more than six francs.

"If any artist is too poor to pay he shall paint a picture upon some wall-space, receiving all the accommodation accorded to those paying the highest price.

"If any German artist shall come to the inn he shall be accommodated, and shall receive the amount of his fare to Germany upon his promising never to return to Italy."

The inn is conducted today on these conditions. Its walls are covered with paintings. Now and then a German gets his fare home.

Correct.

"Yes, everything but heads," corrected the fool.

"Fruit? Just the thing! Now she's just off; jump in that carriage. I left a fine pear in the corner."

Jones got in and started searching around.

"My friend said he left a fine pear in the corner," explained Jones, as an old lady sniffed angrily at the way he searched round her.

"Guess he meant that corner, my man," she snapped.

Jones looked and saw a young couple blushing furiously.

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless: Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food: Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ills., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory."

Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. E. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr. Wm. J McGrann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

We noticed that J. O. Thompson has purchased a hundred thousand dollar cemetery in Birmingham. Wonder if he bought it to bury the Bull Moose party in?

The demoralized cotton market proves very strongly the great need of a cotton mill and cotton seed oil mill at Clanton. If we had such enterprises here, the entire crop of Chilton county cotton could find a ready market right here in Clanton, and the farmer could get ready cash for his product at the market price, and a saving would be realized in freight rates.

"As an aid to the Clanton Press in finding out what is meant by the initiative, referendum and recall, we beg to state that it does not mean the issuing of county warrants and placing the county in debt."—Union-Banner.

So, Union-Banner, your crowd evidently were not working under the initiative, referendum and recall in 1906, were they? But pardon us, you say your were in school at that time.

A. J. Stofer, the well-known Washington correspondent, says, and truly so, that the meaning of Bull Moosery wherever it exists is to aid the great Theodore in his presidential aspirations. The adjuration being to keep 1916 in mind.

Conditions are similar in old Chilton, the only difference being that Bull Moosery as applied locally means the aiding of the great Lewis in securing another six years in the Probate Judge's office.

For the past several weeks the Union-Banner has been harping on the ISSUE in this campaign. They have taken the Press to task for "trying to divert the minds of the 'dear people' from the issue." The ISSUE is their only hobby. It was headed this way by the boss with the admonition "Keep on the Duff."
